FROM a highly interesting letter read from "Senator" Morgan, I am informed of the rejoicing that has everywhere taken place through Ireland over the landing there of the American racing team, which culminated in bonfires, speeches, toasts, etc., at the home of W. M. Woodside, at Coleraine. It is at such "Coleraine elbow" affairs that the "senator" most enjoys himself, and proves worthy of the title he bears.

THE Manhattan Athletic Club, the oldest, foremost, and most famous of all the athletic organizations now springing up throughout the country, is the first to recognize the quality of wheelmen, and L. A. W. ones especially. I understand that they contemplate making some concessions to both these to induce them to share in the splendor of their Fifth Avenue clubhouse. You will shortly receive a fuller and more official outline of this plan from the club itself.

THE Ixions' new uniform, after about two weeks' sorting over of samples, etc., seems to have gone the way that every other contract goes, where quality is the most desired adjunct. Frank White has gathered it in for Spalding.

I DID N'T know that one ever got as bad a dose of fever the second time as the first; but in my case I am worse smitten with the riding fever this year since I ordered a bicyclette than I was at any time during the four years I rode day and night. Now, after two years' cessation from riding, I find myself, like in days of yore, watching each day the weather, and counting those lost that I cannot ride. I am with all the other prophets in their predictions that this is going to be the greatest year of cycling; it surely is, as far as I personally am concerned. THE OWL.

MR. WILSON REPORTS.

MR. A. J. WILSON has submitted a report on the papers submitted to him by Mr. Ducker. It will be remembered that Mr. Ducker announced last fall that such-and-such amateur riders were coming to America to compete at the Springfield tournament. The English papers, notably Mr. Hillier's paper, the Bicycling News, took up the statements of Mr. Ducker, and said that he had no authority for making them, and that the men never intended to come over. Mr Ducker offered to prove his utterances, and sent the letters to Mr. A. J. Wilson, as a neutral party. Mr. Wilson now writes: —

"I have examined a number of letters and telegrams forwarded to me by H. E. Ducker, and I hereby declare that I am satisfied, after reading the said documents, that the Springfield Bicycle Club and its officials had good and reasonable grounds for believing that the amateur riders who were named in the newspapers last autumn as being expected to race at Springfield, would actually do so. I declare that the statements contained in the Wheelmen's Gazette for October, 1886 (page 104), were true in so far as they concerned the possession of these letters from firms in the trade, undertaking to procure the attendance of certain amateurs for sums of money named and agreed upon with the Springfield club. I declare that, from my previous knowledge, some, at least, of the firms so bargaining were of a status and report sufficient to justify the Springfield Club in credibly accepting their confident assurances that they had the ability to carry out their bargains. The Cyclist's accusation of falsehood is thus disapproved.

On the other hand, I consider that the firms concerned assumed an unwarrantable degree of license in the matter, and were to blame for making bargains of the sort, which of my own knowledge I am aware, they could not be sure of carrying out, and which, in the event, they actually failed to carry out. None of the letters incriminate any of the riders named, there being nothing to show that they had been consulted in the matter."

ST. LOUIS.

JACK ROGERR has just resigned the general managership of the Meet, and all matters will now be conducted by a joint committee of nine. The work is well on its way to completion, financially and otherwise. Burley Ayers dropped down on us this morning, and will be urged to do the descriptive work on the official programme, which will certainly be issued May 1.

WE are having an interesting division election, there being two tickets in the field; both, however, booming Brewster for chief consul. The election of a secretary occurs in June, when J. A. Lewis will certainly be re-elected. Lewis was banqueted Friday evening by a few friends, and leaves us for a few months' sojourn on the Continent.

GREAT preparations are being made for the De-Soto run of next Sunday. The trip is only made about three times a year, and this time there will be an unusual number of tenderfeet on the run. Prof. Stone has charge of the run.

THE trade is looking up wonderfully, and Percy Stone has been obliged to increase his repairing force to keep pace with the rush. New mounts are seen everywhere, and the boys are gradually forsaking their heavy roadsters for lighter machines, and the latter will receive several thorough tests on the run of next week.

I AM boiling things down with a vengeance, but the crowded condition of these columns is the reason. PHOENIX.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

(5.) No. 9305 complains that he has not had fair treatment from the accident insurance companies. He writes that he was insured in two of them, and that he was crippled for life last July. He took a header and fell on his left arm, causing a double fracture of the elbow. He was confined to his house for six weeks and the best that he can do with the companies is to get an allowance for three days. This would seem to be a matter for the courts.

(6.) N. B. S. is quite right in saying that a publisher can compel a man to pay for a paper, if he takes it from the post-office, whether he has ordered it or not. His only recourse is to refuse to accept it at the office.

(7.) 3913 would like to ask of St. Louis riders if the roads thereabouts are good enough for the tricycle, and if St. Louis Wheelmen will recommend him to bring a three-wheeler to the Meet.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

CHIEF CONSUL WELLS REMOVED.

JOHN A. WELLS, Esq.,
Chief Consul Penn. Div. L. A. W.

Sir, — I hereby notify you that by virtue of the power vested in me under the by-laws of the League of American Wheelmen, I have and do hereby remove you from office as Chief Consul of Pennsylvania for malfeasance upon the following grounds, namely: —

1st. In that being Chief Consul of Pennsylvania, and Secretary pro tempore of said League, you received official papers and refused and neglected to deliver them to your successor as Secretary, but turned them over to the committee of an adverse faction inimical to the Executive Committee and Board of Officers.

2d. In that being such Chief Consul you instigated, aided, and abetted, and are instigating, aiding, and abetting the circulation of scandalous, libellous, and false statements as to the conduct and motives of the Executive Committee of said League and of its Board of Officers at the recent meeting in January last.

3d. In that, being such Chief Consul and owing allegiance to said League you conspired with a certain official thereof, namely, Eugene M. Aaron, Representative and strove to procure the cancellation of advertising contracts for the BULLETIN, and the execution in the place thereof of contracts in your individual name for such advertising, thereby endeavoring to direct legitimate business from said BULLETIN and to injure and if possible destroy its publication.

4th. In that being such Chief Consul and owing allegiance to said League, and being in duty bound to aid and assist it, you attached by legal process the entire bank account and the office effects thereof at Philadelphia for an alleged claim for advertising commissions, payment of which had not been refused, to an amount largely in excess of said supposed claim, with the object of hindering, harassing, and annoying the Executive Committee and officers of said League, and by such unjustifiable duress of compelling payment of said alleged claim.

You are further notified that I have appointed as Chief Consul of Pennsylvania in your place, George A. Jessup, Esq., of Scranton, and you are hereby directed to turn over to him all official books, papers, and other property in your possession or under your control.

Yours respectfully,
N. M. BECKWITH,
President L. A. W.

NEW YORK, March 24, 1887.

APPOINTMENT FOR PENNSYLVANIA.

HAVING this day removed Jno. A. Wells from the office of Chief Consul L. A. W., for Pennsylvania, for causes set forth in my announcement to appear in this issue of the BULLETIN, I therefore declare said office vacant, and appoint to fill the unexpired term of said office preceding next annual election, Mr. Geo. A. Jessup, President of Scranton Bicycle Club, Scranton, Pa., believing that in the selection of the gentleman named I have the approval of the most loyal and thinking members of the Pennsylvania division.

Fraternally,
N. MALON BECKWITH,
President L. A. W.

NEW YORK, March 24, 1887.

MR. AARON ACCEPTS REMOVAL.

EDITOR L. A. W. BULLETIN: — I am in receipt of a notification from the President of the L. A. W. removing me from the office of representative for Pennsylvania, to which I was appointed by him, and ratified by the Board last September. The truth of the charges on which this removal is based I emphatically deny; but so much has already been said pro and con on this subject that it does not seem to be worth while to renew the discussion at this time.

I have great reason to fear that, while my good name and future have been the targets aimed at, the good name and future of the League and of American cycling have also been seriously affected, and that already this bitter discussion has gone beyond the persons engaged therein, and has aimed a serious blow at the interests of the organization of which I was proud to be the servant for so long a time. This being the case, I have decided, much against my own personal interests, to drop the controversy where it now is, and to refrain from any further comments on the charges thus far made against me.

I have no desire to do aught to awaken factional feeling which will permanently injure the League, and I sincerely trust that all that I have so far said or written on the subject will be taken only as aimed, not at the organization or its motives, but at certain persons within its ranks.

Article I, sect. 1, sub-sections b and c, provide that the President "may at any time remove from office any member of the Board." The President is allowed to judge as to what shall constitute the "malfeasance" to be taken as a cause for the removal. It may be the organization of another association, as in M Ducker's case, or it may be removal from the State to be represented, as in the case of Mr. Wood. In both of the cases the President was upheld by the Board, so that the uselessness of an appeal to the Board must be apparent to all. As a new ticket is already two weeks in the field, and as I am, by my own request, left off that ticket, another good reason is apparent why I should refrain from putting the already overtaxed treasury to the expense of a mail vote. I trust that you will allow me the space to say the above to all League members, and to assure them, and Pennsylvania members in particular, that I am unwilling longer to be used as a bone of contention to the prejudice of the League. — Yours, etc.,

E. M. AARON.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., March 28, 1887.

APPOINTMENTS.

RHODE ISLAND. — Chief Consul Chase has appointed Chas. F. Gladding of Warren, a member of the Racing Committee, vice Geo. C. Newell, resigned.

COLORADO. — Chief Consul Lewis B. Johnson, has appointed hotels for Denver, as follows: The Albany, regular prices, $4, $3.50, $3; League rates, $3.50, $3, $2.50. Accommodations, first class. St. James Hotel (European), $1.50 rooms for $1: $1 rooms for 75 cents. Meals, 50 cents.

ANNUAL ELECTIONS 1887. NOMINATIONS.

VERMONT. — The Vermont Wheel Club of Brattleboro, nominates S. W. Kirkland of that place, for Chief Consul

CONNECTICUT. — Robert F. Way, of Hartford, is nominated by the Hartford Wheel Club for Representative, and not for Chief Consul, as stated in a recent issue.

NEW JERSEY. — Dr. Fred A. Kinch, Jr., declines the nomination for Chief Consul of New Jersey.

PENNSYLVANIA. — H. S. Wood, of Youngstown, O., requests us to withdraw his name as a candidate for Representative in Pennsylvania, and says he is a member of the Ohio Division.

PENNSYLVANIA. — The Mountain Wheel Club, of Philipsburg, nominates C. B. Holly, of that place, for re-election as Representative.

PENNSYLVANIA. — T. Houard Wright declines to stand as candidate for Representative.

VIRGINIA. — The Seaside Club, of Norfolk, nominates J. C. Carroll for Chief Consul.

MASSACHUSETTS. — Nominations for the Fourth District: F. P. Kendall and John C. Spiers, both of Worcester.

INDIANA CONSULS.

The above appointments are made for the year ending March 1, 1888.

ROBERT M. WELCH, Chief Consul.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicant will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their ticket to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication you may look for your ticket.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

Made same as full tights, to three inches below the knee.

TRUNKS

LADIES' JERSEY FITTING TRICYCLE PANTS.

A NEW THING

These Pants are close fitting, come three inches below the knee, are very elastic, and the most comfortable garment a lady ever wore. Made in Cream-Colored Cotton, Drab, Red, or any colors in Worsteds. Racing Wheelmen tell us it is a loss of fifteen seconds in a mile to have some slight irritation from a non-elastic pair of cloth pants.

Patented April 7, 1885.

L. A. W. TABLE.

Made of Georgia Mahogany.

Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.

L. A. W. SYMBOL.

Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered. Read what they say of it:

The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.

(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.

The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.

(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.

Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,

(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.

There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world. Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.—Thomasville Enterprise.

Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W. member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

PRICE $2.50. When five or more are shipped to one address, the freight will be just one-fifth of what it would be on shipment of one. Address

WRITE VERY PLAINLY.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally coaching, training, or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

The OPPORTUNITY OF THE YEAR!!

CLEARANCE SALE OF HIGH ✣ GRADE ✣ WHEELS.

Having a limited lot of Second-hand Wheels, taken in exchange to accommodate our customers desiring different sizes, and many of them but very little used and good as new, also a very few entirely new Royal Mails of 1885 model, we have decided to close all out at reduced prices in order merely to make room for new goods. It will be observed this is not a sale, as is often the case, of old model wheels, out of style and heavy weights, but of late pattern Light Roadsters. Every one is fully guaranteed. The Royal Mails are too well known to need description: for a High Grade Light Roadster it has been at the Top of the List. This opportunity is a Rare one, and the wheels, now that the season is opening, will be quickly taken up. A Royal Mail, even though costing a little more than cheap made, out of style second-hand wheels, is worth more, and a better investment.

The ROYAL MAIL is too well known to need minute description. It has, as a Light Roadster for the past four years, been in the front rank, gained the prize for the greatest amount of road work in 1885, with 5,056 miles to the credit of one wheel, and has increased in popularity each year. We claim that no other in the market is of such first-class workmanship, and we think it is conceded to be the handsomest wheel.

☞ Above Royal Mails are great bargains. They all have the tangent-tied spokes, and the wheels are as serviceable as new for use — in fact, many scarcely show any riding. Exchanged for different sizes. They will soon be taken up.

WE ALSO OFFER TO EXCHANGE

NEW ROYAL MAILS for other wheels on very low terms — in fact, at such terms as we would not entertain later. This is a splendid chance to wheelmen to exchange their old wheels for a Superb Light Roadster. Send description of your old wheel, stating size, etc., wanted, and valuation of your wheel. Send at once.

STODDARD, LOVERING & COMPANY.

The above sketch gives a good view of Messrs. Stoddard, Lovering & Co.'s bicycle salesroom, which is one of the three floors occupied by this department. In size it is 80 by 40 feet, and is without doubt the largest bicycle salesroom in the world. This floor contains some three hundred machines, and a customer on entering the room cannot be otherwise than impressed with the stately display of RUDGES in regular order, ready to be shipped at a moment's notice.

The first double row contains the 1887 pattern of the RUDGE LIGHT ROADSTERS, complete, with spade handles, long cranks, and full forks; the second is devoted to the RUDGE ROADSTER, with its many improvements for the coming season; while the third is taken up with the RUDGE RACER. At the upper end of the room is arranged a line of shopworn and second-hand bicycles, while on the other side the rows are filled up with the RUDGE SAFETY and BICYCLETTES. On the left of the picture is shown the sample machines, principally Tricycles or Tandems, and the tricycle standing on the floor is a CRESCENT TANDEM with the double steering, a specialty for 1887.

At the farther end of the salesroom are situated the offices. The general office is used for the executive part of the business, being occupied by the various clerks and stenographers. At the extreme right hand is the private office for the manager, and a glance at this is well worth a moment's notice. Both offices are tastefully fitted up in hard wood, and on entering the private office the first thing that strikes the eye is a large oil painting of the North German Lloyd steamship Aller, in which it was Mr. Corey's pleasure to cross the Atlantic last October. Hanging on the walls are over a dozen pictures, of his cycling friends, both in America and England, which are tastefully framed to match the woodwork. A glance around the room of the manager's office shows the taste of the occupant. A tennis racquet hangs beside his desk, and directly back of him is a large picture of a toboggan coast. On the wall in front hangs a picture representing the start for the one-mile amateur championship of the world at Birmingham, England June 13, 1885, which was won by Sanders Sellers on a 58-inch RUDGE RACER; while directly opposite is a picture of the yacht Mayflower in her race with the Genesta. Electric bells connect with all parts of the building, and on hooks arranged around the side of the office are hung all the American and foreign bicycle literature of the day, and newspaper men often resort to it seeking for the latest information. On the floor of the office is one of Will Pitman's League rugs, which is a work of art and adds much to its appearance.

In conversation with Mr. Corey upon the different makes of wheels, he remarked that he has often been asked to express his opinion as to other firms' goods, which he invariably declined to do, unless other circumstances compelled him to make some necessary statements. As a gentle hint to the person desiring information, he cannot fail to observe, upon leaving the manager's office, a gilt sign which hangs over the door, reading:—

> "Let no one speak beyond this threshold hence, > Words uttered here in friendly confidence."

It has been the manager's aim to systematize every detail of this department, believing that when a rider wants a machine he wants it at once, and not three weeks afterwards; consequently, the large stock which is carried enables him to fill orders without delay.

It is Mr. Corey's idea to surround himself with practical road riders, and he has able assistants in Mr. H. M. Saben, Lieutenant of the Massachusetts Bicycle Club, and Mr. W. S. Doane of the Dorchester Club. Both are well-known riders and racing men, and are noted for the keen interest they take in the business.

The next floor of the establishment is of the same size as the salesroom, and is used for storing the cases of the machines as they come from England. The floor above this is used for crating, shipping and repairing, and is under the charge of able assistants who have been connected with RUDGE & Co.'s factory in England.

The specialties which the above firm have to offer for the coming year are the new pattern RUDGE LIGHT ROADSTER, which contains many valuable features; the RUDGE BICYCLETTE, the original Rover type Safety; the RUDGE ROADSTER, a strong, reliable machine at a moderate price; the RUDGE CRESCENT TRICYCLE, which has been having a great run in England for the last year; the well-known and popular HUMBER TANDEM, and a new Tandem called the CRESCENT, suitable for two ladies or a lady and a gentleman.

In consequence of the increasing business, and of the large number of agents scattered over the country, it has been necessary to carry a stock of from 300 to 600 machines on hand at all times, and the firm pride themselves on their prompt delivery.

Besides carrying such a large number of machines in stock, special attention has been paid to sundries, and the merits of Rudge's Liquid Enamel, Townsend's Saddle, Harrington's Cradle-spring, and Lucas's "King of the Road" Lamps, are well known.

In point of manufacture and improvements, it has been the policy of Messrs. STODDARD, LOVERING & Co. to keep fully up with the times, but not to force the demand by the introduction of new inventions which have not been thoroughly tested. They fully believe in having the very latest, but do not consider a change always to be an improvement, and prefer to adhere to what they know is thorough and reliable, rather than to make any alterations which may or may not prove afterwards to be what is desired. The remark has often been made by riders intending to purchase a machine, that they did not see any particular difference in the various makes, but they select a RUDGE "because they knew that there was nothing better, and they felt sure of what they were buying." It is principally on this account that the RUDGE machines have attained their enviable reputation.

AN important and useful bill has just passed the Legislature, and one, the utility of which will recommend itself to all wheelmen. The substance of this bill is to compel towns and cities to erect and maintain guideboards at all forks and intersections of highways leading from one town or city to another. The failure to comply with this statute will subject the offending town or city to a penalty. Due honor and credit should be paid to George A. Perkins, Esq., counsellor-at-law, and representative to the General Court from Cambridge, for his earnest efforts, and the ability displayed in securing the passage of the above bill. Its practical application appealed strongly to Mr Perkins's good sense and experience, as he is an accomplished wheelman, a member of the L. A. W., and of the Cambridge Bicycle Club. Mr. Perkins's success should suggest to all bicyclers the value of "putting their work where it will do the most good," by electing wheelmen to office. We would suggest that wheelmen see that the above law is enforced.

THERE is not the least doubt but the cold shoulder presented by the L. A. W. to the infant A. C. U. has done much to numb the vitality of the latter organization. Paralysis seems to have seized its limbs, and death seems near at hand. — Bi. World.

We don't know what the L. A. W. has had to do with the success or failure of the A. C. U. The Union came forward to undertake a field of work upon which the League did not trench. It proposed to do something quite aside from what the League is doing, and our organization has done nothing to hinder its progress save when it has tried to interfere with what we consider to be our legitimate work. If wheelmen have given the cold shoulder to the A. C. U., they have done so as wheelmen and not as League members. If the organizers of the A. C. U. brought goods to market for which there was no demand, they cannot blame anybody but themselves.

IT has been intimated that the League is doing nothing to encourage racing. It is doing now as much as it ever did, and it is not long since that the cry went forth that we were doing too much for racing and not enough for touring. We have our racing rules and our championships, and the Racing Board is now doing all that it can to keep men to their proper classes. It was a fact quite noticeable that the large tournaments which were held under A. C. U. rules last fall were officered by prominent L. A. W. men, a fact which goes to show that the A. C. U. was not given the cold shoulder, but was afforded a most abundant opportunity to show its right to live.

THE decision of the Racing Board, not to hold a race meet in connection with the annual League meet at St. Louis in May has produced almost universal disappointment. — Min. Division.

The decision was made at the request of prominent officials of the League in St. Louis, who said they had no good track, and that the meeting would most certainly be a losing venture. A race meeting under such circumstances would be a losing venture.

THE mail vote for officers closes on Sunday. There are but a few more days in which to exercise the right of suffrage and go on record for the officers of your choice. A large vote speaks well for the interest of members.

A GREAT many men have allowed their memberships to lapse this year on account of absence from home or carelessness. We shall have them all back again after a while.

SCRANTON NOTES.

SELDOM seeing the names of Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Pittston, Kingston and Wyoming in the BULLETIN, and knowing that in this section (the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valleys) reside some two hundred wheelmen, members of the League, and possibly as many more who do not belong to the organization, I, who cannot lay any claim to literary ability, am going to speak from this section. Northeastern Pennsylvania is destined to take a place in wheel circles this season, now that we have the chief consul of the State located with us, and the next meeting of the Pennsylvania Division is to be held at Wilkesbarre on July 4th. Besides, events of importance are occurring in some one of our eight clubs almost weekly.

Surely this a fruitful field for some live correspondent. We have wondered why some of our wheelmen, who furnish weekly columns for some of our dailies, have not let their light shine in the BULLETIN, but presume the busy life we lead here in the anthracite coal and iron fields does not allow them time. Let us hope that this attempt at an article may prompt them to come out and write us up.

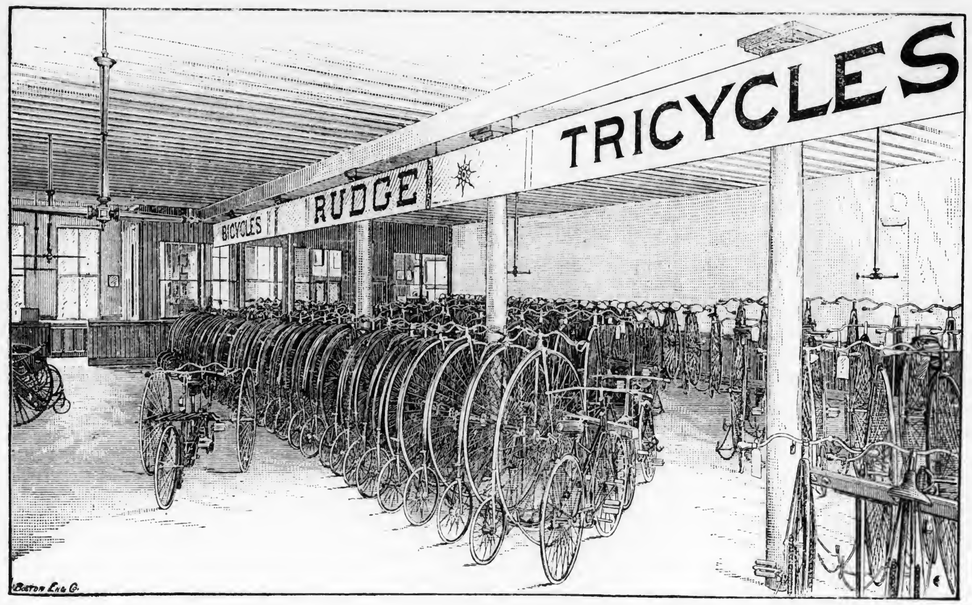
We will not, like Representative Holly, profess to speak for this section in what we have to say, but still we think our individual opinion coincides with a great many of our neighbors. It is a big man that can speak for a State, or even town, uninstructed. In fact, it takes a man about the size of Mr. Aaron, for friends of him and his proxies seem to think it was all right for him to speak for several States. But there we differ. The news of the New York meeting rather startled us, but now that all the facts are out, we can say amen to Mr. Luscomb's letter of March 20, proxy matter and all. Mr. Aaron seems to have tried to carry the present regime with him in his downfall, and we think perhaps it would be a good idea to retire them for a short time and try new men. How would older heads do? Successful business men who have made their mark in the world, and would carry the same business principles into the League; men without trade influence, who are enthusiastic wheelmen, and would go into League affairs only to advance its interest and not their own personality.

After Mr. Wells was knocked out for Chief Consul without a fight, election seemed to lose all interest until Holly came into the field. Think he will be elected; he is sure of most of the votes in the State, and if defeated it will be by Philadelphia votes, and the careless voter who will vote a printed straight ticket sooner than take the trouble to change a name. We, through here, would support Mr. Holly because he is the choice of his own district, if for no other reason, The ticket nominated by the committee does not make a just division of representatives by any means, and goes to show the need of districting the State, which will probably be one of the things attended to at the next Division meeting.

We were rather surprised to see, in one of our papers the other day, that George A. Jessup, President of the Scranton Club, was now Chief Consul, by appointment. While we have not the particulars, it is a course that might have been expected from the actions of Mr. Wells in attaching the BULLETIN and other League property thereby casting an insult to every member of the League.

Mr. Jessup is a worthy man, being one of Scranton's reliable coal operators and business men, and now that he has accepted the position of Chief Consul, we may expect to see the State take on some of his push and energy.

The Scranton Club are an energetic set of fellows, as is shown in the way they are preparing to receive Thomas Stevens, on April 12th. While the Club are directly to be the host, they have issued a neat invitation to all us wheelmen outside the club, and in neighbor cities to join with them in the reception. Upon the arrival of Stevens the Boys will receive him, mounted, (possibly their old drill team with their stand stills, etc.) escort him to club rooms, give him there an informal reception and show him the town. In the evening he delivers his first lecture at our Academy of Music (Brooklyn notes to the contrary, notwithstanding). After the lecture he will be banquetted at the Wyoming. The whole affair is nicely arranged and will cost the Scranton Club a neat little sum; but they are "blooded," and we understand they meet their "little" assessments as a matter of course.



About two weeks ago we thought balmy spring was at hand, and were out trying the asphalt. When lo! the equinoctial came, a regular blizzard, the worst storm of the season. Old Sol is now getting things in order again, and we will soon be on the road. But I think this will do for the first attempt, though we would like to speak of the Pittston Club's new rooms, to be opened on the 14th of April, with a reception, etc. of the Kingston Club, which is growing like a mushroom, and will soon have sixty members enrolled, so they say; of the two clubs in Wilkesbarre, and how they are already arranging for the State meet, July 4th; but will leave these for my next, together with an account of the Stevens reception, if some more able man will not take up his pen.

LACKAWANNA.

NEW ORLEANS.

IN the past the BULLETIN has done good work in publishing the many excellent articles on the subject of roads and road building, and I sincerely hope that this feature will be continued. I consider the betterment of our highways one of the main objects of the League, and feel certain that were the various State Divisions to shape their efforts a little more in a direction towards securing this desideratum that it would, in the course of time, meet with popular favor and eventually bring about the change desired; and, besides advancing the cause of wheeling and the League, it would go far towards dispelling the petty bickerings and disgruntlements which arise from an annual race meet or tour, in which probably only one man in twenty can participate.

Doubtless, among the nine-thousand League members, there are a few who are either practical road constructors or contractors, and it is this that leads me to pen this "epistle." Here in the South, where but little attention is given the public roads, there are consequently but few men engaged in the business. As an example: Our city council recently appropriated fifteen thousand dollars for the construction of a shell road about one mile and a half long, and advertised for bids, of which but one was received, and that was rejected. A new bill, increasing the appropriation to thirty-thousand dollars

STODDARD, LOVERING & COMPANY.

How would older heads do? Successful business men who have made their mark in the world, and would carry the same business principles into the League; men without trade influence, who are enthusiastic wheelmen, and would go into League affairs only to advance its interest and not their own personality.

After Mr. Wells was knocked out for Chief Consul without a fight, election seemed to lose all interest until Holly came into the field. Think he will be elected; he is sure of most of the votes in the State, and if defeated it will be by Philadelphia votes, and the careless voter who will vote a printed straight ticket sooner than take the trouble to change a name. We, through here, would support Mr. Holly because he is the choice of his own district, if for no other reason, The ticket nominated by the committee does not make a just division of representatives by any means, and goes to show the need of districting the State, which will probably be one of the things attended to at the next Division meeting.

We were rather surprised to see, in one of our papers the other day, that George A. Jessup, President of the Scranton Club, was now Chief Consul, by appointment. While we have not the particulars, it is a course that might have been expected from the actions of Mr. Wells in attaching the BULLETIN and other League property thereby casting an insult to every member of the League.

Mr. Jessup is a worthy man, being one of Scranton's reliable coal operators and business men, and now that he has accepted the position of Chief Consul, we may expect to see the State take on some of his push and energy.

The Scranton Club are an energetic set of fellows, as is shown in the way they are preparing to receive Thomas Stevens, on April 12th. While the Club are directly to be the host, they have issued a neat invitation to all us wheelmen outside the club, and in neighbor cities to join with them in the reception. Upon the arrival of Stevens the Boys will receive him, mounted, (possibly their old drill team with their stand stills, etc.) escort him to club rooms, give him there an informal reception and show him the town. In the evening he delivers his first lecture at our Academy of Music (Brooklyn notes to the contrary, notwithstanding). After the lecture he will be banquetted at the Wyoming. The whole affair is nicely arranged and will cost the Scranton Club a neat little sum; but they are "blooded," and we understand they meet their "little" assessments as a matter of course.

About two weeks ago we thought balmy spring was at hand, and were out trying the asphalt. When lo! the equinoctial came, a regular blizzard, the worst storm of the season. Old Sol is now getting things in order again, and we will soon be on the road. But I think this will do for the first attempt, though we would like to speak of the Pittston Club's new rooms, to be opened on the 13th of April, with a reception, etc. of the Kingston Club, which is growing like a mushroom, and will soon have sixty members enrolled, so they say; of the two clubs in Wilkesbarre, and how they are already arranging for the State meet, July 4th; but will leave these for my next, together with an account of the Stevens reception, if some more able man will not take up his pen.

LACKAWANNA.

NEW ORLEANS.

IN the past the BULLETIN has done good work in publishing the many excellent articles on the subject of roads and road building, and I sincerely hope that this feature will be continued. I consider the betterment of our highways one of the main objects of the League, and feel certain that were the various State Divisions to shape their efforts a little more in a direction towards securing this desideratum that it would, in the course of time, meet with popular favor and eventually bring about the change desired; and, besides advancing the cause of wheeling and the League, it would go far towards dispelling the petty bickerings and disgruntlements which arise from an annual race meet or tour, in which probably only one man in twenty can participate.

Doubtless, among the nine-thousand League members, there are a few who are either practical road constructors or contractors, and it is this that leads me to pen this "epistle." Here in the South, where but little attention is given the public roads, there are consequently but few men engaged in the business. As an example: Our city council recently appropriated fifteen thousand dollars for the construction of a shell road about one mile and a half long, and advertised for bids, of which but one was received, and that was rejected. A new bill, increasing the appropriation to thirty-thousand dollars has been drawn up and will be submitted at the council's next meeting. I acknowledge total ignorance of the cost of road constructing, but having read that the famous Shenendoah Valley Pike cost but six thousand dollars per mile, it would seem that ten-thousand dollars for the same distance is ample to make up the difference in the cost of material etc. outside of Virginia. I may be wrong, but if not, trust that should this meet the eye of a League member who is also a road constructor, that he may interest himself enough to write our city surveyor for the necessary plans and specifica ions.

Perhaps were League members everywhere to keep the BULLETIN advised of projected roads, it would attract more bidders and thus, besides, possibly, bringing to local townships or counties the advantages of open competition and competitive rates, it would convince the world that the League of American Wheelmen is not only a simple organization of cyclers, but a public benefactor as well. Who will say not?

CHICAGO.

GORMULLY & JEFFREY will enter five men in the American Wheelman's Road Race at St. Louis. They are Whitaker, Prince, Bullock, Eck, and Hardwick.

Bullock is the man who recently smashed the records at Omaha, and is said to be a fast man on the road. Of Whit. and the rest nothing need be said, as their performances are well known.

I AGREE with "The Owl" as to Thomas Stevens taciturnity. We came near using a stomach pump on him when he was here.

THE Racing Board has decided not to grant Phil Hammel's petition to be reinstated. The Chief Consul proposes to appeal from this decision. Hammel violated the rule but once (a year ago at Minneapolis), and since then has not straddled a wheel.

THE L. A. W. Pointer is the name of the official organ of the Wisconsin Division, which will be issued shortly from Oshkosh. Mr. Jay Hinman, its editor, was in Chicago lately and has received material encouragement from the manufacturers and dealers here. In fact, enough, he says, to enable him to run his paper for a year with no paid subscription list.

THE captain, secretary, and lieutenants of the Chicago Club held a meeting last week, for the purpose of making a schedule of club runs for the season. July 2, 3, and 4, the club will spend in central Indiana. A few of the runs and places to be visited are: Pullman, Oak Park, Elgin, Aurora, Milwaukee, Lake Geneva, Fox Lake, Libertyville, Buffalo, N. Y., Peoria, and several places in Michigan and Ohio. The Peoria Club will be invited to spend a Sunday with them in the near future. A new departure is, that official runs will be called on Sundays, a thing which has been voted down in the past by Sunday-school teacher element. Dick Schmidt promises that a full list of preposed runs will be issued shortly.

IT is proposed to give a prize to the man who makes the fastest time in the Pullman handicap, so that those who are near scratch may have a finger in the pie, if they don't get there first.

A WOULD-BE representative from a rural district of the State, has had his stationery printed, setting forth his title, and has been using it some two months before the election takes place. You are too previous, Paris.

BURLEY AYERS has gone to St. Louis to settle the rumpus amongst the boys as to who is boss, and to perfect his share of the work of preparing for the Meet. Chicago will send down a delegation representative of the town.

THE riding season has opened here, and everybody has rubbed off the vaseline or ordered a new mount. The Ananias Club will do more riding together this year than ever, and it contains some of the fastest talent on the road in Chicago. They will all ride the same make of wheel, and have already ordered their uniforms (which are made for scorching purposes only) from Boston.

A WHEELMAN in town exchanged his 53-inch for a 54-inch with another party. The other party took his new mount to a repair shop here (the repairers are handling another make of machine), and wanted the wheel overhauled. They were going to charge some $15 for repairing a machine that was practically new, and which another house has sold for the same price without making any repairs. I guess the bicycle repairer is as bad as the plumber.

THE first L. A. W. Rug to arrive in Chicago, was received by Ned Oliver, and is said by all who have seen it to be a Jim Dandy, in Western parlance.

THE resignations of Ex-President T. S. Miller and H. L. Fulton will come before the Chicago Club for action at their monthly meeting, next Thursday.

THE OWL.

THOUGH cyclists toil that their wheels may spin, yet it is safe to declare, that Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these, especially when the wheelman wears one of the variegated patterns of the former League uniform.

MESSRS. T. R. & J. C. MOTT, members of the New York Bicycle Club, have issued a most charming little pamphlet on the where as-ness of the wherefore of the American game of poker. The covers are in the highest style of art, ornamented with an engraving of myself and a "nested flush." Members, who know not the full meaning of the latter term, can learn all about it in print by getting a copy of the above work from Messrs. Mott, at 118 Warren street, or, failing then to thoroughly understand, a few practical lessons will not fail to add to their knowledge, in the same ratio that it subtracts from their finances.

MR. FREDERICK BOURNE, of the Citizens' Club, paid $17,800 for a painting by August Bonheur at the recent sale of A. T. Stewart's pictures.

IF the price in any way betrays the quality of an article, the Citizens' Club certainly outranks any other cycling club in the world, its dues and initiation fees being higher than that of any other known association of this kind.

NEW YORK never gets left! You tender congratulation to Massachusetts and Pennsylvania on the appearance of an heir to Col. Pope and George Gideon, but what's the matter with the ten-pound son who has just blessed the home of Frank E. Drullard, of the Buffalo Club? The same happy event that makes Mr. Drullard a father, also adds the dignified title of "uncle" to Mr. George Dakin. Let this be a warning to Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. New York won't win second in anything.

THE Ixions are out with a blare of trumpets, announcing their final reception, for the winter season, on April 21. The club-house entertainments will be brought to a close with a great smoking concert, at which music and tobacco will compete from scratch for the amusement of their guests.

PHILADELPHIA is to have another club house. Preparations for its erection have already been begun in a central location. They have cut the grass, and fenced out the cows.

AS I stated in my last, the Manhattan Athletic Club have made a direct bid for L. A. W athletes. For a short time, to all who can exhibit League tickets for 1886 and 1887, they will waive their initiation fee of $50. This will give League cyclists a chance to enjoy the use of the only athletic track actually within the city limits, of the boat houses on the Harlem River, and of the club house on 5th avenue, an idea of whose magnificence may be gained, when the fact is learned that the carpets alone on the parlors cost $2,500, being woven in one piece in Europe to fit the rooms. Speaking of this carpet, reminds me that they paid me the compliment of making a life-like representation of his owlship one of the ornaments woven in its borders.

MY old friend, Fred Hand, of Scranton, has sent me an elegant invitation to enjoy his club's Stevens lecture. I regret that I won't be able to accept, but you see the Inter-State commission has knocked out railroad passes, and I doubt if I could walk as far as Scranton by the 12th inst., when the enjoyable affair takes place.

GEORGE R. BIDWELL has been up to Burlington, Vt., to study the newly-adopted League uniform cloth in its construction. Mr. Bidwell never goes into anything in other than a thorough manner, and when you see the new uniform it will be beyond your most sanguine hopes for beauty and service.

THE Pope Manufacturing Company are to build the trike for W. C. Herring's proposed journey through Japan. It will be of Cripper pattern.

I DON'T want to intrude in what is already a nice muss, i. e., the opposition League tickets in Brooklyn, but I do think that when any party or person attempts to ignore so important a club as the Long Island Wheelmen, that they do a prominent club an unwarranted injustice that no fair-minded League member can afford to endorse by his vote. Might is not always right, and such an attempt on the part of a combination to freeze out the largest and most influential club on Long Island, is neither creditable nor gentlemanly on the part of its organizers.

CHIEF CONSUL BIDWELL has always adopted a rule in promulgating his official utterances to the New York State Division, which, if copied by other chief consuls, would go far towards cutting down the present loss on the BULLETIN. Instead of having such matters occupy space on the pages of the BULLETIN, he has issued it in circular form, and mailed it direct, at the expense of the division treasury. He has just issued an appeal to all non-League members in the State, whose names he has had supplied him by the local consuls, that is bring, ing many unattached into the fold. This plan is not patented, and is well worthy of imitation by other chief consuls.

EDITOR PRIAL, in the Wheel, last issue, speaks of the committee treating a certain gentleman, who formerly supplied a portion of the uniform, in a shabby manner, by not informing him of the proposed change. Usually, I am in hearty accord with Mr. Prial's sentiments regarding things in general, but here I must differ with him. The committee was appointed by the League to secure the best and most satisfactory arrangements possible for a uniform. There has been no secrecy about this, and the gentleman under consideration has known for some time of the committee's labors, and has had a chance to submit bids for the uniform, or portion thereof, and if, as Mr. Prial says, he "sold much cheaper than could be secured elsewhere," the contract would most certainly have been awarded him. This, I infer, he has not done, and if the matter be not of enough importance for the dealer to look after his own interests in, I don't understand why Mr. Prial takes the League to task, and says they have treated him shabbily, because they did not do it for him.

MR. PHILIP FONTAIN has given up his residence in Philadelphia, and returned to his comrades in the Citizens' Club. It is a case of not loving Philadelphia less, but New York more, that has brought our welcomed scorcher home again. Philadelphia now has nothing more that we want.

THE election of Dr. Beckwith to a position on the board of governors of the New York Athletic Club, as the only candidate so elected on an independent ticket, defeating such a man as Roscoe Conkling for the honors, says more in refutation of recent slanders against him than a ream of paper would hold.

THE OWL.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

I AM in receipt of a letter from a western lady who writes, "Are not the Eastern lady riders coming to the Meet at St. Louis to show us how to manage a ladies' run." I am afraid not. It is a long distance, and calls for a great sacrifice of time and money; and, if all that I hear about St Louis roads be true, it would be no easy task to tempt the ladies to leave the fine roads of the east.

AND yet I shall regret to see a League Meet without a ladies' run. We made it one of the successes of the Boston Meet and won for it the right to live on other like occasions. I sincerely hope that the ladies of Chicago and St. Louis will organize a short outing during the days of the meet.

I HEAR of several proposed runs for the early riding season and it is whispered that the Boston ladies will have the pleasure of entertaining lady friends from other cities on these occasions. I look for many pleasant trips in the near future, although I must say it was not encouraging to see a heavy snow storm in April; an experience we underwent last week.

I HAVE received from a good friend of mine a letter which contains a suggestion well worthy of consideration. I give you his words just as they came to me.

DEAR DAISIE: — As one who loves Tandemeandering (always with feminine accompaniment) even better than bicycling with the boys, may I have a little space in the woman's column? I have been thinking for some time of a scheme — wholly original and unpatented — which, it seems to me, is worth the experiment, and which if tried, might become a popular feature of ladies' cycling.

We all appreciate the drawbacks of long tours with large parties, notwithstanding the delightful run to Cape Ann last fall; and we are as fully aware of the ease with which small companies can be gotten together for a single days' ride. Now my idea is to introduce something that will give a double incentive to frequent tours, to the end of getting all the enjoyment possible out of the wheel. The new featu e is the "Souvenir" Tandem Party, or "Souvenir" Tricycle Party, as the case may be, and this is the scheme:

Mr. and Mrs. George Speedwell, put their heads together and formally invite for a day's run, five couple of their acquaintance, we will say, making a small and select party of twelve. The body of the invitation might read something like this:

SOUVENIR TANDEM PARTY,

Mr. and Mrs. George Speedwell desire your company upon an "Anemone Run" from Coply Square, Boston, to Middlesex Fells, May 28th, 1887.

Lunch en Picnic.

R. S. V. P.

The Speedwells lay out the route, make the necessary arrangements, lead the party, doing all in their power to make the day enjoyable, and, at the close of the run, or a few days later, present each couple with a "Souvenir" of the occasion. I will describe one of these "Souvenirs" as I see it: In the first place, it is made of one or more sheets of white cardboard or drawing paper, of any size or shape that taste or preference may dictate. The first page is devoted to a water-color sketch of a tuft of anemones, a bunch of the natural pressed flowers, or even a pleasing bit of landscape, or decoration, but with the words "Anemone Run," and "Souvenir Tandem Party" in artistic lettering in appropriate positions.

The second page is devoted to the date, the route, the hotel (if dinner is partaken of at a hotel), and any other details worth remembering, and, on the third and fourth pages appear the autographs of the members of the party, upon groupings of card outlines. If a "Photograph Run" the souvenir might contain several pictures taken during the ride. A "Sea-side Run" would give pleasing opportunity for delicate souvenirs of pressed sea-mosses, "Birch-bark Run" and "Pine-cone Run" suggest woodland rambles. "Maple-leaf Run" would be appropriate for a tour in October; in fact, the theme admits of as endless variation as the form of the souvenirs, which could be made to cost a few cents or a few dollars apiece as the occasion, or the fancy of those giving the party would suggest. And when the season's touring was over, what pleasant reminders of halcyon days when the wheels were housed and the snow lay deep upon plain and fell!

I had intended to try the experiment myself when the season was fairly opened, but, now, as I shall be far from scenes of past enjoyment for some time to come, — until into summer, at least — I take pleasure in suggesting it to you, Daisie, for your approval or the reverse. I am glad the BULLETIN is to have the benefit of your graceful pen during the coming season, and I wish you and "the cause" all success.

ARTHUR PENFIELD.

BOSTON, April 2d.

OUR friend paints a delightful picture and suggests an idea capable of almost unlimited expansion. Why may we not do something of this kind? Why, indeed? I do not doubt we shall see some such run this year, for we have many enthusiasts who are always on the look out for just such ideas.

I HAVE just seen a specimen of the League cloth and I think it admirably adapted for a lady's suit. It is of good color, will make up well, and will withstand a good deal of wear.

DAISIE.

CENTRAL PARK BILL.

A COPY of the above bill, which is given in full below, will be sent within a few days to every member of the New York State Division, accompanied by a petition blank, to which the members will be asked to obtain as many signatures as possible. The bill will be introduced in both houses next week by Mr. Isaac B. Potter, as Chairman of the Rights and Privileges Committee, and Counsel for the State Division. To this gentleman, and to Chief-Consul Bidwell is due much credit for the admirable conception and prompt execution of the best possible plan of opening the Park, and getting legislative recognition and protection for wheelmen.

The consuls and representatives will be asked to see the assemblymen and senators of their districts to get their support for the bill. All the machinery will be started and driven at high pressure to get the bill through this Session. Now is the time for the Division members to work. Get names, names, names, ad infinitum. Talk the thing up, and if you can wield a pen, write the paper published nearest you, and rouse public sentiment.

AN ACT IN RELATION TO THE USE OF BICYCLES AND TRICYCLES.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION I. Bicycles, tricycles, and other vehicles propelled by manumotive or pedomotive power, are hereby declared to be carriages, within the meaning of that term, as used in Section one, of Title thirteen, of Chapter twenty, of Part one, of the Revised Statutes of the State of New York, and all persons by whom bicycles, tricycles, and said other vehicles are used, ridden or propelled upon the public highways of this State, shall be entitled to the same rights and subject to the same restrictions in the use thereof, as accorded and prescribed in said Revised Statutes, in the cases of persons using carriages drawn by horses.

SECTION II. The commissioners, trustees, or other authorities, having charge or control of any public street, public highway, public parkway, driveway, or public place in this State, shall have no power or authority to pass, enforce, or maintain any ordinance, rule or regulation, by which any person using a bicycle or tricycle shall be excluded or prohibited from the free use of any public highway, street, avenue, roadway, driveway, parkway, or public place, at any time when the same is open to the actual use of other pleasure carriages.

SECTION III. Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent the passage or enforcement of any regulation, ordinance, or rule, regulating or restricting the use of bicycles or tricycles in public highways, streets, parkways, driveways, and places, in such manner as to limit and determine the proper speed with which such vehicle may be propelled; nor in such manner as to require, direct, or restrict the use of bells, lamps, and other necessary appurtenances in the use of said vehicle, nor to prohibit the use of any vehicle upon that part of the street, highway, or parkway, commonly known as the footpath or sidewalk.

SECTION IV. All acts and parts of acts, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

SECTION V. This act shall take effect immediately. (Wheel.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

MR. J. E. HARDER.

EDITOR OF BULLETIN: — Please give us space to vindicate our candidate for representative, J. E. Harder, of Clearfield, Pa. We notice, by a secret circular letter sent out by C. B. Holly, of Philipsburg, signed by Messrs. Ashman and Lee, two of his friends, that they attack Mr. Harder personally to further Holly's chances for election, who, no doubt some of your readers have heard, is running independently. We have nothing to say about that part of it, or about the fact that only two members of his club of "sixteen" (16) signed this circular, but we wish to place our man in the right light before the League voters of Pennsylvania.

In the first place, this circular says, "to avoid indiscriminate scratching, we would suggest that the name of J. E. Harder, of Clearfield, Pa., be pasted with a Holly sticker, and that Mr. Harder has not attended the important meetings, etc." Now, we wish to make this matter plain to all, and in justice to Mr. Harder, we will say that there have been but two "important meetings" since his appointment last August, viz., the Buffalo and New York meetings. He was all ready to attend the Buffalo meeting, when sickness in his family prevented him from going. At the time of the New York meeting his wife was extremely ill, and he was again compelled to remain at home. He, however, sent his proxy each time, with his excuse.

This circular further states that "Mr. Harder represents only a few unattached wheelmen at Clearfield." We would state that he represents Pennsylvania, and not a few mortals at Clearfield only. He is an enthusiastic, hard-working servant of the League. He has measured and reported various roads for our road book. He does more hard work for the League than any other man in this section of Pennsylvania. He is an excellent rider, and taught the subscribers to ride the bicycle, and persuaded us to join the L. A. W. Now, we propose to stand by him. He was a member of the League long before Holly learned to ride. Now, this man Holly was defeated by the Nominating Committee, and now only two (2) endorse him out of sixteen members of his club. It quite naturally makes him feel sore. What we ask is, that every member of the Pennsylvania Division vote for J. E. Harder for representative. You cannot afford to lose his services.

We are, very fraternally, the "unattached,"

BALL HEADS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Seeing an article in your last issue regarding ball heads, stating that they were not a success, — adding nothing to the wearing qualities or general rigidity of a wheel, but making it more complicated, etc., etc., — I wish to state, for the benefit of fellow League Members, that my experience has been just the opposite of the above. I do not know to what ball head your correspondent has reference, but it assuredly could not be the Trigwell Ball Head, which I have used the past season in covering 1500 miles of road work, with the greatest satisfaction. Having previously ridden a wheel with the cone head, I appreciated the advantages of the ball head, and I found the following points in its favor, with nothing against it.

1. The great rigidity given the whole wheel, as with the ball head a perfect bearing in the head can be obtained, which is impossible with a cone head, as all well know.

2. Freedom from the annoyance of constant tightening of the cone head, which tightening is necessary, owing to the wearing of the cones, and which cannot be prevented. As proof of this, I rode my wheel 1150 miles without adjusting the head at all, and then, although perfectly tight, took it apart from curiosity, to see what the effect was. I found no perceptible wear, and the head was not adjusted the rest of the season.

3. The perfection of steering is obtained only with a ball head. Its contrast with the cone head in this respect is great.

I have written the above feeling that a knowledge of the merits of such a great improvement as this cannot be too universal, and knowing from my own experience that the remarks of your correspondent do not apply, at least to my experience.

Fraternally,

MR. CLARK'S NOMINATION.

EDITOR BULLETIN. — As there may be some misapprehension growing out of the manner in which the name of S. T. Clark, Esq., has been brought forward as Consul for the L. A. W. and our connection therewith, we beg to submit the following statements of facts, and, at same time, place Mr. Clark in proper position. The tickets, with the name of Mr. Clark on them, were sent out without his authority and consent, and through the over-anxiety of two of the members of this Club to see Mr. Clark occupy the position of consul, whether he desired it or not, thinking that after his election he would feel under obligation to serve, Mr. Clark having previously declined to have his name brought forward, although repeatedly solicited to do so.

Mr. Clark had no connection with the sending of his name throughout the State, neither had this Club, as a body, any connection with what may be deemed an underhand method of election. It is to put their seal of disapproval on this conduct of two of our members, and at the same time, relieve this Club from suspicion of underhand methods, that this letter is written. It is with deep regret that we have to condemn the action of any of our members for the way they have presented Mr. Clark's name.

This Club has been unanimously in favor of Mr. Clark as consul, and we are extremely sorry that his name has been used in such an unwarranted way, and one calculated to place an honorable gentleman in a false position, We hope this explanation may be deemed satisfactory and that no notice will be taken of these spurious tickets, and that the fact that Mr. Clark had no connection therewith will be believed.

THE RIVER ROUTE.

Editor Bulletin: — I would like to make a suggestion through the Bulletin, to L. A. W. Members residing near the Mississippi, and to whom time is not so much an object as pleasure, that a very nice and pleasant way to go to and from the Meet in St. Louis, is to take the trip on one of the Palace Passenger Steamers on the Mississippi. The regular fare is about the same as the Railroad fare and includes meals and berth. The trip by boat would take more time, but I think the pleasure of the ride on the river will more than make up for the extra time required. The accommodations to be had on these steamers are first class in every respect. It is also much handier to take a machine on the boat than by rail.

THE BULLETIN.

Editor Bulletin: — You are having a great deal of advice, I do not doubt, respecting the proper way to run the Bulletin, and as I am a newspaper man myself, perhaps you will let me say a word, not so much for your benefit as for the benefit of your would-be correspondents. I knew very well that you must be overrun with requests from clubs to publish accounts of their runs and their dinners, and I can imagine that some of these are very long. Now, I hope you will boil such things down very fine. Make your matter of general interest. We are all of us interested in the discussion of the mechanism of the wheel, and some of us like to read the politics; but if the Bungtown Club runs to the town pump and takes a drink, we don't care to read about it; neither do we care for a long account of club meeting nor a dinner. These things interest Bungtown people, but the rest of us don't care a copper for them. It is possible to make the paper of such general interest that every article will be read with pleasure and profit. Freeze out the big gest part of club life. Cynic.

The Quadrant tricycle has scored another success in hill climbing. Weatheroak hill, near Birmingham, Eng., which though often tried by various bicycles and tricycles, has never been surmounted except by Mr. Alfred Bird, who on Saturday, Feb. 28, and on the following Tuesday in the presence of witnesses, successfully rode a Quadrant geared to fifty four, with ordinary cranks and handles, from base to summit without a stop. Many attempts had been made by others; and, since Mr. Bird's feat, scores of famous road riders and hill climbers have tried to reach the top on other machines, but without success. The grade is one foot in six, and the roadway is rough and winding.

The Lynn wheelmen are arranging for a race on Decoration Day.

CYCLETS.

Have you voted.

The polls are about to close.

The man who does n't vote has no right to complain.

Remember that you are voting indirectly for president.

There is but one candidate so far, but others may yet come up.

You can't tell who's elected until after the votes are counted.

The C. T. C. tickets have arrived. They are about the size of a quarter of a dollar, and not just the best things to carry when one does n't have a badge.

Several of our exchanges, especially the foreign ones, have not yet found out that our address has been changed. Oblige us, friends; Boston, if you please.

Mr. Poultney Bigelow, of Outing, has sailed for England.

The Chelsea Club was made the victim of a little mistake that had the appearance of a first of April joke, though it was not intended as such. They were down for their annual supper on the first day of the month, but when they went to the hotel they found that the landlord had forgotten them, and was not ready.

Racing safety bicycles are made so light this year that on some paths there is every probability of their eclipsing the ordinary pattern in point of speed. When that little "Premier," which weighs but 20½ pounds all told, is set going by a good man, who if he is rich amateur enough to employ good pacemakers, or persuasive enough to induce some of our best amateurs, for the love of the sport, to pay railways, etc., down to the fastest track in England to make the pace for him something must go. — Athletic News.

The H. B. Smith Machine Co. sends us its catalogue for 1887, which contains full description, with cuts of their various machines. The important change in the Star for this year will be the increase in size of the small wheel which will run from 21 inches for a 42-inch machine to 24 inches for a 54-inch machine. A Star tricycle for misses is also announced.

The Sterling Cycle Co. has elected Elliot C. Lee to be treasurer, and announce that they are going ahead.

Boston is going to have a team road-racing association. We hope they will find a short name for it. The clubs hereabouts will combine after the manner of the New York and New Jersey wheelmen, and run their races for a club trophy. The first race is down for June 17.

The child who said "Climate lasts all the time, and weather only a few days," had a very unique way of putting things, but she could n't have seen such a spring as we are now having. A heavy snow storm on the second of April is not encouraging to those who want to get out upon the road.

In looking at the cartoon of the Bicycling News, reminds the writer of a similar idea he put into practical use on the Bubbling Well Road, in Shanghai, about five years ago. This road runs over a perfectly flat piece of country, and is very smooth, and the only obstruction to the southern monsoon having a steady, unimpeded sweep down this five-mile stretch of sand-papered macadam road, were grave mounds and water-buffaloes. A large family umbrella was rigged on the head of the machine, and to prevent being blown over at the start it was not opened until a high speed had been attained, and arranging myself in a comfortable coasting position, I skimmed over the ground at about a fifteen-mile-an-hour gait for the entire distance. — Pacific Wheelman.

The Indiana Bicycle Co. has just completed a most unique cycling novelty. It is nothing less than a tandem unicycle. This machine was built by the company especially for Prince Wells, the fancy rider, after drawings and specifications furnished by Mr. Wells. The wheel is fifty-four inches, of full roadster weight, but with tangent spokes, great strength and rigidity being necessary. Around the wheel extends an elliptical frame, which is adjustable upon the axle much in the manner of a "teeter totter." One rider is seated on the front and the other on the rear end of the frame, and the difference in weight equalized as much as possible, by the adjustment of the frame on the axle. The riders sit facing in the same direction, each one pedaling. The pedals being connected with the wheel by adjustable gearing chains. The machine is geared for a rapid pace, for it will be necessary to maintain great speed in order to keep the wheel erect. There is no steering attachment whatever to the wheel. The guiding will be done by the riders swaying their bodies to and fro. — Wheelman's Record.

The friends of Faed have presented him with a chronograph. It stands as a wedding present, for Faed has just been married.

The racing committee of the Rhode Island Division has approached the Domestic Industry Society with a view to a tournament during the progress of the State fair. Of course they were cordially received, and the interests of the division thus early advanced will doubt'ess be well looked after when the society begins to make its appropriations. As far as the interest of the State Fair is concerned, the bicycle tournaments of the past two seasons have been among the most pronounced successes of the events. — Journal.

Our Southern friends are getting to work. The D. C. Division and the Maryland Division announce meetings for the latter part of May, and the Hagerstown races are set down for the same time.

The proprietor of the hotel at Cabin John Bridge has opened a special wheelmen's register. All cyclists are requested to sign their names and destination, and this will enable wheelmen to follow a rider or to meet wheelmen at the hotel or on the roads adjacent.

The Wheel thinks we have done it an injustice in saying that the cycling press was devoting a great deal of energy to attacking the League, and criticising its action. We had no such intention. The Wheel is a firm friend to the League, and has backed it up well during the late unpleasantness. Mr. Priall is giving us a good paper, and he does not go around hitting heads indiscriminately.

E. M. Senseney, who is now a full-fledged doctor, leaves the first of April for a sojourn of something like a year at Vienna, for a course in the famous clinics of that city. He was Chief Consul of the Missouri Division last year, and has long been an active wheelman. — Spectator.

P. H. B. Bernays, of Little Rock, Ark., has sent us a "Cycle Brush Tool," which is to be used in cleaning every part of the machine. The brush is so shaped that the most intricate parts of the wheel can be reached, and a steel attachment on top combines a steel point, spanner and screwdriver. It can be carried in the ordinary tool bag.

Tom Harwick, the "cow-boy cyclist," of Galena, Kan., has written for permission to enter the Clarksville road race and obtained it. Harwick is a professional, and has a record of 746½ miles in forty-eight hours (twelve hours a day on a track), and twenty-five miles in 1.19.55.

The corner-stone of the Pennsylvania Clubhouse was laid last week and the building will now be pushed rapidly forward.

Massachusetts talks of putting a legal holiday just where it is wanted, — the first Monday in September There is a long wait from July Fourth to Thanksgiving, and wheelmen will enjoy a holiday midway.

The Singer tandem will soon be on exhibition at W. B. Everett & Co.'s warerooms. It is understood that the machine will include a number of improvements over last season's style.

Furnivall has repeatedly given it as his intention to retire from the path and not race this season, and we believe he will stick to his determination and retire a practically unbeaten man. It is possible, however, that he may get into form for some of the challenge cups he holds, in which case we should not be surprised to see him utilize his form for another cut at the records. — London Cyclist.

Mr. Kenneth Brown, of Chicago, with friend, proposes to ride from that city to Harvard College during the present season, Mr. Brown intending to enter that college in the fall.

Maryland will be well represented at St. Louis. Some sixteen members have announced their intention to go to the Meet.

A Western monthly makes the note that only in St. Louis do wheelmen ride down town to business. For their edification, I will state that ninety-nine per cent of the wheelmen of Chicago ride to their business every morning. The fact that I could ride down town every morning was the sole inducement for me to buy a wheel. — Wheel Correspondent.

New York wheelmen are going to the Legislature to get the right to ride in Central Park.

Our machine tester is now happy. His greatest ambition has been realized. Yes, he has learnt to ride an "American Star," and without any difficulty too. Chance brought one of these machines to our office last week, and after vainly trying to mount, our representative got to the top, and then he was happy. He rode it straight away a couple of miles. After a few weeks, he hopes to give our readers his experiences of the machine. He now sighs for a "Unicycle." — [The "Star" is a sort of lever machine with a small wheel in front and a fifty-two inch behind. It is ridden by Kaufman and McAnney and other trick-riders, and holds many records. — Ed. "B. N."] — News.

The Overman tricycle is attracting a great deal of attention. The novel method of taking up the vibration of the front wheels makes it a comfortable riding machine. Overman's wheels always have a good deal of go in them, and we do not believe this will prove an exception.

The Columbia tandem is generally admired. It scales only a hundred pounds, and is strong enough for the heaviest riders. The rear rider can steer the machine, or this can be done by the front rider. A strong brake makes it amply safe, and in regard to its workmanship there can be no doubt that it is of the best.

THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT LEAGUE TOUR.

PUBLIC CIRCULAR NO. 3.

Below is given an advance extract from the prospectus now in press. The balance will be published in these columns as soon as possible: —

The pleasure derived from the numerous bicycle tours that have been projected and successfully carried out during the last few years, has created an increased demand for such wheel outings. In response to this demand, the League of American Wheelmen has established a Touring Department, and this department has divided itself into four Touring Districts, — respectively, the Eastern, Middle, Western, and Southern, — and appointed a marshal for each. Last year's National League tour demonstrated the fact that participants therein must travel too far to the point of starting and from the finish, in order to take advantage of the facilities offered by a regularly arranged and conducted tour for the entire country, and it has, therefore, been decided that each district shall, in future, hold a tour of its own, substantially within its territory, though tourists from all sections may participate. Pursuant to this policy, I have planned to extend over the route given below: from Philadelphia out the famous Lancaster pike, taking in the historic battlefields of Gettysburg, including the summer resort, Pen Man, with its magnificent views in all directions, embracing the unsurpassed roads of Western Maryland, and finishing with the world-renowned Shenandoah Valley, and stopping at Luray Cave, — covering in all about three hundred miles of the best roads in this section of the country, which abound in historic interest and scenic beauty. The line of route 26 of the Pa.-N. J.-Md. Road Book will be substantially followed, and the easy mileages each day will bring the tour within the capacity of all.

THE ROUTE

decided upon is as follows: —

May 10. Leave Philadelphia 9 A. M. 20 miles, Paoli: dinner, Shoemaker House. 19 m. Coatesville: supper, lodging, and breakfast, Speakman H.

May 11. Lv. 8 A. M. 25 m. Lancaster: dinner Stevens H. On at 1. 24 m. York: s., l. and b., National H.

May 12. Lv. 8 A. M. 28 m. Gettysburg: d., s., l., and b., Eagle H. In P. M view battle fields.

May 13. Lv. 7 A. M. 23 m. (bad) Waynesboro: d. Leland H. On at 2 11½ m. Hagerstown: s., l., and b, City Hotel. Reception by H. Bi. C.

May 14. Lv. 9 A. M. 20 m. Martinsburg: d., St. Clair H. On at 1. 21. m. Winchester: s., l., and b., Taylor H.

May 15. Lv. 7.30 A. M. 31 m. Woodstock: d., Shenandoah H. On at 2. 19 m. New Market: s., Central H. Leave wheels. 14 m. in carriages to Luray: l., b., and d., Hotel Lawrence.

May 15. In A. M. visit Luray Caverns. At 1 P. M. take carriages 14 m. to New Market. Mount wheels. 19 m. Harrisonburg: s., l., and b., Revere H. Reception by H Bi. C.

May 17. Lv. 9 A. M. 25 m. Stanton: d. and s., Hale H. In eve take cars for St. Louis meet, arriving morning of 19; or lay over and visit Natural Bridge, Weyer's Cave, etc., ad. lib. and take cars for bicycle meet and national drill, Washington, May 26.

EXPENSE.

The total cost per capita will be $24, and this sum will be collected from each tourist before starting and deposited in a Philadelphia bank. All bills will be paid by the marshal by checks on this bank; and the tourists will thus secure the very best hotel accommodations, baggage transportion, etc., without trouble to themselves; cave admissions, carriage rides when necessary, and ample attendance to meet the demands of all and avoid delays. Good weather is hoped for — fairly prayed for — but should the elements render a change of programme necessary, the will of the majority on the wisest course to pursue will be consulted. The above fee pays for necessary expenses in event of fair weather, and additional expenses incurred will, of course, be extra. (See under title "The Start," below, for instructions relative to payment of balance.

have been issued by the marshal, and will be given for deposits of not less than $1. Those deciding to go should obtain these receipts by payment of a small earnest of their intention as early as possible, and secure to themselve places in line, in order that the limit may not be exceeded.

Parties desiring to participate in the tour throughout part of its length should make special arrangements with the marshal.

of the tour will be chosen before starting, or as soon as the respective callings and fitness of the tourists has developed itself. Besides the marshal, who will act as treasurer and general manager of the tour, and the local roadmasters, the officers will be a captain, quartermaster, surgeon, bugler, and secretary, together with such others as necessity may demand. These officers will be appointed from the number, and are expected to fulfil the duties assigned them in a conscientious and faithful manner. Much of the success which it is hoped may characterize this outing will be due to a strict fulfilment of duties and a ready acquiescence in any orders that may be issued. Promptness is especially desirable in all, in order that no time may be lost and no grumbling heard.

At the present writing, the officers so far chosen are: —

Marshal, N. L. Collamer, Washington
Bugler, W. E. Fuller, Brooklin, N. Y.
Roadmasters: —

J. A. Wells, Philadelphia, Pa. Philadelphia to Paoli.
S. M. Mallalieu, Coatesville, Pa. Paoli to Coatesville.
J. M. Boyd, Coatesville, Pa. Coatesville to Lancaster.
Chas. Haberbush, Lancaster, Pa. Lancaster to York.
G. E. Jacobs, Gettysburg, Pa. Gettysburg to Hagerstown.
Geo. F. Updegraff, Hagerstown, Md. Hagerstown to Martinsburg.
A. L. Martin, Martinsburg, W. Va. Martinsburg to Winchester.
L. N. Barton, Winchester, Va Winchester to Newmarket.
P. S. Thomas, Harrisonburg, Va. Harrisonburg to Staunton.

As soon as the list of roadmasters for the tour is complete, it will be published in the Bulletin, together with such other information as may be of interest to intending tourists. Keep your eye on this department.

N. L. Collamer,
Marshal.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON UNIFORM.

To the Board of Officers and Members of the League of American Wheelmen:

Gentlemen: — Your committee regret the delay in perfecting the arangements necessary in changing the uniform and deciding on a special cloth for same, but this has been unavoidable. The cloth, as selected, is dark brown in color, and known to the trade as "Venetian"; weight, fourteen to fifteen ounces to the yard; width, fifty-four inches. It will be made exclusively for the League, special attention being given to strength and fast color. The cloth will be known as L. A. W., No. 4,004. Each piece will have a ticket attacked, reading "Official L. A. W. Uniform Cloth, Manuf'd by the Burlington Woolen Co.," and bearing the League badge. Parties ordering the cloth should see that this ticket is attached to the piece received by them.

The uniform will be made after specifications submitted by the committee, and will be awarded to the firm making the most advantageous offer. As to details of specification, we would call your attention to our advertisement for bids published in another column of this paper. The contract will be awarded by April 20, when your committee will immediately make known the name of manufacturer whose proposition has been accepted, with cost of uniform, and all particulars relating thereto.

Arrangements will be made for delivery at contract price in all larger cities. Each garment will have the official League stamp affixed, and the manufacture of the uniforms will be inspected by the committee at intervals, to see that specifications and contract are being rigidly followed.

Respectfully submitted,
N. Malon Beckwith,
E. W. Johnson,
G. R. Bidwell,
Committee.

By G. R. Bidwell, Secretary.

New York, April 5, 1887.

BIDS OR PROPOSALS.

will be received from manufacturers of uniform and clothing for the League of American Wheelmen, upon the following terms and conditions, and subject to the restrictions hereinafter specified.

I. Each bid must be in writing, signed, sealed, and delivered to the Committee, by April 20, 1887.

II. Samples of each garment must be submitted with the bids and marked for identification in the same manner as the written bids.

III. The Committee reserve the right to accept or reject any proposal submitted.

IV. The following agreement must be subscribed by the bidder and returned with the bid or proposal: —

Memorandum of proposal to manufacture uniform and clothing for the League of American Wheelmen.

hereby offer, bid, propose and agree to and with said League of American Wheelmen, its Committee, Officer, or Officers authorized to contract therefor, to manufacture said uniform and clothing upon the terms and conditions, and under the specifications hereinafter contained; and in the event of and upon the acceptance of this bid, to execute and deliver a written contract with said League of American Wheelmen or its legal representatives, therefor, in accordance with the provisions of this proposal.

SPECIFICATIONS.

9. Cloth must be supplied to any League member, at an advance over actual cost of not more than twenty five cents per yard.

10. Any features in the sample garments submitted by the committee, not noted in the specifications, are to be considered as so specified.

11. The contract for the manufacture of the uniform will be dated on the day of the acceptance of the bid, and expire Nov. 1, 1889, unless sooner terminated by the League representative, as hereinafter specified.

12. The contractor must furnish to each member of the League an illustrated price list of the uniform and parts thereof.

13. Each member of the Committee or any other official designated for that purpose by the League, shall have access at any time to the factory of the contractor for the purpose of inspecting the work, and if they shall find that the specifications of the contract are not being carried out, then this contract may, at the option of said League or its representative duly authorized, be cancelled, thirty days' notice thereof, being given.

Any work not done in accordance with the specifications may be rejected.

14. The uniform and cloth must be supplied to League members only. A revised membership list will be furnished the contractor each week.

15. A complete uniform, made in accordance with the above specifications, will be submitted to parties bidding, for their guidance, and may be seen at the office of George R. Bidwell, No. 313 West 58th street New York City.

16. All manufacturing to be done in a good and workmanlike manner, in strict conformity to the specifications for prices, as follows: —

17. In the event of the failure, upon the part of the contractor, to comply with any of the foregoing conditions, the contract may, at the option of the League or its representative, be terminated, thirty days' notice thereof being given.

In witness whereof, have hereunto set hand, this day of April, 1887.

Return proposals to N. M. BECKWITH, GEO. R. BIDWELL, E. W. JOHNSON, } Committee on Uniform, 313 West 58th Street, New York City.

APPOINTMENTS.

MISSOURI. — The Pacific Hotel of St. Joseph, Mo., has been appointed League hotel at $3 a day.

ANNUAL ELECTION OF 1887. — NOMINATIONS.

NEBRASKA. — Chief Consul, F. N. Clarke; representative, F. T. Mittauer.

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS.

THE Racing Board desires to call attention to the following rules relative to the national championships.

(1) The following national championships have been established by the Board: Half-mile, one mile, two mile, three mile, five mile, ten mile, and twenty mile bicycle; and one mile, two mile, and five mile tricycle.

(2) These national championships will be assigned yearly by the Board to League clubs, only under such conditions as they may impose. In the location of championships with clubs, the Board will require that no prize offered for any event in the meeting where the championship is run shall exceed in value $50, and they will further require that the entry of any person whose amateur standing is in doubt shall be rejected. That this rule may be observed, the Board will claim the right to know the full programme of the meeting and to inspect the list of entries to the championships, with a view to striking out the name of any person whose amateur standing may be in question.

(3) The national championships are open to League members only, and the trophies in every case shall be medals, struck from a die owned by the League, to cost in no case more than $50, and to become the property of the winner each year.

The chairman will receive requests for the allotment of the above championships, and will hold all such till May 1, when the Board will proceed to assign the events. As it is very probable that there will be a radical change in the make-up of the Board after the May meeting, only such championships as the Board desires to be run early in the season will be given out, and it will be left for the new Board to assign the fall events.

ABBOT BASSETT,
Chairman Racing Board.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

AN itemized financial statement of the condition of the League, so far as the secretary's office is concerned, has been forwarded to the Executive Committee, and I herewith present a digest of the statement in accordance with the provisions of the by-laws.

The statement below includes the payment of $200 to satisfy the claim of Mr. Wells, and $150 paid for court fees, and the services of an attorney employed to defend the League. The attorney's bill includes payment for services rendered in forcing Mr. Wells to return papers taken from the New York meeting. Among the other large items of expense has been that incident to the current election, the bills for which, including postage and printing, already amount to nearly $200. Extra clerk hire necessitated by the increase of business during the renewal season has amounted to $250.

Number of League members and applicants to date, 8,787.

NOTES AND QUERIES,

HAND-BOOKS.

TO PENNSYLVANIA MEMBERS: — The Pennsylvania Division has purchased a supply of the last issue of the L. A. W. Hand-books, which will be sent free to such members as request them of the undersigned. As the postage will be less, proportionately, on a quantity, I shall be glad to send to club secretaries applying therefore, a sufficient number to supply their respective clubs. I shall also be pleased to send them to the "workers" (their number ought to be greater) who are acting as volunteer recruiting officers among the non-League cyclers.

BALL HEADS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — In your last issue, a correspondent who sells wheels not having ball heads, has an article under the above heading, his second within a short time on the same subject, and both denouncing this feature; characterizing it in his opinion as "unnecessary, — making the machine more complicated, and thereby adding to the risk of broken parts, and unsuited for American roads," etc. He says, "These were the opinions of some manufacturers he visited in England, and he is convinced they are quite true." And he says he knows what is best suited for American roads, as he has ridden eight years, etc. Not a very cogent reason, certainly, for proving a point, but yet, let us see. "One swallow does not make a summer," nor, ordinarily, would the opinion of one person, — and, as in this case, of one who has had no practical experience whatever with the article of which he writes, — demand a notice, at least from the writer, who is of the opinion that a member of the trade is out of place in the columns of a paper, especially so when criticising and denouncing features which are not used on his own machines, but are leading points of his competitors. But, as the ball head is now a second time, by the same writer, prominently brought to the notice of wheelmen as unneccessary and of no importance, though only, as he says, in his humble opinion, yet the fact that we have used it on our wheels to a greater extent than I believe any other firm, through the whole of an entire year, on hundreds of bicycles, places me in a position to acquaint wheelmen of its correct worth and merits. For this reason, Mr. Editor, I ask space in your columns which have twice so generously been accorded to these erroneous criticisms; for I agree with the English correspondents that they are erroneous And in so doing I shall not present as any argument my own opinions or hearsay, as such is not proof, but give the actual facts founded on actual tests, — actual experience in wear and tear on American roads themselves. Experience is the best teacher, — in fact "the proof of the pudding is the eating," and I ask wheelmen to consider these in judging of the merits of the ball head. In the fall of 1885 we acquired the Trigwell ball head, which we considered best, and before adopting it, put it to severe tests on rough frozen roads, etc., and found it good. From these tests we adopted it on all our machines in 1886, running up to large quantities; and from the whole year's product, from its use on American roads all over the country, east and west, through a whole year, we found it a perfect success, an unqualified success, not any part even found defective in construction or principle, or at all complicated. In fact, much stronger in wear than the old cone principle, for the wear by friction so common in cone heads is entirely obviated by the balls. And, as a proof of this, we use it again this year on our New Mails, without an alteration in any single point. So much for its efficiency, its strength, its worth, which your correspondent denies it has, because he has heard some English manufacturers say so.

Next as to its advantages, which he says there are none. I express no individual opinion, but hand over to readers the evidence of those who have used them, which is certainly the fairest way to judge of such features. We received all through the year, and are now receiving, testimonials, unasked for, from those who have used it, of its great merit in easy, smooth steering, the advantage of perfect, simple adjustment, one adjustment lasting for months, and the advantage of one oiling serving for a long time. In fact, as one rider expressed it, "it must be tried to be appreciated." Therefore, based on actual experience and declarations of riders themselves, I say it has been proved a perfect success and of great advantage, and I invite wheelmen, in support of these claims, to read the testimonials of leading riders, some of whom have ridden more than eight years, to be found in our catalogue with their signatures. He says he bases his opinions on what he heard in England, from some manufacturers; and yet, when he came home and published this article he was immediately taken to task by the English press itself, for his erroneous denunciations. This don't look as though he got at even the true English opinion. And, moreover, why was it necessary for him to base his judgment on what he heard in England in making up his mind as to whether it was fitted for American roads, when he could have learned all about it by the actual whole year's use right here in this country on American roads, and he knew it had been used to a very large extent. I say, and the tests prove, that it has been suited to American roads. Facts are facts, and the facts I give are founded on actual test and experience with our ball head and not on my own opinions, — in fact, are matters of record. I intended to have added many tesimonials, but do not wish to take your space. Here are some lines only from a few letters. The names I omit, as I have not permission to use them except in our catalogue.

"January, 1887.

Messrs. Wm. Read & Sons, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sirs. — A few words in regard to the 'Trigwell Ball-Bearing Head.' I have used the Mail Bicycle, and in connection therewith, the Trigwell Head, during the past season, and have covered about 2,000 miles of road riding, thereby giving it a thorough trial, and I am free to say it has given perfect satisfaction. Its point of superiority over other heads is that it can be set down perfectly tight, and yet will work freely and never work loose. I have never had any trouble with the balls breaking, and a single drop of oil once in a while keeps them in excellent condition. In every way it has proved a great success, and I would recommend every rider to give it a trial. Yours very truly."

Gentlemen, — . . . One of the wheel's chief beauties lies in the Ball-Bearing Head, which needs no tightening, and renders the steering easy and quick. Hereafter no wheel will be perfect for me unless it has a Ball-bearing Head. Thanking you for many courtesies extended, I remain,

Yours tru'y,

Gentlemen, — The Ball-Bearing Head is a great success, and I would not ride a wheel without this improvement.

Mr. Shipton, Secretary of the C. T. C. says, — To put it briefly, I consider the Ball-Bearing Head to be the most valid of all the modern-day improvements, and I would not be without it for twice its cost.

Mr. Harry Jones, of the Haverstock B. C. says, — My record last year amounted to 8,241 1-2 miles. I have ridden over some of the roughest roads through nearly every county in England and Wales, and can say that some of the grass roads traversed in Lincolnshire, etc., would have been quite unridable with the ordinary head, but in this, and where any delicate steering is required, I have found the Ball-Bearing Head invaluable, and also a great assistance in hill climbing. I have ridden it over 1,000 miles without oiling, and only adjusted it three times during the year, and the wear is imperceptible.

Gentlemen, — . . . The Ball Head, as used in the Mail, cannot be equalled by any appliance for ease and nicety of adjustment, and perfect bearing; and in riding and coasting without hands, I find it a great aid. The New Mail will carry me through the coming season, and equally favorable results are expected.

Dear Sirs, — Out of five months this season I have missed only five day's riding, and that on country roads of all grades, and have, therefore, thoroughly tested the Ball Head, which feature alone is incomparable, and an important attraction to me.

Dear Sir, — The machine I bought of you with the Ball-Bearing Head gave satisfaction in every particular. As I have owned and ridden several different makes of machines with the cone head, I have no hesitation in pronouncing the Ball Head far superior in every respect, and consider it one of the great revolutions in the bicycle.

Mr. Hawley, Hon. Sec'y of the L. B. C., says, — My bicycle was ridden about 4,000 miles last year, during which time the Ball Head was only adjusted three or four times. I certainly think this is a distinct advance in 'cycle manufacture.

Mr. Hy. Herbert, Clarence B. C., says, — I cannot speak too highly of the Patent Ball-Bearing Head, which is really everything that can be desired for rigidity and ease of steering.

Your correspondents claim that it is "better fitted for English use, where repair shops are more numerous, than for America," is entirely upset by this very identical and obvious advantage of the Ball Head, viz.: in the old cone head if the cones break, the whole backbone must be sent to some repairer, for a wholly new neck; whereas if any such thing happens to our Ball Head we can send by mail the desired part which the wheelman himself can merely screw in. No new neck is needed.

He says it is considered well enough, by the English, to adhere to the old rule, "If you have a good thing, hold on to it." I agree perfectly with the sentiment, and this is just why we shall hold on to our Ball Head, and so will every wheelman who tries it. Yours truly, JOHN READ.

[Adv't.]

THE Rudge Roadster is meeting a long-felt want among wheelmen who desire a thoroughly well made, strong, and reliable bicycle, at a low price. Stoddard, Lovering & Co. intend to push it for all it is worth, the coming season.

A PROMINENT cyclist, of Barre, Vt., writes: "I have ridden a 52-inch Rudge Light Roadster, for the past three seasons; have won several races, and made the best one day's record in this State; and have had no kind of breakage yet, which was a common occurrence while I rode other machines."

TAE Rudge Enamel is a new candidate for popular favor. It is a specially prepared production, and will be controlled by Messrs. Stoddard, Lovering & Co., who have given up the sale of Ardill's.

CAPT. F. T. ROOT, of the Cleveland Bicycle Club, is happy over an 1887 Rudge Light Roadster, purchased through Messrs. Davis, Hunt & Co., of that city.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

(8) THE undersigned would be pleased to hear from some wheelman, contemplating making a tour upon wheel, about the first of July, to extend over a period of from four to six weeks, going either north, east, south, or west. Any person or persons with such a trip in view, will confer a great favor by writing MARCUS MOSES, L. A. W., 7128.

(9) WISHING to ride from Boston to New York, I would like to know if I can go to southern Massachusetts, take a boat across to Long Island, and ride along the island to New York. Will some one tell me if it is feasible.

(10) IN answer to query of 12146 in last week's BULLETIN, cannot say as to the condition of the National Pike now, but when, in May of '84, in company with two other wheelmen, I travelled the road, starting from here, 45 miles west of Columbus, the road in Ohio was not very good, but from the Ohio river to Uniontown, Pa., it was fair to good with lots of hills. We found the road very bad beyond Uniontown to Cumberland, Md., and from there took the canal path for sixty miles, finding it very good to Hancock, and to Hagerstown — 27 miles — very bad, excepting about 7 miles in Washington County. Our estimate of the distance from here was 346 miles — 301 from Columbus. L. A. W. 2120.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows; —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicant will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their ticket to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication you may look for your ticket.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

These Pants are close fitting, come three inches below the knee, are very elastic, and the most comfortable garment a lady ever wore. Made in Cream-Colored Cotton, Drab, Red, or any colors in Worsteds. Racing Wheemen tell us it is a loss of fifteen seconds in a mile to have some slight irritation from a non-elastic pair of cloth pants.

Patented April 7, 1885.

ORDERS SOLICITED.

L. A. W. TABLE.

Made of Georgia Mahogany.

Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.

L. A. W. SYMBOL,

Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered. Read what they say of it:

The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.

(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.

The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.

(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.

Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,

(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.

There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.— Thomasville Enterprsie.

Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W. member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

PRICE $2.50. When five or more are shipped to one address, the freight will be just one-fifth of what it would be on shipment of one. Address

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training, or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.

What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

Subscribers should be careful to notify the EDITOR promptly of any change in their address. Great care is taken with the mailing list. Failure to receive THE BULLETIN may usually be traced to carelessness on the part of the subscriber.

All matter for publication, whether reading or advertising matter, should be addressed to the EDITOR. All checks should be made payable to his order.

Reading matter, to insure publication in the following issue, must be in the EDITOR'S hands not later than Saturday afternoon; advertisements not later than Monday morning.

The EDITOR must in all cases have the full name and address of the authors of contributed articles, as a guarantee of good faith. As the Executive Committee has decided that it is best to discourage the use of assumed names by writers for THE BULLETIN, the EDITOR will publish the author's name unless particularly requested not to do so.

For List of League Officers, Statistics of Touring Department, and directions "How to join the L. A. W." see special page in Advertising Department.

INCLUDING the list of applicants published in this issue, the League numbers, to-day, 8,867.

IT may be that Hicks, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, is putting on to Eastern wheelmen more than they can sustain. "Elderly gentlemen who go about their affairs with a serious aspect." This is the gist of it. We know that this applies to Boston, but how about New York?

AN item, which originated in the Cyclist, advises wheelmen to use ivy leaves for the cure of watery eyes. An exchange advises caution in this regard, and says that if poison ivy leaves are used there will be trouble. The point is well taken, and the man who recommends the cure should tell us what kind of ivy leaves to use.

THE Racing Board of one of the State Divisions is taking steps to form a road racing association to promote a series of road races during the coming year. There seems to be an inconsistency in this, for the League, as such, does not recognize road racing, and cannot well take any steps to encourage it. Wheelmen, who have to do with road racing, should do it in other capacities than that of League officials.

THE long-promised volume on "Cycling," in the Badminton library, has been issued. It is written by Lacy Hillier and Viscount Bury, and is illustrated by Jo. Pennell. It forms a valuable adddition to cycling literature, and we predict for it a good sale on this side of the water. It contains four hundred and forty-two pages, and sells for half a guinea in England.

THERE is a possibility that reduced rates to St. Louis will be obtained, though it was thought that the Inter-State law would prevent this. No excursion rates can be made until the Commission can get around to delivering a ruling on that part of the law relating to reduced rates to excursion parties. This will probably not occur for a month yet. There is a very good prospect that a special rate will be forthcoming, and our only fear is that the committee will not get around to us in time.

IF the League gave nothing in return for the dollar it takes from members, there is an advantage in having a national organization well worth its cost to the individual. But it does give something. It gives to every member many times the value of his ticket. There are positive advantages in League membership which can best be shown by the employment first, last, and always of the idea, "League privileges to League members only." State officials should see this idea carried out in the appointment of hotels and repair shops, for it is not to our advantage to have it said that any wheelman can have the same discounts that League members get.

THE American Wheelman has started what it calls an "Assistance Fund" for the League. While we appreciate the generous spirit that prompted the step, we wish to say very emphatically that there is no call for such a subscription. When we are so pressed that we need to call upon wheelmen for donations we will let them hear from us through the BULLETIN.

SOME weeks ago we caught on the fly an item to the effect that the stock of the New Jersey Cycling and Athletic Association was to be sold at auction, and that the association had not proved a success. The managers of the association write us that the paragraph does them an injustice, and that only a very small quantity of stock was sold to comply with a provision of the law to enable them to close accounts with a few stockholders who invested to a greater extent than their resources would allow. We want to do no man an injustice, and therefore we desire to do all we can to remove any false impression our unfortunate paragraph produced. It is hardly time to pronounce the association a success or a failure, for it has ample time yet to prove its right to live. We hope to see it a grand success, and the managers may look to the BULLETIN for help to make it so. We believe that all wheelmen should work together in the promotion of every enterprise in the interest of cycling. If we are harmonious, we can do much; if we are divided, our progress will be slow. The BULLETIN stands ready to help the cause, and to say a good word for every commendable enterprise. And we consider that our New Jersey friends are worthy of all that we can say.

THE last chapter in the Phila-Boston transfer has been completed. The League funds that were tied up in a Philadelphia bank are now in Boston, and the furniture arrived on Tuesday.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

TANGENTIAL VS. DIRECT SPOKES.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I see occasionally in the columns of the wheel papers and elsewhere, certain articles relative to the merits of direct and tangential spokes, and the conclusions arrived at seem to be to the effect that a wheel of the tangential pattern is the stronger, but at the same time so much more rigid that the jar attending the riding of a rough road is transmitted undiminished to the rider. Perhaps this is true to some extent, but certainly not to the extent that one would be led to believe from the prominence given to this style of reasoning. With the easy suspension saddles, now universally used in this country, and the use of tires of generous diameter, the difference between the two styles in the matter of vibration is hardly perceptible.

Contrary to the philosophy of the writers of said articles, the fact remains, that the perfect wheel must be as rigid as if it were solid, and, for the same reasons, that the forks and handle bar must be as stiff as possible; namely, that all effort on the part of the rider must be transmitted to that point of the wheel which is at that moment in contact with the ground, undiminished by any springing of handle bar, forks, or spokes.

The same general principles underly the building of machines for either road or track use, and the principles observed in building machines for the track must be applied in building road machines, for obvious reasons. A wheel built for racing must be as rigid as it is possible to make it, so that it will respond instantly to any increased power applied by the rider. This it will not do if there is any give or spring to the spokes, but will act sluggishly, as it were. As the wheel is really a lever of the third class with the point of contact with the ground as a fulcrum, it therefore stands to reason that with a perfectly rigid wheel (or lever) the power that otherwise would be employed in bending or springing the lever (or wheel) is expended directly in moving the load. Now this is as true of road machines as of racers. A wheel to be a good hill climber must be rigid that all power applied must be utilized, and none wasted by the springing of the spokes; and for the same reasons a rigid wheel is better on a rough road as it is more easily forced over obstacles.

It is claimed that a direct spoke wheel is more easily repaired, and this is true, but it is correspondingly liable to need repairing, as the spokes are constantly jarring loose, and where one spoke is loose it throws an undue strain upon its neighbors, consequently an untrue wheel.

Another weak point in direct spoke wheels is the solid rim which is not strong enough of itself to bear any strain, thus throwing the whole duty upon the spokes, and buckled wheels are the result when they are subjected to an unusual strain. A properly built tangent wheel cannot be buckled. I have known of a wheel being buckeled by the rider simply striking the pedal with his thigh in dismounting, and this wheel was of first class make, and the manufacturer still advertises the superiority of direct spoke wheels for road use.

Another point of superiority of tangent spoke wheels is the narrow tread; a great point in hill climbing, as well as speed.

There are many other points of weakness or inferiority in direct spoke wheels; such as weight, liability of the thread stripping in the hub, etc., etc., but let this suffice. I have drawn these conclusions from a careful study and a practical knowledge of wheels derived from some years of experience as a cycle repairer.

I should advise any one who is still "on the fence" as to what to get for a machine, to get a high grade wheel (the best is the cheapest) of some standard make, with hollow rims, tangent spokes, and spade handles.

I am sure that with a good saddle of the Lillibridge, Victor, or Kirkpatrick pattern, he will find the much-talked-of "excessive vibration" all moonshine.

BALL HEADS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I would like to say my little say in indorsement of the opinion of "8905" expressed in your last number, in reference to "ball heads." The more the subject is agitated and the more it is brought to their attention, the better it will be for wheelmen, for a season's hard road riding of 2,500 miles has proved to me, that for ease of steering, aid to rigidity, time saving in oiling and adjusting, it cannot be equalled.

S.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Unlike several of your correspondents, I do not ride a ball-head machine. And for this reason, I believe in simplicity. The moment you add complication to a machine, you get parts to rattle and get out of order. The cone bearing is good enough for me, and I am inclined to let well-enough alone.

THE OWL.

When the poet wrote about "winter lingering in the lap of spring," he evidently had n't an eye to the future, the spring of 1887 in particular. Spring has n't covered even half a lap yet, and winter seems to go as he please. Spring's lap is of the sixteen-to-a-mile variety, and winter's efforts to sit on her has resulted in a backward spring of remarkable staying qualites, the evil effects of which, upon both road and rider, being evident to any who consult the condition of either.

Will. R. Pitman has declined a most flattering offer of a three-years' engagement offered him by the Pope Manufacturing Company; he finding his present business would not admit of his accepting. The offer and terms, when made by so able judges of men's worth in a cycling direction as the above-named company, will convince many that the "Old Vet" is still a "good 'un," and not yet shelved.

On the human imagination, events produce the effect of time. Thus, he who has travelled far and seen much, is apt to fancy that he has lived long; and the history that most abounds in important incidents soonest assumes the aspect of antiquity. In no other way can I account for the venerable air that is already gathering around American cycling annals. When I revert to the early days of cycling in this country, the period already seems remote and obscure; the thousand changes in record and construction, that thicken along the links of recollection, throwing back the origin of the sport to a day seemingly so distant as to reach almost into the mists of time; and yet barely ten years has been consumed in all the improvements and achievements of cycling in America. Thus, what seems venerable by an accumulation of changes, is reduced to familiarity when I come to consider it solely in connection with time.

"Senator" Morgan has mailed me the posters advertising the first appearance of the American team in Ireland. The most startling part of the circular is where it says that the great event of the day will be "Woodside versus the World." Seems to me, from this, that the "Senator" has cut out some very tough work for "Woody." I don't think that "Woody" can defeat the world, and if he did, it would only make him a cycling Alexander, and force him to spend the balance of his days in weeping because there were no more worlds to conquer. Should Morgan only be smart enough to get the bands in attendance to play that cheerfully worded Irish melody, beginning, "They are hanging men, and women, too, for the wearing of the green," I think that he can scare Woodside enough by it to make him beat anything.

The Western Boulevard, one of the few avenues leading to the comparative centre of New York, which has been a favorite route for cyclists, is to have its macadam surface replaced with Belgian block. Thus will another of the very, very few good roads be destroyed for further use by wheelmen.

Chief Consul Geo. R. Bidwell, seems never to tire of finding new and practical modes of bringing the great unwashed into the sheltering folds of the L. A. W. He is having struck off a large number of cards, a foot square, upon which will appear the League badge, and notice to all wheelmen that they should join and support this organization. Attached to the card, will be a frame, and in this will be constantly kept a full supply of application blanks. These will be double sheeted, perforated in the centre, on one sheet the blank, and on the other the Chief Consul's celebrated letter of appeal, which letter by the bye, is being sent for by chief consuls all over the country, with a view of recopying and issuing to their riders. The cards and blanks will be hung up prominently in the store of every dealer, hotel, and club room throughout the State, and the seed thus sown will not fail to bear a goodly crop of recruits. Infringers of this plan will be commended, not prosecuted. "Go thou and do likewise."

Mr. Isaac B. Potter, chairman of the State Board of Rights and Privileges, L. A. W., has taken up his residence in Albany, to push the New York Division's bill for wheelmen's equal rights with other vehicles upon the roads throughout the State. This gentleman is the regularly retained attorney of the New York Division, and as a representative of the L. A. W., and prominent member of the Brooklyn Club, has proven himself the man for the place he occupies. Whatever interest, experience, or legal ability can suggest to carry the bill through, will not fail to be used by him; and if defeat follow this, our first experience in attacking, instead of being attacked, members may rest assured that the battle will be renewed till we accomplish what we demand, viz.: justice and equality under the law for wheelmen, the same as is granted to all other users of the highways. More we do not seek, and less we will not accept.

The Ixions will extend an invitation to every L. A. W. member to participate in their final reception for the season on the 21st.

Our New York daily papers are nothing if not original when they treat of cycling subjects. Last Saturday the Mail and Express informed its readers that the Orinoco Cyclist Union was to hold a meeting at the United States Hotel, and that Mr. Butcher would probably be elected president thereof. This was translated to mean, that the American Cyclist Union would meet, etc., that Mr. Ducker etc. This comes of a paper trying to make the snake editor do cycling work, on the principle that anything is good enough for wheelmen, instead of doing, as other cities have, i. e., getting a wheelman to write matter that he is posted on, and which will be acceptable to cyclists for whom it is written.

The circus managers have realized what a hold cycling has upon the public, and have not been slow to add same to their attractions. For the past six weeks, every afternoon and evening at Barnum's circus, has appeared a troup of trick riders of the wheel, four men and three women, and a woman rider of the bicycle upon an elevated wire. While these are not new, yet they are straws which show the wind of public opinion. A cycling novelty certainly is shown in the elephant who propels his ponderous form around the ring upon a bicycle.

At the recent athletic games of the 7th Regiment, with an audience of perhaps five to six thousand people, the only event that brought forth any applause, was the drilling of the K. C. W.'s, the perfection and accuracy of which is too well known by every rider in the country, to need mention here.

There will shortly appear before the wheelmen of New York, a bicycle club house scheme, which will surpass the already high mark set in that direction by Boston & Washington. The figures involved are said to be about $62,000.

If my notes this week are not as they should be, please attribute the failure to the renewal of my acquaintance with a saddle, after an estrangement of over two years. My return to my first love, under these circumstances, has necessitated my eating off the mantel for the past few days, and of sleeping off my face at night; but, for all of that, I am going to ride on every chance possible. Don't think from this that I am going to risk my chances of getting past St. Peter at the Golden Gates above, by appending to my name and reputation any of the fashionable claims for five-figured early records, for I ain't.

The Owl.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

With the opening of the season, and the advent of new riders comes the oft-repeated question, "What shall I wear?" I tried to answer this in a previous number, but the importance of the subject to those directly interested will excuse my giving a few additional ideas, borrowed from a well-known lady writer.

"To those ladies whose minds are at present anxiously occupied with that important subject, a new tricycling gown for the season just beginning, let me offer a word of advice. Perhaps they may remember a letter I quoted some time back, from a lady who had made practical trial of the C. T. C. flannel (not cloth), as a material for cycling costumes. Her experience was such as to invite a following of her example by all other riding women.

"The flannel is soft, light, and far less warm and thick than the cloth. It looks precisely as well, and is calculated to stand any amount of wear and tear without looking shabby or becoming unfit for further use. The lady in question assured me that she had frequently had her tricycling costume drenched in melting snow, but that it still looked perfectly good and presentable. She also confessed to having torn it more than once, but the pattern of the material made it easy to mend the rents thus produced without the least sign of their existence.

"A lady tricyclist confided to me the other day her views respecting her costume for spring-riding. She has planned for herself a gown of black and white checked woolen stuff — checks so minute that the general effect is dark grey — made with the usual deep kilt, short drapery below the waist, and long waterfall at the back. The bodice is to have a tight-fitting lining, but to be itself loose, front and back, only drawn in to fit the figure by a waistband of black velvet. There are to be high collar and narrow cuffs of the black velvet; and a small black velvet toque with a gray wing in the front is to complete this very neat costume. I liked the description immensely — all but the hat. Velvet is hardly head wear for all weathers; and black velvet would be terrible after a ride on a dusty day." — Violet Lorne.

Already I hear of wheeling parties on runs for short distances. Imperfect roads and softened muscles will restrict all such to short runs for several weeks to come, but May will find us out and about, and will see organized runs in process.

I am glad to note that the dealers are prepared to supply wheels this year. Last year no new wheels could be had till June, and then they were quickly taken up. The lady who cannot find a good wheel this year must be hard to suit, for the market is full of them.

Several correspondents have asked me which is the best wheel of all. I cannot tell. "What is one man's meat is another man's poison." Any first class wheel will serve a rider well, and as we are disposed to incline towards a particular wheel from some prejudice regarding a particular point in construction, it stands to reason, that a novice cannot well judge a wheel, for prejudices come with experience, and a rider's prejudices generally take a direction in favor of the wheel she happens to possess.

The tendency of the female mind is unquestionably towards the tandem. There no doubt of this. In the first place, it is cheaper to buy one tandem than two singles; in the second place, a lady is relieved of much hard work; and in the third place, it is very satisfying to be near enough together to converse with ease.

The objection to the tandem is, of course, the necessity for company every time one goes out. There are very many occasions when it is impossible to find a companion, and then, if we have only the tandem, we have to submit to enforced resignation. The perfect outfit is a tandem and a single. Then one or two or three persons can go upon a run with perfect freedom.

I am told that my remarks concerning gloves have been criticised by one who thinks dogskin gloves should be worn by ladies. I cannot agree with my critic. Skin gloves are not flexible enough; they are very warm, and once wet they are spoiled. I have found it to be a good plan to cut the fingers off a thread or jersey glove. This gives a perfect freedom to the hand, and does not look badly.

In the Congregationalist of last week, there is an article on "Tricycling for Ladies." It was written by one whom you all know, and I think it will repay the reading. The author controls the columns of the Bulletin, and it may be that his natural modesty will keep all notice of the article I have referred to out of the paper; but I hope he will respect the sanctity of the ladies' department, and let this go in. Daisie.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

The good weather of the past week has put the roads in tolerable condition, and extended runs are now in order. The first, this season, to brave the risks and perils between this city and Jamaica, were a party of four unattached, who passed through the latter place on Good Friday. On Saturday, two members of the Brooklyn Club ventured as far as Garden City. They found the roads fairly good, in fact much better than the paths, which latter are very rough in places. On Easter Day, a number of wheelmen from this city and from Jamaica rode through and attended service at the Garden City cathedral. The roads between Brooklyn and Jamaica are particularly poor, and though they will probably improve very much with a week or two of good weather, they need considerable fixing up before the novice can enjoy the ride, or even attempt it with safety. Through East New York, riding is particularly bad, and bids fair to remain so in view of extensive building operations and proposed improvements which the city authorities intend making. It is possible for the clubs, by some united action, to patch up the paths of the New Lots route into fairly good riding condition, and unless they get together and do this, they must still keep well trained in cycling gymnastics ts be able to reach Jamaica with a sound body and wheel. The committee from the Brooklyn Club have had interviews with Commissioner Connor, but have very little to report that will further the interests of wheelmen. In brief, the asphalt streets of the city will be repaired where needed; the Eastern Parkway will not be resurfaced as was reported; no improvement of the wretched "cobble-stone hill" is contemplated; it is not intended to lay any more asphalt, macadam, or other smooth surfaces; and the new pavements of the twenty-sixth ward are not to be constructed with any idea of their becoming popular thoroughfares for wheelmen.

Again we have to record another of those now frequent and serious accidents to wheelmen on the Boulevard. On the afternoon of Easter Day, a young man named Rolff, residing at 57 Monroe street, was, so report says, deliberately run into by a buggy travelling in the same direction. Whether the accident was unavoidable or wilful remains to be ascertained. The wheelman was so badly injured that it was necessary to take him home in a carriage. I am informed that the injured man is a member of the Long Island Wheelmen; in that case we may hope for a thorough investigation and prompt punishment of the offending party, if the case was one of malicious assault. As has been before remarked, it is really perilous for wheelmen to ride on the Boulevard, Saturday or Sunday afternoons.

The Ilderan Bicycle Club have fallen into line on the question of club-house improvement. They have secured a lease of the three-story frame building, No. 71 Lincoln place, from May 1, and will fit up in a manner becoming to their requirements. The building is 22 x 32 feet. The first floor is but four steeps above the sidewalk, and will be used as wheel space; the floor above will be utilized for lockers, bath, and parlor; while the upper floor will contain a billiard room and apartments for janitor. When everything is in shape, they will be very nicely housed, and I am sure all their sister clubs extend to them hearty congratulations.

The Stevens lecture, which is to take place at the Academy of Music, on Saturday evening next, will be one of the events of cycling in this city. All the clubs of this city, as well as those of New York and neighboring cities, will send large delegations, and friend Thomas may expect a warm and hearty reception. Mr. Stevens will be dined at the Clarendon before the lecture, in company with Dr. Beckwith and others. At the conclusion of the lecture, he will proceed to the club house of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, No. 112 St. Felix street, where he will be pleased to see all those who care to meet him.

The annual meeting of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, at which occurs the election of officers, will be held Tuesday evening of this week. At this meeting, Mr. Thomas Stevens will be elected to honorary membership.

The increase of the great body of the unattached in this city, this spring, has been something marvellous. Truly, there is a harvest in store for the clubs, if they go to work properly to secure new recruits. Bon.

Brooklyn, April 11, 1887.

POST DISPATCHES.

Capt. W. M. Brewster will act as Missouri State Secretary-Treasurer for the present.

The headquarters of the Press Committee will be at the Spectator office, 212 Pine street.

The Missouri Club has finished its wheel-shed in the rear of the club-house. It is 40 x 18 feet, and will be for the use of tricycles and bicycles. No tricycle will be allowed in the wheel-room in the club-house, which will be kept more for the transient wheels. A washing platform, where machines can be properly cleaned, will be built near the shed entrance.

The Missouris' De Soto trip was taken last Sunday successfully by the following riders: Greenwood, Hildebrand, Percy Stone, Brewster, Prof. Stone, Wylie, Klipstein, Williamson, Parkhurst, Gordon, Suda, Hawkins, Holm, Tivy, Mehlig, Berger, Alex Lewis, Frohman, Taylor. They left De Soto at 8.30 A. M., and reached St. Louis, 45 miles away, at 6 P.M. The slow time made was due to the spring tenderness of the party and the presence of some tender-feet. The famous Jefferson County hills were climbed and coasted without special incident or accident. Cupid Baker and Floyd Jones rode down, a ride ten times as hard on account of the fearful south wind they had to face. The road was found to be in elegant condition. Prof. Stone acted as the commander, and did well.

The Meet programme, as arranged, is as follows, and will not be materially changed:

Friday, May 20, 9 A. M., meeting of the Board of Officers; 11 A. M., meeting of the general membership. Dinner. In the afternoon the steamer Charles P. Chouteau will be chartered, and the visitors given an excursion down the river to Montesano Springs. This will close the first day.

Saturday, May 21, 10 A. M., national parade of 800 wheelmen through principal streets; dinner at Forest Park. Afternoon runs to various places of interest; 8 P. M., banquet at the Lindell Hotel, to which the Mayor and prominent city officials will be invited.

Besides the stated runs, there will be impromptu excursions awheel during both days.

The cost of entertaining the Meet is placed at about $5,000, and this sum will be raised by the Finance Committee, who are industriously canvassing the business houses. They are meeting with great encouragement, and nearly half the sum has now been raised. One member of the committee, Mr. Reid Northrup, reports that he has secured the following subscriptions: C. E. Udell & Company, $25; Lindell Hotel, $100; M. M. Buck, $20; J. G. Brandt, $5; Wm. A. Stickney, $15; Gibert Fur'n & Company, $10; F. S. Ellerbe, $25; D. W. Van Houton, $25; Huse-Loomis Ice Company, $50; E. C. Meacham Arms Company, $50; T. B. Boyd, $10; Famous (Jos. Specht) $25; A. Siegel, $10. F. H. Gurden, $10; Bass F. & M. Works, $50; Tom Witt, $5; O'Neil Lumber Company, $10; Ezra H. Linley, $25; A. Gould, $10; Charles C. Vogel P. & G. Company, $25, W. H. Hallett, $10; Waters-Peirce Oil Company, $25; J. Kennard, $10; Bonsack Lumber Company, $10; Andrew Warren, $10; H. L. Fox & Company, $10; Fairbanks & Company, $15; F. Gurden, $10; J. W. Garnett, $10; J. A. Holmes & Company, $20; Eugene Jaccard Jewelry Company, $25; total, $660.

The committee is making preparations for about 1,000 visitors. This will be the first meet held in the West for some years, and will catch nearly all the Western wheelmen The Eastern cyclists will charter special trains and come straight through. The Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Washington, and Buffalo riders have already made their arrangements to that effect. In the East more than in the West the fraternity is composed of elderly gentlemen, and the people of St. Louis will be able to form some idea of the spirit that is pushing the wheel to the front when they see the large delegations of serious men who will visit this city in the interest of the "silent steed." One interesting feature of the Meet will be the presence of a large number of lady tricyclists of the East, wives of wheelmen, who will accompany their husbands to the Western Meet. The Lindell has been selected as the League hotel during the Meet, and quarters have already been secured for several divisions.

The official programme, which will be a work of art, and will be illustrated by sketches from prominent St. Louis artists, will be out about May 1.

THE ILDERAN'S NEW HOME.

The Ilderan Bicycle Club of Brooklyn, although the youngest, is by no means the least progressive of her clubs. Their latest move in keeping up with the spirit of the times is the hiring of the three-story frame dwelling, No. 71 Lincoln place. Its location as a clubhouse is excellent, as it is but eighty feet west of Sixth avenue, whence the Park can be reached by a three minutes spin on the smooth pavement. They will occupy it on May 1.

The dimensions of their new home are 22 feet x 32 feet 6in. By ascending four steps from the sidewalk, the lower hall is reached, which extends through the house and connects with the yard in the rear, which has a depth of 60 feet. On this floor, and opening from the hall by wide doors, are a front and rear room respectively 17 x 15 and 17 x 14. These will be used as wheel rooms. On the second floor are a bath room, in the rear and adjoining same, and connecting with the hall, a locker and dressing-room 17 x 16. Connecting with the latter, by double sliding doors, is the front room or parlor, 17 x 17. By opening the sliding doors, these two rooms can be made practically into one for entertainment purposes. This floor is completed by a front hall room, to be used as a committee room. The third floor consists of three rooms: a rear hall room, for use of janitor; a reading-room and card-room adjoining same, 17 x 14; and a front room, 17 x 15, with alcove, 9 x 6, to be used as a billiard room.

Immediately after occupancy, the various rooms will be furnished in a way suitable to the purposes for which it is proposed they shall be used. Thus equipped the club will be as comfortable as its older rivals, and within a year they expect to accomplish what their new quarters will amply permit — the doubling of their membership. — Wheel.

MACADAM.

John Loudon Macadam, the inventor of the system of road-making which bears his name, was born in Ayr, on the 21st of September, 1756, and died at Moffat on November 26th, 1836. It was while discharging the duties of road-surveyor at Bristol that Mr. Macadam conceived his new plan of constructing roads. His system may be briefly explained thus: — The stones were to be so broken that they would pass through a two-inch ring, and weigh not more than six ounces. The inspectors of the work carried a small pair of scales and a six ounce weight in their pockets, and when they came to a heap of stones they weighed one or two of the largest, and if they were about the required size they were passed. There is a very wide difference indeed between the macadam roads of to-day and those laid down by the inventor. The stones are now much larger than the original size, and it is necessary, in order to make the roads fit for traffic, to crush the stones down with steam rollers, and to pour upon them sand and gravel, which, after a rain, covers the surface of the thoroughfare with mud. Mr. Macadam, in his evidence before the House of Commons in 1819, said: "The greatest care should be taken that no earth, clay, chalk, or other matter that will hold or conduct water be mixed with broken stone, which must be prepared (i. e., broken) so as to unite, by its own angles, into a firm, compact, impenetrable body." It may easily be conceived that roads so constructed would be infinitely superior to the so-called "macadamized" roads of the present time. — News.

ELIZABETH NOTES.

It may be of interest to state that at our next regular meeting we will elect two new lady members, which will give us an active lady membership of ten. The largest, we believe, of any League club in the country.

Our new club house is in course of erection, and we hope to be in and settled by May.

We have done little or no riding during the winter, owing to the bad weather and roads, and are behind last year's record, but this warm spell seems to have started the boys up again. However, one of our members has ridden over six hundred miles to April 1, having ridden twenty-five days in January, twenty-seven in February, and thirty one in March; in all, eighty-three days out of ninety. Taking in consideration the terrible weather of the past three months, and the fact that most of this was done on country roads, shows that we have not all been asleep in Jersey.

CYCLETS.

MID April.

AND now we must get out.

THERE is no longer good excuse to postpone riding.

THE country roads are already peopled with riders, and the dealers are driven with orders for new wheels.

FAST DAY presented rather a forbidding aspect, but many wheelmen went out.

THE North Shore and the South Shore received visits from wheelmen.

WE have had many pleasant stories of the holiday experiences.

THE Governor advised us all to go to church, but the wheelmen did n't seem to hear him. They went to Wheeler's church, however.

THOMAS STEVENS has been elected an honorary member of the Massachusetts Club.

Bicycling News publishes a cartoon containing portraits of the American team.

THE Massachusetts Club talks of making a new departure and admitting associate members at half rates.

THE Wheelmen's Record of Indianapolis publishes a special supplement containing a very fine lithograph picture of Thomas Stevens.

W. H. WETMORE, the well-known fancy bicyclist, died at his home at Cuyahoga Falls, O., April 4, of consumption.

THE Elizabeth wheelmen of New Jersey claim more lady riders than any club in America. The name is appropriate after all. The ladies are ten in number.

THE latest birth in the cycle line is a Mail. It is of American parentage, but it is named for an English relative.

W. W. STALL represents the makers of the quadrant in Boston, having purchased the license held by J. A. R. Underwood.

BAXTER & SKINNER, of St. Louis, will issue the League programme this year. They expect to have it ready by May 1.

MR. HORACE B. WILBUR, the veteran tricycler of Boston, died last week at the age of seventy years. He was an enthusiastic wheelman, and spent a great deal of time riding.

IN spite of the rumors that the Massachusetts Club would have to go to pieces in consequence of a big debt, the club still lives. It did n't take long to raise the amount needed by subscription.

TREASURER LAWTON was in Boston on Fast Day, and spent the day with the secretary-editor discussing ways and means for running the machinery of the League.

BOSTON'S New Athletic Club is going ahead with a boom. Land has been purchased and plans made for the building. December is looked forward to for an opening date.

SAM GIDEON, brother of the champion Geo. D., has been engaged to conduct the cycling department of E. K. Tryon & Co., of Philadelphia. Sam has a host of friends who will be glad to see him in his new place. The firm will handle the New Mail and the Springfield Roadster.

THE Butcher cyclometer for this year has been radically changed. The hub cycle has been reconstructed inwardly, and now records with great accuracy. The spoke cycle is make to work by the dropping of a weight. which runs in a channel and cannot fail to drop.

BURLEY AYRES, Chairman of the Transportation Committee, was down from Chicago last Sunday. Plans for transportation of excursions to the League meet were mapped out, but everything is hung up and will be till the scope of the Interstate Commerce bill is defined.— St Louis Post Dispatch.

THE K. C. W. has broken ground for a new clubhouse at the corner of Bedford Avenue and Fulton Street, Brooklyn. There will be wheel, billiard, card, toilet, committee, and locker rooms, with parlors, etc. The building will be lighted throughout with incandescent lights. The cost will be about $16,000.

WOOD and James are finding some fast riders in Australia, and they have by no means had an unbroken succession of victories. Rolfe easily beats James, which is no great compliment to Rolfe, and Wood has found his match on one or two occasions.

R. H. ENGLISH, the ex-amateur, in his maiden effort as professional at Aberdeen, last Saturday, was beaten by over thirty yards in a twenty-five mile race with J. S. Lumsden, the Scotch professional.

AT one of the Massachusetts town meetings on Monday, an appropriation of $7.25 was made to pay a certain person "for services for several years in kicking small stones out of the road as he walked along."

HARRY D. HEDGER & Co. are making a new bicycle, called the Swiftsure. One has been built for R. A. Neilson, 52 inches, 41 pounds, including saddle and pedals, on which he intends to do road racing this year.

THE American professional team have obtained a special permit, whereby the amateurs of Ireland may run against them, during the Easter holiday meet, at Ballbridge race track, Dublin.

A. J. WILLIAMS, Princeton Depot, Mass., desires any member who may find a 54-inch Rudge wheel numbered 23,382 to notify him at once. It was stolen from a house in Vineland, N. J., last October. A liberal reward will be paid for the recovery of the wheel.

THE English Amateur Championship races this year will all be contested at the Aston Lower Grounds, Birmingham, as follows: May 30, one mile bicycle, twenty-five miles tricycle; July 2, five miles tricycle; July 4, one mile tricycle, twenty-five miles bicycle; July 23, five miles bicycle; August 1, fifty miles bicycle.

THE Secretary of the Erie, Pa., Cycling Club is in correspondence with wheelmen of New Castle, Greenville, Meadville, Edinboro, Mercer, Franklin, Warren, Corry, Union, Titusville, North East, and other northwestern towns with a view to the formation of a northwestern association.

EMERGENCY lectures are given weekly at the club room, Dorchester, on Friday evenings at 8 o'clock; the second one of the course was on April 8. These lectures, which are given by Dr. Greene, are very instructive, and the low cost places them within the reach of all. They are not restricted to members of the club. An opportunity is afforded at the close of the lecture for a social talk, etc.

MR. DUCKER, in America, is trying to abolish the amateur definition again. He will not succeed. He proposes placing all riders upon the same footing, and running races in classes according to quality as regards speed and increasing the number of handicap races. Whatever it may be in America, class racing will never take in England. We have tried them and they have failed. Handicaps, however, are such a success in this country that we think fuller attention should be given to this class of sport in the States, and if more of these events were given the new hands would have a fair chance, and racing clubs would be very much benefited thereby by the increase in the number of racing men, which naturally would follow. — Cyclist.

THE Manhattan Athletic Club has made a direct bid for L. A. W. athletes. For a short time, to all who can exhibit league tickets for 1886 and 1887, it will waive their initiation fee of $50. This will give league cyclists a chance to enjoy the use of the only athletic track actually within the city limits, of the boat houses on the Harlem river, and of the clubhouse on Fifth avenue, an idea of whose magnificence may be gained, when the fact is learned that the carpets alone on the parlors cost $2,500, being woven in one piece in Europe to fit the rooms.—Ex.

A MOTION for a peremptory injunction was entered by the Pope Manufacturing Company of Boston against R. Philip Gormully and the Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Company, et al, in two separate suits, before Judge Gresham, of the United States Circuit Court of the Northern District of Illinois, on Monday, April 4. The entire case was reviewed and occupied the entire day. Decision was reserved by the judge, and rendered Saturday, April 9, as follows: — "Motion for injunction denied in both cases without prejudice, with leave for either party to move to consolidate all cases."

NO. 12,678 sends the following for the benefit of the "Owl," but does not object to others reading it:

I passed by his garden and marked with one eye,
How the owl and the panther were sharing a pie;
The panther took piecrust and gravy and meat,
While the owl got the dish as his share of the treat.
When the pie was all finished, the owl, as a boon,
Was kindly permitted to pocket the spoon:
While the panther received knife and fork with a growl,
And concluded the banquet by eating the owl.

PHILADELPHIA in particular, while not possessing so many lady riders as some of the other cities, can count up a score or more who would not be likely to take much handicap on the road from the majority of the masculine pedallers. Two ladies of this city rode last season from Fifty-second street to Bryn Mawr without a dismount, and that, too, on their first trip out the pike. Bicyclers who recall their own early struggles with the "Three Sisters" Hills will appreciate the feminine effort, particularly when it is known that one of them was mounted on a machine which, though quite light (sixty-two pounds), was geared up to fifty-four inches. What will they do when they mount this year's machines, very few of which, for the sole use of ladies will, scale over forty pounds? — Philadelphia Times.

MR. HENRY W. WILLIAMS has resigned his membership in the Massachusetts Bicycle Club, and has accompanied his resignation with a check to be applied to the club debt. Mr. Williams was president of the club during the years 1883, 1884 and 1885, and declined a fourth term in February, 1886. At the time of his accession to the presidency, the club numbered about fifty members, but durieg his three years' service it grew constantly, until at the time he left the chair it numbered nearly two hundred and sixty. Mr. Williams has been an active and enthusiastic wheelman, and, although he has not ridden for nearly a year, he still holds the long-distance record of the club — 16,011 miles. He was a fine executive officer and an untiring worker, and the success of the club in years past has been largely due to his efforts.

A CLUB in the West of Scotland, met in committee, seriously and solemnly discussed the insertion of the following in its rules: — "No profane language will be allowed in the club at headquarters or on club runs." A heated discussion followed, when it was suggested by one of these sapient legislators that the words "except immediately after a spill," be added, and the proposal, which before this seemed in danger of being put aside, was carried with acclamation. When the punishment for the offence — drinks all round at the very nearest pub. — is made known, it almost seems a case of falling from the frying pan into the fire, and appears worthy of emanating from the "Tare an' Ouns Club." — Scottish Umpire.

THE newest thing in whistles is an invention of Mr. Peck, of this city, which is about ready to be put in the market, and of which Whitten & Godding are to have the control. The whistle is of the shape and about the size of an ordinary watch, and is hung from a chain and carried in the pocket as an ordinary bicycle whistle, or, too, a watch. The "blowing end" is at the watch stem, and the sound is like the ordinary duplex whistle, but of about double the strength. The whistle is nickel plated and has the figure of a rider and wheel neatly marked on one face, and its convenient shape for carrying in the pocket is one of its chief features. "Watch" and chain will retail for 40 cents it is understood.—Providence Journal.

WE have met her again, and once more it was at a cycling dance. She was a soulful-eyed maiden, and, as the young man gazed into her fair, young face, he asked her "If she had got a new tricycle?" and the ruby lips parted joyously as she eagerly replied, "Oh, yes, papa has just bought me a new autocratic steerer." And then a wild, weird young man, with thoughts of the Czar of Russia in his brain, and rumpled hair upon his head, fled to the refreshment bar. For a time all was chaos, but frequent cups brought back his memory, and as he thought of the times that he had seen her borne by her machine into a ditch against her will, he reflected that, perhaps, after all, she was right. — Wheeling.

THE trial of Jacob Miller, of Middlebranch, who drove into and ran over a Canton cyclist, was tried before Justice Braden last Thursday, and developed the suprising fact that in Ohio there is absolutely no law that compels a vehicle to turn out and give part of the road when passing another; and in case of an accident occurring, unless it can be clearly proven that one of the parties wilfully and intentionally ran into the other, so that the injured party can bring action for assault, there is absolutely no redress. The Ohio Division, L. A. W., will take immediate steps to have a bill into the legislature this fall, defining the laws of the road — such laws being now in force in nearly all of the States. Every horseman is also interested in being protected on the road, and a number have already signified their approval of the action of the wheelmen. — Canton Rollers.

A BICYCLE belonging to a European gentleman at a South Mahratta station has kindled such envious feelings in the breast of a native student in the local high school, that the latter has written the European the following imploring epistle: "Most respected Sir — I fall at your feet; if you please save my life and make me happy. I have the strongest desire to have the biscyle to ride on. Through the contemplation, I have no sleep either in the day or in the night. I have been reduced to half, and if I continue the same course I do not know what my fate will be; I have no money to buy it. Piety has never become fruitless, and so the generosity. Your honor should not think that you present me only a biscyle worth of nine rupes, but my life, which will perhaps serve your honor for your life. Now I have become like a helpless sick person and you a doctor. If you give me medicine I shall recover; otherwise, not. God will be pleased with you, which is necessary for a man to be happy. Let your great, kind, and noble mind order your generous hands to present this miserable man with your most beautiful biscyle. — Wheeling.

GENERAL BOULANGER has just been holding a cavalry review of a novel kind. A score of corporals from the Joinsville training school went through their evolutions before him, mounted on magnificent velocipedes. The composition of the little troop resembled that of the regular mounted force of the country, the bicycles representing the light, and the tricycles the heavy, cavalry. The minister has decided to have a certain proportion of the men in the infantry regiments trained to the use of the velocipede, the utility of these machines for the transmission of orders and the interchange of communications between the different divisions of the army having been satisfactorily established in practice.

SINGER'S new tandem is daily expected. The machine has been much improved over that of last year. Among other improvements, extra strength of axle and driving-gear has been secured in order to withstand the strain of two riders, and the brake-power is very effective. The rear rider has control of the steering, the front of the machine being clear of any obstruction which makes ingress or exit an operation of difficulty; the space between the riders is ample, and the balance of the tricycle can be adjusted at pleasure. The "S. S. S." tandem is a non-convertible, the makers apparently having greater confidence in a machine built complete in itself than when it is made up of parts, the perfect attachment of which being left to the judgment and skill of the user, not infrequently leads to repairs and consequent expense. As might be supposed the new tandem is finished in good style, and supplied with tires fitted with "Otto" corrugated wires.

THE season at Hyde Park, Mass., was opened by the Ramblers Fast Day. At 10.30 A. M. nearly all the members of the club assembled at the foot of Maple street, near the New York and New England depot, and eight of them took part in a hill-climbling contest. Maple street leads on to Mt. Neponset from Walnut street, and is very steep at this point. It was in poor condition on account of the loose gravel, making it impossible for any cyclist to reach the top. Those who rode up the farthest were W. S. Scott, firsr; H. S. Peare, second, and J. P. Bird, third. Delegations were present from Dorchester and Jamaica Plain with their machines, and the contest was witnessed by a large number of spectators. The latter, however, expressed a wish to see some racing soon. In the afternoon a club run was called to Dedham, and about 15 made the journey. The roads were found in good condition, except for a short distance at Readville. In the evening the club held an athletic entertainment at the headquarters.

AN English paper has hit upon a novel preventive of blistered hands, but since Bull & Bowen long since made a handle to fit this idea, the discovery is not so very remarkable.

"A novel cure for, — or rather preventive of, — blistered hands has been accidentally discovered by Mr. McDonald, of the Facile B. C. It happened that one of the horn handles of his bicycle came loose, so as to revolve on the bar, when he was on one of his first long-distance rides of this season; and, being unable to tighten it, he rode with it so, dicovering at the end of his journey that his right hand, which held the rigid handle, was badly blistered, whilst his left was quite free from that annoyance. He attributes the phenomenon to the absence of twisting-vibration in the loose handle; and intends to have his other handle made loose on purpose, The idea seems understandable, and it will be interesting to note whether the result of the experiment is satisfactory. Revolving — or rather, rotating — handle-grips will a novelty in anti-vibratory appliances, We always experience a feeling of annoyance if a handle gets ever so little loose, but it may turn out that this is one of those things which becomes familiarized by custom into a pleasure instead of the reverse."

THE Alumni Association of the University of Pennsylvania have offered a record medal to any student of the University who may beat a certainly very reasonable "standard time" in any branch of athletics. The time for the bicycle is given at 6.17 for two miles. Keene easily did much better time than this last year, and should do considerably inside six minutes now, so he is safe for the first medal. The object of the association has been to fix a standard which, while not out of the reach of any student who may go through an honest course of training, is yet too low to be reached without a fair amount of preparation.

THE road race of the University Bicycle Club will be run off on April 22, and will be a measured course on the Lancaster pike, probably from somewhere near Ardmore to Berwyn and return, twenty-five miles. The principal contestants will be Page and Whitaker, as Keene is not unlikely to spoil his track practise by indulging in a road ride at speed of such length. The general impression is that Page will win, as he has made some very creditable runs during his long summer tours. — Philadelphia Times.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

I AM ordered to sling my pen once more, and will now do my utmost to keep you well informed on matters hereabouts, and especially the Meet. We want this to be the banner Meet, and those who come will note a few changes in the custom prevailing more or less in years past. The excellence of these changes you must judge for yourself.

All calculations are being based on at least a thousand visitors, and everything will therefore be so arranged that inconvenience will be suffered by none. The Meet committee, which holds one meeting each week and sometimes more, is pushing its work rapidly to completion, and fully expect to see the official programme in the printer's hands within a week and a half, and issued promptly on time, May 1, to all L. A. W. members. It is the intention to make this herald of the big event something beautiful and unique, and the shape will also be changed. Some of our local cycle artists are at work upon the pictorial work. Mr. Rogers having resigned the managership of the Meet, this office has been abolished and W. M. Brewster succeeds him, as chairman. The latter is to day on Chicago, in Meet business.

THE Clarkesville road race continues to increase in interest, and Mr. Ladish is elated over the prospect. Solid road riders all over the country are preparing to enter the race, and the West expects to trot out a strong array of raw, but muscular talent, to meet the Eastern teams. I look for some surprises in this direction, too. Cola Stone was not thought much of at first sight, but he got there just the same.

THERE has been a gradual, unnoticed changein Missouri wheeling affairs of late, reaching ahead about simultaneously with those of the League. The old Ramblers having let go their hold, the Missouri Club began to assume the position of King Solitary. Then the Enrota Club decided that its object of existence was cycling, pure and simple, and not work, The Meet Committee is also composed mostly of members of one club, and the State Division passes almost entirely into new hands. In the interior of the State, a similar evolution is noted.

THE Missouri club house, the fountain from which all plans and achievements flow nowadays, is enjoying a very prosperous existence. It is to be artistically decorated, so that it will look its prettiest on the occasion of the Meet. As has already been told, the club will keep open house and provide everything possible for the comfort and refreshment of guests. The wheel quarters have been enlarged, and the tennis park is in full blast. The members have a large diversity of tastes, divided between tennis, the gymnasium, and the festive camera, — Ed. Sells leading the latter. Then there are the road toughs, generally ex-Ramblers; and the pool fiends, firm and paying friends of the treasury.

THE last club run, that from DeSoto to the city, was practically the opening of the riding craze, and was attended by members and unattached equally. Nineteen riders made the trip, and were met down the road by a large crowd from the city. Prof. Stone conducted this interesting and somewhat dangerous run — just enough so to be fascinating, — and brought his men through in great shape. The old road was in very fair shape, and a kindly gale of wind killed the effects of heat and helped the toilers along. Greenwood, on a Star, distinguished himself, as usual, by his climbing feats, which are truly wonderful, considering that these hills baffled Cola Stone, and that each and every one is several times longer and much steeper than the famous Corey. Percy Stone climbed Roger's Hill, three miles long and very steep, and Hildebrand surprised them all by riding almost the entire distance minus a handle-bar.

A DELIGHTFUL moonlight spin was taken to Ballwin, out on the Manchester pike, last night, the riders scorching back this morning. An accident occurred which might have been serious. Bob Stubbs and Klipstein were coasting Solomon, brakes off, and had made the treacherous curve safely, and entered the last stretch, when Stubbs's back wheel parted company with the backbone, and rolled away to a hiding place. Stubbs fell on his side, and his companion went over him at full speed, squatting in the dust some distance ahead. No bones broken, and Bobby turned up in our bedroom early this morning, having enjoyed a soiree with a pack of dogs, and a few hours' rest in the hollow side of a haystack

MR. LADISH, of the American Wheelman, has started a twenty-five cent subscription fund to assist the League. Mr. Ladish has very few critics in his charitable undertaking, and a number of local wheelmen have already sent in their little quarter.

PHOENIX.

ST. LOUIS, April 10, 1887.

THE CLUB.

DORCHESTER. — A regular meeting of the Dorchester Bicycle Club was held last week. The committee on new rooms reported that it was desirable to obtain new quarters for the club, and recommended that rooms be procured in a new building to be erected on Adams street, near Parkman street. It was voted that the club uniform be dark gray, and the collar to be turn down. It was voted to join the team road-racing association now being formed, and President Haynes and Warner S. Doane were appointed a committee to attend the next meeting.

SACRAMENTO, CAL. — Officers of the Capital City Wheelmen: H. Bennett, president; C. H. Oatman, secretary-treasurer; Jno. Bremor, Jr., captain; Byron L. Ball, first lieutenant; Wm. Hevener, second lieutenant; H. Toll, bugler.

PITTSFIELD, MASS. — Officers elected of the Berkshire County Wheelmen: E. H. Kennedy, president; J. N. Robbins, vice-president; C. L. Barker, secretary; E. F. Hill, treasurer; C. C. Kennedy, captain; W. H. Sheridan, first lieutenant; C. L. Barker, second lieutenant; Geo. T. Bates, bugler.

TRENTON, N. Y. — Officers of the Trenton Bicycle Club, elected April 6: C. T. Sutphin, president; F. H. Robinson, vice-president; Robt V. Whitehead, secretary; Dr. Jesse Godley, treasurer; C. T. Sutphin (ex-officio), B. S. Rose, W. M. Crozer, trustees; W. M. Crozer, captain; F. H. Robinson, lieutenant; Robt. V. Whitehead, bugler; H. F Whitehead, color bearer.

BOSTON. — The Massachusetts Bicycle Club corporation met at the clubhouse on Newbury street last evening, president A. A. Pope in the chair. Col. Henry W. Higginson resigned as a member of the board of directors. Directors were elected as follows: A. A. Pope, A. F. Webster, E. W. Pope, A. S. Parsons, W. S. Slocum. C. F. Joy was elected treasurer, W. S. Slocum, clerk, and Col. A. A. Pope, president. The assets over liabilities were shown to be $107.66. It was stated that the club owed $560. The meeting of the club followed that of the corporation, and the attendance was unusually large. President Dodge occupied the chair. Thomas Stevens was elected an honorary member by acclamation. F. Alcott Pratt resigned from the club committee, and Louis Barta was elected in his place. There were three new members elected. The number of full rate members were shown to be 171, and the number of half-rate members was shown to be 31, making 202 members of all kinds. It was voted to levy an assessment of $5 per member, and to start a subscription paper. Over $300 has already been subscribed. Committees were appointed, one to raise subscriptions and the other to consider and report the question of associate membership.

DETROIT. — List of officers of Detroit Club for 1887: B. J. Holcombe, president; Chas. Alvord, vice-president; P. N. Jacobsen, secretary; Geo. O. Williams, treasurer; A. F. Peck, captain; A. D. Bowlby, first lieutenant; Geo. Lane, second lieutenant; J. H. Ames, bugler; president, secretary, treasurer, A. F. Peck, J. W. Kneeshaw, Jno. Hanley, A. D. Bowley, executive committee.

MORRISANIA. — At the annual election of the Morrisania Wheelmen, held Wednesday, the 6th inst., the following named gentlemen were elected for the ensuing year: J. Provost Mason, president; Geo. E. Faile, vice-president; F. W. Hanford, secretary; W. A. Carpenter, captain; Douglas Hamilton, lieutenant; Jason Rogers, color bearer; H. E. Hall, bugler; Paul Williams, Geo. E. Faile, F. W. Hanford, and F. W. Roe, board of trustees.

SPRINGFIELD. — The Springfield Bicycle Club voted last week to purchase the piano which it now rents, and to own and control the use of buttons for the new uniforms. The buttons are hard rubber and stamped "S. Bi. C." Members of the club can obtain them of Treasurer Jordan at a nominal cost. John B. Hawks and Charles K. Starr were voted in as members. A. C. Patterson, A. O. McGarrett and Louis J. Chandler were appointed a committee to make arrangements for and take charge of the anniversary supper, May 6. There had been some talk of adopting a new badge, but the club voted unanimously to retain the badge by which the Springfield Bicycle Club is so well known.

OMAHA — At a meeting of the Omaha Wheel Club held April 5th, the following officers were elected for 1887: President, C. M. Woodman; vice-president, Dr. G. W. Williams; secretary, F. N. Clarke; treasurer, G. F. Schwarz; captain, F. T. Mittauer; lieutenant, T. F. Blackmore; color-beaver, A. C. Jolliffe; Buglers, Perry Badollet and H. B. Mulford.

SPRINGFIELD, O. — Annual meeting of the Springfield Wheelmen. Officers elected: President, Roscoe Bean; secretary, C. E. Maxwell; treasurer, Frank Harford; captain, T. J. Kirkpatrick; first lieutenant, Will J. Hall; second lieutenant, Ed. Cook; board of directors, Messrs. Bean, Kirkpatrick, Harford, Kepsay and Nagle.

The committee which had been appointed the week before to look up a suitable club room, reported that they had found a couple of rooms and they are to be secured at once, and the Board of Directors were instructed to proceed to fit them up for occupancy.

The club was organized as a stock concern, with a limit of fifty shares, and, to become a member, stock has to be purchased. Forty-one shares have been subscribed, and no doubt the remaining nine shares will be subscribed within a short time.

SECRETARY A. B. Post, of the Ottumwa Club, has resigned and taken up his residence at Canton, Ohio.

TROY BICYCLE CLUB, New York. — Officers elected March 14: President, R. D. Cook*; vice-president, T. W. Hislop; recording secretary, H. A. Everett*; corresponding secretary, G. B. Fales; financial secretary, H. R. Church*; treasurer, F. H. Norris*; captain, W. M. Thiessen; first lieutenant, A. F. Edmans*; second lieutenant, H. P. Cole*; first bugler, F. H. Norris*; color bearer, H. R. Church; surgeon, Dr. J. W. Morris; trustees, J. W. Hislop, chairman; F. P. Edmans,* J. V. Wilson,* C. H. Gabeler, J. R. Mulliken; house committee, J. E. Miller*, chairman; C. H. Wall, W. M. Taylor. *Re-elected.

ROXBURY BICYCLE CLUB. — The annual meeting of the Roxbury Bicycle Club was held on Friday evening, April 1st. Officers were elected as follows: President, Wm. H. Emery, M.D.; vice-president, I. E. Moultrop; secretary, B. W. Potts; treasurer, Wm. T. Johnson; captain, John S. Lowell; first lieutenant, Geo. E. Marsters; second lieutenant, Geo. A. Titcomb. Lieutenant Erie E. Rasling was compelled to decline a re-election on account of business engagements, but will retain his interest in the Club. Four new members were admitted. The adoption of a new uniform was laid over until the next meeting; the sample of new League cloth shown was thought favorably of. Runs were laid out for the present month. This Club is composed entirely of active wheelmen and the interest manifested in the coming season by its members predicts success.

BINGHAMTON BICYCLE CLUB, Binghamton, N. Y. — Elected the following officers for 1887: President, C. E. Titchener; vice-president, W. W. Sisson; treasurer, W. F. Sherwood; secretary, L. J. Kingsley; captain, W. H. Hecox; lieutenant, M. J. Corbett; bugler, W. H. Stone; color bearer, A. M. Durkee; trustees, A. S. Bump, C. M. Bloomer, W. R. G. Downs.

GREENWICH WHEEL CLUB, Greenwich, Conn. — The wheelmen of Greenwich have organized, and are known as the Greenwich Wheel Club. President, Nelson B. Mead; captain, E. W. Reynolds; treasurer, Dr. E. N. Judd; secretary, James F. Walsh; they, with George A. Slater, form the executive committee. They have adopted suits made of dark green, with gray shirts, black stockings and dark shoes. The colors are blue with red stripes, with word "Greenwich" embroidered on it. They have a membership of twenty, and it is a League Club.

CHELSEA CYCLE CLUB, Chelsea. — Officers elected as follows on Friday, April 1: President, Abbot Bassett; vice-president, John B. Seward; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Walker; captain, L. H. Frost; first lieutentant, F. A. Woodman; second lieutenant, P. Eustis Pratt. Delegates were appointed to the meeting of the Team Road Racing Association. The annual dinner of the Club followed the meeting, and at this Mr. Seward was orator, and Abbot Bassett the poet.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

ANNUAL MEETING INDIANA DIVISION.

THE annual meeting of the Indiana division for the election of a secretary, treasurer, and the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting will be held at the Bates House, Indianapolis, at 2 P. M., Thursday, May 19. The meeting is called for this date to save expense to those who attend the St. Louis meet, and I hope for a large attendance at both meetings.

A. B. IRVIN, C. C.

TRANSPORTATION.

THE Chicago & Northwestern Railway has issued instructions for free carriage of bicycles when accompanied by owner holding first class ticket. The bicycles will be checked same as baggage. This fact is published in the official time table.

B. B. AVERS.

HOTELS AT ST. LOUIS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Will you please announce through the League BULLETIN that arrangements have been made with the Lindell Hotel and Hotel Barnum, to take care of League members during the meet May 20–21, at following rates:

Lindell Hotel, 6th and Washington Avenue — regular rates, $4.00 per day; to wheelmen, $2.50 per day.

Hotel Barnum, directly opposite the Lindell, will accommodate wheelmen with rooms, two in room, single beds, at seventy-five cents per day.

Good restaurant in the hotel, where meals can be obtained from thirty-five cents upward.

Both hotels are first class, located in the heart of the city, and in the centre of our magnificent system of granite paved streets.

The parlors of the League Officers, State Division, and the leading wheel manufacturers will be at the Lindell Hotel.

Hotel accommodations of our city are ample, and clubs, divisions, and individuals desirous of securing apartments, can obtain all necessary information by applying to the Reception Committee.

EDWARD SELLS,
Chairman.

Mr. AARON RESIGNS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Please publish the following copy of a letter mailed with this: —

PHILADELPHIA, April 9th, 1887.

MR. E. F. HILL, Chairman Membership Committee L. A. W.

Sir, — I hereby resign my membership in the League of American Wheelmen. Yours, etc.,
E. M. AARON.

LEAGUE PARADE.

LEAGUE clubs intending to take part in the L. A. W. parade, May 21st, at St. Louis, are requested to give notice to the chairman of the Parade Committee forthwith.

Give name of club; give number of men; give date of joining league; give name of commissioned officer.

C. H. STONE,
Chairman Parade Committee.

WHERE TO LOCATE A MEMBER.

THE following decisions of the Executive Committee will be of interest to many members who are now uncertain regarding the State division they belong to, and it will be of value to secretary-treasurers who have heretofore been uncertain as to their claim upon a man who has had his dues paid by a club in another State.

NEW YORK, April 4, 1887.

ABBOT BASSETT, Esq., Sec'y L. A. W.

Dear Sir, — The Executive Committee have received your request for their opinion and instructions in certain cases to which you have called its attention, namely,

First. In the case of a member residing in one State belonging to a club in another State, which club pays the dues of such member to the League, is such member to be located in the State where he actually resides, or in that of the club which has paid his dues?

Answer. The Constitution, Art. IV, par. 1, says, "Each State shall be entitled to one representative for every fifty members."

Same article, par. 2 says, "Each State in which are twenty-five or more members may organize a State division," etc.

The By-Laws, Article IV, sect. 2, says, "Each member . . . shall be entitled to one vote for chief consul for the State in which he resides, and one vote for each representative that his State is entitled to under these rules," etc.

We gather from these quotations and other portions of the by-laws that the spirit and intent of the law is that the member be credited to the State in which he actually resides, or in which, politically, he has a place of residence and votes for officers of city, town, State, or general government. Any other construction would result in an absurd and purely fictitious interpretation of the rules.

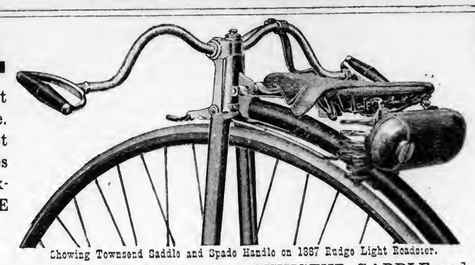
Second. Can you locate the member under the division in which he resides, and return the fifty cents to the division which has paid his fee?

Answer. You can so locate him under the division in which he resides, according to the above construction, but the fifty cents must go to the same division. Under the assumed facts, a body in another State pays the fee, not the division of that other State. A member in New York or Rhode Island, for example, has his dues paid voluntarily by a Massachusetts Club, the New York or Rhode Island division is entitled to the quota of dues of all its members, no matter from what source payment comes. The fact that a Massachusetts body pays voluntarily the dues of members of other States does not entitle Massachusetts to such members, or deprive those other States of their lawful rights. Otherwise a single division might, by its members or clubs paying the dues of members of other divisions, obtain an influence and majority to which it is not legitimately entitled. As between a division and its members, a club in another State is a stranger. When a stranger voluntarily pays the debt of another he cannot deprive the creditor (the division) of his lawful right to the money, or any part thereof, so paid. The question should be adjusted between the member whose debt or due is paid and the stranger body, and if the latter demands it he should reimburse it for the outlay for his benefit. The matter should especially be thus left for adjustment in the case of clubs which pay such dues out of their treasury, and whose individual members thereof do not severally pay.

Third. Can a man elect under which Division he will be placed?

Answer. — No. He must be located where, according to our ruling above, he actually resides.

In regard to the subsidiary questions, we say,



1st. Men living in New Jersey, but doing business in New York, are residents of New Jersey, and of the New Jersey Division, according to the foregoing rulings.

2d. Mr. Day and Mr. Pool are both members of the Division within which they reside, and your books should be corrected accordingly. Mr. Day is lawfully running as Representative for Rhode Island.

Townsend * Saddle.

It is light. It is easy. It does not chafe. Try it. It fits any machine. Thoroughly ventilated. It does not sag or get out of shape. It combines the advantages of every saddle extant. It is fitted to all RUDGE machines.

PRICE, $6.00.

SPADE * HANDLES.

More comfortable. Great power in hill climbing. Perfectly adjustable and detachable.

You are behind the times if you don't have them.

PRICE, $5.00.

To be happy, you must have your bicycle fitted with the TOWNSEND SADDLE and ADJUSTABLE SPADE HANDLES. To be obtained or fitted by any of our agents. ☞ See inside of front cover.

STODDARD, LOVERING & CO., 152 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

3d. Pennsylvania men at college in Ohio, if still retaining their residence with their families in, or whose homes are in Pennsylvania, we think are properly credited to the latter State.

4th. The question in Mr. Wood's case is whether he resides in Ohio or Pennsylvania. The facts in his case show that he lives in and is doing business in Ohio, and it appears in the BULLETIN, April 1, 1887, p. 266, 3d column, that he desires to be considered a member of that Division. This, it seems to us, unless other facts are produced, settles the question in favor of Ohio, and his half dues should go to that State, notwithstanding payment by the Pennsylvania Club.

We believe the foregoing covers the questions which require specifically an answer, according to your request. Fraternally yours,

N. MALON BECKWITH,
JOHN C. GULICK,
T. J. KIRKPATRICK,
Ex-Com. L. A. W.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

(11) I SHOULD like to know if a Hub lantern and cyclometer can be used at the same time? — 12,311. Certainly, the lantern is made to take the place of a weight.

(12) WILL any one tell me what improvement a ball bearing is over a well-oiled parallel bearing, except that wear can be taken up. Will not the parallel bearing run as well. B.

(13) THE query which our friend, No. 2545, gives to solve, is a conundrum indeed, and especially so to me, after having the experience of riding a season on a tandem, am at a loss to know why it is not a more popular machine. To take a practical view of it, it takes two cyclers that are perfectly agreeable to each other, as experience teaches, that, if any dissensions arise, it will put the machine in a very awkward position and making it somewhat unridable. There is an objection which might have some weight, when it has to be said, that coasting is unsafe — not to say that coasting is safe on any bike — but it has been fully demonstrated that it is somewhat dangerous, as the momentum acquired is something wonderful, and as the wheels act independent of each other, it requires very careful handling going at such a high rate of speed. To over-balance that objection, which is the only one of any importance, as it ought to be understood, that it takes experienced riders for this style of machine, the delights of this kind of cycling are to a certian extent indescribable, as you have the sensation of floating in the air, being free from all the annoying little jolts; the ease of propulsion, which readily shows itself when out with a crowd of cyclers, and the sociability of the machine are other commendable features, also the advantages as a touring machine are obvious, on account of the luggage that can be carried, the speed attained, the safety being entirely free from all headers, bringing into full use the brakes. It is with great regret to think, for a time, my pleasures in this line will be stopped, as my brother tandemite has gone to a "merryland" [Maryland] and the writer finds himself in a strange city. X.

(14) IN answer to 2545, let me say that the tandem bicycle has gone out because something better has come in. The tandem tricycle has all the advantages of the two wheeler with the additional advantages of safety, comfort, and adjustability to all lengths of leg.

(15) IN answer to several queries, we give the Massachusetts law relating to guideboards: —

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

In the Year One Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty-seven.

AN ACT

In relation to the Erection and Maintenance of Guide-Posts at Crossings and Forks of Highways.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows: —

Section 1 of Chapter 53 of the Public Statutes is hereby amended so as to read as follows: —

"Every town shall, in the manner provided in this chapter, erect and maintain guide-posts on the highways and other ways within the town at such places as are necessary or convenient for the direction of travellers, and shall erect and maintain such guide-posts at such forks or intersections of such highways and other ways as lead to adjoining towns or cities."

(16) WILL you or some of your readers say what, if anything, can be done to cure or prevent a very profuse perspiration when riding the bicycle, which seriously affects my comfort and pleasure. I have been riding for the past three or four years, and can hold my own with the average rider on Club runs, but while others who ride no better or more easily than I are cool and apparently comfortable, in standing collar and cuffs, it may be; I am reeking with sweat, spoiling the pleasures of the ride, and am also obliged to exercise extreme care when resting en route or after the run is over. My weight is about 165 pounds, but heavier men than I are not all so affected. No. 9392.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicant will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their ticket to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication you may look for your ticket.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

L. A. W. TABLE.

Made of Georgia Mahogany.

Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.

L. A. W. SYMBOL.

Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered. Read what they say of it:

The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.
(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.

The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.
(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.

Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,
(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.

There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.—Thomasville Enterprise.

☞ Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W. member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

PRICE $2.50. When five or more are shipped to one address, the freight will be just one-fifth of what it would be on shipment of one. Address

WRITE VERY PLAINLY.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training, or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

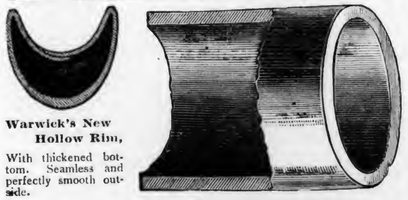
A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.



What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

Subscribers should be careful to notify the EDITOR promptly of any change in their address. Great care is taken with the mailing list. Failure to receive THE BULLETIN may usually be traced to carelessness on the part of the subscriber.

All matter for publication, whether reading or advertising matter, should be addressed to the EDITOR. All checks should be made payable to his order.

Reading matter, to insure publication in the following issue, must be in the EDITOR's hands not later than Saturday afternoon; advertisements not later than Monday morning.

The EDITOR must in all cases have the full name and address of the authors of contributed articles, as a guarantee of good faith. As the Executive Committee has decided that it is best to discourage the use of assumed names by writers for THE BULLETIN, the EDITOR will publish the author's name unless particularly requested not to do so.

For List of League Officers, Statistics of Touring Department, and directions "How to join the L. A. W." see special page in Advertising Department.

THERE has been some question in the minds of League officials regarding the date when the newly elected board of officers must enter upon the duties of office. It has been held by many that the old board goes out, and the new board goes in, at the time of the annual meet; and others have claimed that the chief consuls and representatives take their seats at once. We are able, this week, to place all doubts at rest, and, on the authority of President Beckwith, to say that the president's declaration of election seats the new board and unseats the old. The newly elected officers take office immediately, and the new chief consuls may fill up the quotas of their respective States by appointing representatives, who will be able to vote at the St. Louis meet.

THE Racing Board is out with new rules for 1887. They have simplified the lap and team races so that they will no longer be a puzzle to riders, officials, and audience, and we believe they will be taken more kindly to in future. It was a mistake made by many, last year, in giving long distances to the lap races. We do not believe that they should ever exceed five miles, and, on a quarter-mile track, even that distance is calculated to make the race a tedious one.

LONG races are not popular with our American audiences. Englishmen will sit through a cricket match that lasts the entire day, but America adopts base-ball as its national sport, for the very reason that a game can be played in two hours. Long races may do for England, but they will never be popular in America.

IN giving the right to clubs to pay entrance fees and travelling expenses of members, the Board yields to what it recognizes as a popular demand, but it retains a control of the prerogative which will prevent an abuse of it. Under the rule which has been made, it will be impossible for manufacturers or sporting men to organize special clubs to take advantage of this rule, for the Board will be watchful and guard against such proceedings.

IN another column, we have asked for certificates from League clubs and Division secretaries. We believe it to be important for this office to have, easily at hand, statistics like those we have called for, and we hope to get full returns. We shall number the clubs in the order they came to us, and it will be annoying to get the new system in full operation, and then have some careless secretary send in a claim for a position which will necessitate changing the numbers of many clubs that have to move backward numerically. We desire full returns in this case, and we hereby nominate every member of a League club a special committee to urge his secretary to send on a certificate. The committee will please go to work.

IN collecting statistics of the divisions, we have asked for the co-operation of secretary-treasurers. We are well aware that the BULLETIN and the Cyclist and Athlete have all the items we have called for spread upon their pages, but to gather them together would be a tedious task, and not so satisfactory as the method we have suggested. Please give us a start, and we will keep the books along.

THE new chief consuls will assist us, if they will furnish full and complete lists of League hotels and repair shops. All consuls are retired from office by the rules on March 1, and we shall make it our business to record the newly-appointed consuls; but the hotels "go on forever," and we have no way of getting the record, save by favor of chief consuls.

THE Indiana Division has issued a very fine road map of the State, which contains a great deal of information in a compact shape. It is carried in a waterproof folder, and contains, besides the map, a list of officers, consuls, and hotels. The map shows the turnpikes and best roads, and is drawn on a scale of nine miles to the inch. The Indiana Division has done a good thing for wheelmen, and "What is the League doing?" will be a question easily answered in that State.

WE do not suppose we have any right to demand anything of the League Racing Board. So it please you, Mr. Bassett, we would ask you to state plainly and decidedly what the policy of the Racing Board is to be during the coming season. We are not going to become proamateurs, nor anything of that sort, but we think that, in justice to all persons interested in racing, it should be stated at once whether the League intends to continue to chop off the amateur heads of suspected promateurs or not. Please, Mr. Chairman, we prithee, tell us. — Bicycling World.

THE Racing Board has always been the servant of the League. It has never had a policy of its own, but has acted under rules made by and repeatedly reaffirmed by the Board of Officers. The Chairman of the Racing Board has seen no evidence of a departure from the ideas held by the Board of Officers last year, and he cannot well see how the action of the Racing Board can in any way be different from what it has been in the past. Since a new Racing Board will be in power after the St. Louis Meet, perhaps it would be better for our contemporary to get his answer elsewhere.

THE OWL.

Oh, the rider did gently grin
As he handed in his "tin,"
And his "uncle" passed him out his Bicyclette — ette — ette.
For now, when Winter's past,
And Spring is here at last,
He'll not run it in again,
You can just bet, bet, bet.

THE foregoing beautiful lines are one of the choicest specimens of the handiwork of one of the mosverdant vernal poets, and after his funeral, which resulted from an over payment with a club, I have concluded to give him fame by putting the "pome" at the head of this column.

It is a paradox, that of all riding shoes I have ever worn, a felt shoe is the least felt.

The economy of nature made a bad break when it burdened the world with its present over-abundance of "road hog," who certainly is of no more use thereto than the letter "p" is to pneumonia.

"WHAT are yez doing there?" yelled a gray-coated park policeman, at a cyclist who was trying to extricate himself and wheel from beneath the hoofs of a terrified horse, upon the Riverside Drive. "Why, Mr. Officer," answered the wheelman, as he gained his breath, "that man has deliberately run me down, destroyed my wheel, and endangered my life, and I want him ar ——" Policeman, noticing a scratch upon horse's fore foot, interrupts the cyclist with, "Young feller, yez have hurted this horse, and I'll have to run yer in for cruelty to animals," and he did. Result, officer prefers charges, and cyclist pays them. Cost, $10; repairs, $46. Total, for "road hog's" amusement, 556.

WHAT innocent compositors Boston must have! In my notes, two weeks ago, I wrote "busted flush," and it came back printed "nested flush." Messrs. Mott & Co. have a great field for their treatise on poker in the "bean city," if the above is a sample. You couldn't hire a printer in this city to put into type, in connection with a poker treatise, any such term as "nested flush," and if all Boston compositors are as ignorant of the flushness of the flush, or the fullness of the full as the one who set up my note last week seems to have been, I dread to think of the influx of New York compositors that you are threatened with, who will make it their pleasant and profitable duty to instruct their brethren of the "case."

THE Kangaroo was the first of that type of wheels that sacrificed height and appearances to gain safety and confort. I have long wondered why the makers chose this name, and can find no other reason than that they, like the kangaroo, stooped to conquer. The glittering possibilities of the new Singer four-in-hand and its capability to an almost unlimited extension in the way of accomodating a great number of riders, opens many new possibilities in cycling. With this machine, it will be possible, for instance for the Sultan of Turkey to take out the 264 Mrs. Sultans on a tandem ride. For the same reason, I expect a large sale for them in Utah among the Mormons. Col. Pope's projected cycling path from New York to Philadelphia now receives a new impetus. Think of a cycling train, starting every hour. Victorias, conveying a dozen riders, start in a straight, smooth path for a 90 mile run, and passengers literally work their way and earn their passage by the sweat of their brow.

FRANK N. WHITE, of Spaulding's whose genial ways have made him hosts of friends among cyclers, lies dangerously ill at his home in Orange. If wishes count for anything he would be as good as cured now; but as they do not, his friends seek solace in the hope that Frank's good luck will not forsake him in his present strait.

IN the days gone by, it was always our boast that the strongest point in favor of cycling was that its followers were always gentlemanly, and that there was a desirable absence of anything congenial to the genus "tough"; and in consequence thereof, that this element was conspicuous by its absence. Of late there seems to be an effort on the part of certain cycling papers in the West, and of a few cycling scribblers, both in their home papers and in others in the East, to foster and introduce the "tough" into cycling, even glorifying this undesirable addition to cycling by referring to him constantly in print as a "tough," as though such a title could be a credit to the rider or a desirable acquisition to the sport. To such of us, — and there are yet, I hope, many, — who are old-fashioned enough to prefer cyclists always referred to as gentlemen, and this innovation is not looked upon kindly. When we call ourselves in our own journals "toughs," what can we expect our enemies to call us when it is a flattery to call us "toughs"? I know that the effete East no longer knows what is best for cycling, and that it looks only to the West for innovation and instruction therein; but please, Messrs. Instructors, can't you lead us up to such a change gradually, and perhaps in time we may see the error of our ways, and be able to think it better for the cause, and more complimentary to the individuals, to be called a "tough" than a gentleman. One cannot be both, and it takes us some time here to make so radical a change.

STEVEN'S lecture on Saturday eve at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, brought together the largest gathering of cyclists I have seen here since the League parade. As a lecturer Mr. Stevens is not a success. His delivery is bad, and he seems to lack that indescribable something that in a lecturer is indispensable to establish a feeling of interest in the speaker by the audience. Before a crowded house, almost entirely cyclists and their friends, he evoked but faint applause, and that but upon one or two occasions. I am sorry, but perhaps from his writings and the almost inexaustible field that he possessed, perhaps I was led to expect too expect too much.

MR. WM. H VEYSEY, sixty-five years of age, and the head of the firm of Veysey & Veysey, whose names as expert accountants have been frequently before the members of the League in the late unpleasantness, intends taking a bicycle tour through Europe the coming season. Despite his years, Mr. Veysey, mounted upon a Rudge Safety, goes as far and as often in his rides as does any other member of the Harlem Wheelmen, of which club he is a member. It is such an example of the delights and possibilities of the wheel, that is worth a ton of advertising puffs towards the increased use of the wheel. Few, indeed, after such an example, can say they are too old to learn and use a bicycle.

MR. W. C. HERRING has decided to abandon his trip-a-wheel to Japan, and will satisfy himself with a knowledge of that country gained from tea labels and an old Mikado libretto. He says this is easier and he is sure it 's authentic, and of course it is.

THE OWL.

NEW ORLEANS.

IT is something of a drawback to a correspondent in this spoke of cycledom to be unable, at this time of the year, to chronicle the opening of the riding season, but facts are facts and the fact is that the season here is like unto the bicycle tire, i. e., without end (chestn — ting-a-tang); consequently, we ride whenever our fancy dictates during the entire twelve months of the year; so, while regretting my inability to make an item of the welcome news that once more the riding season is upon us, as most of the cycle correspondents in the "frozen North" are now doing, I'll wager green persimmons for the crowd that nine out of every ten of them will willingly forego the item for the pleasure of a southern midwinter ride. Hey boys?

There is, or should be, joy in the hearts of the cyclers of this community. Our four-and-a-half miles stretch of asphalt pavement is to be extended to Canal street, (fully another mile) which will inable the wheelmen who ride their steeds to and from their business, to wheel almost to their very doors, thus doing away with the trundling which is at present necessary. Gradually, the paving of this city is extending until now nearly all of our principal streets are either being asphalted, or the contract for the work has been let. In a great measure, this good work has been brought about by repeated and stirring editorials in one of our morning dailies, the Times-Democrat, whose editor, while not a wheelman, uses other vehicles enough to understand and appreciate the value of good paving. This is but an example of what a live newspaper can do, and now if the country press would but commence a general agitation for better roads, our cup of joy would indeed be brimming over.

The daily press of this city, as a general thing, have but little news of interest to wheelmen. The morning papers, the Times-Democrat and Picayune once in a great while have a paragraph or two of wheel literature, but this is very seldom; yet we hope to see the day when the manly and invigorating sport of bicycling, will supersede the long accounts of disgusting and brutal prize fights, etc. Of all our papers, the Item, an evening daily, takes the lead in the line of cycling news, Harry Fairfax of the N. O. B. C. being on the staff of that paper and in direct charge of the sporting column; hence, a batch of interesting wheel items comprise a portion of Harry's daily report, which fact maketh the cycling heart glad. The Chronicle, another afternoon journal, once or twice each week also publishes a bit of wheel gossip.

Pelican is quite a rare bird nowadays, but a certain sprightly western cycling weekly has, walking about this city, one of the rarest of the species whose duty it is to keep the readers of that particular journal posted on matters transpiring hereabouts. As general thing his pelicanship (when!) does his work in proper shape, but every once in a while he does — to use his own expressive language — "fake up," some very queer and slangy statements. Recently, Pelican came to the conclusion that Daisy's efforts in the cause of wheelwomen were not to his liking so he straightaway suggests that Daisy be eliminated, and couches his language is such terms as to belittle that lady's work in behalf of her sex. Everywhere, and in every mode of life is the ennobling, refining and persuasive influence of women been recognized and attested to, and especially is this true of the South; and such a cool suggestion that a lady correspondent who is doing much good in her way be ousted, coming from a Southern man, deserves prompt and hearty rebuke. Friend Pelican, remember that you are not a lady, therefore it is not to be supposed that the ladies' column has any special charm for you, but also remember that you are but one bird of a very large flock and I do not think a dozen men of the nine thousand League members begrudge the ladies four or five columns per month of special matter in the official journal. The men have their share. What more can they ask? Fie! you bird, fie! Sh-sh-sh-sh!!!! Bang! Ah-h-h!!! Now look out for the stick.

Last night (April 13th) occurred the regular monthly meeting of the New Orleans Bicycle Club, which proved the most exciting in the history of the club and whether or not to remain a League club was the cause of it all. It takes a two-thirds vote to carry such motions, and as, of the thirteen voting members present last night, nine voted for and against leaving the L. A. W., there was any number of lively tilts as to whether or no nine composed two thirds of the meeting. Motion followed motion, appeal after appeal went up to the chair, every one became excited, the chairman included, and for half-an-hour there was a "regular picnic," which was finally ended by a motion to lay over, and so the matters goes over for a month. After last night, however, there is not the slightest doubt, but that the New Orleans Bicycle Club will take its place in the line of non-League clubs. 'Tis pity, 'tis true, but 'tis so, just the same.

SCRANTON, PA.

THE STEVENS RECEPTION BY THE SCRANTON BICYCLE CLUB, AND HIS FIRST LECTURE.

ACCORDING to our promise, we will attempt to report Thomas Stevens' first lecture, his reception by the Scranton Bicycle Club, and Scrantonians in general.

So as to do this properly, we have been "keeping company" with members of the club, and tried to be on hand as the events passed off, one after the other.

April 12 dawned somewhat hazy, and it was with difficulty that the sun was able to show his face until the morning was well on; but by noon everything was bright and the day was perfect. 1.30 P. M. found a committee of five of the club upon the depot platform, while outside on the avenue awaited the mounted committee of twenty-four, who were to act as escort, while the balance of the club, together with the citizens' committee, were awaiting the arrival at the Wyoming. Promptly on time (the D. L. and W. is always prompt) the train steamed into the depot. Mr. Stevens, accompanied by three of the club, who had gone to the city to come up with him, stepped from the train. He was quietly introduced to the committee of five, who led the way to the avenue, when he mounted a tandem with President Jessup, and, with a guard of twelve wheelmen in front and twelve in the rear, he was thus conveyed to his hotel, the Wyoming. Having gained the parlors, the mayor of the city stepped forward, and in a short speech extended to Mr. Stevens the freedom of the city, and then turned him over to the gentlemen of the bicycle club. Mr. Stevens seemed quite overcome by the welcome; but after a moment's hesitation answered in a very happy strain. After being introduced to all present, he was taken to dinner, after which the afternoon was spent in exploring a coal mine, testing the electric railroad, and driving about the city. From five to six he was introduced to, and shook hands with many at the club rooms, which were thrown open to the public.

At eight o'clock he stepped upon the stage of the Academy of Music, accompanied by the committee, who remained on the stage throughout the lecture. His audience was as large as any audience that has greeted a lecturer this season in our city, with the exception of Henry M. Stanley. As George A. Jessup briefly introduced him, he at once commenced his lecture, and related his experiences; or rather, a few of them. He held his audience enrapt for over one hour and a half, when he closed rather suddenly. In fact, we have three criticisms to make. First, he is too modest, and in describing country, people, and adventures, he leaves himself out too often. He should take in a little more of the spirit of the man who exclaimed, "Pat and I killed the bar." Second, while his lecture is replete with humor and fine points, he fails to bring some of them out from lack of expression and gesture, but a man of his will and perseverance can overcome this in a short time by taking a little elocutionary training. Third, he left his audience unexpectedly in the midst of Japan. This is a mistake that he evidently noticed himself, and will correct in his second lecture. As a whole, his lecture was more entertaining than Stanley's, and as a lecturer he is superior to Stanley in many respects.

The banquet at the Wyoming was a grand wind up of the day, about one hundred and twenty-five taking part. The tables in the large dining-room were arranged like the spokes of a wheel, around a centre table of fruit and flowers, which took the place of the hub. The orchestra was conveniently placed at one side of the room. Chief Consul George A. Jessup (I came near forgetting that title), with Mr. Stevens on his right and the toastmaster, E. B. Sturges, on his left, presided at the head of the room, and the gentlemen, who were to respond to toasts were each seated at the head of a table. After mine host Allen had served the menu in the most approved style, Mr. Sturges took charge, and proved himself to be a toastmaster worthy of the occasion.

Opening with a witty speech, he called upon Club Surgeon Dr. J. E. O'Brien, "Our Honored Guest." The Doctor replied in a poem which will probably see light in several wheel papers. Mr. Stevens's response was couched in well-deserved flattery of the reception he had received. Coming to Scranton to practise or rehearse his lecture, he was surprised with the size and enterprise of the city; was surprised at the reception accorded him. He spoke of the letter received from the Scranton Club shortly after landing; its request that he should visit the city as their guest, and, if he was to take the lecture platform, to deliver his first lecture before them. He compared Scranton with London, much to the detriment of the latter. His remarks were often greeted with applause.

Mr. Gerry Jones, of Binghamton, responded to the toast, "Our Visiting Wheelmen." He paid a tribute to the Scranton Club, and referred to the city as the wheelman's Mecca. His reference to Chief Consul Jessup and Pennsylvania Division was received with tremendous applause.

Rev. Dr. Logan spoke on "Bicycles as a Means of Grace." He, under the guise of witticisms, which kept the party continually laughing, gave wheelmen a lecture on Sabbath breaking.

Judge W. H. Jessup, on "The Bar," "The Law," "Wheelmen's Rights," handled his subject from a legal standpoint.

Col. George Sanderson responded to "The L. A. W.," describing its growth from its organization, when he and two or three others were the only members from this section. He thought the League too old and well founded to be broken by dissension, and predicted that all discord would soon be done away.

Rev. David Spencer, D. D., spoke of "The Wheel and Its Pleasures." He said the ministers delighted to see people go tandem, and trusted when Mr. Stevens repeated his trip, it would be on a tandem. When he suggested that the League could not do better than to select Mr. George A. Jessup as their next president at the St. Louis meeting, the applause was long continued.

Col. J. A. Price spoke on "Our City." "Some cities have their future behind them, ours is before us."

The chairman then suggested that before good night was said, or good morning, it would be in order to elect Mr. Stevens honorary member of the club. Col. Sanderson nominated him in a neat speech, which was seconded by Dr. O'Brien, and he was duly elected; and after a good night from the chair, the banquet was at an end.

The menu cards were something fine. Designed and engraved especially for the occasion, was a vignette representing a lone wheelman climbing a mountain side, while the valley stretched below. On the inside was a picture of Stevens, under which was placed his autograph signature before the evening was over.

The whole affair was a credit to the Scranton Club, and shows that in anything they undertake they take no second place; and the two and three column reports in our local papers show the interest taken in the affair by our citizens.

The reception cost the club about $450, and we hear the committee reported a deficit of about one fourth of that sum, which will be paid from "an overflowing treasury," and not, as we, an "outsider," thought in our last, by an assessment.

LACKAWANNA.

A WORD TO "DOWN EAST" TOURISTS.

I HAVE been urged by some members of my various Down East tours to arrange for a similar trip the coming summer. After giving considerable thought to the matter I have sketched out a tour that I am confident will far exceed any of our previous excursions, both in extent of territory to be covered, natural scenery, places of historical interest to be visited, and quality of roads to be traversed. The route of the tour is as follows: — Rail to Edmundston, New Brunswick; wheel to Riviere De Loup, on the St. Lawrence; two days on the Saguenay and St. Lawrence rivers; two days at old and historical city of Quebec, visiting the Falls of Montmorency, reached by one of the best roads in North America. From Quebec we wheel through the French settlements of the Province of Quebec, and down the Kennebec valley, over a portion of the route of the Kennebec tour of 1884, to North Anson, Me., where train will be taken for Boston and way stations. We shall wheel on an average about thirty miles a day, covering in all nearly three hundred miles on the wheel. A glance at the map will show that the trip is a complete circle of the larger part of the State of Maine. The time occupied will be fourteen days, and the cost will not exceed $50, reckoning from Boston. The party cannot well exceed thirty on account of limited hotel accommodation at some places on the route, and I would esteem it a favor if those members of my previous tours who care to once more join their fortunes with mine in search of a pleasant tour a-wheel this summer would communicate with me at their earliest possible convenience. The quicker I can make up the party, the easier my labor in working up the tour will be, and I hope that all wheelmen who read this, and who would like to take the trip as planned above, whether a member of my previous tour or not, will let me know the fact as quickly as possible. A circular, giving a complete description of the tour, will be ready for distribution about the first of May. Kennebeckers, Mooseheaders, and Bluenoses let me hear from you.

Fraternally yours,

F. A. ELWELL.

PORTLAND, ME.

WOODSIDE IN IRELAND.

WOODSIDE is going splendidly, and, with favorable weather at Easter, he should really do some phenomenal times. On Tuesday evening, 29th March, he started to beat the Irish Amateur Record of 2.47 1-5th, for the mile. His first lap was slow (51 secs.), but he quickened afterwards, and his full time was 2.44 3-5th. On the same evening Mecredy rode a mile on his tricycle with a flying start, within 3 min., the first lap only occupying 50 secs., which represents a gait of 2.44 for the mile. On Tuesday, with Woodside as pace-maker, he rode the mile in 2.58 1-5th, beating his previous best of 2.59 3-5th.

* * * * * * *

A high wind prevailed for the rest of the week, but, notwithstanding, on Saturday, April 2d, Woodside determined to see what he could do the five miles in. Quite a crowd of pace-makers and others were in attendance, and, at the start, the grounds presented a lively scene. R. J. Mecredy and G. Stoney, and E. J. O'Reilly clocked. Temple, Morgan, Clifton, Robertson, and Lewis made pace alternately. The first mile (2 47 1-5th) was the quickest, and the fourth (3.3 3-5th), the slowest. During the third mile a lap was covered in 48 secs., which represents a gait equivalent to a mile in 2 min. 38 secs. The following table shows the times and previous bests accomplished on the track: —

Miles.	Woodside's Time.	Previous Best.	Name.
1	2.51 2-5th	2.44 3-5th	W. Woodside.
2	5.40	5.54	R. J. Mecredy.
3	8.46 2-5th	8.54 4-5th	S. Stedman.
4	11.50	11.54 2-5th	R. J. Mecredy.
5	14.47 1-5th	15. 7.4 5th	S. Stedman.

Various circumstances militated against the time. The wind was very strong, the track had not been brushed, some of the pacemakers were inexperienced, and made the pace irregular. Entering the last lap, Woodside bungled the corner and lost some two or three seconds, and he rode over the old portion of the track at the Simmons' Court Road corner which represents nine yards in each mile, or a period of 4 1-5 seconds. Given a calmer evening, the track in good order, and good pacemaking, we consider he could do the five miles under 14.15.

READING PA., NOTES.

THE riding season is now upon us, — likewise the new League suit. That is to say, the description of the latter is. When we will get the suits themselves, no one knows but the contracting tailors, and let him who depends upon a tailor's promises prepare to exercise his soul in patience. The weather, we undoubtedly have, and we are trying to make the most of it. Last Sunday found a majority of the Ariel Wheel Club in their saddles, wheeling down the Oley Pike. The weather was all that could be desired, and we enjoyed it to the utmost, after our long deprivation, but the roads were dreadfully dusty. We have had very little rain throughout this section for some weeks, and the roads show the effects of it. Very little good riding can be looked for until the sweeping Spring rains clean up the surface. We were not over particular about the roads, however, on our first ride, and had but one real drawback — the absence of the two "D's." The club has lost two of its best riders, the Dotter brothers, one of whom, Mr. John C. Dotter, was the club captain. He has gone to Philadelphia, where he slings the agile typewriter, while his brother Mr. Wm. H. Dotter has located in Hagerstown, where he proposes to tinker up the timepieces of those benighted Marylanders who don't know a chronograph from an eight-day-clock. They tell me they have two good things down that way — an enterprising club, and sand-papered roads. The latter, we all know Will is going to enjoy greatly, after our bone-shakers, and the former, if they know a good fellow, and a gentlemanly wheelman when they see him, won't rest until Mr. D. is down on their club list. I can give them a pointer, by the way: — The full nickeled wheel of the new-comer won't bring up the rear-guard on their club runs. Our good wishes go with you, Will and John!

HAGERSTOWN and the Shenandoah Valley roads! We have long been hoping to try them, but so far it has gone no farther than hope. The Ariel Wheel Club had given some intimation of joining the Southern tour, but I believe it is a little too early in the season. I have no doubt it would be a most enjoyable trip, and made in pleasant company, but it is now definitely "off" so far as they are concerned. They propose, instead, to tour during June, by way of Harrisburg, Carlisle, Chambersburg, etc, to Hagerstown and Harper's Ferry; thence by train to Washington and Baltimore, and home via Philadelphia. Can any of our readers give me an idea of the roads and general route details from Harrisburg to Hagerstown? We would esteem it a favor.

SPEAKING of the Southern Tour brings up the League Meet at St. Louis, to which said tour is to form a prologue. How are things generally going to go out there? Will everything be peaceful as a gliding stream, or are they going to have a "monkey and parrot" kind of a time? The road race at Clarksville, is what we would give our chances at half a-dozen League Meets to see. What do you say to a first prize of a silver cup at $300, and a light roadster bicycle at $140? Total $440, with the rest of the prizes in proportion. There 'll be something worth racing for besides glory. Ladish is a whooper, and deserves success, which we hope he may get. The March number of The American Wheelman was alone worth the price of Subscription.

QUITE a number of our local wheelmen have the racing fever, and propose going on the path. Several new light roadster wheels have been ordered in anticipation of the time when their owners see themselves, in imagination, crossing the tape at the head of the procession, amid the applause of the on-looking thousands, and their best girl. Only in imagination, alas! I fear. About one rider in fifty is cut out for a racing man. The other forty-nine have usually neither the nerve nor the physical stamina necessary to make a success of it. And, after all, the greatest enjoyment of cycling comes from road-riding and touring. "You are not obliged to go fast, merely because you can" is an aphorism all wheelmen, but particularly the younger blood and the new accessions, would do well to heed.

THERE is more of a boom in the cycling trade than in any season heretofore, and the demand seems to be almost exclusively for the high grade light roadsters, the very natural result of a rider's finding out that cycling is much more pleasurable when not handicapped by an extra ten or fifteen pounds.

I NEVER would have imagined that the "Owl" knew anything of the mysteries of a jack-pot or a straight flush had I not seen last week's BULLETIN myself. I would recommend to his consideration the following little incident, which occurred in a Western city, which shall be nameless: —

The other morning as the janitor of a bank not very far from the palace opened the door, he was surprised to observe three rather tired-looking citizens seated on the steps, the centre one of whom held a sealed envelope carefully in sight of his companions.

"Want to make a deposit, gentlemen?" asked the cashier, who shortly arrived. "Step inside."

"No, I want to negotiate a loan," said the man with the envelope, "and there ain't a minute to lose, I want $5,000 quicker 'n hades."

"What collaterals have you — Government?" inquired the bank official.

"Government nothin'. I've got something that beats four per cents all hollow. You see, I've been sitting in a poker game across the street, and there 's over $4,000 in the pot. There are three or four pretty strong hands out, and as I've every cent in the centre, the boys have given me thirty minutes to raise a stake on my hand. It 's in this envelope. Just look at it, but don't give it away to these gentlemen. They're in the game, and came along to see that I don't monkey with the cards."

"But my dear sir," said the cashier, who had quietly opened the envelope, and found it to contain four kings and an ace, "this is entirely irregular; we don't lend money on cards."

"But you ain't going to see me raised out on a hand like this?" whispered the pokerist. "These fellows think I'm bluffing, but I can just clean out the whole gang. You see we ain't playing flushes, so I've got 'em right in the door."

"Can't help it, sir. Never heard of such a thing," said the cashier, and the disappointed applicant and friends drifted sadly out. On the corner they met the bank's president, who was himself just from a quiet little all-night game at the Union. They explained the case again, and the next moment the superior officer darted into the bank, seized a bag of twenties and followed the trio. In about ten minutes he returned with the bag and an extra handful of twenties, which he flung on the counter.

"Here, credit $500 to Interest Account," he said to the cashier. "Why, I thought you had more business snap, sir. Ever play poker?"

"No, sir."

"Ah! thought not — thought not. If you did you'd know what good collateral was. Remember that in future, four kings and an ace — flushes barred — are always good in this institution for our entire assets, sir: — our entire assets!"

ST. LOUIS LEAFLETS.

THE summer heat of the past few days has given vegetation a chance, and a couple of weeks hence the rounded hills of the DeSoto road will reveal their woodland beauty in rarest tints of shadowy green. Sickly sentiment, you say, but it is really hard for us to keep our minds away from DeSoto.

THE Meet programme is in the printer's hands. Brewster went up to Chicago last Sunday, and put in some good strokes for it, and immediately on his return called the committee together. The poor committeemen are having a busy time of it, what with two meetings a week, and occasional necessary prods from Brewster, whose vigor is only equalled by his brevity in saying just what he means.

THE Montesano Hotel burned this week. That settles the banquet on this pretty height, in connection with the river excursion; but I understand it had about been decided to spread the feast in the spacious cabin of the steamer "Chouteau," for the sake of convenience. This will not prevent the moonlight stroll in Montesano Park by love-smitten cyclers and maids, however.

WHAT has become of the would-be annihilators of the amateur rule? They have barely time to give the necessary month's notice in the BULLETIN, for the calling of a constitutional convention at the Meet.

THERE is one little point in regard to the Board of Officers' meeting, of Friday, May 20, which will be pleasing to League members. Mr. Kirkpatrick advocates an open meeting, the rank and file having free access to watch the transactions of the Board, and to effectually dispel all star-chamber notions. His wish will doubtless be granted.

THE Post-Dispatch, is leading a monster petition to the municipal assembly, calling for the sprinkling of every street in the city by the government. While limestone dust is one of the things from which our cyclers suffer most, the success of this petition means, for us, a constant sea of shiny mud, which may be ever so welcome from a hygienic standpoint, but puts an effectual stop to the practice of riding to business. Even the asphalt is not exempt from shininess, as a couple of recently damaged wheels and riders can testify. I may add, though, that sprinkling will not be done on the route of the meet parade.

DOWN town riding is on the wane, anyway. It flourishes in the early months, but the heat and sweat of summer take away its pleasure. Hard runs in the hot season, too, are getting into general disfavor, and one Missouri club tough told me it was much pleasanter to dangle one's toothpicks from the big bay window, over the cool asphaltum. I rambled through the domains of the Missouri Bicycle Club the other evening. They are quite extensive and comprise nearly a quarter of a square, having, at the rear of the gymnasium, a spacious yard and tricycle house, with two tennis courts on the north.

WHAT seemed a curious request came down from St. Joseph recently. Cameron, the consul, and an inveterate hustler, wanted pointers on stencil signs. Anybody who has seen St. Joe knows that steep hills are the rule, and levels, the exception. Drop the stencils, Cameron. Useful, no doubt, but in your city they would cost a fortune. The St. Joe boys have equipped club quarters, burning the midnight oil whilst sewing and tacking down carpets, etc. For sociability and industry, this knocks out even a German Kaffee-Klatch.

"A CHIEF consul's lot is not a happy one, happy one," was wafted softly to the ear the other day, as I peeped into John S. Rogers' office. Jack's lot in the so-called position of honor has certainly been a hard one, and I doubt not there are others who wail with him, deservedly or not. Rogers has been obliged to let his road bill, calling for a road tax and abolishing convicts' contracts, go by the board. It was a bold petition, and State senators were generally afraid to touch it. He found a personal and costly lobby at the Capitol necessary, and, having been alone in his work all along, concluded to drop it.

PREPARE yourselves for Clarksville, — physically, vocally, gastronomically, for the citizens up there have appointed a Meet Committee, too. They will take charge of things immediately after the road race, which is expected to be run between the hours of 8 A. M. and 3 P. M. — as much as seven hours — and will make matters hum till the last minute, with receptions, balls, banquets, pyrotechnics, and — a competition between rival brass bands, all blowing at the same time. Fact! The feminine beauty of Pike County will be out in full force, and will transform pretty homes into public havens of rest, and churches into restaurants, for the edification of the cyclists and their friends. The only sharp curve in the Belt road is being enlarged and graded, and the race is now to receive a brilliant racing light in the shape of John S. Prince.

THE illuminated parade, the idea of which was snubbed last year, was this week the object of a formal invitation to the Missouri Division, by the Citizens Committee, and may be held on September 30, in G. A. R. reunion week.

PHŒNIX.

CYCLETS.

WE suppose it will be the proper thing to call Pitman a "rugged old veteran," now.

A TOURNAMENT will be held at Denver, Col., in May, a special feature of which will be a mile race between Percy Stone and W. F. Knapp.

MR. E. W. HODGKINS, secretary of the Boston Bicycle Club, will sail for Europe May 12, to be gone about two months.

IN Wm. Black's last novel, "Sabina Zembra," the hero is a bicycler, but he goes to the bad over horse racing and proves unworthy.

THE American roads are fearful, and no Cripper tricycle would stand them. — News. And yet Americans can beat the English road records.

GEO. B. THAYER, of Hartford, Conn, who made a wheel trip across the continent last year, will publish an account of his journey in book form.

THE Boston Delegation to the League Meet will leave for home on Sunday night after the Meet, and will have to give up seeing the record races.

DENVER will hold a tournament in May, and on June 2 the Hagerstown Club will hold its spring race meeting.

THE St. Louis Meet committee will furnish each League member with a very pretty badge containing the colors of the League.

THERE is on exhibition in the window of Wm. Read & Son a 61-inch New Mail, built for Mr. Small, of the Y. M. C. A. Nothing small about that machine.

SCRANTON gave a royal reception to Stevens. It is worth while to go through what Stevens did, when we consider the reward. But we shan't start out this week.

THE Racing Board published certain extracts from the racing rules a few weeks since, and they have been taken up and gone the rounds of the press as new rules.

THOMAS STEVENS has received a gold badge of honorary membership in the German Cyclists' Union, and a new club in Michigan has been named the Stevens Bicycle Club.

THOMAS STEVENS has lecture dates at Washington, April 30; Auburn, N. Y., April 22; Cleveland, May 4, and others are in negotiation.

IT is announced that Mr. W. C. Lewis, ex-member of the house and club committees of the Massachusetts Bicycle Club, and for the past three years one of its most active workers, has resigned.

THE funeral of Will H. Wetmore, the fancy bicycle rider, was largely attended from his home at Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, by his friends from the neighboring cities. He was a quiet, unassuming gentleman, and was a universal favorite.

OHIO wheelmen take a small League button and solder to the back of it a shirt stud which has a flat top. This they wear in the upper buttonhole of the coat, on the lappel, and thus they have a very neat and not conspicuous League badge.

A WHEELMAN met his death at West Bromwich, London, Eng., March 19. While riding past a steam tram-car, a foot-ball was kicked by some boys under his wheel, and, falling in front of the engine, he was killed on the spot.

BICYCLING beats boating, batting, bathing, bowling, boxing, botanizing, barb-bestriding, by bringing bounding bodies, brawny backs, buoyant brains, and has become the boss banisher of billiousness, blues, and all bothering besetments. 12,1873.

WE had a call last week from F. F. Osborn, of San Francisco. He is one of the old stagers of the Pacific coast, and closely identified with the early days of cycling when Finkler and Strong and Eggers were pushing the wheel out there.

WHEN the L. A. W. train was on the way to the Chicago Meet, a general impression was conveyed along the road that some menagerie was going by. But Eastern wheelmen have grown sedate since that time, and the St. Louis train will be somewhat like a Quaker meeting-house on wheels.

IT is announced that the Ixion Bicycle Club of New York will invite every member of the L. A. W. to attend its reception on April 21. The "Owl" will stand at the door with a mail list to check them off as they come in, and Pitman will supply a dozen rugs for feet-wiping purposes.

THE bill recognizing the bicycle as a vehicle, and according to it all rights and privileges given to other vehicles, has been received by the New York Legislature and referred to the Judiciary Committee. There is good prospect that it will became a law.

THAT visit to the Brewery in St. Louis is a much discussed feature of the Meet. Robert Holm is there and he will see that the boys are well received, When they leave they will probably have something to remind them of Holm.

W. J. MORGAN is doing some tall talking in Ireland, and when he and Woodside get ready, Richard Howell and the English 'cyclists will have plenty of work cut out for them. Woodside has already been doing some fast riding, and on the Ballbridge grounds lowered the Irish record to 2 min. 44 sec. The track was rough, and a brisk breeze prevailed.

JAMES MCINTOSH, the legless wheelman, is still reported from London wheeling along Scotlandwards. The Sporting Life says he has experienced a very rough time of it, what with frost, snow, and thunderstorms. On leaving Darlington, a strong nor'wester was blowing dead on end, and in the gale "Tossie" lost the rubber of his driving-wheel. Monday, though, saw him safe and sound at Durham.

A CORRESPONDENT of the C. T. C. Gazette furnishes the following remedy for weak eyes: Teaspoonful of extract of lead, tablespoonful of brandy, and soft water to fill a common wine bottle, well shaken together. Wash the eyes with linen rag. This strengthens the sight, removes inflammation, and is perfectly safe.

WHO will win the Chicago handicap road race, May 30, is the question of the hour with the Chicagoese. There are so many good men who will start, and such good prizes up, that a great race is assured. The Owls (those who do not ride) will have a special car to take themselves and friends to the finish, which is in front of the Hotel Florence, Pullman, where dinner will be taken after the race.

THE Wheelmen's Record, of Indianapolis, announces a literary competition. For the best humorous sketch, it will give a twenty-dollar medal; for the best touring sketch or cyling story, it will give a twenty-dollar gold medal; for the best cycling poem, it will give a gold medal valued at the same price. A board of competent judges has been appointed to award the prizes.

AT a recent meeting of the East Hartford (Conn.) Wheel Club, committees to take charge of a racing tournament, to be held toward the end of next month, were appointed. A dressing house is to be built in a short time, and the club's quarter-mile track will be widened and put in good condition immediately. The races to be contested at the spring tournament are for pure amateurs, and are intended mainly to encourage new riders.

THE Westfield Wheelmen's Association are making elaborate preparations for the reception it will tender to Governor Ames on April 22. This is the way a local paper enthuses over the affair: "We are glad to note that our citizens are taking hold of this affair with the enthusiasm which it deserves. It is a matter in which Westfield not only has a business interest, but a local pride as well, and we risk nothing in the prediction that the already good name of our goodly town will be still more exalted by the affair of the 22d.

THE fame of that particular brand of lemonade which is brewed at Ballyhooley has spread beyond the confines of our tight little island, and the members of the Irish Cyclist Killarney Touring Party are not alone in their predilection for that grateful and comforting beverage, if we are to judge from the anonymous presentation made to the new Chief Secretary for Ireland. It was mistaken for an "infernal machine" until tasted, when a smile of beatific serenity overspread the countenance of the anxious experimentalist as he pronounced it harmless. [If taken in moderation. — ED.] — Irish Cyclist.

AN English house has put a new tire-band upon the market. It consists of an india-rubber strip furnished at either end with a hook clamped firmly to the rubber. The object is the securing of loose tyres when upon the road, and this certainly fulfils its object completely. The bands are easily applied, and attached in a moment. One end is hitched on to the rim on one side, the band stretched and passed two or three times round the rubber, and finishing up by hitching the other hook in the other side of the rim.

THERE was a great attendance at the Boston Club house, last Saturday evening. It was the last of the series of winter entertainments, and it was very appropriately termed "Fool's night." Each member wore a fool's cap and a false nose. Some of the more fortunate had bladders, with which they soundly belabored the heads of all who came within their reach. The programma included music, games, and supper. It was the jolliest gathering yet assembled at the club house.

THERE is nothing new under the sun. In the city archives of Nuremberg, is kept a velocipede of the year 1683, and in an old book, dated 1703, entitled "Historical Accounts of the Nuremberg Mathematical Artists," occurs this passage: "Stephen Farfiers, of Altdorf, went to work and constructed a little wagon on three wheels, in which, by means of an artistical arrangement, he managed to drive to church without any assistance." Hence the tricycle is only the revival of an old invention. — New York Tribune.

AT the meeting of the Eastern Road Association, held last Friday evening, the following officers were elected: President, G. L. Haynes, of the Somerville club; vice-president, L. H. Frost, of the Chelsea club; secretary-treasurer, W. R. Maxwell, of the Somerville Cycle Club; executive committee, president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, ex-officio E. C. Whitney, W. Kirk Corey, C. L. Smith, P. L. Aubin, and A. G. Collins. Representatives were present at the meeting from the Boston, Somerville, Chelsea, Newton, Brookline, Dorchester, Cambridge, and Suffolk clubs. It was decided to make the initiation fee $5, and the annual dues $10.

THE Australian papers are full of the wonderful bicycle riding of Fred. Wood in the Test Races recently decided there. The Sydney Herald says that "his final dash over the last three hundred yards in the three-mile race will always live in 'cycling story, and many a season will come and go before such another finish is seen. In the ten-mile test race the Englishman once more showed the stuff he was made of. After travelling a little over two miles he had to stop and have the pedal nut tightened up; yet he actually rode on again, despite the loss of two hundred yards, and once more went to the front, after doggedly chasing the leaders for six miles, and, under the circumstances, it was no disgrace for him to be beaten home by a couple of lengths, especially as in the last round he was seized with a violent attack of cramps."

UNDER the inspiring influence of the "pump," many interesting incidents came out of musty memory's chambers last Sunday, and enjoyed the April sunshine. One was about Cola Stone. A half dozen years back, when Cola was waging practically a single-handed warfare for the wheel, he was arrested for something or other at the park by two mounted policemen. They wanted him to walk in, but he would n't, and so they let him ride his wheel to town. He started off at a rattling gait, and presently the horses began to blow, and the policemen told him to ride slower. "I can 't," said Cola. "If I do, I 'll fall off," and so all the way to the station he led his captors at a pace that nearly killed the horses. — Spectator.

IT was once thought a difficult thing to ride a bicycle or tricycle, and yet not only men have learnt easily, but animals of all sorts and descriptions have been trained to do so; for instance, the elephant at the Hippodrome. The very latest novice, however, in the cycling world, is a parrot, that may nightly be seen at the Folies Bergères, in Paris, riding a bicycle. The bird is one of fifteen that belong to an Englishman, who makes them perform in various ways. The other night the audience (such as understood the language) was convulsed by the parrot shrieking out, "Oh, I know I shall!" "What, polly dear?" said the owner, in a tone of inquiry. "Fall off and break my bally neck," skrieked the bird in an agonized tone of voice, and then the curtain fell, not the bird. — Wheeling.

A RATE from Boston to St. Louis has been agreed upon. As now arranged, it is proposed to leave Boston on Tuesday, May 17, arriving at St. Louis on Friday morning, a day before the Meet begins, and return on the following Sunday night. In spite of the Interstate Commerce law, special rates have been secured. Tickets for the round trip can be purchased for one and one third regular single-trip rates, or about $35. The Boston contingent will go over the Fitchburg road, and at Rotterdam Junction will be joined by the New Yorkers, who will also have a special car. Wheelmen's cars will, from then on, be added to this train at Buffalo, Cleveland, and other cities, and it will be scheduled as the special L. A. W. train.

A DESCRIPTION of Jo. Pennell, to seven tenths of the cyclers of this city, would probably be "coals to Newcastle"; those who know him so well can imagine the spectacle presented by him, clad in a mackintosh ulster and his straggling hirsute adornments, mounted on a little thirty-inch safety, working his way over some of the "saft" French or German highways. For the benefit of the few who know him not, be it said that Joseph is long and lean, with a hand that looks as if a good strong grip would cause it to fade utterly and forever, and legs that are exceeded in attenuation only by the spokes of his own machine. He is, withal, a splendid road rider, and the man who beats him on the road has need of good muscle and stay. When Pennell started to ride the bicycle, he was still a student at our Academy of Fine Arts. There were then only eight other bicyclers in Philadelphia, and he has done very much since to build up the sport. — Philadelphia Times.

THE directors of the New Jersey Cycling and Athletic Association held a meeting the other night, and decided to put the Roseville track in training and race-trim immediately. The recent sale of stock for delinquent assessments resulted in the realization of good prices, much of it being bought in by the association. Many of the clubs about New York propose to give race meetings at the Roseville track the coming season. I see that the "Beantown Bikers" have formed an association, similar to our own much-loved Alphabetical." So successful has ours proved in producing fine struggles and promoting fraternal intercourse, that I wonder the idea has not been copied before, all over the country. With such associations at Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Chicago, and Washington, what a splendid crop of road racers would be developed. The Boston association is an accomplished fact. Now, how does this plan strike you? Let our association make up a representative team, composed of the first four men in on Decoration Day, and arrange a road race with the first four Bostonians in. Make it an annual or semi-annual affair, the choice of course alternating. Such a meeting of the rivals of the two districts on the road, would be an event of the greatest moment, and excite an interest second only to that of the big tournaments. Then, later on, when similar associations are formed in different sections, a national road racing League might be formed to bring together representative teams of road scorchers from various parts of the country. And then! But draw your own pictures. — Cor. Wheel.

THE Rudge Bicyclette seems to be in great demand Messrs. Stoddard, Lovering & Co. have been compelled to cable three times to duplicate their stock order.

THE Rudge Roadster, which is one of the specialties of the year, only differs from the Rudge Light Roadster in the matter of wheels and pedals. At the price, $105 for a 50-inch, it should recommend itself to the eyes of all intending purchasers of a good, reliable wheel.

THE many advantages of the Rudge Humber Tandem, in point of ease of running, strongly recommend it to intending purchasers of a double tricycle.

SUNDRIES of all sorts are a specialty of Messrs. Stoddard, Lovering & Co. for 1887, and attention is called to the merits of the Rudge Enamel, Lucas's "King of the Road" Lamps, and everything novel and useful that the trade demands.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

A VIRGINIA RUN.

A RUN will be taken by the Harrisonburg, Va., and Valley wheelmen on May 12, 1887, to the Newmarket Endless Caverns, and a hearty invitation is extended to all wheelmen to join us in our May run. The caverns will be illuminated, and the admission will be fifty cents. Lunch will be served on the grounds by the proprietors of the caverns, at a low price. Now, wheelmen, turn out, and we shall promise a good time to all, and show you one of nature's beautiful wonders. The wheelmen from Harrisonburg will start promptly at 7 A. M. and reach the caverns about 10 A. M.

COMMITTEE.

HARRISONBURG, VA., April 15, 1887.

NEW HAMPSHIRE DIVISION.

THE Manchester Bicycle Club extends an invitation to the New Hampshire division to hold its annual meet in this city July 4, 1887.

CHAS. H. FISH, Secretary.

NEW RACING RULES.

THE Racing Board presents the following new rules and amendments.

Much of the Rule H has been made a part of the amateur rule and the Board has substituted the following for the old rule:

Rule H. — Any cycle club will be allowed, under special sanction of this Board, to pay the entrance fees and reasonable travelling expenses of a member whom they may desire to represent them upon the path; but without this special sanction no competitor in amateur events shall accept from his own club, or from a club promoting sports at which he competes, any payment for his expenses, under penalty of suspension from the track for a time at the discretion of the Board.

A NEW LAP RACE.

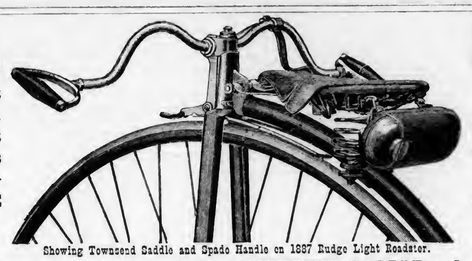
Amended Rule. Rule 28. — In a Lap race the position of the first three men must be taken at the finish of every lap. The first man shall score three points, the second man shall score two points, the third man shall score one point and no others shall score. The contestant who crosses the line first at the finish shall for that lap score six points. The competitor who scores the greatest number of points shall be declared the winner whether he ride the whole distance or not.

TEAM RACE.

Amended Rule. Rule 29. — In a team race the position of the first three men shall be taken at each lap as in a Lap race and the score shall be counted in the same manner. The aggregate scores of the team members shall decide the winning team.

NOVEL RACES.

New Rule. Rule 33. — Any club that places upon its list of events a race of different nomenclature than those given above must print upon the programme of the day a rule to define the race that the officials and the contestants may clearly understand the conditions of the contest.



Rule 33 shall be Rule 34.

TO CLUB SECRETARIES.

THE records in this office, so far as League Clubs go, are in a very unsatisfactory condition, and we desire the co-operation of club secretaries, to make them complete. We have a record book which gives the date when clubs were organized, and the date of their union with the League, but nothing goes to show whether or not they have renewed membership for 1887.

Many secretaries have sent in a long list of names, and allowed it to be taken for granted that they have complied with our rule, which requires the entire membership to unite with us; others have added a statement which is satisfying, but as it is joined to the list we cannot well separate it for filing; others have sent small lists at varying intervals, and given us no hint when they have completed lists. We have received in very few instances a special certificate to the effect that the club has renewed.

Below we give a list of clubs which we have good reason to believe, are League clubs. In many cases we have positive knowledge to this effect, but in others we have to depend upon an inference. There is no record, that we can find, which will give us reason to suppose that there are any other League clubs in America, than those which are given below. Therefore we are going to ask of all secretaries of League clubs to send to this office a postal card, giving the name of their club, the date of organization, and the date of joining the League, and also present address of secretary. We prefer a postal, in order that all certificates may be alike in size.

DIVISION STATISTICS.

As there is no record of the divisions in this office, we will ask each and every secretary-treasurer to furnish us at as early a day as possible with a statement showing the date of formation of his division, and a list of those who have been elected and appointed to office, each year. Once having this data for the past we will endeavor to carry the records along in the future.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

(17) CAN you give the grade of St. James Street, Roxbury; from Washington Street, to the summit? 1415.

(18) WHAT is a good road-book of England, Scotland, and Ireland, with special points of interest? 1415

(19) WILL some one well up in the mechanics of the wheel, give to wheelmen an article on the comparative merits of the crank and the lever action on cycles? 549.

(20) THE papers are announcing the death of Michaux of France, whom they call "the inventor of the bicycle." Was he the inventor or was Lallement? 3896. Ans. Investigation of the most searching kind has shown that Lallement is entitled to the honor.

(21) DOES a man who goes into a road race break any law of the State? 6061. Ans. Answering for certain localities, we will say that he does; we cannot speak for all.

(22) THIS column is a boon to wheelmen. Here is a trouble I have experienced for the last two seasons, to such an extent that my religious objections to profanity have fairly wavered. My direct spokes unscrew in the hub; then they rattle, and one or two will slip out at the inner end. In vain do I tighten and call names; in vain do I put in pieces of matches, cloth, and wire. Will some kind mortal suggest a remedy?

N. L. COLLAMER.

(23) WERE any cycles ridden in America before the Centennial exhibition? If so, by whom and where? 6956.

(24) A MAN has run a foot race with a professional, — can he be an amateur wheelman under any circumstances? 1664. Ans. He must be reinstated as an amateur by those having jurisdiction over the sport in which he lost his status. In the present instance, the N. A. A. A. A. has jurisdiction. He must go to them and get reinstated as an amateur. Then, being an amateur athlete, the League will accept him as an amateur wheelmen.

(25) DOES the League place any restrictions on the wearing of the League badge? 1103. Ans. Yes. No one but a member of the League is allowed to wear the badge that the League has adopted. It is of silver and in design like the gold one sold by Mr. Lamson. We don't know that a standard League badge was ever made or worn. The gold badge is bought and sold just as a Masonic pin is, and it can be worn by any one.

(26) TELL 9392 not to mind it if he does perspire. It will do him good. If he was alarmed because he didn't sweat I would sympathize with him. Put a piece of flannel on the sweat band of your hat where it comes against the forehead, and it will absorb the perspiration of the head and keep the water out of your eyes.

H. C.

(27) NO. 9392, in the BULLETIN of April 15, propounds a query which goes to the hearts of hundreds, aye thousands of riders, viz., why do we perspire? I have the same difficulty, I sweat streams. It rims off my nose and chin, fills my eyes and mouth, and makes little rivers down my chest and back inside my flannel shirt! Experience, observation, and experiment have taught me that we poor mortals so afflicted are incurable — we "are built that way." Unlike "9392" I weigh but 120 pounds but this chronic ailment affects me just the same. While I have found no complete cure, I have discovered what will lessen the difficulty: to drink less. Liquid taken into the stomach in ordinary quantities passes off in the natural manner when the imbibant resorts to no unusual exercise. If such violent exercise as road riding is had, and at the same time the amount of liquid drank is trebled (as is usually the case, for riding produces thirst), the system becomes supercharged and the result is heavy perspiration. While this is disagreeable it is cooling, for "dry" riders frequently complain of the excessive heat, while I am comparatively cool — though wringing wet. Milk produces the same result as water, and is very heating in addition. It should be rigorously avoided. If the rider can chew gum without suffering wind colic, he will find great relief. Also roll up your sleeves and loosen your shirt at the neck.

N. L. COLLAMER.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicant will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their ticket to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication you may look for your ticket.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

SEE HERE, GENTLEMEN!

THE RECORD CLAIMED BY THE ABOVE COMPANY REALLY BELONGS TO THE AMERICAN CHAMPION.

It is true that SCHOCK started on their wheel, but it BROKE DOWN, and he rode two thirds of the distance on the CHAMPION.

How the above Company can claim that Minneapolis record of 1,405 miles, when they are well aware it is a FALSE claim, and mean fair, is beyond our comprehension.

THE MANHATTAN
LIFE * INSURANCE * COMPANY, OF NEW YORK,

WAS ORGANIZED IN 1850, AND HAS ACCUMULATED

Assets of over $11,000,000, with a Net Surplus over all Liabilities of $2,300,000, by the valuation of the New York Insurance Department.

POINTS FOR AN INSURER TO CONSIDER.

AN ORDINARY LIFE INSURANCE POLICY Provides an estate for your dependents after your death free from the claims of creditors.

AN ORDINARY ENDOWMENT POLICY Provides for death, and also for one's advancing years, but at a heavy outlay.

THE MANHATTAN'S NEW PLAN Offers both advantages combined in one, and at a very much reduced cost. This new policy is superior to ordinary Life Insurance, because you need not "die to win." Superior to ordinary Endowment Insurance, because much less expensive.

SUPERIOR TO "TONTINE" INSURANCE, First. — Because the results are not estimated, but fixed in a positive contract. Second. — Because, after three years, there is no forfeiture of payments on discontinuance of the policy, a Cash or Paid-up value being guaranteed by the New York law. Business men appreciate the advantages of this new form of insurance, and are largely investing in it, because, — The annual deposit is practically SAVED, while it secures needed insurance during a designated period.

L. A. W. TABLE.

Made of Georgia Mahogany.

Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.

L. A. W. SYMBOL,

Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered. Read what they say of it:

The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.

(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.

The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.

(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.

Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,

(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.

There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.— Thomasville Enterprsie.

Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W. member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

PRICE $2.50. When five or more are shipped to one address, the freight will be just one-fifth of what it would be on shipment of one. Address

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training, or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.

What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly frst grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

A JOURNAL DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF CYCLING IN AMERICA

PUBLISHED WEEKLY:

$1.00 A YEAR. 3 CENTS PER COPY. | BOSTON, APRIL 29, 1887. | VOL. IV. No. 17. WHOLE NUMBER, 96.

Columbia Axioms.

A Recapitulation of Facts—Not Mere Claims.

1. The tenth year in the manufacture of American machines, for American riders, upon American roads.

2. The experience resulting from devoting the whole of that time to the manufacture of higher grade bicycles.

3. The world over, in the making of everything, experience and the most valuable results go together.

4. Perfection is claimed by many. The Pope Mfg. Co. does not claim it, for it does not exist.

5. The present Columbias are the result of these years of patience, expenditure of money, scientific experiment, and mechanical skill.

6. With these advantages, it is simply natural that the Columbias should be considered, by the majority of American wheelmen who ride higher grade machines, as the best machines for all-around or special use.

7. The Columbia is the only machine which has been ridden around the world.

8. It has been ridden the greatest distance within the hour.

9. It has been pedalled across the continent many times.

10. Its riders hold the World's Records from one quarter to twenty-four miles, inclusive.

11. It requires the most thoroughly-made machine to withstand the extreme test of fancy riding. Fully ninety per cent of all the fancy riders in America ride Columbias.

12. There was never a Columbia which has been discarded because it was worn out.

13. It costs a good round sum to make the Columbias; consequently, the Columbias sell for a good price. The nature of trade does not admit of much for little.

14. In every Columbia is the full worth of the money paid for it.

15. When the majority of American riders of higher grade machines purchase and ride Columbias, and continue to ride Columbias, it is fair to presume that prices and machines are considered satisfactory.

16. The Pope Mfg. Co. is the largest cycle house in the world, with the best equipped factory, and ought to be able to manufacture first-class cycles at lower prices, consistent with intrinsic value, than can be produced by any other house.

17. The Company warrants all of its productions, and backs that guaranty by its reputation as a manufacturer, and its business standing.

18. That large army of riders of Columbia machines, who have ridden them for years, and are riding them now, is a moving impressive testimonial of the excellence of the Columbias.

19. An examination of Columbias by prospective wheelmen must result in advantage.

20. If one is not familiar with mechanical construction, the advice of a mechanical expert is invaluable in the selection of a machine.

21. The Columbias have been over and over again tested by expert engineers, and the Pope Mfg. Co. has always urged the most thorough inspection.

22. The Pope Mfg. Co. rests the question (if there is any question) of the superiority of the Columbia bicycles and tricycles with the opinion of any unprejudiced mechanical expert and engineer of recognized standing.

23. The purchasers of Columbias obtain the most for their money. 'T is an old and true saying, "The best is the cheapest."

There is a Transparent Moral Here; It Need Not Be Pointed Out.

Price, 50-Inch - - - - - - - - - $105.00

Complete, with SPADE HANDLES and TOWNSEND SADDLE.

Reasons WHY you should buy this Wheel:

First. It contains more valuable features than many wheels that sell for $15 higher.

Second. It is fitted with RUDGE BALL BEARINGS to both wheels, ADJUSTABLE SPADE HANDLES, and TOWNSEND SADDLE.

Third. It differs only from the Rudge Light Roadster in the construction of the wheels.

Fourth. At the price, — $105, — it is better than any second-hand wheel on the market.

Fifth. To see it is to try it, and to try it is to buy it.

THE remarks of the "Owl" in our last issue, relative to the "tough" element in cycling circles, suggest that the L. A. W. has a chance for missionary work within its own borders. There is no disguising the fact that wheelmen sometimes forget that they are gentlemen, and indulge in conduct which brings scandal upon the fraternity. One hotel in the vicinity of a large city has suffered so much at the hands of wheelmen that the proprietors do all that they can to discourage the patronage of riders, and along the North Shore of Massachusetts there are many places where hotel men dislike to see wheelmen under their roofs. One chief consul publicly reprimanded a party of wheelmen last year for disorderly conduct at a hotel. Such a state of things will soon bring the wheel into contempt, and it may not be wasted energy if League officials turn some attention to the discipline of riders who disgrace themselves in the way we have suggested. If the League could successfully put a stop to horse-play and the destruction of property at hotels it would go a long way towards commending itself to many in the community who still look askance at wheels and wheelmen.

ONE other thing in the same line of thought suggests itself, and that is, the question of Sunday riding. We are among those who believe it no wrong to take a quiet ride on Sunday, and we often go upon the road; but we protest against the action of those who make themselves offensive to those who regard the day as sacred. We do not believe the League should step in to interfere with a man's exercise of the fullest liberty in the direction of the employment of Sunday in a quiet way, but we do believe that a strong moral force should be set at work to restrain those who, by their noisy and boisterous conduct, shock the feelings of many worthy people.

WE have had a very large number of letters from friends who are anxious to know if the League is really in need of a popular subscription. We say no, decidedly. There are other ways in which the League can be benefited at this time, and the contribution box will not be passed around except as a last resort. We are sending out checks to the divisions as fast as we can get the money in. Many divisions have been paid in full, and others have been sent money on account. The division officials have been very patient with us, and we appreciate this consideration. We hope, ere long, to report that we are out of the sea of debt that nearly engulfed us.

MASSACHUSETTS has taken a step which may furnish an example to other States. In the police Court at Haverhill, H. N. Merrill, justice, the town of Bradford was fined $100 and costs for neglecting to keep the "Joel Road," so called, in proper repair, the amount to be expended upon the road. Wheelmen might well look up the laws, and see that they are enforced, after the example given above.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

NOW that the Meet Committee has disposed of its programme work, finance is the next interesting problem, and on this trifling matter, which can easily be settled in a few days if gone about in the right way, everything will depend. Two thirds of the required amount is already in hand. Now for the final round-up, and then the various novel and expensive plans which have been discussed, can be arranged in a jiffy and completed in time to be put on the shelf to ripen, for a few days prior to the absorbing event.

To cities undertaking subscription work in the future, I would suggest the plan recently followed here, when nearly $100,000 was raised in a single day for the G. A. R. Make your finance committee a mammoth affair, having numerous sub-committees to wait on each branch of trade separately, if possible. Then go in with a vim, get two or three good "subs" on each list, and you will find smooth sailing. No business man likes to see another in his own trade go him one better, and so competition gets the best of old fogyism, when all else fails.

I BELIEVE the vexing question of reduced rates to the Meet is practically settled in our favor, and understand the programme, now nearly ready for distribution, will so state. The reception committee continues to secure accommodations at the cycling headquarters. Ye editor's retreat at the Lindell is already engaged, and the space at this hotel is rapidly filling up, so much so that the committee have made a contract with the Hotel Barnum, across the way, which is conducted on the European plan, and is somewhat less expensive.

SO Daisie fears our roads and grades will be too much for the ladies. Not at all, and if Daisie will but come and bring a large contingent of the fair sex with her, your bashful correspondent will willingly undergo a court-martial and stand convicted as a vile prevaricator, if they do not leave us fully satisfied. The wife of one of our prominent legal lights is frequently seen on the granite, riding a very light North Mail, and the long coasts and gentle up-grades of our asphalt system, connecting with Lindell Boulevard, and Forest Park, will suit the most delicate riders.

REGARDING the abandonment of the League races, it was decided at the very start that the races would be impracticable, and in many respects undesirable. The matter again came up last week, and to satisfy all interested, a special committee at once called upon the president of the Fair Grounds Association, whose grounds contain the only track suitable for good cycle racing, as well as the well-known board track. The very high terms named, and the fact that the races could not be postponed in case of rain, in a two-day Meet, made the prospect of financial loss too probable, and the races are off. It is doubtful whether the championships would have been at all interesting, and the afternoon run of the parks and cycling haunts, with individual runs here and there, will be more pleasing to home and visiting wheelmen alike. Don't forget that the prelude to this general run will be in the shape of a dinner in Forest Park, à la picnic — a regular feast under the forest trees.

THE confab had with the fair grounds people may result in the raising of the embargo now resting upon cyclists, and the throwing open of the Zoological Gardens, with its gravel drives, during the Meet at least.

ARE these letters too meet-y to be meaty? I can only reply that that is what I am here for, and you shall know all about this Meet if you never hear of another. Beside, there 's little else to talk about. I learn that the committee on parade has been forging ahead with its work, and is arranging to do away with slimy streets on the morning of the parade. The hall for the board and business meetings has not yet been selected, but the choice now lies between the Exposition building and Memorial Hall — both magnificent for the purpose, the latter containing a fine collection of art works. Your sprightly contemporary, the Wheelmen's Record, is figuring on placing a news stand in the meeting hall, aiming to give the wheelmen something mirthful to read during recesses, in its burlesque account of the Meet. The record people have been at work gathering local data for the production, which, I am informed, will be all fun and no venom.

A MEETING of the Division, not city riders alone, is called by C. C. Rogers at the Lindell next Tuesday, when the invitation of the citizens' committee to hold another illuminated parade in September will be talked over. Considering the comparatively small number of our fraternity in this State, our wheelmen are certainly the busiest in the country, and I doubt not they will accept this last flattering offer, which is embellished with a broad hint that all the funds necessary to make the parade this time a surpassing spectacle will be appropriated. Besides this, the citizens have tendered full illumination of the thoroughfares and a prominent place among the novelties of G. A. R. week, suggesting Friday, Sept. 30, as the most suitable night.

WIND and rain have treated this section to some startling exhibitions the past week. Roads are O K to-night, and a tough run called for to-morrow.

PHŒNIX.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THE past two weeks have been most uneventful, the unusual interest in the election having given way to a state of lethargy. The Stevens lecture was a great success, in spite of our friend, the "Owl's" adverse criticism. The turn out of wheelmen was unparalelled, and the different uniforms presented a remarkably attractive appearance, viewed from the boxes or galleries. The "hand-shake" at the club-house of the Brooklyn's was more than a success in point of numbers, the rooms being uncomfortably crowded for over an hour. When the crowd thinned out sufficiently to allow freedom of access, a collation was spread in the wheelroom, which was enjoyed by those remaining.

Messrs. Schwallbach and Willdigg have issued very attractive cards of invitation to their opening reception, which occurs on Saturday evening. The guests are promised an entertainment, presumedly of the var ety kind, and refreshments, which latter feature, I doubt not, will be much enjoyed by all present. The "only" Kellum is negotiating with the Pope Manufacturing Company for that monstrous wheel that Beckwith used to ride, and has it standing in the middle of the wheelroom floor at the Brooklyn House, where it attracts much attention.

The Long Island's are making strenuous efforts to get Pettus and his followers, who resigned from the K. C. W., into their fold. There is a rumor, however, that Pettus would like to start a new club on business principles, though this last is probably untrue, as Pettus, like all thoroughbreds, appreciates the fact that there are now too many clubs in this city.

Barkman, of the Booklyns, is in Philadelphia, superintending the printing and binding of the new New York Road-Book, which is to be out just as soon as the printers and binders can do the work. Everything is rushing, and May 1 will, we think, see it finished. He intends returning next Saturday by wheel, and the Brooklyns propose getting up a party to meet him at Somerville, whence all parties will wheel to New York on Sunday. Some of the members of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club will participate in this trip.

The large map of the State of New York, which it was proposed to issue with the Road-Book, will be delayed for a time, but if everything turns out as well as is expected, it will be issued in a month or two, and members will lose nothing by the delay, as it will render certain improvements possible. The book, as now issued, will contain seven maps of small size, but very comprehensive and carefully drawn, and these will in a measure answer for all immediate demands.

The country roads hereabouts are getting in tolerable good condition, and long runs are now in order. BON.

HERE AND THERE.

FOOLS and wheels seem to take kindly to each other. Recently, a Frenchman, named Fazzi, started on a trip from Shields to London, wheeling a coffin fixed on tricycle wheels. The good sense of the people, however, prevented him finishing his journey, by a laudable effort on their part to make him a fit tenant of the coffin.

EDITOR PRIAL, of the Wheel, has abjured the single blessedness of membership in the great unwashed, and cast his lot with the fortunes of the Ixions.

THE recent introduction, by the West, of the term "tough" as a complimentary epithet for cyclers, meets with much disfavor in the East. A "tough" is to cycling what a tea store chromo is to a painting by Meissonier.

MESSRS. A. G. SPALDING, finding their large establishment in lower Broadway too small to meet the requirements of their trade, have taken uptown quarters in 23d Street, opposite the 5th Avenue Hotel. A convenience which cyclists will appreciate.

A DRESS reform craze has struck the students of Wabash College, at Crawfordsville, Indiana, and they are going to introduce knee breeches or die, so they say. The result of these young gentlemen attempting to revolutionize the elongated trouserings of the nineteenth century man, can easily be foretold by those who are pioneers in cycling. We tried it, and we, like other men, still wear long breeches.

I AM indebted to a cycling paper in Oregon, the information that William A. Rowe is but 6 feet 9 3-4 inches high. William must have made up his mind to seek a record in a new direction since I met him last summer.

THE Ixions new uniform is a brilliant combination of gray cloth and silver trimmings, and is the nearest approach to a uniform, pure and simple, shown by any of our city clubs.

A PROMINENT rider is out with a pamphlet, entitled "Fifteen Ways to Avoid a Header," to which I append the sixteenth, — ride a Rover-typed wheel.

THE Park Department now has control of 72d and 110th streets, under the new law, and propose to improve same in a way beneficial to wheelmen. The west-side elevated station at 72d street will be removed to 73d street, thereby making the first-named street a magnificent drive, connecting Central Park with Riverside Drive. The centre of the street will be laid out in flower beds, so that wheelmen can take headers there literally upon beds of roses.

THE recent appeal of the American Wheelman for financial aid for the L. A. W., reminds me of an experience I had in the same direction. During treasurer W. V. Gilman's last term of office, we had a row something like the recent one, though of course it was n't as big; but then, you see, we did n't have over one-third as many members as now. Anyhow, we fought just as hard, and while busy fighting, the "sinews of war" ran low, and one day we awoke to the fact that we were, as an organization, broke, dead broke, so I started collecting, and after issuing a pathetic appeal, I got just $100. My first reply was from Geo. R. Bidwell, and my next from E. M. Aaron, the latter then just an ordinary unofficial member. My largest subscription was from Col. Pope, $50, just one half of the amount contributed by the balance of the 2500 members. L. A. W. members are full of enthuse and talk, but utterly void of cash and practical work, yet these same people, then as now, howl about Col. Pope controlling the L. A. W. I, for one, wish that he did. He might run it as an advertising scheme, which I doubt, but one thing certain, he would run it upon a business and paying basis, that's sure, and we would be bound to be the gainers by any change in that direction.

HAD the cycling scribbler of the Globe, who refers to me as the "pun-work-over correspondent," whatever that means, been born at the time and in the place of the late lamented Mr. George Washington, the story of "Wash and the little hatchet" would never have been written. He might have done the chopping all well enough, but the telling of the affair truthfully would have downed him. The Bard of Avon immortalized such men as he of the Globe, and Hillier, when he referred to their wives as the "Merry Wives of Wind, sir." This may be a pun-worked over, my esteemed friend of the Globe, but it's a fact, nevertheless.

A FRIEND of mine recently submitted to me the proof sheets of a new cycling paper that he expected to issue, and asked me to pass an opinion upon its probable success. After reading it all over, I returned it to him with the information it could not fail to be the most miserable failure. He had violated the first principles of cycling journalism, which is followed by every wheeling paper from ice-bound Russia to golden California, — he had n't mentioned Kennedy-Child's name.

A HUNDRED years ago it is said that passengers had to be carried across the streets of New York, because the mud was so deep. Our streets have been improved though, since then. Now the mud is so deep you can't get across at all.

A NEW scheme hails from Washington, and is nothing less than the first appearance of the cycling "drummer." The gentleman who is the originator of this idea, intends to do his travelling on a bicycle, visiting wheelmen and agents, and keeping his samples shipped ahead of him. He will push sundries almost entirely. If the plan be not a success for the manufacturers, it cannot fail of being so to the "drummer." He will demand $2.50 per week for each article he exhibits, and when sales are made through him, five per cent of the bill on wholesale, and twenty per cent upon retail prices. The balance, if any, will go to the manufacturer.

A FRENCH postal-card was recently received at the New York post office, addressed to "the principal bicycle manufacturer in America." The postal authorities at once turned it over to the Pope Manufacturing Company, in Warren street.

THE crop of new riders, notwithstanding the backward season, is larger by many riders than ever before. The city clubs should get out their landing nets, and secure a share of this harvest. Some idea of the numbers of unattached who have no place for wheel storage at home, and are hence prone to join clubs, may be gained from the fact that at Bidwell's alone over one hundred and fifty riders store their wheels.

THE OWL.

THE LEAGUE TOUR.

PUBLIC CIRCULAR NO. 4.

ADVICES that have been received announce a change of title of this Tour to the "National League Tour of 1887" instead of the Southern Tour, hence the above caption.

I am seriously apprehensive. April showers have not yet come, and if a long rain sets in at or before the time of starting, the Tour may be sadly affected. I call for suggestions as to what course could best be pursued in that event

It should be distinctly understood that parties desiring to participate in the Tour for part of its length, must make arrangements with the Marshal: otherwise, they cannot procure hotel accommodations and baggage transportation at our reduced rates.

The prospectus is out, and will be sent on application. Club Secretaries receiving a copy are requested to post it in the club rooms where members will have ample opportunitiy for reading it. For this purpose a number of copies have been provided with suspension eyes.

Several inquiries relative to the style of dress suit that will be worn, have been received. In answer to these, it might be stated that the swallow-tail dress coat, full-dress vest, black doeskin knee pants, and black silk stockings with low quarter patent leathers, would be by far the most appropriate costume; though of course tourists are at liberty to use their own discretion. Several will wear the above.

The following is a completed and corrected list of roadmasters: —

J. A. Wells, Philadelphia, Pa.
Philadelphia to Paoli.
S. M. Mallalieu, Coatsville, Pa.
Paoli to Coatesville.
J. M. Boyd, Coatesville, Pa.
Coatesville to Lancaster.
S. B. Downey, Lancaster, Pa.
Lancaster to York.
J. E. Small, Lancaster, Pa.
York to Gettysburg.
G. E. Jacobs, Gettysburg, Pa.
Gettysburg to Hagerstown.
Geo. F. Updegraff, Hagerstown, Md.
Hagerstown to Martinsburg.
A. L. Martin, Martinsburg, W. Va.
Martinsburg to Winchester.
L. N. Barton, Winchester, Va.
Winchester to Newmarket.
J. L. Long, Harrisonburg, Va.
New Market to Harrisonburg.
P. S. Thomas, Harrisonburg, Va.
Harrisonburg to Staunton.

Following is the balance of the prospectus: — will please all. After starting from each point, when the captain with the local roadmaster leads off, and a general line in twos has been maintained to the outskirts of the town, the riders may set the pace to suit themselves, and choose their own companions, riding in twos, threes, or half dozens, according as fancy and friendship may dictate. No tourist will, however, be permitted to ride in front of the captain, nor drop behind the marshal, who will ride at the rear with the bugler. Upon reaching the suburbs of the next stopping-place the captain will dismount, the others following suit as they come up to him, and the march will be resumed by twos, as above, when the party is assembled. This line will be maintained until the local hotel or headquarters are reached, when a dismount will be ordered.

TOURISTS' MAIL

may be forwarded to them so as to reach Gettysburg not later than the 12th; New Market, the 15th; and Staunton the 17th.

RAILROAD FARES

from Washington to Philadelphia are $5.00; Baltimore to Philadelphia, $3.50; Staunton to Washington, $5.00; to Baltimore, $6.20; to Philadelphia, $9. The fare from Staunton to St. Louis is $16.50. Arrangements are being made to secure reduced rates for the round trip Staunton to St. Louis, but the Inter-State Commerce Bill question has prevented a decision of the matter up to date. Northern and Eastern wheelmen contemplating visiting the League Meet are especially invited to take in the tour for its entire length, and rail it to St. Louis at its conclusion.

CLOTHING.

Tourists are requested to wear the regulation League uniform In addition, however, a pair of dark grey jersey knickerbockers and a flannel shirt of the same color would be desirable for wear during the day's riding, but it is expected that each rider will assume his regular bike suit every evening for appearances' sake. As to there need be no close management. The only restriction put upon the tourists is that they will be allowed but one piece of baggage each, preferably a valise. Nothing will need be carried on the wheel, as baggage will be transported daily from one lodging place to the next, and every one will have access to his valise from before supper each evening until breakfast time next morning. In case extra pieces of baggage are carried, a slight additional expense will accrue. It would be advisable for tourists to carry a dress suit in their valises, as occasions will probably arise when it would be desirable to use it. Tourists who contemplate going on to St. Louis from Staunton should send change of linen, extras, additional clothing, etc., by express to the last-named place in a separate valise, and upon arrival there one valise can be expressed back home with soiled linen and clothing not desired for further use. This is necessary, since a full outfit for the entire journey, including the trip to St Louis, would require extra expense for conveyance on the tour, and it is certainly desirable to make a change of linen at some point.

ENTERTAINMENTS, ETC.

Along the route, the several clubs at the towns through which we shall pass will vie with each other in their efforts to make us welcome and our short stay with them pleasant. Many will ride some distance with us, and we would cheerfully pay their meals and lodgings for their company, but close calculations that have been made on expenses will render this impossible Ride with us if you will, however; we will be glad to have you, no matter how short a distance, and shall part company reluctantly, but join us financially if you can, and make arrangements with the undersigned for your share. The nature and extent of the hospitalities to be extended will be published from time to time in the BULLETIN.

of the party will be taken at several points, and may be obtained from the marshal at the conclusion of the tour. A photographic tourist will also accompany us, and secure pictures of numerous points of beauty and interest en route. It would be well for each tourist to provide himself, in addition to other necessities, with a lock and chain, for obvious use while away from his wheel.

THE START

will be made Tuesday morning, May 10, at nine A. M., sharp, from the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club House, corner Girard avenue and 40th street, Philadelphia. The total amount of per capita expense, less deposit already paid, must be in the marshal's hands not later than the evening before. If tourists will arrive on trains the morning of the 10th, they must send their money ahead to the marshal's headquarters at the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club House, in order that it may be deposited in bank before starting and accounts arranged. This is imperative. The as published in the "League Hand-Book" (to be procured of the secretary-editor; four cents), will be used exclusively on the tour for all commands issued. Tourists should study this code and commit the calls to memory.

The time for action grows short, and the list of vacancies on the roll is decreasing. All those who contemplate joining the tour are advised to communicate with the undersigned at once. In order to correct an erroneous impression which has taken root in the minds of some, it may be well to state that the tourists will not be required or even expected to go on to St. Louis from Staunton. They will be asked, even urged, to do so, and reduced rates for the trip will be offered if it is possible to secure them, but the tour proper ends at Staunton. For those who do not care to go West, a bicycle meet has been arranged to be held at Washington, March 26, at which time the national drill will be in progress. Eastern-bound wheelmen, returning from St. Louis, could also wisely make arrangements to take in the drill and meet on their way home.

will be cheerfully furnished upon request. The many kind and enthusiastic letters received seem already to indicate that there will be from twenty to thirty men on the tour. A list of tourists, also giving the route, will be printed before starting, and passed to each participant for reference.

I have advices from Harrisonburg that the club about to be formed there will entertain us at that point, not by giving a "Corn Festival" as the M. E. Church did at the date of the passage of last year's tour, to bleed wheelmen of their wealth through the medium of the valley beauties, but royally and free of charge. Virginia hospitality will manifest itself in earnest, untrammelled by the greed of religious enterprise — worthy in its way, though bad on pocketbooks.

Lancaster will also "do us proud." The boys are not very strong numerically, and they won't have much of a chance, because we will only stop there for dinner, but they will do what they can to make us welcome.

Hagerstown is also expected to do something; though at this writing, it is not known what.

In all probability, this is the last public circular that will be issued through these columns. The party is rapidly making up, and though not too large yet to handle, is of sufficient size to assure the success of the tour. To all those who have written me and are hesitating, and to all others who can possibly go, even for a part of the distance, I issue a last call to "join us." There is but little time in which to do this, so write at once. Take in the whole trip if you can (it is only eight days); but if not, state distance going, and I will estimate your share of expense. As stated above, all must deposit. The reason is obvious: it is in this manner only that the size of the party can be kept within the limits of the hotels' accommodating facilities. Today, I could accept a dozen more — a week from now, probably not over six or seven; so speak quick.

Have your Outing while you may,
Mount your wheel and be away,
In the saddle bl the and gay
Seeds of health are sowed.

Jolly fellows at your side,
Not a wish that is denied;
Laughing, joking as you ride
O'er the country road.

Fraternally, N. L. COLLAMER,
Marshal.

ST. CLOUD BUILDING, Washington, D. C.

LEAGUE MEET.

THE programme of the League Meet will be out about the first week in May, which will give everybody ample time to get thoroughly informed as to the details of the two days' proceedings. Every member of the L. A. W. will have a copy mailed him as soon as they are issued, so don't bother about writing ahead for one. The exact date of mailing will be announced later.

THE membership will be pleased to learn that the steamer Chas. P. Chouteau, the largest as well as the most famous on the Mississippi, has been formally secured for the big moonlight excursion down the river to Montesano Springs Friday night of the Meet. The accommodations this grand boat can offer for promenading, dancing, and a general reunion activity are so spacious that the trip will be made the more enjoyable the larger the party of excursionists.

The excursion will be the object point of the day's runs. The run from De Soto, for which cars will be taken early in the morning, will catch the steamboat at Montesano. The run leaving the Missouri clubhouse at 1 P. M. will be down the De Soto road to the Springs, where the athletic overlanders will join the boat people and float back to the city on the silvery sheen of the river. These two runs, one coming half way up from De Soto, and the other going half way down, will give everybody a chance to see some portion of this celebrated highway. Some of the elevated coasts will prove it to be a most entrancing "high" way.

The route of the parade on Saturday will take the shining wheels through the best business and residence portions of the city. Starting at Twentieth Street, the line will go to within three blocks of the river, and will thus pass along the busiest thoroughfares. This portion of the parade will be as enjoyable to the riders as to the spectators, as the square granite is never hard to ride except when sprinkled, and Professor Stone, Chairman of the Parade Committee, has arranged with the city authorities so that there will be no sprinkling that day along the route until after the parade has passed. This favor was extended by the authorities last fall for the illuminated night parade, and it will be remembered that there was not a break in the line. At Fourteenth Street the parade will return to the asphalt, and on this smooth surface will move along to Thirty-Sixth Street, Grand Avenue, where the beautiful Lindell boulevard will be reached, affording over a mile of delightful riding through the country to Forest Park. This is the second largest park in America, and is distinguished by the fact that it shades off into genuine woods and wild scenery. The elegant gravelled drives, the inspiring coasts, and the lovely levels will gladden every cycler's heart, and wreathe his face in smiles in preparation for the photograph, which will be taken at the park immediately after the paraders have toyed sufficiently with a picnic lunch, which will be spread in some famous corner of the park, possibly near the head-worn slopes of "Nigger Hill," or within sight of the renowned pump.

The banquet in the evening at the Lindell will be supplied with the best oratory in the market, contributed by the Mayor, the "City Fathers," and leading lights of all professions. The relation of the wheel to all the pursuits of human life will be graphically and rhetorically set forth around one of the largest banqueting boards that have ever mingled their savory odors with cycling reminiscenses.

Keep your eye open for the Meet programme, and when it dawns upon your horizon get up and prepare to dress for a trip to the 1887 Meet.

PRESS COMMITTEE.

April 21, 1887.

BUFFALO.

THE Buffalo Bicycle Club is going to build a clubhouse! Yes, we've actually been and gone and — not done it, but decided to do it!

A COMMITTEE of the Board of Trustees had been "passing round the hat" for some days, and the response was so encouraging that a special meeting of the club was called for April 18, and voted to go ahead. The location is not yet definitely decided upon, but the plans are drawn, and I hope to be able to give you full particulars soon. We have got to move out of our present quarters May 1, and we shall store our furniture, etc., until the new house is ready for occupation, which we hope will be about October 1. Meanwhile, we have reason to believe that the certainty of a house actually owned by the club will draw many new members.

JERSEY.

THE Nominating Committee having left undone none of those things it should have done, the lack of opposition has robbed the League election in this State of all interest. The unanimous election of Dr. J. H. Cooley, of Plainfield, as chief consul, and the rest of the ticket being a question merely of size of vote, we have not taken any pains to inquire as to the result.

WHEELMEN and dealers utter the universal prophecy that this will be the biggest in the history of cycling, and the evidences seem to justify the prediction. I hear of new clubs, of increasing membership in the old ones, of road and track races to come, and of a rush of orders for new wheels. Large as our League membership is, the number of lambs without the fold is greater than is consistent with earnest and well-directed missionary work. It is to be hoped that Dr. Cooley will profit by the example and organized system of recruiting established by the energetic Chief Consul of New York.

UP in Somerville the Somerset Wheelmen have been formally organized, with twenty-one members, and a resolution to be enrolled as a League club to start with. It promises to be a live one too, and to do much for the wheel in that section of the State. Young as they are, they are to have a club house, it being their intention to rent a cottage for that purpose. Medals have been offered for the first one covering 500 miles, and for the largest year's mileage, and arrangements are being made for road races.

CAPTAINS of clubs are arranging their programme of the season's runs. The Orange Wanderers will take a spin to Pine Brook on May 7, and to Morristown on July 4. The Elizabeth Wheelmen will scour the surrounding country on Wednesdays as of yore, and Dr. Johnson and his merry crowd of Hudson County wheelers will spread themselves over the face of nature and make things generally joyous with the unvarying regularity of former years. On Decoration Day, the Trenton Bicycle Club will visit the Oranges en masse and in the afternoon be on the Irvington-Milburn road to witness the big team race.

THE coming semi-annual "scorch" of the Team Road Racing Association is the main topic of conversation at the clubs The Elizabeth, Union County, and Rutherford Wheelmen will battle for the cup, and very probably the Hudson County and Orange men. The Harlems and Citizens will be in the fight for New York, and Brooklyn and Ilderan will try to down Kings County. From thirty-two to forty starters are thus assured, the biggest field that ever toed the scratch in this county. The victory of Harry Hall on a Star last fall, gave the little-wheel-front machine such a boom in these parts that the "coffee mills" will be well represented in the race. Valentine, however, refuses to forswear the crank and will come very near turning the tables on Harry. And there are other men, old racers and new, of whom great things are predicted.

At the Roseville track, the work of getting things in shape for the flyers is progressing rapidly. The managers will seize the golden opportunity left by the retirement of Springfield, to give the tournament of the year. Many of the prominent clubs about here will also hold race meetings. There is no reason why the enterprise should not be a great success, as the track lies in the centre of a large wheeling population, and is easy of access from New York.

And, by the way, they are going to have a race track down at Vineland. Then, again, the Millville boys will continue the meets that were so successful last year. So we Jerseymen racers will not suffer for lack of opportunity to show our paces at home. The Elizabeth Wheelmen were to have been leased a quarter-of-a-mile track by the local athletic club. The money was all raised, when an unexpected dispute about the lease knocked the project into a cocked hat. The athletic club, a rich organization in which are many E. W. men, are making every effort to secure a suitable site, and the bicycle track is still among the possibilities.

Almost all the clubs are offering distance medals to encourage road riding. The thousand-mile bars in some of the E. W. medals are now so numerous that the affairs look like a lady's elongated chatelaine. To abbreviate the string, gold bars are to be substituted when long distances are attained.

Even though chagrined at the contemptuous treatment bicycle news receives at the hands of the New York press, we can laugh, with my friend the "Owl," at the ridiculous ignorance displayed by it as to this sport, which, base-ball alone excepted, has more followers than any variety of out-door exercise in this country. The New York dailies seem blind to the chance that is offered them to increase their value and circulation among a very considerable portion of the community. Even the sporting papers are comparatively blind to the extent of the wheel interests. I was talking, the other day, to the editor of one of these sporting journals,—a big one, which, by a liberal outlay of money, is seeking to gain the favor of the athletic world. I suggested that it would pay him to devote a fair share of space to wheel matters, telling him something of the extent of the sport in the United States, and showing him the advantages thus to be gained, not only by an increased subscription list, but also by the liberal advertising patronage of the cycle manufacturers and dealers. "The New York daily papers," he replied, "pay but little attention to the bicycle. Then why should we?" With this for an argument, he convinced himself, and I talked no more. The Tribune gives us a half column occasionally, and has vouchsafed a few lines of editorial approval of the bicyclers' rights bill; the Herald used to give Fred Jenkins a chance once in a while to enlighten the uninitiated, and the Jersey edition of the World gives indications of proposed liberality, but this is all. Give a man like the "Owl," who knows all about wheel affairs and how to write them, a fair crack at the columns, and I will vouch for an increase in circulation up in the thousands within a month. Wheelmen are clannish, and are ready to scratch the backs of those that scratch theirs.

The concert of the Wesleyan College Glee Club, for the benefit of the Elizabeth Wheelmen's building fund, was an artistic event. After the concert, a reception was tendered the college boys by the wheelmen.

The agitation of the road question in this State increases in volume and strength each spring. The great obstacle to good roads seems to be the law, which gives to the various townships the control of their highways. The districts are thus made so small that the uniformity of construction given under an extended system is almost an impossibility. If it is impracticable to have the matter put into the control of a State board, then certainly the highways should be in charge of the county boards of freeholders. As for the members of our own county board, I can say with certainty that they are in favor of such a law; and were such a statute passed, we would not have to wait long for systematic road building to be begun. The trouble is just here. The legislature does not convene until December, and adjourns early in the spring. At the latter time, when the need of good roads is most apparent, the legislature, not being in session, nothing is done. Then, when December comes, the cycler with his wheel housed, mortal-like, thinks only of the present and naught of the future, and makes no effort. It only wants some one to take the lead, have a statute drawn, and circulate it, through the clubs and consuls, for signatures to the petition for its passage. It seems to me that it would be money well spent for the New Jersey division to pay a man to take charge of the matter this summer. What is the League for, if not for this? The passage of such a law would be an easy task, and the law once passed by the wheelmen of the various counties, laboring earnestly with the freeholders, it would not be long before New Jersey would be blessed with good roads, and have the present reproach on the States named removed. The Orange Wanderers have recently set a good example, which will, no doubt, be fruitful of results as far as it goes. At a recent meeting, a committee was appointed to prepare a pamphlet on the advantages of good roads and the approved methods of their construction and maintenance. These pamphlets are for distribution among the various Orange township committees. This is all very well, as far as it goes, and could all the clubs do likewise, the desired end might be in a measure accomplished; but a surer and more effective way is, I think, the one I have suggested. Jer. C.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

COST OF CLUB LIFE IN THE METROPOLIS.

In the Bulletin of April 8, "The Owl" says: "If the price in any way betrays the quality of an article, the Citizens' Club certainly outranks any other cycling club in the world, its dues and initiation fees being higher than that of any known association of this kind."

We have no reason to believe that this item was intended to be other than complimentary; nevertheless, it is liable to create a mistaken, and possibly an unfavorable impression.

It is well known that quality rather than quantity has been our constant aim. We must, however, leave it to our friends to judge what measure of success has attended this endeavor. Yet, although numbers has not been our ambition, during the five years of our existence the original thirteen members have increased to exactly thirteen times thirteen, of whom ten times thirteen still retain their connection with us, showing the generally considered unlucky number thirteen to be quite the contrary in our case. The point we wish to speak of here, however, is the item of cost in metropolitan club life.

In these days when coöperation is one of the most prominent features of society, it is quite unnecessary to enumerate the many acknowledged advantages of clubs. From a luxury they are rapidly becoming a necessity. Luxuries are, however, from their very nature expensive, though it must be admitted that generally the best is in the end the cheapest.

We believe that every wheelman should belong to our national organization, the L. A. W., and, unless he really cannot afford it, should join the best cycling club in his locality, thus lending his influence and support to our manly and health-giving sport, and obtaining for himself increased pleasure and enthusiasm by being intimately associated with others interested like himself.

It should be remembered in regard to New York City that it costs a great deal more here than elsewhere to hire or own suitable accommodations for a clubhouse or headquarters, so that the dues of members must necessarily be greater, and also that in comparison with athletic clubs, an organization numbering one hundred or one hundred and fifty must expect to pay more in proportion for special facilities than if the organization numbered one thousand or two thousand.

The provision of suitable, sufficient, and convenient space for the storage of wheels is the most expensive item to our city cycling clubs. This accommodation is charged for by dealers at the monthly rate of $1.50 for a bicycle and $2 for a tricycle; 75 cents to $1.50 per month additional is charged for cleaning the wheel, and 75 cents for the use of locker.

For $7.50 per quarter (or $2.50 per month as against $3 to $4.25 as per items noted above) a member of the "Citizens'" has his wheel stored, cleaned, and carefully looked after; the use of a handsomely furnished, cheerful and attractive clubhouse, No. 26 West Sixtieth Street, to which access may be had at any hour of the day or night; the companionship of his fellow members; a billiard room, parlor and reading room, where are cycling and other periodicals, stationery, and conveniences for writing, and letter boxes for the receipt of his mail.

Special attention has been paid to the locker room, and to both hot and cold water bathing facilities. Transient sleeping accommodations are furnished at about one half the usual price, and a steward and janitor are in constant attendance who will serve any light refreshments.

After the monthly meetings a collation is served, and during the winter months frequent receptions, "smokers," and Saturday night "bean rackets," keep alive the club interest.

All these advantages are free to the member for his dues of $30 per year, except the nominal charge for billiards to pay for repairs, and the first cost of a locker, which can be resold on leaving the club. Our initiation fee of $25 is not required in advance, but may be paid within the year in instalments with the quarterly dues. There are no fines nor assessments.

These matters are spoken of thus in detail to correct an erroneous idea which seems to have become current, and which has not infrequently been voiced by the cycling press, "that it is very expensive to belong to the Citizens' Club."

The cost in the three other bicycle Clubs in New York City is respectively: Initiation fee $15, $10, $10; annual dues, $24, $24, $26, and an extra charge is made for cleaning the wheels. Under the circumstances, we may perhaps at least be pardoned for, if not justified in, believing that it should be worth the trifle more to enjoy the superior advantages and accommodations of the "Citizens," and be identified with them.

Although we number among us men of means, wealth is by no means a necessary requirement for membership, nor is a member's length of purse the measure of his standing or popularity. We welcome, and wish to have join our ranks, any man who is a gentleman in the true sense of that much-abused word. If our standard be high, it is based entirely on the ground of manliness and good-fellowship, and so has a solid and permanent foundation.

In addition to the active, we have non-resident members, among whom we number many prominent wheelmen of other cities. These have all the privileges of the clubhouse, where they not infrequently engage a room during their visits to New York. Their dues are $10 a year, no initiation fee being required We believe that every accession to this list serves to promote and foster that fraternal feeling which is so particularly noticeable among cyclists, as well as to extend and broaden our own influence and interest.

In conclusion, it is a matter for congratulation that, having been singularly free from cliques or factions of any kind, the harmonious working of our organization has by no means been the least factor in our present prosperity.

Very truly yours,
Knight L. Clapp,
Secretary C. Bi. Club.

TANGENT SPOKES.

Editor Bulletin:—In your edition of last week, a communication over the signature of "Jsa. Arkins" and having reference to the merits or demerits of the various spokes now used in the construction of cycles, appears. The argument of the writer, and the endeavor to establish his theory therein, betray such evidence of unfamiliarity with the ordinary principles of metallic construction, that reluctantly (to prevent misapprehension) I ask space to look a little more closely into the subject matter of "Jas. Arkins's" letter. To consider the claims therein made, it would be well to take them seriatim, and commence with the question of vibration,—a question which we usually acknowledge, to be of some import.

If "Jas. Arkins" will condescend to actual scientific reasoning and test, with the aid of a self-registering, spirit test, for wave-shocks, he will discover that under precisely similar conditions the vibration of a tangent-spoked wheel, instead of being "hardly perceptible," from a direct spoke is increased from zero to 30° 11′ or to speak roughly, three times. The significance of this I will not comment on. Were cycles constructed for use on carefully prepared surfaces only, and not for the very uncertain conditions of ordinary road travel, there might be some reason in the "solid wheel" theory. Or were they built with special reference to hill climbing contests or as machines where comfort and ease are third and fourth considerations, with speed and rigidity first and second, then possibly it would be well to advocate the use of tangent spokes, and decry elasticity, but, inasmuch as the majority of cycles are constructed with some regard for the rider's comfort, in all likelihood direct spokes will ever be recognized as the more satisfactory way of constructing road machines. Indeed, we are supported in this theory (which has proven so satisfactory in practice) by the most eminent mechanical engineers of our century. If Jas. Arkins will examine the plans for construction of Sir I. Brunel, of Sir John Harkshaw, of Sir W. Palliser, Sir Wm. Armstrong, Sir Joseph Whitworth, of Mr. Easton, of Major Noble, or Mr. Roach, he will discover that everywhere the "same general principles" which underlie all metal constructions for use where the conditions are uncertain are elasticity and ductility within well-defined lines. "While she bends she holds" is a trite aphorism, but it is none the less true.

Again I take issue with Jas. Arkins upon the question of repairs. He states he is a repairer, with some years' experience, so he should know something about the question. Well, how does he prove his knowledge? By his statement he would appear to be absolutely ignorant that the principle which obtains for tightening up direct spokes is certainly one less liable to jar loose than the "tangent system." For his information I would say that, whereas the former is taken up at the hub, where least concussion is felt, the latter is generally taken up with a sleeve nut at the felloe, where even he, in a subsequent paragraph, points out the greatest jarring is felt. Again, your correspondent draws attention to solid rims, as being of necessity the complement of direct spokes. Perhaps he is ignorant of the fact that very large numbers of cycles are constructed with hollow felloes and direct spokes. I can point out plenty of these wheels of domestic manufacture, as well as English. Further, his argument (I am compelled by courtesy to so designate it), re-loosening, is of equal application to both type of spokes.

The statement that "a properly built tangent wheel cannot be buckled," is in keeping with the whole tenor of the letter. Did Jas. Arkins ever see a "properly constructed tangent wheel?" If he did he is indeed favored. Any cycle mechanic, or practical rider of experience, has seen many tangent spoked hollow felloe wheels buckled; it is true they are less liable to buckle, but there is absolutely no certainty. Perhaps Jas. Arkins is right,—when they do go, they go completely, and, generally, beyond repair. The narrow tread is the next subject advanced. How much narrower tread can Jas. Arkins get on a "tangent wheel" than he can get on a direct? Not one half inch. If he thinks so, let him look at "Humber" racer.

The other points of weakness or inferiority, in direct spoke wheels alluded to are not worth consideration, as they, if of any weight, are applicable to each and all makes or styles of wheel. Perhaps Jas. Arkins does not know, when talking of weight, that a hollow rim is heavier than a solid one.

In conclusion, I would ask "Jas. Arkins" if he ever looked at a "Humber racer," or heard of the father of cycle mechanics, Mr. Thomas Humber. I allude to the man and his machine, because the latter is ridden by a larger number of the racing men of England and has won more races than all others put together. The products of Humber & Co. are admitted in Europe to be the standard: they are light; they are fast; they are popular; they are constructed by the most eminent cycle mechanic in the country,—a mechanic who absolutely refuses to build a wheel, be it racer or roadster, with a tangent spoke of any description, and they are all fitted with direct spokes.

Conclusions drawn from careful study should at all times be of value, provided they are accompanied by substantial data. I am afraid the possession of the latter adjunct is something I cannot compliment Jas. Arkins upon, and, with submission, refer him to a second course.

I am glad to be able on one point to agree with him, and, personally, it is a matter of congratulation. I allude to his advice to purchase the "best machine." Were I asked I should say to a purchaser, "Go to a responsible firm, one with some reputation, with something to lose, where you can purchase an honestly constructed wheel; then, purchase. Avoid advertising fakes, and you are certain to be well satisfied."

In another letter I may point out many claims which can be fairly made for a tangent spoke, and I am not forgetful that they can honestly be recommended under specific conditions.

BALL HEADS.

Editor Bulletin:—I am neither an importer nor manufacturer of bicycles, with or without ball heads; but the subject affords me an opportunity of saying a word through the Bulletin in regard to some points which have more and more impressed themselves on my mind.

First. The bicycle of to-day is far in advance of the majority of those who ride it, in so far as the mechanical construction of the machine can be compared with the mechanical education of the average user of the same.

Second. The high-grade bicycle of to-day is rather too complicated than otherwise, and further unnecessary complication, like ball heads and tangent spokes, are, in my opinion, unnecessary and undesirable features in a road wheel.

Third. Of the three kinds of steering heads in use, "ball," "cone," and "hemispherical," eight years of constant use of bicycles, and considerable mechanical training, have satisfied me that the former is the most, and the last the least, open to objection or criticism.

Fourth. Not one rider in twenty has sufficient mechanical skill or judgment to properly adjust and care for an average high-grade bicycle and keep it in such running condition as the manufacturer would contemplate its being kept in. Then why add to the troubles of the rider by more complex construction?

Fifth. I have seen hemispherical-steering centres used for six thousand miles, and show no material wear, and never cause trouble in any form. I have seen the same kind of centres used for upwards of a thousand miles without adjusting, and all the time in absolutely perfect adjustment. Can any ball head make a better showing? If not, why take the increased risk of breakage and repair arising, as a natural consequence, from a more complicated kind?

Sixth. Eight years' experience has taught me that every novelty that is put out for a talking point, and to give some machine notoriety, is not always an improvement whose adoption will inure to the benefit of the user. Common Sense.

UNIFORMS.

Editor Bulletin:—The Bulletin of March 25th at hand at this date. I am quite interested in the "uniform" discussion which is at present agitating some of the League, and if it is possible I would like to have a word or two in it. To those who don't know me it don't make any difference, but those who do will bear me out when I say that I am the easiest man in the world to get along with—when I can have my own way. What I'm getting at is simply this: Somebody wants a Norfolk Jacket, with a turn-down collar, and we want a military jacket with a standing collar. Now, I believe that one is just as good as the other, and that any distinction is mostly imaginary; but since it does not cost any more to either party to have what it wants, or fancies it wants, why not have both? Before coming over here, I gave the uniform question quite some consideration, but finally solved it by joining the C. T. C. What did I do that for? Well, the L. A. W. suit was not worth bringing over, and the privilege of wearing the C. T. C. clothes was worth the cost of initiation fee and dues. After I came here I joined the "Deutsche Radfahrer Bund." Why? Well, because their "Jahr Buch" was worth just that much to me. I don't believe that I am much different from the average wheelman in getting what I can for my money, and I usually have some object or article in view when an outlay is made. I believe that as soon as the L. A. W. gives its members a good cloth, out of which two or three styles of uniforms may be made, the membership will increase. And now, just one word more: I believe in a gray suit, with black stockings. We need not take a copy of the C. T. C. suit, as they did with our badge, but we can get something just as good. We need not be deterred from adopting a good and serviceable cloth simply because the first club in New York happens to have the same colors. That's all.

CYCLETS.

Elected.

All who had friends.

Friends vote: the friendless are victims to general apathy.

The annual election is a good piece of testimony to the engrossment in his own affairs of the average man.

In wheeling circles there are very many average men, and they don't care a chip about voting.

The men who don't vote are the ones who say the League does nothing.

The League does a great deal for those who avail themselves of its advantages, and it cannot be blamed if men will not pick the plums.

John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, has been awarded contract to make League uniforms. Particulars next week.

E. F. Landy, of Ohio, will represent Yale on the path, this year.

A bicycle race from Jersey City to Philadelphia is one of the probabilities of the season.

L. H. Johnson, of Orange, N. J., has purchased the good will and stock of McCoy, Collins & Co.

St. Louis is going to duplicate the lantern parade. Wonder if they 'll want another meet.

Newport, Ky., has just seen the birth of a cycle club, which gives promise of a long and useful career.

Snow on the 18th of April, and in Massachusetts one man perishes in the storm. The season opens well.

E. T. Pettingill has been elected for the fourth time to be president of the Washington (D. C.) Cycle Club. "Pet." seems to be a club pet.

Mr. E. K. Austin, secretary-treasurer of New York, has changed his address to box 157, Flatbush, N. Y.

In the proposed building of the Boston Athletic Association, accommodation will be provided for one hundred or more bicycles and tricycles.

The Baltimore Argus has started a cycling department. It begins well, and Maryland riders will doubtless appreciate it.

Shipton wants to show a jubilee membership of fifty thousand for the C. T. C. Aim high, if you don't hit.

L. M. Wainwright, ex-chief consul of Indiana, has given up racing, and is now travelling for the Indiana Bicycle Company.

S. P. Hollingsworth is in training for an attempt at the twenty-four-hour road record, which will be made on the Crawfordsville, Ind., roads.

Mr. W. B. Hardy has been chosen Vice-Consul of the District Columbia Division, and Edward Baltzley is the new secretary-treasurer. These were elected at annual meeting held March 26.

A. J. Henley, of Wichita, Kan., is doing yeoman service for the League. He has sent in sixteen new names this week.

The Wheelmen's Record has something novel each week. Its last issue contains a supplement giving pictures of noted Indiana wheelmen, including Irwin, Zimmerman, Probst, Wainwright, Smith, and others. Our Western contemporary is doing well. We hope the boys show appreciation in a substantial form.

THE Technology Cycling Club, of Boston, will hold a record-breaking meet at Lynn, on the afternoon of May 7, in conjunction with the spring meeting of the Athletic Club. The events will be a two-mile race for the Technology record (7.50); one-mile for club record; three-mile handicap; class championship race. The Athletic Club has offered a gold medal to the winner of the two mile race.

MR. GEO. S. ATWATER, of Massillon, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Division, has accepted a business position, and will remove to Washington, D. C., with his family, about May 1. Mr. Atwater has been an able and energetic officer.

THE California Division Racing Board has assigned the five-mile State championship to the San Francisco Bicycle Club. It is the intention to make the championship a feature of the club's race meeting, on May 30 next.

MASSACHUSETTS members are looking forward with eager anticipations to the proposed camp at Cottage City, this summer. The attractions of the island ought to draw other State wheelmen there at the same time.

SANDERS SELLERS, the first man in the world to do a mile on a bicycle in less than 2.40, has been arrested at Fullwood for drunkenness. The constable found him lying by the roadside utterly helpless, save for a very noisy and abusive tongue.

IT is about as good as settled that Mr. J. M. Hilton is to erect for the Cambridge Club a two-story club house on Winthrop Street. The building is to be planned by an architect within the club, and will cost about $3,500.

THE Beaver Valley Wheelmen will give the first tournament of the season at Geneva Park, Beaver Falls, Pa., on Decoration Day (May 30). Wheelmen from Pittsburg, Youngstown, New Castle, and other surrounding towns will be here in force, and a big time is expected. The boys wanted to have this tournament on the 4th of July, but the New Castle boys got ahead of them, and are going to have theirs then. — Beaver Falls Cor.

AMERICAN record breakers, despairing of breaking English road records over long courses, selected short courses of twenty-five or fifty miles, and went the Englishmen a few miles better. The short courses gave our riders as good average roads as the English can boast. And now John Bull is going to employ short courses, with the hope of getting ahead of Brother Jonathan.

THE Pittsburg (Penn.) Wheelmen will have a club run on Decoration Day, over the national pike from Washington, Penna to Wheeling, W. Va On their arrival there, they will be received and entertained by the Wheeling Wheelmen, who will endeavor to make it pleasant for them. The Pittsburg boys will remain over night, and return home by train Tuesday morning.

HAL GREENWOOD, of St. Louis, is after a road record that few Eastern wheelmen will contest. He will ride to De Soto and back, and he hopes to do it in ten hours. The Post Dispatch says: "He authorizes the Post-Dispatch to challenge anybody in St. Louis or in the world to ride with him to De Soto, to De Soto and back, to Bulltown, or to Bulltown and back. He will contest any of those distances. There is little use in denying that Greenwood cannot be touched on the De Soto hills. He can climb all of them, a feat probably no other rider in the world could accomplish, and shoots down them like a meteor.

IT is reported that the Boston Bicycle Club will consider the feasibility of establishing a "Bungalow village club" house, after the style of the one being built at White Hills, near London.

MR. ALBERT J. PRATT, of Boston, is making arrangements to wheel to Quebec and return. He will carry his neces-sary baggage strapped to the seat of his tricycle.

THE Columbia Bicycle Club, of North Attleboro, Mass., has offered a medal to the member who covers the greatest number of miles on club runs the present year.

BUFFALO is going to have a club house. She would rather have a club house than a meet any day, and she can get one with about the same amount of work demanded by a meet.

F. A. ELWELL, of Portland, was in Boston, last week, working up an interest in his proposed Canadian tour next summer. He has given out a very tempting programme.

THE poor condition of the Lancaster pike, on Saturday, prevented the University of Pennsylvania Club from holding the twenty-five-mile road race, which was scheduled for that afternoon.

THE Cambridgeport Club is arranging for a twenty-five-mile road race to take place Memorial Day. The club has some good material for road racing

TOM ECK fainted while racing twenty-five miles with Fred Straub, of Fairbault, Minn., at Minneapolis, on the 11th inst. The first mile was finished in about 3.30, which is good time for a rink seventeen laps to the mile. At the fifth mile, Eck was about half a lap ahead of Straub, and remained in this position until the twenty-first mile, when, as Eck was rounding the upper turn, some one, in trying to cross the track, was run into by Eck, causing him to take a terrible header. He was thrown from his wheel to the floor, breaking his right wrist and fracturing one leg. While talking, he fainted and fell to the floor.

A PARTY of bicyclists were travelling along the macadamized road beyond Carondelet, when they met a funeral procession. They separated, some going on one and some on the other side of the hearse. The horses became frightened, and shied to one side. In doing so, the pole of the hearse swung into the bicycle of a rider, and, lifting machine and rider, carried them against a fence at the side of the road to which the horses had run. The bicyclist was not injured, nor was his machine broken. However, I must say that bicycle riders are very seldom hurt, although they sometimes have hard falls. They seem to learn how to fall, after having taken a few headers, so as to light on the ground easily. After a man has fallen once or twice, he learns how to gather himself before he reaches a landing — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE picnic lunch, winding up the parade on Saturday morning, has also been arranged. Both these spreads will be free to the visitors, but the lunch at the park will be free only to those visitors who participate in the parade. The parade permit has been secured by Prof. Stone, of the Parade Committee, and the route has been selected after thorough discussion. In fact, I hear several routes were laid out and then abandoned, until the last, the best, was chosen. The photograph will be taken at the park before the lunch, and some historic spot in the park will be chosen as the sitting spot. The principal runs of the Meet will be on Friday, and will be two over the De Soto road. One will leave the city by train at 8.15 for De Soto, and bike back to the Springs, twenty-five miles, to intercept the boat. At 1 P. M., a run will leave the Missouri club house and, over the De Soto road, go to Montesano to join the boat. The ride up from De Soto will be over the worst part of that famous road; the ride down will show the best part. Saturday afternoon, there will be many sporadic runs, as the occasion may demand. The proceedings of the meeting will be held in the Entertainment Hall of the Exposition, where the wheels will be stored in the basement. — St. Louis Spectator.

S. T. CLARK & CO., of Baltimore, object to our statement that W. W. Stall is Boston agent for the Quadrants. The truth of the matter is this: Messrs. Clark & Co. are authorized by the Quadrant people to represent them in America, but the firm is in litigation with the Pope Manufacturing Company, and is not licensed to import the machines. Meantime, Mr. Stall purchases of J. A. R. Underwood a license granted by the Pope Manufacturing Company to import the Quadrant, and he purchases the stock of machines remaining with Underwood. It is a question which must be decided by the courts, for on the one hand, Messrs. Clark & Co. contend that no other house can get machines from the English makers, and Mr. Stall has faith to believe that no other house than his own can bring them over. Messrs. Clark and Co. exhibit a statement from the Quadrant Company, in which they state that they shall supply no other house with machines. The courts will decide whether or not the quadrant infringes patents held by the Pope Manufacturing Company, and if the importers must be licensed.

ST. LOUIS enjoyed its lantern parade. Capt. Brewster, of the Missouri Bicycle Club, was present last week at a meeting of the Fall Festivities Committee, at the invitation of the committee, to represent the wheelmen in arranging the programme for the fall festivities, which this year will be confined to two weeks. The committee informed Capt. Brewster of their desire to see the wheelmen repeat their successful illuminated parade of last fall, which they praised profusely. Capt. Brewster responded to the effect that the wheelmen were glad they had done something towards benefiting the city, and would no doubt feel flattered by the compliment contained in the request for a repetition. An evening in the G. A. R. week was suggested as a fitting date, but Mr. Brewster said he would have to lay the matter before the Missouri Division, which will be done at a general meeting of the L. A. W. members of the State, to be held in a few days, in this city. The parade of last fall was made the occasion of a reunion of all Western wheelmen, and was in a social way also a great success.

THERE was quite a thrilling scene Saturday night on Solomon's Hill, near Manchester, a grade that is known by every wheelman in the city. It is nearly half a mile long, smooth and hard, and very steep. A party of half a dozen cyclists left the city late in the evening for a moonlight ride to Baldwin, twenty miles distant. The road being in excellent shape, the hills were coasted with a rush. When old Solomon's was reached about midnight, the moon was unobstructed by a cloud, and the roadway looked entrancingly smooth as the line passed over the crest. "Brakes off!" yelled the leader, and away the line dashed down the hill, the spokes glistening in the pale light. Faster and faster flew the wheels, and a hum of rattling steel sounded as the turn was rounded and the steepest part was reached. Suddenly the wheel ridden by R. N. Stubbs was seen to waver; a moment later it broke in two, the backbone snapped off, and the rider was pitched across the road. E. C. Klipstein was so close behind he could not miss the prostrate form in front. The big wheel struck Stubbs and lifted Klip clear over the head of his machine, and sent him rolling down the hill, near the bottom of which he gathered himself together, pretty generally scratched up. When the party reached Baldwin, Kessler's arnica and court plaster were freely levied on. — Post Dispatch

THE CLUB.

CLARKESVILLE. — At the annual meeting of the Belt Road Wheelmen, held April 18, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, E. N. Moody; vice-president, J. O. Roberts, Jr.; secretary, E. A. Clifford; treasurer, H. C. Cake; captain, H. C. Cake; first lieutenant, J. B. Downing; second lieutenant, E. D. Fern; bugler, F. E. Silliman. The club is making grand preparations to entertain the wheelmen who come to see the great 100-mile world's championship race here May 23 The Belt road is in fine form, and the record must go as it did over the same course last year.

YORK COUNTY WHEELMEN, Biddeford, Me. — Officers elected April 4: President, Walter T. Bowers; vice-president, A. L. T. Cummings; secretary and treasurer, E. J. Dearborn; captain, J. E. Etchells.

RUSSIAVILLE ROVERS, Russiaville, Ind. — Organized April 16. Officers elected: President, B. C. Hollingsworth; secretary-treasurer, S. O. Duncan; captain, A. P. Cosand.

NEWPORT BICYCLE CLUB, Newport, Ky. — Organized April 12. Officers elected: President, E. K. Lowe; secretary-treasurer, Phil. Holmes; captain Jerome Clarke.

BROOKLYN BICYCLE CLUB, Brooklyn, N. Y. — Officers elected April 12 at eighth annual meeting: President, Louis W. Slocum; vice-president, Dr. A. C. Brush; secretary, Hermann H. Koop, Jr.; treasurer, Howard E. Raymond; captain, Albert B. Barkman.

STAR BICYCLE CLUB, Coldwater, Mich. — Organized April 18. Officers elected: President, Fred Loveridge; secretary-treasurer, John T. Starr; captain, Charles Champion.

SEASIDE BICYCLE CLUB, Norfolk, Va. — Officers elected at annual election April 12: President, Ira B. White; vice-president, W. L. Baker; secretary-treasurer, U. P. Ellis; captain, W. P. Dodson.

WASHINGTON CYCLE CLUB, Washington, D. C: Officers elected for ensuing year: President, E. T. Pettingill;* vice-president, Chas. E. Burden; secretary, J. H. Fishback; treasurer, J. H De Merritt, M. D.; captain, J. C. V. Smith. *Fourth term.

ROVERS CYCLING CLUB, Charlestown, Mass.. — Officers elected April 16th: — President, captain, Justin H. Brown; vice-president, lieutenant, Jas. Smith; secretary-treasurer, Henry W. Thompson.

PLAINFIELD, N. J — The reception of the Plainfield Bicycle Club to the ladies, who so kindly volunteered their services to aid the members of the club in making their recent fair so grand a success, was held in the parlors of the Park House, last week. Mr. Jones, the proprietor of the Park House, threw the spacious building open to the guests, who numbered about seventy-five persons. An orchestra from New York enlivened the occasion by discoursing popular selections, and the merry dancers, in elaborate attire, tripped about to the evident delight of all Refreshments were served in abundance, and at 2 A. M. the merry assemblage dispersed. The committee, to whom much credit is due for the success of the affair, was composed of Messrs. H. W. Stover, Andrew McKinney, and R. F. Murray. The weather was very inclement, and deterred many from going who would otherwise have been present.

MONTREAL BICYCLE CLUB, Montreal, Can. — Officers elected April 14: President, I. D. Miller; vice-presidents, F. S. Gnaedinger and I. T. Barlow; secretary, R. T. Smith; treasurer, R. Lloyd; captain, H. Joyce.

SOMERSET WHEELMEN, Somerville, N. Y. — Officers elected April 4: President, J. S. Frelinghuysen; vice-president, Frank McConaughy; secretary, W. H. K. Davy; treasurer, John Van Epps; captain, W. H. K. Davy.

ST. JOHN BICYCLE CLUB, St. John, N. B. — Officers elected for 1887: President, D. C. Robertson; secretary-treasurer, W. C. Fairweather; captain, C. Coster.

TROJAN WHEELMEN, Troy, N. Y. — Officers elected for 1887: President, E. C. Butts; vice-president, F. E. Olthout; secretary, P. P. Chase; financial secretary, C. N. Seymour; treasurer, E. R. Stephens; captain, Geo. S. Contrie.

DALLAS WHEEL CLUB, Dallas, Texas. — Officers elected for 1887: President T. L. Monagan; captain, F. F. Bixby; first lieutenant, H. J. Blakney.

NEWBURGH WHEELMEN, Newburgh, N. Y. — Officers elected April 22: President, J. Evert Wilson; secretary-treasurer, Albert N. Chambers; captain, Wm. F. Cassedy.

WALDO COUNTY WHEELMEN, Belfast, Me. — Organized April 19; officers elected: President, Geo. T. Read; vice-president, Chas. R. Coombs; secretary-treasurer, H. W. Clark; captain, W. M. Thayer.

WINONA BICYCLE CLUB, Winona, Minn — Officers elected April 4: President, C. H. Porter; vice-president and captain, J. R. Maifield; secretary, I. I. Lusk; treasurer, Will D. Chandler.

LANCASTER BICYCLE CLUB, Lancaster, Pa. — Officers elected for 1887: President, Jno. A. Burger; vice-president, Geo. F. Kahler; secretary-treasurer, C. H. Obreiter; captain, S. B. Downey.

THE first bicycle club in Canada to become incorporated is the Wanderers' Bicycle Club, of Toronto, whose incorporation is dated April 16, 1887, under the Act of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, chapter 167, the first five named officers in the charter standing: C. H Riggs, Chas. Robinson, G. H. Orr, F. J. Morphy, and L. A. McBrien.

THE Brantford, Can., Club has these new officers: President, D Glass; first vice-president, J. Hales; second vice-president, W. J. Knowles; secretary, W. Patterson, Jr.; treasurer, W. E. Buck; first lieutenant, Charles Duncan, Jr.; second lieutenant, W. G. Killmaster; standard bearer, H. Howell; bugler, C. Heyd.

THE new officers of the Napanee, Ont., Bicycle Club are: President, W. C. Smith; captain, W. J. Normill; secretary-treasurer, F. A. Roe; first lieutenant, A. N. Sweetnam; second lieutenant, A. R. Boyes; bugler, W. A. Foster; standard bearer, W. Pringle. The club has unanimously decided to join the C. W. A.

CHAS. E. NOTT has been elected secretary of the Wakefield (Mass.) Club.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Ruralist Bicycle Club. — Officers elected April 20: President, W. Roscoe Thomas; vice-president, W. F. Goetze; secretary-treasurer, B. P. Hatch; captain, E. B. Hilton; first lieutenant, Lincoln Milligan; second lieutenant, C. U. Philey. The club has fitted up commodious rooms at 310 Felix street, upstairs. Club numbers fifteen. Latch string always out.

THE PATH.

SAN FRANCISCO RACES.

IT is the intention of the San Francisco Bicycle Club, in conjunction with the Olympic Club, to hold a Joint Field Day on Decoration Day, May 30. The Committee of Arrangements has aimed at making as perfect a programme as the grounds will permit of. They have arrranged for bicycle events, as well as running, jumping, and walking, besides other athletic sports. The programme will be as follows:

BICYCLE EVENTS.

1 mile Maiden Race.	1 mile Scratch Race.
2 mile Handicap Race.	1 mile Tricycle Race
¼ mile Dash.	5 mile Scratch Race.

ATHLETIC EVENTS.

100 yards Run.	220 yards Run.
2 mile Walk.	Putting 16 lb. Shot.
Running High Jump.	1 mile Run.

In the last bicycle event the committee will endeavor to obtain the Five Mile L. A. W. State Championship Race as a substitute.

Entrance fee will be one dollar to each event; 50 cents to be returned to each starter. The entries close Saturday, May 21. The entries for the bicycle events close with Harrison Houseworth, at the rooms of the San Francisco Bicycle Club, No. 1428 Market Street; the entries for the other events close at the rooms of the Olympic Club, No. 120 O'Farrell Street.

The bicycle events will be open ONLY to members of the League of American Wheelmen. Suitable and handsome medals will be awarded. The contests will take place on the Bay District Racing Track, opposite Golden Gate Park. The sports will be called at 1 P. M.

Hoping we shall have the pleasure of seeing you as a competitor on this occasion, or at any rate as a visitor, we are truly yours,

THE COMMITTEE.

THE TRADE.

APROPOS of L. H. Johnson's Special Bargains, advertised in our "For Sale" column, a customer writes: —

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., April 20, 1887.

MR. L. H. JOHNSON,
4 Park Stores, Orange, N. J.

Dear Sir, — The machine ordered from you came all right. Am well pleased with it.

Yours truly, EDW. E. FRONTZ,
357 Pine Street.

DR. A. F. WYMAN, of New Bedford, writes: "The Rudge Bicyclette gives me the best of satisfaction. It a coming favorite."

A PROMINENT Western bicycle agent writes to Stoddard, Lovering & Co., as follows: "Please send me two more Townsend saddles and springs. Those who have tried them on the Rudge bicycle say it is the easiest thing yet, and riders are surprised at the effect on our rough roads and cobble stones."

PRESIDENT DAVOL, of the Rhode Island Wheel Club, is astonishing the residents of Warren, R. I., on a Rudge Humber Tandem.

A LARGE Western bicycle agent says that the Rudge Bicyclette beats the ordinary every time, and adds, "They are selling like hot cakes."

MESSRS. STODDARD, LOVERING & CO. recently received an order from one firm for a dozen Rudge Bicyclettes.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

OFFICE CHIEF CONSUL PENN. DIV. L. A. W.

To the Representatives of the Penn. Div. L. A. W.:

GENTLEMEN, — The importance of having a full attendance of this Division at the annual meeting of the League at St. Louis is well understood, and you are, therefore, requested, at your earliest convenience, to advise the secretary-treasurer whether you can attend the meeting: or, if not, to send your proxies to some one who will represent you.

I desire this information, that I may make arrangements for the repayment of transportation, in accordance with the action of the Board at its January meeting.

Very respectfully, etc.,
GEO. A. JESSUP, Chief Consul,
T. HOUARD WRIGHT, Scranton, Pa.
Secretary-Treasurer.
Box 1619, Philadelphia.

DETROIT, April 24, 1887.

Mich. Div. Members:

GENTLEMEN, — Please note my change of address to 397 2d Avenue.

Our Road-Book has been delayed, in order that we might make some important changes and improvements. It is now almost ready for the binder, and will be delivered not later than May 10.

Special bulletins concerning St. Louis Meet will be issued and mailed this week.

Fraternally,
J. H. JOHNSON,
Chief Consul Mich. Div.

Correspondence in re-touring should be addressed to Mr. Collamer, 47 St. Cloud Building, Washington, D. C.

Fraternally,
N. MALON BECKWITH, President.
NEW YORK, April 25, 1887.

OFFICIAL NOTIFICATION.

NEW YORK, April 23, 1887.

To the Members of the Old and New Board of Officers, L. A. W.:

GENTLEMEN: — To facilitate matters and save expense, I have deemed it wisest, same as last year, to notify you of the result of recent election for chief consuls and representatives, through medium of the BULLETIN. You will, therefore, take the official announcement appearing in the issue of BULLETIN of date April 29, as your individual notification, and my declaration of the dissolution of the old board and organization of the new. Chief consuls may now make such appointments of representatives as they may deem most proper, with a view to right of franchise at St. Louis meeting in May next.

Fraternally, N. MALON BECKWITH,
President, L. A. W.

ANNUAL ELECTION RETURNS.

BOSTON, April 16, 1887.

DR. N. M. BECKWITH,
President L. A. W.

Dear Sir: The Committee on Rights and Privileges, at a meeting held this day, has received from the secretary-editor, and sorted and counted, ballots for chief consuls and representatives for the ensuing year, and begs leave to report its finding as tabulated in the annexed schedules.

In submitting this report, we may add that we have endeavored to give effect to the intention of the voter as expressed on his ballot, notwithstanding errors in spelling or failure to give full name, and have followed the precedents adopted by this committee, for last year, as reported in the L. A. W. BULLETIN, Vol. ii., p. 381. We have not received the votes of certain State divisions, the counting of which was otherwise provided for.

We think it right to apprise you that we found thirteen voting blanks bearing the name of Francis Bloodgood, Jr., of Milwaukee, for chief consul for Wisconsin, which we had to reject, as he was not eligible, although we are informed that he has since become so; and this leaves a tie vote between A. A. Hathaway and Jay A. Hinman, for that office. There also appears to be a tie vote between Edson B. Olds and E. T. Pettengill, for chief consul of the District of Columbia.

Respectfully submitted,

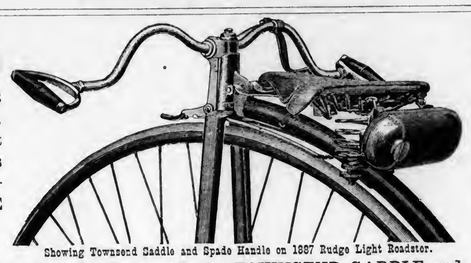
NEW YORK APPOINTMENT.

TO THE BOARD OF OFFICERS AND MEMBERS L. A. W.:

I have this day appointed Mr. W. W. Share, 336 Navy St., Brooklyn, N. Y., representative second district New York State Division.

G. R. BIDWELL.

TRANSPORTATION TO THE ST. LOUIS MEET.



THE Interstate Commerce Commission, at this writing, has but just got to work, and hence no reduced figures to the St. Louis Meet can be now given. One fare and a third is the recommended round-trip rate which will be adopted. Advice on this subject will be published through the committee and the cycle press in due season.

It is intended to make the journey to St. Louis of itself a feature of the Meet. For this purpose, certain lines of through travel are designated, that run through coaches and baggage cars, and special understanding is had for accommodations on trains

Townsend * Saddle.

It is light. It is easy. It does not chafe. Try it. It fits any machine. Thoroughly ventilated. It does not sag or get out of shape. It combines the advantages of every saddle extant. It is fitted to all RUDGE machines.

PRICE, $6.00.

Showing Townsend Saddle and Spade Handle on 1887 Rudge Light Roadster.

SPADE ♠ HANDLES.

More comfortable. Great power in hill climbing. Perfectly adjustable and detachable.

You are behind the times if you don't have them.

PRICE, $5.00.

To be happy, you must have your bicycle fitted with the TOWNSEND SADDLE and ADJUSTABLE SPADE HANDLES. To be obtained or fitted by any of our agents. ☞ See inside of front cover.

STODDARD, LOVERING & CO., 152 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

mentioned. By consulting the schedules below, wheelmen at through or intermediate points will be enabled to fall in with others journeying to the Meet.

The main line is from New York and Boston via the West Shore Line, and through the Middle of Ohio and Indiana, over the Lake Shore and Bee Line. Over this route the special car from New York and Boston will leave Wednesday afternoon. A train leaving New York and Boston one day earlier, admits of a stop-over at Niagara Falls half a day, and runs through Canada by daylight, crossing at Detroit in evening. Arriving in Chicago Thursday morning, one day is given in that city to take in interesting points under escort.

A consultation of latest time cards and maps of railways given in schedules below, will show wheelmen the possibility of making connection with through trains. Wheelmen from the Atlantic seaboard should correspond with George R. Bidwell, 313 West 58th Street, New York, regarding rates and accommodations. Those intending to join the Shenandoah valley party can so arrange with N. L. Collamer, Tour-master, L. A. W., St. Cloud building, Washington, D. C. Interior Pennsylvania and Western New York members can reach the New York main line, the Pittsburgh train, or the Baltimore & Ohio, as suits convenience. In this matter advise with W. S. Bull, 360 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y. From Ohio points, J. R. Dunn, Massillon. From Michigan, J. H. Johnson, 107 Spruce street, Detroit. Indiana, A. B. Irvin, Rushville. Northern Illinois, B. B. Ayers, 212 Clark Street, Chicago. Central Illinois, H. G. Rouse, Peoria. Wisconsin, A. A. Hathaway, Milwaukee. Minnesota, S. F. Heath, Minneapolis. Iowa, W. M. Ferguson, Jefferson. Tennessee, Ed. N. Fisher, Nashville, and W. L. Surprise, Memphis. Kentucky. Horace Beddo, Louisville. New Orleans and Southern States, A. M. Hill, New Orleans, La. General information will be furnished by the Chairman of the Transportation Committee. For the Mississippi River Excursion, advise with Robert L. Thompson, Muscatine, Ia. On the Missouri Pacific Line, from Omaha through Kansas City to St. Louis, confer with the Omaha and Kansas City Clubs.

MAIN ROUTES TO THE MEET.

From New York and New England. Leave New York 5.50 Wednesday evening via West Shore Railroad, and from Boston 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, via Fitchburg Railroad. Arriving at Buffalo Thursday morning, Cleveland at noon, passing through Ohio by daylight, joining other parties from North, East, and South at Indianapolis at 10.25 P. M. Arrive St. Louis 7.25 Friday morning — First day of Meet.

From New York and New England via Niagara Falls and Chicago. This route allows half a day at the Falls and one day in Chicago, by leaving the East one day earlier. Leave New York 5.50 Tuesday evening, and Boston 3 Tuesday afternoon, over West Shore Line, the two trains come together at Rotterdam Junction, near Albany. Arrive Niagara Falls early next morning. Disembark at Suspension Bridge and wheel up river to the Falls, two miles.

Michigan Central train leaves from Falls View Station at noon. Dining car. Passes through Canada during afternoon, arriving Detroit in evening. Here joined by Detroit party, reaching Chicago Thursday morning. Take in Chicago boulevards and points of interest, under escort, starting from the Leland Hotel on the lake front at 10 A. M. Leave for St. Louis with Chicago and other parties at 9 P. M. arriving St. Louis 7.45 Friday morning.

From Baltimore, Washington, and the Shenandoah. Under auspices of the annual League tour down the Shenandoah Valley. On completion of the tour (Philadelphia via Gettysburg to Staunton, Va.) the touring party, and others who may wish to take in only the rail part, will embark on Baltimore & Ohio train, leaving Baltimore 9 o'clock Wednesday evening, and Washington at 10.10 o'clock, reaching Harper's Ferry same evening, at which point tourists will embark. Pass through Cincinnatti, 7 o'clock Thursday evening, connecting at North Vernon, Ind. at 9.35 with Louisville and Kentucky party. Arrive St. Louis, 7 o'clock Friday morning, via Ohio & Mississippi Railway.

From Pittsburgh, Pa., and Ohio points. Pacific Central & St. Louis train from Pittsburgh, 8.55 Thursday morning, passing through Columbus, 3.30 afternoon; Richmond at 8 o'clock in evening, where will be joined by Springfield, Xenia, and Dayton parties, arriving at Indianapolis, 10.20, evening. Arrive St. Louis, 7 o'clock, Friday morning, over Vandalia Line. Leave Springfield, 2.25 Thursday afternoon, passing Xenia, 3.10, and Dayton at 6.05 P. M. connecting with Pittsburg and Columbus party at Richmond. The above uses Pennsylvania lines. See Pennsylvania Company time tables. From Cincinnati take the Ohio & Mississippi 7 P. M. train, in connection with the Shenandoah Valley tour party, coming in from East over Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

From Philadelphia join the New York train of Wednesday evening, or take Baltimore & Ohio 4.45 through train of Wednesday, on which Shenandoah Valley tourists will embark at Harper's Ferry. Through car from Philadelphia to St. Louis.

From Springfield, Mass., connect with afternoon train from Boston, over Boston & Albany for either the direct route to St. Louis, or via Chicago.

From New Orleans and the South. Leave New Orleans, 6 P. M., Wednesday, via Illinois Central Railroad. Pass Jackson, Miss., midnight. Leave Memphis, Tenn., 9 o'clock Thursday morning, connecting with above train. Arrive St. Louis, 10 Thursday evening.

From Nashville, Tenn., via Louisville & Nashville Railroad, 7.20 Thursday evening. Pass Evansville, Ind., 1.20 A. M. and Belleville, Ill., at 6.40 A. M. arriving St. Louis, 7.40 Friday morning.

From Louisville, Ky. via Ohio & Missouri Railway, 7.40 Thursday evening, connecting at North Vernon, Ind., 9.35; with Shenandoah Valley tourists and Cincinnati party. Arrive St. Louis, 7.25 Friday morning.

From Minnesota and Iowa. Leave Minneapolis, Minn., 7.30 and St. Paul, 8.15 Thursday morning, via Minnesota & Northwestern Railroad, passing Randolph (Faribault connection), 9.26 A. M. Dodge Centre (Winona, Rochester and Mankato connection) 10.51 A. M. Austin (La Crosse, Wis., connection), 11.50 A. M. Marshalltown, Ia., Cincinnatti, Iowa, Railroad, 4.40 P. M. Oskaloosa, Ia., 7.10; Givin (Des Moines connection), 7.25 P. M. Ottumwa, 8.10 P. M. (West St. Louis & Pacific Railway), arriving St. Louis, 7 Friday morning. By reference to Map of the Minnesota & Northwestern and Central Iowa system, forming through line from the North to St. Louis, it will be seen that connection can be made with this train from all middle Iowa and Minnesota points.

From Wisconsin. Leave Neenah 11 P. M., and Oshkosh 11.25 Wednesday evening, via Wisconsin Central Railway. Arrive Chicago, 7 o'clock Thursday morning. Leave Milwaukee, 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, Goodrich steamer; arrive Chicago early Thursday morning. Join Eastern party in tour of the Boulevards, starting at 10 A. M. from Leland Hotel. Leave for St. Louis on evening Chicago & Alton train.

From Chicago on 9 o'clock evening Chicago & Alton train. Assemble at Leland Hotel before start.

From Omaha and Kansas City. Leave Omaha 11 o'clock Thursday morning via Missouri Pacific Railway passing Kansas City at 8.25 P. M. Arrive St. Louis, 6.40 Friday morning.

Down the Mississippi River. Water in the Mississippi being high in May, regular time is made. Steamer will leave from Rock Island, Muscatine and Burlington, arriving St. Louis Friday morning. At this writing, steamers not yet in commission, but will be running in May.

J. F. RALL, Sec'y-Treas.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, April 20, 1887.

KANSAS MEMBERS, ATTENTION.!

WE should be pleased to hear from League members in Kansas and Western Missouri who wish to attend the League Meet in St. Louis, May 20 and 21. We are endeavoring to secure a special car to leave Kansas City the evening of 19th May. If we can make up a party large enough to fill the car, the cost

DON'T DO IT!

The man who proposes to GIVE something for nothing is the same man who is trying to GET something for nothing.

WATCH HIM

Don't believe him when he tells you that a cheap Bicycle with cart-wheel bearings is "just as good" as a high-grade machine with Bown's Adjustable Ball-bearings. Nothing is had for nothing. Buy the best, and it will behave well, ride well, look well, and SELL WELL, after you have ridden it for years. Victor Bicycles are all forged steel.
If you find one ounce of cast metal in a Victor Bicycle, bring it to us, and we will pay $100 for it. All interchangeable. Catalog free.

of the trip will be very materially reduced, and the pleasure to be had from the trip will be greatly increased. If you intend going, let us hear from you at your earliest convenience.

ADDITIONAL REPRESENTATIVES.

ON an even date with this issue, those members who were published in BULLETIN of April 15th, List 82, become members of the League. This carries the membership to a point which gives additional representatives to States, as follows:

Connecticut, 1; Maryland, 1; Massachusetts, 1; New York, 3; Ohio, 1; Pennsylvania, 2; Wisconsin, 1.

ABBOT BASSETT,
Secretary-Editor.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

(28) WILL the firm which gets the contract for making L. A. W. uniforms send samples of the cloth to every member without special request from individuals? 13116. Ans. We think not.

(29) WILL some rider of the small wheel bicycles tell me if he experiences any great trouble from dogs? H. W.

(30) WHAT is the best route from Springfield, Mass., to New York State? Shall we bear to the north or keep on due west? F. F. W.

(31) IN the last issue of the BULLETIN, I saw an article in regard to the Ohio laws, and the trouble of a Canton rider; and would like to know if sect. 3490 of the revised statutes of Ohio, as amended during 1886, does not refer to wheelmen as well as vehicles drawn by horses? 10474.

(32) I WISH to inquire from some rider, who has tried it, what is the best present route for a tricycle, from Central Park or Riverside drive, New York, to Kings Bridge? 928.

(33) IN answer to (22) I will say, a great many complain about their spokes loosening. Some say that they put in wire, matches, and various other hard substances, but this is very injurious to the thread in the hub; but if they would take a small piece of raw hide and shave it thin, I think they will find it quite superior to wires, etc.; be quite careful not to tighten the spoke too much, for you can never make it as strong as at first. 10858.

(34) TO prevent spokes from working loose, I would suggest two methods: 1st. Heat the end of the spoke and socket in which it screws quite hot with a spirit lamp; place a small quantity of shellac on end of spoke; heat again to soften the shellac, and while very soft, screw quickly to place. 2d. Dip the end of spoke in a rather thick sandarac varnish and screw quickly to place and allow time to dry. 13282.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:—

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicant will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their ticket to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication you may look for your ticket.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

L. A. W. TABLE.
Made of Georgia Mahogany.
Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.
L. A. W. SYMBOL.
Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered Read what they say of it:
The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.
(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.
The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.
(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.
Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,
(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.
There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.—Thomasville Enterprise.
Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W. member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

WRITE VERY PLAINLY.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training, or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

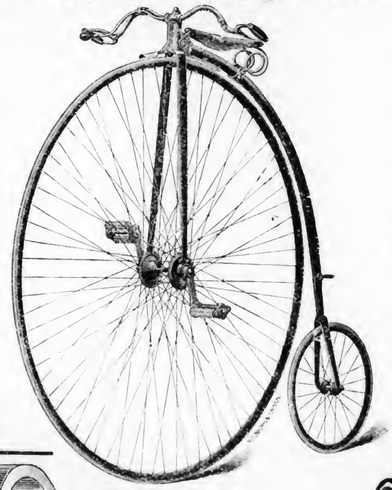
OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.



Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong, rigid fork.

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.

What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will be: rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

THE BEST IMPORTED PATENT COLD DRAWN

SEAMLESS * STEEL * TUBING

Is used for both Felloes in the

COLUMBIA LIGHT ROADSTER.

The tubing is imported in short lengths from W. C. Stiff, of Birmingham, England, Contractor to Her Majesty's War Department, and the original house of the only two in the world which execute this work. By special machinery at our factory the tubing is rolled into hollow crescent form.

This FELLOE is used by very few bicycle manufacturers, on account of its expensiveness, but its superior advantages in durability, insurance against buckling, and its great strength and rigidity, make us willing to guarantee it as the Subscribers should be careful to notify the EDITOR promptly of any change in their address. Great care is taken with the mailing list. Failure to receive THE BULLETIN may usually be traced to carelessness on the part of the subscriber.

All matter for publication, whether reading or advertising matter, should be addressed to the EDITOR. All checks should be made payable to his order.

Reading matter, to insure publication in the following issue, must be in the EDITOR'S hands not later than Saturday afternoon; advertisements not later than Monday morning.

The EDITOR must in all cases have the full name and address of the authors of contributed articles, as a guarantee of good faith. As the Executive Committee has decided that it is best to discourage the use of assumed names by writers for THE BULLETIN, the EDITOR will publish the author's name unless particularly requested not to do so.

THE Committee on Rights and Privileges has been criticised by the press because it saw fit to follow a precedent and withhold the election returns until they had been approved by the President. One paper goes so far as to call the vote of the committee a "stupid" one. Ever since State Divisions were established, the Committee on Rights and Privileges has been the counter of the votes for the Board of Officers, and it has followed the precedent established on the occasion of the first counting, when it was voted to give no particulars of the vote to any person whatever. The members held that they had no right to do so. It was their business to count the vote, and submit the result of their labors to the President for approval. The approval of the President was, they claimed, one of the factors necessary to completing the work of election, and no committee has a right to anticipate the President's approval. The committee of the present year held to the ideas of the first committee, and many State Division returning boards took the same view, but in one or two instances, all the facts were given out to the press by the committee. The BULLETIN would have published returns much earlier than it did, if it had thought it the right thing to do. We sought no advantage over our contemporaries, for we furnished them returns to be published on an even date with the BULLETIN. More than this, they should not have asked, and more than this no committee should have allowed them to do.

IT does not appear that we shall have much talk about the by-laws in St. Louis, for no amendment can be brought up that is not published in this issue. The by-laws call for a ten day's notice, and our next issue will not allow this to be given. Perhaps it is just as well that we do not carry the amending question too far.

MONEY sent by mail must be at the sender's risk. A bank check or money order is almost absolutely safe. A postal note is no safer than a bank bill. We have had several complaints lately from parties who have sent us money which never reached us. Much as we regret the loss of the money to those parties, we cannot undertake to make the loss good, for it is impossible for us to guarantee the safe delivery of money entrusted to the mails in an insecure form.

WE publish to-day, list No. 85 of applications. Those who apply for membership on this date will fully qualify on May 20, the day of the annual meeting. We shall then have 9,224 members. In 1885, we had 5,176 members on the date of the Meet, and in 1886, we had 8,463 members. The following States will be entitled to additional representatives over those elected, and these newly appointed men may act at the meeting of the Board of Officers in St. Louis: California, 1; Connecticut, 1; Illinois, 1; Iowa, 1; Maryland, 1; Massachusetts, 2; New Jersey, 1; New York, 4; Ohio, 1; Pennsylvania, 2; Wisconsin, 1.

WE are receiving a very large number of letters from members who have not received tickets. We have sent out all the tickets that we possibly can. Under the rules no tickets can be sent out until lists have been approved by the Committee on Membership, and up to date of writing no reports upon lists later than the one published March 4, have been received at this office. There are now eight lists due from that committee, and until we get them we can do nothing about sending out tickets. Repeated letters and telegrams to the chairman get no response whatever. We say this because the Secretary-Editor is being severely criticised for delay not his own.

IN preparing for the Clarkesville Road Race, great stress has been laid upon the attitude of the League towards the race. Long ago the League disclaimed all jurisdiction over road racing, and it has nothing whatever to do with it. A pertinent question arises as to what will be the attitude of the A. C. U. towards the race. The Union assumed jurisdiction over road racing last year, and all such races were run under its rules, but Mr. Ladish seems to have forgotten the Union, and he is arranging his race without regard to the rules made by that body. Will the Union assert itself, and prevent the racing together of amateurs and professionals in this contest. It cannot be said that the League works against the Union on this point, for we leave them a clear field to work in.

IT may be of interest to members to know that the advertising receipts of the BULLETIN for April more than paid the bills for printing it by a little short of a hundred dollars. Only once during 1886 did this occur, and this is the first time on record for 1887. Last month we made a transfer from Philadelphia, and although we came very near to the mark, we did not quite reach it.

THE wheelmen of New York have gained a signal victory in the campaign at Albany, for the so-called "wheelmen's bill" has passed the Assembly by a vote of 78 to 0. The passage of this bill will give the wheelmen the right to ride in Central Park without the restrictions that have been heretofore placed on cycles.

A NEW election has been ordered in the District of Columbia to settle the tie vote.

ST. LOUIS.

THE Meet committee met in the M. B. C. parlors on Wednesday evening. On a sofa, in the corner, lay an innocent cycling scribbler, dozing. They were giving a final reading to the completed proof of the official programme. The scribe conceived a "scoop." He would take it all down in short hand and send it to the BULLETIN. The result you see below. Rather mixed, yes. No, the scribe was n't drunk. He did n't write on his shirt front, cuffs, or thumb-nail, nor did the report fall into the hands of the fairy who scrambles eggs at the "Bakery." Here it is, just as heard: —

(Ally Stewart reads uninterruptedly for some time, when —) "to show the backing it has — do n't end that with a preposition — that's no prep — here, here, no levity (chairman) — wheelmen can ride right in — by jumping a nine-inch curb — all visitors will be presented with bandages — badges — why do n't you make it — those eastern fellows — sounds more euphonious — western howlers — that's in the conjunctive tense — Burley's a hustler you see — capitalize everything — come together, but Bidwell wants his party here a day earlier — DeSoto to Montesano — staunch brake and ordinary care — and no nerve — sooner they get here the better — where supper will be served — no, co lation may do for Boston, make it supper — we can show them the town — the boat will leave — Bob Holm's got it in for the Owl — a birds' eye view of the city — we 'll take the sedateness off them — bird's-eye, no, can 't make 'em sit on the smoke stack — those waiters are regular thieves — make it cycloramic view — get killed if they take my menu — the Shenandoah fellows — use it for a saddle bag after the Meet — they will be tough as thunder — the Lindell's filling up — with our own river's roar — funny mistake in the BULLETIN about Hotel Barnum — good hotel though — for heaven sake do n't mark up that proof — says we can't be toughs and gentlemen same time — picnic lunch — makes me sick — take out the hyphien — send him home with his feathers awry — several buglers — Hoffman of the citizens — upper case — going to put in that sketch, Ally — yes — it will paralyze — the fireworks on the bluffs below town — will have to get a special train Saturday night — Ladish's boat won't take half — oh, yes, wheelmen should register for the banquet — regular train leaves before nine — have a coasting contest on Crank Hill — Charley Green wo n't let us in — let it go in that way — ignored my request to let us into the Fair Grounds — is it all right now — circulate a petition among the citizens who subscribed, then get Green into a hole, put the screw on him and — set fire to his hair — with an illuminated parade, and clinch it with — tire cement — boys, that settles the programme — now rush it — that sketch goes in sure — wo n't the menu — send them all home happy — glad I came — move we 'journ."

A fine mess, but there are scoops in it for the observer. Now look out for the programme. It is brevity itself, but there is meat in every sentence, a leader to a frolic on every page.

And now I want a little chat with each one of you, regarding the Meet; why you should come to this particular Meet, and the best way to go about it. In the first place, come on the morning of Thursday, May 19, if you can. Why not strive for a week's vacation, and resolve to come early and see it all? Last year, I heard wheelmen, who had visited Meets before, say, "Well, I would like to see them all, but then, they are only the same thing over and over again." Rid yourself of that delusion at once. A number of the projectors of our Meet have benefited by experience, and they are prepared to suffer, as by sack-cloth and ashes if, on leaving us, you do not admit that the event is an entire novelty. Of course, the main features of every Meet will be necessary—the meeting, banquet, etc. Perhaps you remember even the latter as stale—a mere gorge—but we promise a change. Then there will be no concerts, minstrel show, slow races, or cycleries. One mammoth excursion, one grand forest picnic, and one big run through the parks will supersede these things, and therein you will find a novelty, and yet not suffer from a crush. We have talked much of our runs. You will not give them the go by, but will have time and inducement to take them in. In fact, we will not rush about, seeing only half, but practically move about in a happy body, hand in hand.

WHEN your train pulls into the Union Depot your wheel will be handed you from the baggage car, and a badge fastened on your coat. Then "follow the gang" out of the depot, quietly, mount and ride directly to the wheel-room; or, if your train is late, and you wish to tackle the run from De Soto to Montesano, beginning the frolic in that way, breakfast in the depot and catch the 8.15 down train. You will meet the excursion boat that night at Montesano, and have seen a road you will never forget, whilst ample hotel accommodations await you in the city on the return, a few squares from the wharves. Otherwise, leave your machine at the wheel-room, saunter to the Lindell Hotel, or Hotel Barnum, spruce up and chat awhile. Never spoil your fun by hurrying.

THE board meeting opens at 8.30. You can choose between that and a spin about town on the asphalt, visiting the club house and Forest Park. If you care not for the general meeting, at 11 A. M., leave your hotel at 8.30, and enjoy the pretty run, with moderate hills and elegant coasting, to Manchester, returning to dinner, if you are a scorcher (guides geared to any speed), or by 3 P. M. at latest, having dined at Manchester. You can shorten this run by riding eight miles out, coasting into Barthold's Valley, and returning noon, making a detour through Forest Park.

AT 1 P. M., you have several ways of spending the afternoon. After dinner, register for the banquet (at the Lindell) which occurs Saturday night. Now you can either ride out on the wide, smooth surface of the St. Louis bridge, viewing the harbor from the centre parapet, or, if you have missed the De Soto party, join another run which will start from the club house, but a few minutes away, at one o'clock. This will take you away from the bustle, down the easier end of the famous De Soto pike and through as pretty scenes as eye could wish for, to Kimmswick, where perchance, the north bound party may be encountered. Then across to Montesano, and all's serene until the excursion boat arrives with its merry crew. The boat leaves the city at 4 P. M. Store your wheel at the rear of the boat, please the inner-man a bit, and then open the throttle of fun, as the boat steams back to the city. So ends Friday. Will you come? It is Saturday, 7 A. M. Your tired frame may say it is only five. But get up and prepare for the parade. No parade, no picnic lunch; remember. If we can't induce you to ride in form and look pretty, however, you have the same alternative you had yesterday. The metropolis, the roads, and the club-house are all there. The midday feast will be regularly served on tables in Forest Park, probably in the pretty dale which lies just west of the "pump"—a little park by itself. The big round of the boulevards will start here, leading south and east through Tower Grove, and back to the clubhouse and hotel via LaFayette and the reservoir. As the ladies will probably have taken this run yesterday, you may follow without serious embarassment, the lieutenant who will turn south at Tower Grove and lead to the extensive Anheuser-Busch Brewery. You will not find this little run noted in the programme.

I WILL now leave you to yourself. After the banquet the curtain will drop, as far as St. Louis is concerned. Some of us will, doubtless, be in the city Sunday morning, but count on seeing the majority on board the Hudson, or a special train at midnight, en route to Clarksville.

AS to rain, the dates selected are singularly fortunate in that respect, as the last week of May is very seldom a wet one. Beside, ample provision will be made for such a misfortune.

PERCY STONE and others tried the Clarksville belt last Sunday, and found it in excellent racing condition, and the coasts are as grand as ever. There is not one hill on this road that cannot be easily climbed or coasted. Rhodes, with Daniels, the Victor trainer, was expected here to-day, and will go to Clarksville on Monday. Stone goes with him, and they will remain there until the event is over. Whittaker promises to be here in a day or two. The unlucky wight has had another accident.

ALL else, except road riding, is flat. The "foundling ticket" for C. C. and representatives proved the winner, and though no one admits that he is its author, the Missouri club, generally, voted it straight, and all seem satisfied.

THE Owl's brilliant analysis of a "tough," and his assertion that one cannot be a tough and remain a gentleman, has caused a stir. It is but a sample of the humorous (?) digs with which he has prodded the heathenish West, but judging by the comment I have heard on this last one, he has touched a tender spot. There is not a wheelman in St. Louis, big or little, who does not worship at the shrine of toughdom, physically speaking, and they opine that the wit with which tells them they are not gentlemen had better remain concealed within its author's evidently biased noddle.

THE proposal to hold another illuminated parade has been discussed, and delegates selected to confer with the citizens. PHOENIX.

THE OWL.

IT would seem but the proper thing that all league championships should be for a distance of three miles. It is a poor rule that don't work both ways. It takes three miles to make a league, so let the league take three miles to make a championship distance.

CHIEF Consul George R. Bidwell's petition in favor of the State division's pending bill at Albany, will be nearly seventy-five feet long, and have upon its face about ten thousand signatures. Among the names of prominent men who have endorsed the petition is that of Roscoe Conklin.

IF cyclists want to honor cycling missionary work, they have, in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Mason, two people that are deserving of any flattery in this line that could be paid them. They have arrived at Louisville, Ky., from their plantation near New Orleans, after a ride of over two thousand miles on tricycles, averaging nearly thirty miles a day. The trip was for recreation and health, Mrs. Mason adopting tricycling as a cure for inflammatory rheumatism, in which it has been found in her case to be thoroughly efficacious. The most wonderful part of the whole affair is that the trip has been pleasant, and accomplished without the usual parade of it in the cycling or daily press.

THE New York World has taken up a crusade against the wretched pavements of this city. It has had experts examining into the construction and cause of the superior pavements of London, and editorially remarks thereon as follows: "The wooden block pavements are as great a success in London as they have been a failure here The reason is, that though the material used for the surface is the same, the English contractors are made to put down a solid rock and tar basis. Wood with this basis becomes as solid as stone, and retains its elasticity. Public sentiment holds the key to the situation—a fact which seems to have been lost sight of. The last sentence presents a chance for a grand opening to the L. A. W. here. Let it be their duty to awake this sentiment in our citizens, and perhaps "future generations may rise up and call them blessed." The brains of that vague entity, the "general public," are hard to get at, though, when the road thereto trespasses upon their pockets.

MR. STANISLAUS KOMINOFF is the newly elected captain of a club of Russian cyclists in Moscow. Every time he takes a header, how natural it must seem to him "coming off" that way. Still there are thousands who ask that old, old question of "What's in a name?"

WHILE Squire Josiah Boggs, of Squashville, was returning from this city the other evening, he was overtaken by a young man riding a velocipede, and upon the Squire refusing to turn out of the road into a neighboring field to let the velocipede rider have the whole road to pass upon, the rider of the bicycle deliberately rode down upon the Squire and attempted to destroy his wagon by riding over it. Thanks to the strength of the vehicle, and Squire Boggs' ability as a driver, no damage was done, except the breaking of the velocipede rider's arm, and the complete wreck of his bicycle. Again we ask, are these dangerous things to be allowed upon our highways, to threaten the lives of our most worthy citizens? The foregoing is only a fiction, but it is about the way the "road hog" usually gets an account into his local paper, of an attempt on his part to use both sides and the middle of the road at the same time; and as the season has arrived for this line of literature, I thought I might just as well set the paragraph afloat.

IT seems probable now that New York will step to the front with a cycling clubhouse scheme of much magnitude and many novelities. The money is already secured, and an outlook for a desirable site is being made. Many novelties are contemplated in the structure. Wheels, lockers, kitchen, etc., will occupy the two top floors, the hoisting to which will be done by elevators. The entire basement, or rather cellar, will be occupied by a plunge bath, 100 x 25 feet, the temperature of the water in which will be kept at about seventy degrees winter and summer. These are some of the novelties promised; but it is yet too early in the affair to state definitely what will ultimately be done.

I SEE that St. Louis wants to get a bugler to the L. A. W. Meet. Well, that's an easy one. In a small village on the shores of Lake Michigan, called, I believe, Chicago, resides a gentleman, whose name, I think, is Oliver,—Ned, if I remember correctly. While I may be a little shaky about geographical location and nomenclature in the foregoing, I am positive of one thing, and that is, that this same Ned Oliver is the best bugler in America, from a cycling standpoint. Perhaps St. Louis don't think that a Chicago man can toot a St. Louis bugle with a sufficiency of toot; but in the person of Mr. Oliver, if they will accept my guarantee for the fact, they will find that he will fill the bill in all of its requirements.

THERE seems to be an unwritten law, and also an unbroken one, in back country papers that causes them always to refer to a bicycle as a velocipede.

THE Harlem's smoker on Friday evening was a fumigatory success. They did things up brown, regular tobacco color, and their guests helped to make things blue with the burning weed, and it was no fault of theirs if everybody was not smoked out.

I SHALL miss the checker board and arrow-pierced heading of the Bicycling World when it dons its new spring bonnet and dress of type. It was sometime in August, 1886, I think, that they adopted their present heading, with some slight addenda of bows, target, quivers, etc, etc., and the name of Mr. Charles E. Pratt graced the head of the editorial page as editor and manager. Week in and week out, that same heading has met my eyes with an unvarying cargo of cycling lore following it for seven years, until it has grown to be like an old friend whom you have tried and found true, and now that it changes, I cannot but feel that another pleasant link that bound me to the long-ago of cycling has been snapped in twain. The old must ever make way I suppose for the new, but I should have liked it better if they had left me my first love, in the line of a cycling paper, unchanged and unaltered.

I FEEL myself to be to-day a bird aged far beyond my fondest hopes of longevity. I have beheld a complete copy of "X. M. Miles on a Bicycle." After this the millenium!

THE OWL.

CHICAGO.

AT the regular meeting of the Chicago Club last Tuesday, it decided to vacate its present quarters at 189 Michigan Ave., on May 1. The club will not engage new rooms at present, but will hold monthly meetings at some place to be decided by the business committee. The club's effects, consisting of a piano, furniture, and pictures, will be stored at Gormully & Jeffery's factory until it has been decided whether it will rent new rooms in the fall or build a clubhouse. The club will be strictly a riding club this summer, doing more riding together than heretofore. It is expected that there will be quite a number of growlers, but all such are at liberty to resign, and the club will be much better off with this dead material out of it. They never attend a meeting, nor attend a run, and are only a hindrance to those who have any push in them. The Chicago's could disband very well at present, as they have no debts and some little cash in the treasury, and the club would be immediately reorganized and run on a riding basis. There are more good road riders in the club to-day than in both the other clubs together, and this, in my estimation, will be the basis of a club that will rank with any organization of a similar kind in the East.

I HIED myself to the West side on Saturday last, to an exhibition of trick riding by a deaf and dumb young man named Stout, on a Star, and several races, etc., by the Illinois cyclers. Stout certainly is the best trick rider I have yet seen, and has several would-be imitators in the Illinois club who, in consequence, have been under surgeon's care lately for broken and dislocated arms, etc. Among his many feats are those of riding down stairs, stand still on one chair, riding one wheel and climbing all over the wheel while in transit.

Messrs. Thorne & Webster played a game of polo on Stars, Thorne winning by a score of 4 to 0.

Bob Ehlert, on roller skates, raced a mile with Thorne, coming off victorious by a lap; and Palmer won the slow race, which, by the way, was the fastest slow race yet ridden in Chicago.

The hall was filled, and Mr. S. L. House, who engineered the thing, came out with the balance on the right side.

THE Chicago Club run to Wheeling last Sunday was more of a club walk than run. The road was O. K. to Jefferson, when it grew rapidly worse, and by the time Wheeling was reached was nearly unridable. We dined at Wheeling, on stewed horse hide and belly wash. After dinner, Crennan proposed to ride east to Glencoe on the lake, ten miles, and from there home via Evanston. Well, we walked every foot of the distance to Winnetka, the walk-away butter we had eat at dinner must have been what sustained us. From Winnetka to Evanston there is an excellent gravel sand-papered road to Cranston, and from there there is a good sidewalk to Lincoln Park.

MR. W. M. PETERS (Pete) was married this week to a St. Louis lady, and he desires me to state that he is in the market for a tandem.

I WILL state, for Gus's edification, that I got the item concerning the Owl Club's disbanding from one of the officers of the club.

THE prize list for the Pullman race is open, and there are two bicycles, two cyclometers, saddle, saddle bag, lock and chain, on the list already, with prospects of two more wheels, and a large list of sundries, etc. The list of entries will close May 10.

THE Butchers Association will hold a barbecue at Cheltenham Beach on May 28, and bicycle races are one of the attractions. Verily, the boys will have their hands full with the Meet, Clarkesville race, Cheltenham Beach, and Pullman handicap, all in one week. KID.

CHICAGO, April 27, 1887.

JERSEY.

I SEE that the Road Racing Association up Boston way is an accomplished fact. Good luck to it. I am told that its cup is not to be perpetual like ours. This I think is a mistake, as its value as a prize would be much enhanced by its being made a challenge trophy forever, like ours. It savors too much of pot-hunting to let it go into the permanent possession of any club, and the lack of historical value it would have were it to be the bone of contention year in and year out, will do perhaps not a little to belittle the struggles for it. Naturally, though, we think our plan the best, but none the less do we rejoice at the spread of our ideas and the formation of similar associations. What do they think up in New England of the suggestion that there be a National League of road racing associations, and team races to be held annually between them? If this be not practicable at present, then why not have in the fall a team race between the Boston, Rhode Island, and New York-New Jersey Associations, just to start the ball a rolling? The teams could be made up from the first four finishers in each race. Such a contest would be the event of the season. Will not some one take the initiative? A special meeting and a conference of committees would soon settle things.

AND speaking of road racing, a correspondent writes me that it is against the law. It may be; but then, if it is, the New Jersey statute has escaped my notice. I know of no law that prohibits the speeding of vehicles on the country highways. Certainly, the races that have been held throughout the country have worked no inconvenience to users of the roads. No sound of complaint has, at least, been heard.

NEW YORK bicyclers to-night will be on pins and needles of expectation, as the wheel bill is to be brought up for consideration at Albany. I had occasion last week to speak of the contempt with which the bicycle interests are treated by the New York press. The Tribune deserves some word of thanks from wheelmen, for, in an able editorial, it favors the passage of the bill, on the ground that it is a right which should be accorded, and not a mere privilege to be granted. I have managed to gain a foothold for the wheel in the New Jersey edition of the New York World, and as Mr. Harvey, the editor in charge, seems to be a liberal-minded man, and open to innovations, I think I can manage to help along the good cause a little, and increase somewhat public interest. And just here let me urge on wheelmen throughout the country the advisability of seeing that the local papers establish wheel columns. Editors are always glad to be helped out with their news, and volunteers receive a warm welcome. In no better way can effective missionary work be accomplished. I speak from experience, and attribute much of the big boom in my own town to the faithful attention paid the cause through the press. An increase in three years from eleven to fully one hundred and fifty wheels in a city of 30,000 population and with roads below the average at that, speaks volumns for the good results of earnest work.

Above all things keep dinging away about the roads. Constant dripping will wear the hardest stone away. The ignorance of the first principles of construction is surprisingly widespread. I see many evidences of this in the building of our macadams, some of which are ruined through faulty construction. McAdam said emphatically and in italics, that no loam must be mixed with the broken stone, as it held moisture, which was destructive. The stones should be as nearly as possible of uniform size, and their wearing against one another should be the only cement required. Then again, roads are made to cost more than necessary. The foundations are often dug too deep. The great road builder said that eight inches of broken stone was sufficient to make a perfect road across even a swamp.

THE talk in these parts is all road race. Saturday was the last day allowed for the declaration of intention to enter teams. I have not heard yet, from Secretary Bridgman, of the final nominations. There will, however, be the biggest field of starters yet, as the continued success of the Kings County men does not seem to frighten any one, but rather to stimulate the desire to snatch the cup from them. The Irvington-Milltown course is being visited daily by candidates for places on the teams, and even thus early stories of good time made are going the rounds. Few, however, expect that the time of last fall will be equalled, as on that day the conditions of road, weather, and wind were perfect. With a favorable day, the congregation of wheelmen will no doubt be enormous. All the clubs of the association will be fully represented, and every day one hears of some distant club that has resolved on a run through the Oranges in the morning, and a view of the great race in the afternoon.

JUDE F. DECKER, an Elizabeth bicycler, made an excellent run last Wednesday. He covered the distance from the Elizabeth depot to the Pennsylvania ferry at Jersey City and back, about thirty miles the round trip, in two hours and forty-eight minutes. The performance is remarkable from the fact that for fourteen miles of the thirty he traversed the cobbles and Belgian blocks of Elizabeth, Newark, and Jersey City. Horsemen had insisted that the distance could not be covered within three hours.

A BIG road race is on the tapis, the preliminaries for which are under discussion, so I am told. Last fall Stenken, of Jersey City; Wilhelm, of Reading; and Powell, of Smithville, issued a challenge to any three American amateurs for a team road race. The Columbia people, I understand, are now anxious to pick up the gauntlet with Rich, Powers, and Crist. If the match is made, the amateur road record for the distance selected will get a shaking up, or something will tear.

KLUGE is not going to Clarksville. He says that such a long distance would spoil his speed for the season, and that he can do more effective work for the King in shorter runs. The appearance of the new machine is looked for next week, and much interest is being manifested to see how the hermaphrodite rig will work. Time, road, and track racers are to be turned out, so that before the season closes a fair test will be had. One of the team road racers will trust his fortunes to one.

THE early Saturday morning runs of the Somerset wheelmen have called out an average attendance of fourteen. This club will wheel to Orange on Decoration Day, and view the road race.

DROPPED in at Howard A. Smith & Co.'s the other day. Mr. Smith was in high good humor at the season's prospects, stating that the business was bigger than ever before. "To give you an idea," he said, "of the boom this spring, let me tell you that the demand for second-hand machines is unprecedented. The whole of last year we sold one hundred and sixty-three second-hand wheels, while we have sold thus far this season ninety-three." Referring to the star boom, and the difficulty in getting orders filled at the factory, he said that his firm had foreseen this and had procured a big stock ahead. The star tricycle will probably not be brought out before late in the season, as they were engaged in making alterations and improvements on the original pattern.

THE Atalanta wheelmen have made no inconsiderable progress in raising money for their contemplated house. This completed, and the Essex and New Jersey boys will have to rustle to keep abreast of them.

CHIEF CONSUL COOLEY has obtained the refusal of Oraton Hall for a meeting of the New Jersey representatives previous to their departure for St. Louis.

RESIGNATIONS of non-riders have reduced the ranks of some of the clubs, but they are now in a healthier condition than ever, with all the members active, and no dead wood to carry. Those in now are in to stay.

A FRIEND of mine, who ought to know, says that the rumors of Quilly Rich's retirement from the path are without foundation.

THE Passaic and Rutherford wheelmen are seriously considering the project of uniting in the building for a bicycle race track near Passaic Bridge. And, by the way, work has actually begun on the Roseville track, and the Saturdays have all been booked except seven, which have been reserved by the directors for race meetings.

THE latest bicycle news that has been going the rounds of the Jersey daily press is that Jersey City is to enter their teams in the coming road. O tempora! O mores! O scissors! Will the time ever come when wheelmen can read the wheel items in the lay press with any feeling of confidence?

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

THE important event of the past week in Philadelphia has been the road race of the University Bicycle Club. First arranged for Saturday, April 23, it was then postponed on account of the weather until Wednesday. A more perfect day for the race could not have been selected. The pike was in splendid condition, and its macadamized surface was as good as the best of our cinder paths. The race was twenty-five miles; starting at Bryn Mawr, the course was laid six miles down the pike almost to Fifty-second Street and return, then to Berwyn and back. Thus the start, finish, and half distance were at Bryn Mawr. The race was practically a match between C. B. Keene, '89, and A. D. Whittaker, '87, as Page, the jumper, had withdrawn for fear of injuring his chances at the high jump. Keene has done very well in bicycle racing, as he has won the intercollegiate national and State championships. Whittaker is a strong road rider and oarsman, and will probably pull stroke in the university eight this year.

Starting at 3.23 P. M., the first two miles were covered in 6.25, and the twelve miles to nearly half way point in just forty minutes, which to any one who knows the Lancaster Pike hills means exceedingly good going. Whittaker was three seconds behind at half distance, and at Wayne was thirty-five seconds back, Keene finally winning by thirteen minutes, in 1.42 25.

Keene's mount was a 56-inch Rudge Light Roadster, and Whittaker's a 54-inch Columbia. The prize is a quite handsome gold bar, suspending a bicycle handle-bar, to which is attached a bicycle lantern with garnets set for lights. Whittaker looked very much the stronger at the finish, and rode in home very rapidly, while Keene came in on the train. Keene is only eighteen years of age, and would do well to refrain from long races for a year or two.

F. S. HARRIS, of the Germantown Club, was married April 26, to Miss Mary Morrow Borden. The happy pair have departed for an extended European tour, amid the howls of the G-T-N-S.

THE Athletic Club of the Schuylkill Navy will give a one-mile bicycle, one-mile tricycle, and two-mile bicycle race for their usual handsome medals, on May 28, at the grounds of the University of Pennsylvania, West Philadelphia. Keene is in for the bicycle events, and ought to make warm going for outsiders, as he is in good shape and has perfect knowledge of the track.

BARKMAN, of the Brooklyns, has been in Philadelphia for a week or so on business connected with the publication of the Rhode Island road book.

E. M. AARON has tendered his resignation to the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, but no action has as yet been taken by the club.

SUNDAY last was a magnificient day for riding, and crowds of cyclers were out. Nearly all of the clubs have new uniforms, and make a good appearance.

THE sports of the University of Pennsylvania, including their closed bicycle event, take place on May 14, and much interest is excited in them, owing to the action of the Alumni Association in offering record medals. PHACTOTUM.

NEW ORLEANS.

ON Saturday evening, 23d inst., the New Orleans Bicycle Club gave a very pleasant "smoker," at which a large number of the great unattached and other friends of the club were present. The club rejoices over the half dozen applications secured during the evening.

THE contract for the construction of a $30,000 shell road was let at the last meeting of our city fathers. 17,100 feet at $1.76 per running foot, is the price stipulated in the only bid received for the work. Fifteen thousand dollars has also been appropriated for repairs to the Canal Street shellroad, another much used thoroughfare. Verily, New Orleans is looking up in the matter of public improvements.

THE Olympian Club, a recent athletic organization of this city, will shortly hold a tournament of outdoor sports. A one-mile bicycle race is on the programme, and as Hill, Guillotte, Hughes, Guedry, and two or three other local flyers will enter, a lively run will be the result.

ONE of the attendants at the Carrolton Gardens, the cyclers' rendezvous of this city, asked me last evening what was the matter with the boys this year. He says that as compared with last year, their visits to the Gardens have been wofully scarce, and suggested that they must be getting lazy. It does look very much that way — either laziness or, as the Item remarks, it may be caused by sweethearts, — three marriages of N. O. B. C. members being on the tapis, gives color to the latter assertion.

THERE is a strong possibility that a small party of local wheelmen will attempt the yet unaccomplished feat of riding from this city to Baton Rouge (about 115 miles north) inside of twenty-four hours. If the weather remains clear, the start will probably be made Saturday evening, May 7, and by riding during the night the boys hope to reach the Capital by Sunday noon or thereabouts, the return being made the same evening, via. train. If the programme is carried out, this will be the first century run made in Louisiana, or any other Southern State, with the possible exception of Georgia, and will prove quite an eye-opener to the non-riding public; for let me tell you, the country roads of the South are far, very far from being sandpapered, — lots of sand, however.

"THE tour of the year." This is the way the records of 1886 read in reference to the famous New Orleans to Boston ride of three plucky Southerners, and it is quite likely that the same honorable mention will be again accorded the South in the history of '87. This time it is A. M Hill, of this city, and one of last years' tourists, and Tony Ingram, of Columbus, Ga., who will leave this place some time during the month of June, for a thirty-days scorch to Portland, Me. This will prove stale news to the cyclers of this section, but as, by what I presume was an oversight on the BULLETIN'S part, no mention has yet been made of this before, it will doubtless be news to some, even at this late day.

A PROMINENT member of the New Orleans Bicycle Club informs me that I am decidedly "off" in stating that that club will surely take its place among the non-league clubs after its next meeting. I received my information from pretty good authority, but as a few weeks will decide the matter, we shall wait and see what we shall see. BI.

SAN FRANCISCO.

AS century runs are not very frequently held by clubs, perhaps a short sketch of that held by the Bay City Wheelmen on the 17th inst. would be of interest to your readers.

The run was originally called for the 10th but owing to bad weather, was postponed.

At 5.15 A. M. sixteen men having shown up, the start was made. A very lively pace was indulged in to make up the loss of fifteen minutes, as it was the intention to start promptly at five, a regular schedule having been laid out. At Milbrae (thirteen miles) a stop of a few minutes was made. Here we were joined by the San Mateo club to the number of two. From Milbrae the road is very nice, and we went on our way, singing gayly. A few miles beyond here our first accident occurred. Cummings took a header, which cut his knee and injured the rim of his wheel. He, however, was soon plastered up, and overtook us at Redwood City. We reached Redwood City (twenty-five miles) at 8 A. M., and immediately proceeded to dispose of breakfast No. 2. Our captain has a very level head, and had the "eating part" of the programme arranged to perfection.

We left Redwood at 8.30, and wheeled through Menlo and Mayfield to Mountain View (thirty-seven and a quarter miles), where a halt was called to await the arrival of the San Jose boys.

After a ten-minute stop we mounted, and descried our long-legged friends in the distance, about ten in number. The Garden City Bicycle Club of San Jose does possess some very tall men, the average sized wheel being about 58-inch.

The San Jose boys escorted us to their native town, where we were welcomed by groups of spectaters, who were evidently on the alert for us. We dined at the expense of the Garden City Club, and left the town at 12.15 for the homeward trip, having made one hour's stop. Two of our number, Cummings and Sheldon, having injured their wheels, were left at San Jose, so we started back with fourteen Bay Cities and about a dozen Garden Cities, the latter leaving us at Mountain View, where we made a short stop.

After leaving Mountain View the wind began to come up, and the boys became silent, and gradually settled down to work.

At Redwood City we partook of a sort of "afternoon tea," and after a fifteen-minute stop once more set out for home.

A short stay was made at Milbrae, and at a milk ranch on the road. We arrived at starting point at 7.10 P. M., having consumed thirteen hours, fifty-five minutes, which included about two and three-quarter hours stops, making actual riding time about eleven hours, or a nine-mile an hour gait, which was not bad for a hundred miles. It was our original intention to beat the "Ramblers" century. I believe they got fifteen men inside of the fourteen hours. We, however, only got fourteen. This was owing to the fact that four or five of our best riders failed to show up.

THE Bay Cities have recently taken new rooms, and are fixing them up in elegant style. There is to be quite a large gymnasium attached, with lockers, shower, etc. and will prove a big attraction to the boys. This is something much needed by bicycle clubs, as a great many indulge in bicycling to excess, the result being that the muscles of the lower part of the body are developed at the expense of those of the upper part. We hope the other clubs will follow our example.

CHIEF CONSUL WELCH has taken a trip on the wheel to Southern California. This seems to be a favorite resort for L. A. W. officials. The boys all speak of the good times they have there.

THE California Division is to hold its Meet at Santa Cruz, July 3–6. It is the present intention to hire the pavilion and fit up cots, as the town is so crowded at that season of the year that hotels are at a premium.

The programme is to be: ball by citizens, July 3; Sunday, sea-bathing, sight-seeing, etc.; Monday, races, etc.; and in the evening reception by the hook and ladder company A competent committee has the matter in hands, and a grand time is anticipated 7607.

RESOLUTIONS.

THE undersigned, having been appointed a committee, desire to express the sorrow of the Massachusetts Bicycle Club for the loss of their much-esteemed fellow member, Mr. Horace B. Wilbur, and their sympathy with his family in their great bereavement. We greatly miss his genial presence amongst us. Although the oldest member of the club, he was always one of the youngest in spirit and sympathy. We can only say that every member of the club feels personally his loss, as a member and a friend.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to his family and to the press, and be placed upon the records the club.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE BULLETIN.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Why is it that the Wheel published two weeks ago the result of the election in this State; and in last week's number of the Bicycling World and Wheel appear the election of officers in Illinois, while the BULLETIN is minus any report whatever?

Is it possible that the State Division Officers, who can furnish the BULLETIN with the official reports, neglect to do so purposely?

I have noticed that many States forget that the BULLETIN is the proper medium through which they should reach the membership at large.

We have our divisions, and they, or at least some of them are doing splendid work in behalf of their members, but we hear of their work, not through the BULLETIN, but through some local paper, oftentimes a paper antagonistic to the BULLETIN.

I have taken the regular wheel papers since they first started, and almost every one has taken at times, mean advantage of the official organ of the League. I know whereof I speak, for I read every word of the many papers I take, and am not interested in any.

Can they not see that the League of American Wheelmen, with all its faults, is an association which should be supported and upheld by American wheelmen in its good work? In a country so large in area, it is more difficult to "handle" the membership, if I may be allowed the expression, than in a small, thickly populated country like England.

I believe in honest criticism, but when I hear an American say that "patriotism is played out," and that the League "is no good," I consider him devoid of any pride in his citizenship, or of any ambition to encourage home institutions.

I honestly believe that the League of American Wheelmen contains to day a greater proportion of intelligent men, than any organization of its kind in existence.

Did I not receive one iota of benefit I would pay my dues to help make it a success; and not try to make it a "laughing stock" in the eyes of the world.

I say it is stealing to take advantage of what an organization like this has given to the wheelmen at large, and not do something for its support.

We have had boy's play in the League, — so have other organizations; we have made mistakes, — so have others; but if we are men, we will drop our little selfish and personal spites, and make our League the League, — an organization of sound, broad principles, which we can turn to with pride, as we turn to our good and great country.

One of our best papers has "stabbed the League in the back" more than once, when it ought to have supported it.

You ask why. Well, it was not quite "English enough" to suit the Anglo-maniacs, and the League publishes a paper.

I hope the personal feeling against the League of one of our cycling editors, which crops out now and then, and which has been of long standing, will not lead him to taint the pages of an otherwise good paper, with, "not criticisms to better the League," as he says, but with remarks which have done much to hurt the League.

"Let us have peace"; and let us in unity of purpose make the "league of American Wheelman" an association which, we as Americans, can look up to with pride. It has done what the older and larger organizations of Europe were afraid to do, and if we all help a little, we can make it the greatest in the world.

HAVE seen the new cloth, and like it very much, but where is the report of co-t, etc., of the uniform which we are all anxiously waiting for?

I HOPE the shirt and stockings adopted by the League, will be of a material which will not shrink up so as to be too small after only a few weeks' wear.

THE "Ladies' Column," through the kindness of "Daisie," is a good feature of the BULLETIN, and I hope the ladies of the League — and there are just seventy at this date — will help her in her good work.

I notice no renewals of the goodly number of ladies of the Illinois Division, this year. Why is this?

I WISH there were more chief consuls like Mr. George R. Bidwell and a few others I might mention, for the work Mr. Bidwell has done the past year has been of incalculable benefit to the League at large.

We have some good representatives, too, in New York State.

I hope that Mr. Bidwell will not be forgotten at the Meet in St. Louis.

SHALL we reach fifteen thousand before the end of the year? I trust we shall. If each member will try to add another by showing the advantage of membership, it could be done without much trouble.

It would make the BULLETIN better than it is; and I now find much that is interesting in it. Members should read it more and help make it interesting. In this way we would increase not only our own interest but the interest of others.

The League does a good work in publishing a good paper.

Let us each and all "pay what we owe."

L. A. W. 2,747.

APRIL 26, 1887.

No. 5874 intends to wheel from Chicago to the Meet, and would like a companion. Leaving Chicago May 14. Particulars at 54 North State St., Chicago.

CYCLETS.

MAY,

WITH its flowers, its balmy weather,

AND its almost perfect roads.

THE month of the annual gathering, when we wind up the machine for another year.

NOW get your uniforms. Philadelphia has the contract.

IT looks as though Wanamaker would have to jump to clothe the men for the Meet.

THE committee has proved the wisdom of deliberate action. They have a reliable outfitter and a good contract.

OUR types made Louis F. Tracy Chief Consul of Connecticut. It should have read Louis A. Tracy.

THE Wheel, of April 29, has exterior and interior views of the Manhattan Athletic Club quarters.

THE Orange (N. J.) Wanderers will hold a century run June 4.

THE Ixions talk of holding a fifty-mile race on the Roseville track, on the morning of Decoration Day.

THINGS equal to the same thing, etc. The Globe and the World move to new quarters the same week.

THE Boston party to St. Louis is thinking of coming back by way of Niagara Falls, spending a day at that place.

NEW YORK wheelmen are working like beavers, getting signatures to the petition to the Legislature to pass the "liberty" bill.

BERT OWEN'S birthday run occurs next Saturday. Rex Smith and Will Robertson will play a match of polo, on Stars, during the festivities.

THE Springfield Bicycle Club Minstrels will appear at the Opera House, under the auspices of Wilcox Post, May 23 and 24, of Springfield.

THE Dorchester Bicycle Club finished its course of emergency lectures April 29, with an examination which was creditably passed by all those who took the course.

THE Hagerstown Bicycle Club have changed the date of their meet and races from June 2 to Monday, June the 13th, and they expect to eclipse their great meet of July, 1886.

ARTHUR L. ATKINS is expected to arrive in Boston in a few weeks. He comes east to take his family with him to the Pacific Slope, where he will permanently locate.

WASHINGTON wheelmen are in a hurry for the uniforms. They want to appear in them when they entertain their friends on the occasion of the National Drill.

THE Bicycling World will do its own printing in future, and announces many important new features, including a change of heading. They will locate on Pearl street.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, of Waltham, lost a tricycle last week. He loaned the machine for an afternoon to a prepossessing young man who, instead of returning the tricycle to its owner, sold it in Newton for $60 and departed.

THE Bay City Wheelmen, of San Francisco, have had their century run, and claim to have done as meritorious a performance as the St. Louis Ramblers did last year, and to have carried as many men through.

THE new clubhouse scheme of the Cambridge Bicycle Club has fallen through. The location on Winthrop street was not acceptable to the majority of the members. It is possible that another location may be chosen, and the house be built, just the same.

W. T. FLEMING, of the Century Wheelmen, Philadelphia, starts for Nebraska on his wheel next week. It will be his fifth annual trip to that section. He is working for a record of 8,000 miles this year, and has covered 2,000 miles since January 1. Last year he made 5,400 miles, and in 1885 he rode 5,500 miles.

SOME fifty or more League clubs have not been heard from. A large number of the clubs now on record will, we think, prove not to be League clubs this year, and all such we wish to take from the books. Secretaries will please oblige us with statistics.

THE handy wheel attachment known as the odometer for measuring distance has long been used. A new instrument called the "autographometer" has now been contrived to automatically register, being carried about on a light vehicle, the difference of level of the points over which it passes. The art of surveying threatens to be reduced to the mere rolling of a wheel. — Ex.

THE Cleveland Club will offer a prize to each member riding one hundred miles within twenty-four hours; another to the one who covers the longest distance within twenty-four hours, and another to the one who covers one hundred miles in the best time on any day but Sunday. The Athletic Park Company will have a race meeting July 4, and a three days' tournament in August.

GEORGE UPDEGRAFF & SON offer very comfortable and serviceable riding gloves, a pair of which they have sent to us for trial. They overcome the objection usually attached to skin gloves by openings for ventilation at the back. The fingers are cut off, and the machine can be manipulated freely. The glove seems to be well adapted to riding purposes.

THE most flattering recognition of the usefulness of the wheel came from a most prominent business house of this city, which last week raised the salary of an employé five dollars a month. He had considerable outdoor work to do for the firm, and did it on his wheel, which his employers told him made him that more valuable to them in the saving of car fare, the economizing of time, etc. — Spectator.

THE Buffalo Bicycle Club will vacate its present clubhouse on April 30, the date of expiration of its lease. The effects of the club will be placed in storage until the new clubhouse is finished The lot is already secured, and the building will be pushed to completion as soon as arrangements can be made. All communications should be sent to the secretary, A. C. Richardson, 68 Mariner St., Buffalo.

THOMAS STEVENS writes: "Owing to large measure of success attending maiden efforts on lecture platform, Major Pond, celebrated New York manager, who managed Stanley, Beecher, Geo. W. Cable, etc., has taken charge my management. Will prepare and manage lecture tours about country. Am contributing series of cycle articles to Harpers Young People. Henry Sturmey Cyclist, Coventry, will handle autograph copies of "Around the World on a Bicycle" in England.

WASHINGTON wheelmen have had Thomas Stevens to entertain and to listen to. The date was April 20. The riders turned out and escorted him about the city, and showed him the sights. Afterwards came the lecture. Stevens had his wheel on the platform, and this excited no little interest.

THERE were five valiant scorchers, who, after indulging in a three days' tour, began to fancy their riding powers on the road. An old horse came up on the Newcastle road; it was an old, old skin, and they thought it would be a charity to take it on and send it as soon as possible to the tan yard. Alas, for human hopes so buoyed, they were beaten somewhat easily, and when the driver pulled up at a "pub," and offered to sell the old horse for ten dollars, they fancied their scorching days were o'er. — Ex.

WE saw Gideon Haynes ride an Apollo Safety with hands off the other day. He has ridden a stretch of two miles in this way, and he claims that it can be done on no other machine of the Rover type. We shan't attempt to disprove him, though we have some faith in Sam Patch's motto, "Some things can be done as well as others."

In Outing for May, Charles E. Pratt contributes a valuable addition to the bicycling literature of the day in discussing the legislative rights of American wheelmen to the highways of the country. The article is most opportune, and will serve to bring the question to the impartial discussion of the general public at the time when the Legislature is taking action in the matter.

THE Pope Manufacturing Company has published a beautiful lithograph, of unique and artistic design, suitable to display in door, window, or office, announcing that "This store closes on Saturday at two o'clock." By an arrangement of stickers, any hour can be given. The company will send, free, upon receipt of two-cent stamp to pay postage, one of these cards, securely packed, to any one who desires to display it for the purpose named.

THE PATH.

WOODSIDE rode 20 miles 202 yards within the hour, April 16, at Ball's Bridge.

THE Eastern Road Club will hold its first race on Saturday, June 11, over the Dorchester Club course. Each club will enter three men, and the race will be counted as in a lap race.

THE 25-mile road race of the University of Pennsylvania Bicycle Club was run April 27. The contestants were A. D. Whittaker and C. B. Keene. The former was the favorite, but was defeated by Keene by 13 minutes. Winner's time, 1.42.25.

AT Leicester, during the Easter races, Lees defeated Howell in the mile face, but the next day, in a 10-mile race, fortunes were reversed, Howell winning in 33.26.

A RACE meeting will be held by the East Hartford Wheel Club on May 10. The programme of races will not be determined for some weeks, but among the events already decided on are 1 and 5-mile open races, 1-mile 3.20 class, and half-mile handicap in heats. There will be three prizes in every race in which there are five or more starters, four in handicaps if there are six starters, and five prizes in the consolation races. The tournament is designed to bring out new riders.

THE annual spring season of the Woodstock, Can., Amateur Athletic Association will be held on May 24. The bicycle events will be as follows: Five-mile, championship of Ontario, gold medal. One-mile, green, first prize, gold and silver medal; second prize, silver medal. Five-mile, open, first prize, diamond ring; second prize, diamond scarf pin. One-mile, open, first prize, gold watch; second prize, diamond sleeve links. Two-mile, championship of Oxford, W. A. A. A. cup. Half-mile, open (in heats), first prize, silver tilting pitcher; second prize, opera glasses. Two-mile lap race, open, first prize, gold chain; second prize, silk umbrella.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

IMPORTANT.

NEW YORK, May 2, 1887.

To the members of the League of American Wheelmen:

THE contract for making the League uniform has been awarded to John Wanamaker, Philadelphia, Pa., at the following prices: Coat, $6.20; trousers, $4.34; shirt, $1.95; hose, 80 cents; cap, 84 cents. The prices, as above, cover delivery without extra charge to any part of the United States, reached by mail, or express facilities. The uniform and parts thereof will be supplied to League members only.

Those wishing the cloth for the purpose of having suits made by home tailor, will be supplied by the manufacturer of the uniform, at an advance of 25 per cent per yard. The cloth will be supplied to none but members and procured only of Jno. Wanamaker, Philadelphia, Pa.

A descriptive illustrated price list, order blanks, and blanks for self-measurement will be mailed to every member of the League at an early date.

The manufacturer is now ready to receive orders, and has facilities for supplying any reasonable demand at short notice.

TRANSPORTATION TO LEAGUE MEET.

IMPORTANT.

WHEELMEN of New York City and vicinity who intend going to St. Louis will please communicate at once with George R. Bidwell, 313 W. 58th street, who will furnish full particulars as to leaving time of train; rates of fare, seven cents. The party from New York and vicinity will leave via. West Shore R. R., May 17, 5.40 P. M. Early notification is desired in order to secure proper sleeping car accommodations. The reduced rates, as published in a recent issue, can only be obtained by certificate signed by me.

GEO. R. BIDWELL.

TO INDIANA WHEELMEN.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made for reduced rates over the Bee Line to the St. Louis Meet. The rate will be one and one third fare, and tickets will be sold at any point on the Bee Line or L. and St. L. R. on the certificate plan. That is, the purchaser pays the fare one way, gets a certificate, to which he procures the signature of the secretary of the meeting at St. Louis, which entitles him to one third fare home. The Bee Line officials have notified me that if a sufficient number go to require it, they will put on a special baggage car for wheels, and also a special chair car in which seats will be free.

The Indiana party will leave Indianapolis at 10.50 P. M., May 19, and arrive in St. Louis at 7.30 the next morning, and we hope to see every wheelman in the State turn out.

CENTRAL TRAFFIC ASSOCIATION.
Passenger Department.

OFFICE OF THE ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER.

CHICAGO, April 25, 1887.

GEORGE H. DANIELS, Assistant Commissioner,
215 La Salle St.

B. B. AYERS, Esq.,
212 Clark St., Chicago.

Dear Sir,— The Central Traffic Association has granted reduced rates for delegates attending the convention of League of American Wheelmen, to be held at St. Louis, Mo., commencing May 20, 1887, upon the following conditions, viz.:—

Each delegate must purchase a first-class ticket (either unlimited or limited) to the place of meeting, for which he will pay the regular fare, and upon request, the ticket agent will issue to him a certificate of such purchase.

If through tickets cannot be procured at the starting point, delegates will purchase to the most convenient point where such through tickets can be obtained, and repurchase through to place of meeting, requesting a certificate from the ticket agent at the point where repurchase is made.

Tickets for the return journey will be sold by the ticket agents at the place of meeting, at one-third the highest limited fare, only to those holding certificates signed by the ticket agent at point where through ticket to place of meeting was purchased, and countersigned by the secretary or clerk of the convention, certifying that the holder has been in attendance upon the convention.

It is very important that a certificate be procured, as it will indicate that full fare has been paid for the going journey, and that the delegate is therefore entitled to the special fare on return. It will also determine the route via which the tickets for return journey should be issued.

Tickets for return journey will be furnished only on certificates procured not more than three days before the convention assembles, and will be available for continuous trip tickets only; no stop-over privileges being allowed on tickets sold at less than full fares. Certificates will not be honored unless presented within three days after the date of adjournment of the convention.

Ticket agents will be instructed that the reduced fares will not be available unless the holders of the certificates are properly identified, as above described, nor unless the secretary or clerk has given notice in writing to the various ticket agents at the point at which the meeting is held; that one hundred or more persons who have purchased full fare tickets for the going passage, and hold properly receipted certificates, have been in attendance upon the convention.

The certificates are not transferable, and the signature affixed at the starting point, compared with the signature to the receipt, will enable the ticket agent to detect any attempted transfer.

Yours truly,
GEO. H. DANIELS,
Ass't Commissioner.

NOTICE OF AMENDMENT.

To the Board of Officers L. A. W.,

Gentlemen,— I desire to give notice that at the meeting of the Board, in St. Louis, in May next, I shall move to amend Art. II, Sect. 1, of the By-Laws, so as to place the Annual Meeting of the League between the dates of the 15th of May and 1st of July, inclusive.

Also, Sect. 4, same Article, striking out the "Fall Meeting of the Board." and placing the "Winter Meeting between the 1st and 20th of January, at the call of the Executive Committee."

Giving also the president power to call special meeting of the Board, upon advice and consent of the Executive Committee.

C. S. BUTLER,
Rep. in and for New York.

BUFFALO, April 26, 1887.

TOURISTS, ATTENTION.

I DESIRE to arrange a complete list of Division, county, and club tourmasters; also, of all wheelmen connected with touring boards or committees. Will all such write me at once, stating name, address, nature of office held, and when appointed?

Fraternally,
N. L. COLLAMER,
Tourmaster.

APPOINTMENT.

OFFICE OF CHIEF CONSUL,
PA. DIV., L. A. W.

SCRANTON, PA., April 30, 1887.

I HAVE appointed J. J. Van Nort, of Scranton Bicycle Club, as representative for this Division L. A. W.; we being entitled to an additional one since the election.

GEO. A. JESSUP,
Chief Consul.

TO IOWA, ILLINOIS, AND MINNESOTA MEMBERS.

WHAT think you of this scheme? To those of you who intend going to the League Meet, via the St. Louis, Michigan and Northwestern Railroad, or St. Louis and Minneapolis Railroad, I would say, can't we manage, as many of us as possible, to take the same train, say the one that would put us into St. Louis, Friday A. M., at 7 o'clock, May 20. In this way we can become acquainted, and have a jolly good time while going down, which would prepare us for the better time we expect on arrival at St. Louis.

Let all who can, go via this route, which is accommodating to wheelmen (carry wheels free), and which passes through the town that is going to have the grandest road race the country has ever known. Let everybody come, and buy your tickets to stop over at Clarksville, Mo., on returning from the Meet.

H. C. CAKE,
L. A. W. 8123.

TRANSPORTATION TO LEAGUE MEET.

Circumstances have made necessary a change in the time of leaving of the L. A. W. train to League Meet, as published in this paper in a recent issue. The corrected time table is as follows:—

NATIONAL DRILL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30, 1887.

IN connection with the national drill to be held in this city from the twenty-third to the thirtieth day of May next, the District of Columbia Division of the League of American Wheelmen propose holding a Division League Meet, for the reception and entertainment of L. A. W. members visiting Washington at that time. In view of the greatly reduced rates of transportation, and the fact that it will be an easy matter for wheelmen attending the St. Louis Meet to extend their trip to Washington, it is hoped that a large number will be present on this occasion accompanied by their wheels. Extensive arrangements have been made for the comfort and pleasure of visiting L. A. W. men, and all that is necessary to insure the success of the enterprise is the presence of a large number of wheelmen. Will you

NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

(35) WHICH Division of the League claims seniority? H Ans. New Hampshire, organized Sept. 18, 1882.

(36) WHERE has the electric timing been used? and is it a success? Where can one obtain information regarding it? J. J. C.

(37) SUPPOSE a bicycle be bought and used for two months in England; its identity established before United States Consul; be brought to this country in steamer with owner; in such a case is the wheel subject to duty? 8844. Ans. No duty should be charged for the wheel.

(38) 1. WOULD like to know if it is advisable to take a lantern (hub) when touring? 2. Should like to know if it is possible to ride from Albany, N. Y., to Philadelphia, via Binghamton, Scranton, etc., distance, condition of roads, etc.? 3. Can some one suggest a good route from Philadelphia to Long Branch, not to take longer than six days? 13080.

(39) ALLOW me to offer my personal experience on the perspiration question. When a boy, I could not perspire, and consequently suffered greatly from the heat. I then attempted to keep cool by daily cold baths. This caused profuse perspiration as long as practised. Lately, I have used warm or tepid water for bathing, and find the perspiration much reduced. Try warm baths, and avoid iced drinks, if you wish to keep cool in hot weather. C. E. DURVRA.

(40) MR. COLLAMER'S advice for the "sweaters" is so good, I must indorse and recommend it. If he wishes to keep his direct spokes tight, he can do so by wiping the threaded end and the hole in the hub perfectly dry, and then dipping the end in powdered pumice before "sending home." This answers very well, if the thread is not too much worn. I hope he will be as much benefited by this, as I am sure the sweating contingent will, by his advice. 13480.

(41) IN the BULLETIN of April 1, 3913 wants to know if the St. Louis roads are ridable for a tricycle. Yes. When you come, bring your three-wheeler, and you will never regret it. Every foot of our roads is ridable for a trike. 12470.

(42) REPLYING to No. 28, I can inform the writer that the very best possible way to get along with dogs, is to run over them. Not being a rider of a very small wheel, I am not sure that my experience will be of any benefit to him, or, perhaps, her. When I see a dog in eager readiness for attack, I entice him into proper position, and, taking all advantage of time, I run him down with a 54-inch Coffee Mill Star, weighing about eighty pounds, independent of the rider's avoirdupois. When doggie regathers his faculties, it is with a sort of compression, which he puts in the form of a resolution to ever after avoid even the shadow of a cycle.

(43) TELL No. 28 to argue with a dog. Let him laugh at the canine, and tell him he is a fool to run after a wheel. In many cases the dog will go home in a sheepish way. If that does n't do, let him get off and kill the dog with a brick. KAY.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws.

Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

L. A. W. TABLE.

Made of Georgia Mahogany.

Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.

L. A. W. SYMBOL.

Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered. Read what they say of it:

The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.
(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.

The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.
(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.

Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,
(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.

There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world. Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.— Thomasville Enterprise.

Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W. member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.

What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

A FEW INTERROGATION POINTS, GENTLEMEN.

Why be deceived by middle-men who call themselves manufacturers and are not?

If their statements about themselves are untrue, why not their claims regarding the merits of the wheels they sell, or rather attempt to sell?

Why be deceived by statements about records acquired on wheels so frailly constructed as to be useless on the road?

Is not the effort to associate the performance of one wheel with another, because only it is sold by the same middle-men, an effort to deceive?

Is it not reasonable to suppose that the buyer can get a better value for his money from the agent of the manufacturer than from the agent of the manufacturer's agent?

Is it not logical and wise to conclude upon a mount from the arguments and testimony of road riders who hold all the more important world's road and long-distance records, obtained too on American champion roadsters, rather than from the testimony of riders using 22-pound machines on specially prepared surfaces?

AND now New York wheelmen have a field to work in, which will bring forth fruit in abundance if it is skilfully cultivated and nurtured. The "Liberty bill" has passed the Lower House of the Legislature and is now in the Senate, where some opposition is expected, the degree of which cannot be anticipated. To defeat this opposition the senators must be impressed with the great demand on the part of the people, for the passage of such a bill as this, and the demand can best be shown by the size of the petition which goes to them. Blank petitions have been sent to wheelmen throughout the State, and these should be filled at once and forwarded to Chief Consul Bidwell. Beyond this, wheelmen should bring to bear upon the senators any and all influences that they can. It is of the highest importance that this bill should pass. It will stand as a precedent for other State Legislatures and its passage will do the cause a world of good. Give a day to the cause, gentlemen of the New York Division, and do not keep your coat on, either.

THE Board of Officers have hardly yet made the best rule for proxy voting. Under the present rule, a man must write on the blank the name of his proxy, and stand a good chance of sending it to a member who has more proxies than he can use. There should be a provision whereby any member could send his proxy to the Secretary of the meeting with definite instructions regarding each vote that he desires cast. Under such a rule as this, the Secretary could not abuse the proxy system, for he would have no power to transfer the proxy, nor to vote it on any question except those where special instructions are given. Very many men will be unable to vote at St. Louis for want of a proxy appointed under the present rule of the Board.

The Bicycling World has put on a tasty uniform, and looks well in the new dress. The three columns on a page have given place to two wider ones, and ornamental headings have been adopted. C. W. Reed has designed a new heading for the paper, and altogether an improvement has been effected. We wish our contemporary all manner of success, and we trust that the marked improvement in its appearance will be duplicated in its business department.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

I HAVE been looking over a number of interesting letters that came to a good friend of mine, who contributed an article on "Tricycling for Ladies" to a religious paper, and I have been surprised to find how little is really known regarding the tricycle, if we may judge from these epistles, by those who live in places remote from the large cities.

A VERY large number ask for particulars regarding the machine, as though my friend had been telling of some new and wonderful thing that would astonish the world at an early date, and then of course, there was the oft-repeated question, "which is the best machine to buy?"

ONE lady wrote for particulars on behalf of her pastor, who has been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, and she told my friend that if he thought the "new machine" would rid him of the trouble, she had no doubt the parish would present him with one.

ONE letter came from Germany, and was written by a lady, who said she was a sufferer from a nervous affection, and unable to walk, and she thought that perhaps the tricycle would come to her aid in furnishing an agreeable outdoor exercise.

THESE letters show that there is a field that has not yet been fully cultivated by the dealers. A very large contingent of would-be riders stands ready to take up the wheel when its advantages are made known by a practical demonstration. This work of practical demonstration is being done most faithfully by those who ride. I have a very large acquaintance among those ladies who have taken to the wheel in Boston and vicinity, and among them I know of not one who lacks enthusiasm for the sport, nor do I know of one who fails to urge her friends to follow her example.

BUT riding the wheel has its unfortunate limitations. The fact must be admitted that there are but few places in America where a lady can ride and enjoy it. On the sea coast of Massachusetts, in the Orange district of New Jersey, and in the parks of Buffalo, New York, and other large cities, a lady can ride, and get very much pleasurable exercise without hard work. But, alas, that I should be forced to say it, America has a preponderance of sandy and cart rutted roads, passable on the foot-path for our brothers on the bicycle, but presenting to a lady on a broad-guage three-wheeler the disheartening legend, "No thoroughfare." The improvement of the highways in America presents a problem so stupendous that it would seem to call for many Leagues, with very large memberships and very great influence, to impress upon the public mind the necessity for some settled policy of road building which shall give us, in the dim future, better paths for our wheels.

"VIOLET LORNE" has been taking me to task for some sayings of mine which give her displeasure. I will give what she says just as it comes from her pen:

"Daisie's views upon the great dress question are quaint enough to induce the unworthy suspicion that she is but a theoretical wheelwoman after all. Could any rider of experience seriously suggest silk and linen, or Lisle thread gloves as useful wear, or advise a ventilated helmet as head-gear? But it is on the subject of gowns that she is most eccentric in her advice. 'The skirt,' she says, 'should be without back drapery, and each one can suit her taste and pleasure about the front.' The liberal spirit of this permission is borne out by the neat, gracious assurance, 'a little drapery can do no harm in riding.' This is a great relief to the anxious beginner, but to the more experienced rider the mental vision of a gown elaborately draped in front, and devoid of decoration behind, has a weird and gruesome effect, necessitating a desire on the part of the dismounted wheelwoman perpetually to practise the correct mode of exit from the presence of royalty. 'Daisie's' concluding direction — 'Make the skirt of ordinary walking length in front, with a slope of three inches at the back,' shatters into fragments the last fond dream of this surviving hope of escape."

Violet has a very unfair way of taking a person's words and distorting them into grotesqueness and then arguing from the conception which is her own. She did this a few months ago, when I said that the Chelsea ladies had a small bow of ribbon, of the club color, on the head of the machine, for she drew a picture of wheels elaborately trimmed with ribbons, and condemned the practice. Mark the same word "elaborately" to describe the front drapery of a skirt which I said need not be entirely plain.

If there is anything better than the costume I described, I would like to have Violet describe it. I have worn the dress described, not theoretically but practically over many, many miles of the road. I have found it comfortable, inconspicuous, both for its want of elaborate trimming and for its want of plainness, and admirably suited to its uses; and, moreover, there are many more just such dresses in Massachusetts.

If kid or dogskin gloves are preferred to the ones I recommended, the ladies may wear them. I have tried nearly everything and I still hold to the flexible and well-ventilated gloves to which Violet is not yet a convert.

DID I recommend the helmet? Oh, no! I was careful not to do that, for I know that there is a prejudice against it. Read me aright, and you will see that I said that I wore such a headgear. I will not deny that I wear it, because I find it the coolest and most serviceable all-round head wear that I ever tried, and I have tried many. It is not the prettiest, I will admit, but it is not altogether ugly.

DAISIE.

THE OWL.

AN evening paper, which has a so-called cycling column, edited by the "horse editor," says: "A. B. Rich expects to win about twenty-five first prizes this season. How refreshing this is? Mr. Rich may win his twenty-five firsts, if there are that many local races around New York, as he is the only racing man here; but when he comes against such men as Du Bois, Foster, and Crist, he won't find the winning so easy. Crist has spent the winter in the gymnasium, and will come to the track in the spring meetings in fine condition. Taking the closing form of last season as a basis, and allowing an equal percentage of improvement in form and condition in both Crist and Rich, I think that the Washington flyer will ride from three to five seconds faster in the mile than Rich. Should Crist improve as much as it would be reasonable to expect on his last year's form, he will take record this season in some of the intermediate distances. Rich's strong point lays in his spurting abilities, while Crist's is in stamina. There is not a man in America who can ride a waiting race till the stretch is reached, and beat A. B. Rich over the line. Yet, a half mile dash, ridden at a slashing pace, would kill him, while Crist, being a "vater," could carry that distance in almost a continuous spurt.

THE latest from Philadelphia is the information that "we will back Kirk for the next presidency." Supplementing the "backing" is the information that this great "backing" is given solely on account of Kirk's (whoever that may be) ability as a story-teller of some kind or other. On what small things the destiny of people often revolves! A few grains too much pepper in his Weiner Schnitzel might put Bismarck in such raging irritation that war with France would be declared at once, so, from the telling of some story or other, this Mr. "Kirk" is doomed to lose the "presidency." Some time since in this column appeared an item to the effect that they had begun preparations for building a clubhouse in Philadelphia by fencing out the cows, etc. The latest bulletin regarding this important rural affair is in the following paragraph "Right you are, friend 'Owl'; not only to keep out the cows, but the calves and donkeys." My apologies are due Philadelphia for leaving out these representative citizens of a village, though, of course, I know that building in Philadelphia without this precaution would be an extremely hazardous and annoying undertaking.

THE manufacturers of a certain make of wheel advertised, a few months ago, that a rider of one of their bicycles had ridden it 13,498 miles within the year just passed. Do you know when you deal with the figures involved in this claim, the performance is but little short of a miracle? Taking for granted the rider employed only sixty-five days in the whole year for business, etc., and devoted the remaining three hundred to riding, he would have to average about forty-five miles per diem for each of the three hundred days. Supposing, an impossibility, that the rider found the roads, weather, and himself in suitable condition for riding, on each of the three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, he would still have averaged about thirty-seven miles per day. Can this be possible? In default of any information of a definite kind we will suppose that the rider accomplished this wonderful performance upon an averaged sized wheel, say a fifty-two inch, he would then have to cause it to revolve a fraction over 5,234,039 times. Taking an average road gait of seven miles an hour, he would have to ride night and day without varying or stopping for over eighty days. To put it mildly, in the light of the foregoing figures, I doubt if any such distance has been or ever will be covered in the average number of riding days in a year. The only record that I see rightfully belongs to the claimant of the foregoing mileage is one that Ananias has heretofore held undisputed possession of for over two thousand years, but who will now have to "throw up the sponge" after this claim for 13,498 miles in a year is made.

A TWO-page treatise on cycles for military purposes, in the programme of the Twelfth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y. at their recent athletic games, was well written, and attracted much attention. The writer uses a term in reference to Rover-typed wheels, that strikes me as being particularly appropriate, — he calls them the "Shetland Pony of cycling."

The following postal-card explains itself. Therefore, my noble six hundred, let it be said of you, as was said of the same number at Balaklava

"Boldly they rode, and well Into the brewery, the six-hundred."

OFFICE ANHEUSER-BUSCH BREWING ASSOCIATION.
ST. LOUIS, May 2, 1887.

Dear "Owl." — Some time ago, you stated in the BULLETIN that you knew of at least six hundred men (in your mind) who would visit, or rather come to the "Meet," providing an invitation was given to visit the brewery. Well, sir, this has been done, and you are requested to bring your six hundred along. Fraternally,

7,300.

N. B. The signature "7,300," is the writer's L. A. W. number, not the number of drinks of beer allotted each visitor.

THE above, and the subject treated (no pun) of, brings to mind the fact that Kennedy-Child and Frank Belden were here last week, and put me through a part of the initiation of that most noble order, known as the "Wild Earthmen of America," which requires that the Earthman drinks whatever the presiding officer orders. I am a little bit in doubt as to the closing part of the performance, but I am positive I had everything from a Manhattan cocktail to a pousse-café, before I lost track of drinks and events. Should Kennedy-Child start the organization of the Wild Earthmen in America, the foregoing branch of its initiatory proceedings will be a grand success, especially if the presiding officers pays for, as well as orders, the liquids. My advice would be to him to make some arrangements beforehand with an undertaker, on a commission, as business in this line will be boomed, if the balance of the ordeal for a neophyte be as severe as above-mentioned.

AT the dog show, now in progress at Madison Square Garden, there are representatives of four hundred different kinds of canines, and among these, I could not find my old enemy the "yaller dorg," whose proclivities for snapping at cyclist's legs has made him well-known to every rider of the wheel in the world, and of a pronounced enough type, to entitle him to exhibition honors. I should dearly delight in seeing every one of this species of dog that the universe contains, and they are millions, exhibited at the end of a rope, one end around the dog's neck in a noose, and the other tied up high enough to cause the lovely canine's hind feet to be almost a foot from the ground. THE OWL.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

EUGENE M. AARON'S resignation has been accepted by the Pennsylvania Club, and that important and extensive organization shows its usual wisdom in remaining loyal to the League. Mr. Aaron proposes to retire entirely from cycling, and has offered his different machines for sale to the highest bidder. To very many Philadelphia riders Mr. Aaron's withdrawal is felt as a blow at the interests of the sport. Others think it the best thing for him to do under the circumstances, but all unite in a friendly farewell to the man who has made so big a rumpus, even though they may not altogether endorse the aforesaid rumpus.

The feature of the past week has been the first Annual Dinner of the Century Wheelmen. Eighty members, with their invited guests sat at the festive board and enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent; some to an unwalkable extent, like Mark Twain's frog. The new Chief Consul, Mr. Geo. A. Jessup, of Scranton, responded to the toast of "The L. A. W.," and ex-Consul Wells made appropriate reply on behalf of the "Cycling Press." Mr. Frank Read, President of the Germantown Club, acted as toastmaster, and did it brown. Altogether an exceedingly pleasant evening was passed.

C. B. KEENE, University of Pennsylvania, won the mile race and fell in the two-mile, at Wilmington, Del., May 7. He had three seconds start on Wilhelm, of Reading, in the mile, and gained over fifteen seconds on him, winning in 3.19, on a very poor track.

MR. L. ROBERTS, of the Pennsylvania Club, is about to take a trip through England, Ireland, Scotland, and part of the Continent on a tricycle. He will leave early in June, and expects to be gone until Fall. Mr. Roberts is a well-known photographer, and his object is the securing of photographic views. He will fit out at Coventry, having a tricycle made that will be specially adapted for his requirements.

MESSRS. Bailey and Fleming, of the Century Wheelmen, on Sunday last, rode from the clubhouse to Uniontown, beyond West Chester, and returned. The cyclometers showed that nearly eighty miles had been covered, the best one-day's ride of the season.

THE Meet of the Pennsylvania Division at Wilkesbarre, on the Fourth of July, promises to be an interesting affair. Races on the new track will be one of the prominent features of the Meet. Some of the fastest men in the State reside in the Lehigh and Wyoming Valleys, and will enter the races.

We have had much talk lately of a proposed race on the road between the Camden wheelmen and some of our city clubs, The University Bicycle Association is also on the lookout for a road-race, and it is not improbable that the two may come together. W. Byrd Page, President of the University Athletic Club, and the record holder for high jumping, is also a bicyclist, and is anxious to get a race on with Frank Kohler, of the Pennsylvania Club, from Philadelphia to Staunton, Va., 291 miles. This would be a road-race with a vengeance, but there is little probability of Kohler accepting any such race. Page goes to England this summer with the Manhattan Athletic Club team, New York.

The Athletic Club, of the Schuylkill Navy, will give an out-door meeting on Saturday, May 28, at the grounds of the University of Pennsylvania. The track is four laps to the mile, cinder, and in good condition, and is beautifully shaped. The cycling events on the programme are one and two mile bicycle races, and one mile tricycle, for gold and silver medals, with an additional gold medal if record is broken. As 2.38 has been done on this track (in a private trial), it is quite possible that if some of the fliers from down east or from Washington come on, the state record of 2.47 will have to go. Entries, 50 cts. each event; close 21st inst., and should be sent to Edward Milligan, 403 Walnut Street. The A. C. S. N. has also arranged with the West Philadelphia Athletic Association for the use of the great "five-lap track" grounds, etc., for members of the former association.

C. Barton Keene, about the fastest man we have hereabouts, has entered for the A. C. S. N. races, and considerable interest is manifested in the race between him and Wilhelm, of Reading, who is expected to be on hand, also. Richwine, of the Pennsylvanians, is also rumored as wanting his little opportunity at Keene. PHACTOTUM.

ST. LOUIS.

THE fact that the BULLETIN is fairly teeming with Meet news is a source of deep gratification to Missouri. Never before has the approach of our annual gathering been so thoroughly advertised or excited so much attention as this year. Despite our distance from the Eastern centres, we may even see the biggest attendance of any year, and our little colony anticipates that not a little hustling will be needed to cope with the crowd. We intend doing it, though, and are clearing the decks for action so systematically that all committees will pull together, disposing of the work in hand like a Samson dealing with Philistines, — but more gently.

CUT out the pointers I gave you last week, and stick them in your hat. You will find them useful, and they may save you from a sunstroke. I overlooked one little item, I think. Those who are bent on seeing everything in town, and want to do it quickly, can do no better than to take the elevator at the Custom House and visit the top of the dome, which is the highest point in the city and commands a wide view of the thoroughfares.

THE General Committee thoroughly canvassed its work last night. Nothing startling was evolved, and about all that now remains is to complete the last details and prepare for some very hard work. The pretty spot in Forest Park which has been suggested as best for the reunion after the parade, will probably be selected, and I hear some talk of winding up the hotel banquet, on Saturday evening, with a rousing cycling song accompanied by string music.

HAL GREENWOOD will be in charge of the De Soto-to-Montesano run. Those wishing to see the very monarchs of the hills we have boasted so much about, will find Greenwood and assistants at the Union Depot, Friday morning. Those who go will, of course, miss the business meeting, and will not see the city until the following morning. Saturday's general run, however, will atone for this, and the DeSoto ride will never be forgotten. A word of caution — don't go unless your brake is O. K. and you can coast. Remember, the excursion boat and supper await you at Montesano, and note, also, that another run to the springs starts south at 1 P. M. from the clubhouse.

MR. BASSETT, I hear, intends to sacrifice his own enjoyment for the League's sake, by running away to Boston without witnessing the road race or partaking of the good things at Clarksville. He will lose a needed rest after his arduous work during the Meet, by doing this, and the League may gain a few dollars. Fellow members, will you let him get away?

AS for Ducker, let him beware! It seems that Burley Ayers and a few others, at the Boston Meet, conspired to take hold of the poor man and not give him peace until they had "done him up" in regular Big-Four style. But he eluded them. This time, Whittaker tells me, the Springfield chieftain will give "sedateness" the go-by and come out in knee-pants, ready for the worst. Burley, sail in, pull in the secretary-editor, president, and ex-president, and we will watch the result.

RHODES and Neilson, with Daniels their trainer, arrived to-day and were accompanied to Clarksville by Percy Stone to-night. I believe St. Louis, if she would, could bring forward a number of good men for this race; but, as I have intimated before, most of our riders prefer toughness to scorching. Those who have watched Percy Stone's system of training, his recent good record on the De Soto hills, and his fine form, are about convinced that he will win the race.

THE Missouri Club meeting of Tuesday was well attended. They have about $1,000 in bank, and are flourishing in every way, the associate reserve list being away over the limit, and the active list about full. Further appropriations were made toward decorating the house, and the club fund, for entertaining visitors to the quarters during the Meet, was found to be $300.

JACK ROGERS — plain Jack Rogers, now, and suppose he is glad of it — was seen on the road again last Sunday. He rode a new tandem, in company with Lindell Gordon, and the two made a record of twenty-one minutes from Barthold's to Forest Park, about six miles. Gordon and Stewart also took the tandem to Ballwin and back recently, to the tune of 5 1-2 hours. The tandem is coming to the front.

GREENWOOD essayed to break the round-trip record on the De Soto road last Sunday, but was unsuccessful. He started at 6 A. M., several others having gone ahead about an hour, and caught his men at Bulltown. A hot day, macadam, and a strong headwind on the down trip were against him, and the party did not reach the city again till 10 P. M., Greenwood having occupied seven hours riding each way.

WE are having an unusual amount of rain for this season, but it will render fine weather all the more probable for the Meet.

W. W. CARPENTER, one of our hardest and most unassuming workers, has gone to San Diego, Cal., to reside. PHŒNIX.

OWING to a misunderstanding, our offer of $250 to the winner of the Clarksville road race is withdrawn. STODDARD LOVERING & CO.

JERSEY.

THERE was a meeting of the representatives of New Jersey Division held at Oraton Hall, Newark, on Saturday night, May 7, for the transaction of routine business, and the discussion of questions of policy to be advocated at the St. Louis Meet. Chief Consul Cooley, of Plainfield; Secretary Bonnell, of Jersey City, and Representatives Brown, of Elizabeth, Smith and Lunger, of Newark, Wright, of Montclair, and Kinch, of Westfield, were present. Ex-Chief Consul E. W. Johnson also attended by invitation. It was decided to send to the St. Louis Meet, at the expense of the division, a sufficient number of representatives to cast all the votes to which the State is entitled. As the chief consul can cast six, and a representative three, it will require the attendance of the chief consul and three representatives. Dr. Cooley has appointed Dr. Brown, and will announce the other two appointments immediately, as the delegation will leave for St. Louis next Tuesday.

THE resignation of Secretary Bonnell was tendered and accepted with great regret, as he had made an admirable and careful secretary. Ex-Chief Consul Johnson explained that the resignation was tendered at the suggestion of himself and Dr. Brown. Mr. Bonnell was about to go away to be absent all summer, and the interests of the Division demanded that there should be a secretary convenient for communication with the chief consul. Dr. Cooley then appointed Mr. Field, of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, to fill the unexpired term.

THE treasurer reported a balance of about $400 in the treasury, with about $100 owing the division from headquarters. The full report will be sent to the BULLETIN for publication.

NO ironclad directions were given the representatives binding them to the support of any particular candidate for president of the L. A. W., though I believe that the delegation has a strong and unanimous leaning toward Kirkpatrick.

THE State Meet will probably be held at Orange. A committee was appointed to confer with the directors of the New Jersey Cycling and Athletic Association to see what arrangements could be made for holding a race meeting on the Roseville track in case it were decided to hold the State Meet at Orange.

THE delegates received full instructions as to the policy to be advocated on the various questions to be discussed, and I understand that some valuable suggestions will be made, and radical changes proposed.

AFTER reading the Secretary-Editor's defence in the last number of the BULLETIN, to the complaints made by applicants for League membership that tickets had not been received, I dropped into the office of Dr. G. Carleton Brown, one of the members of the Membership Committee, to hear what he had to say in reference to the charges against himself and brethren. He received me affably, and with a big bundle of correspondence. "On May 4," he said, "I received a letter from Secretary Bassett stating substantially his troubles, as set forth in his editorial in the BULLETIN. E. F. Hill, of Peekskill, N. Y., is chairman of the committee, and Chief Consul J. K. Dunn, of Massillon, Ohio, the other member, beside myself. I immediately wrote Mr. Bassett that Mr. Hill had all the papers and protests in his keeping, and that I had not heard from him since some time previous to the Boston Meet of last year. Of course, with all the papers in Mr. Hill's possession, I, for my part, was powerless. I wrote to the chairman, but received no reply. On Saturday I went to see President Beckwith about the matter. He told me that some two months ago he had written to Mr. Hill, and had received a reply that he had been sick, but would attend to the business immediately. Since then he had heard nothing from him. Also, at Mr. Bassett's suggestion, I wrote to Mr. Dunn inclosing an order signed by myself, and to be signed by him, directing, on the authority of the majority of the Committee, the Secretary-Editor to issue tickets to all applicants up to May 20 not under protest. This morning I received a letter from him, he not yet having got my letter inclosing the order, stating, substantially, his experience to be that of mine with the chairman. I suppose by this time the order is signed and in Mr. Bassett's hands. I do not blame the Secretary-Editor for making public his defence. He could do nothing else in justice to himself. As to Mr. Hill, I am at a loss to account for his present dereliction, as in past years I have always found him to be a faithful, prompt, and ables worker."

THE road records of the Elizabeth Wheelmen are beginning once more to assume proportions indicative of extensive riding. D. B. Bonnett reports 360 miles for April, making his total over 1,000 up to May 1. His son, Louis, scored 256 during the month.

THE Brunswick Bicycle Club of New Brunswick, had their annual dinner in the early part of last week. From the long list of toasts responded to, I should judge that the eating, drinking, and speech-making must have taken up a liberal share of the night.

KLUGE told me on Saturday, that the King wheel, which is exciting so much curiosity in this section, would be out on the road by Tuesday of this week. Great secrecy has been observed in the shop in Newark, where it is being made, and curious would-be intruders have failed to force their way into the mysterious chamber of its birth.

PROBABLY few wheelmen are aware of the gigantic collection of bicycle records in possession of C. F. Coddington, of the Atalanta Wheelmen of Newark. It has been his hobby for years, and the compilation dates from 1880. In a conversation with me the other day, he said: "I have never made any fuss about the matter. It was my hobby, and I did it only for my own amusement. I have twenty-eight books in all, and they contain about 28,000 records. I have two blotters of 500 pages each; two classification registers of 480 pages each, in which the records are arranged by distances; a personal register; a ledger account with every man, giving all his running performances; and a comparison register for the recording of disputed times. I have fully two hundred correspondents and I accept no record until thoroughly authenticated and vouched for. I have all the certificates of time and distance filed away. I do not know whether I shall ever publish my records; but men have told me that the compilations were worth at least $1,000 for each year."

A BUILDING committee has the scheme of a new clubhouse for the Atalanta wheelmen in charge. Architects have submitted plans, and the committee has in view a site on the corner of Clifton and Fifth avenues, the latter being a continuation of Park avenue, Orange. The house will be quite an elaborate affair, and will be fitted with bowling alleys, billiard rooms, and all the appurtenances of a first-class club.

TEN clubs have notified Secretary Bridgman of their intention to enter teams in the road race on Decoration Day. They are the Harlem, Citizens, and New York, of New York; The Kings County, Ilderan, and Brooklyn, of Brooklyn; and the Elizabeth, Hudson County, Rutherford, and Union County, of New Jersey. With the forty starters that these entries will furnish, the race promises to be the greatest in the history of cycling in this country, as far as the number of contestants is concerned. The Citizens, New York, and Union County clubs will make their first appearance in the races of the association; all the others entered having competed in one or both of the previous contests. Of the men who will comprise the teams, little will be known until the names are sent in, a week before the race, as the committees are keeping both light and dark horses very dark. There will probably be hardly a club in the State that will not have a run through Orange on Decoration Day, and view the race in the afternoon.

A RAILING is being put above the pickets on the fence that skirts the Roseville track.

AN appropriation of $1,500 has been made by the Roseville authorities for the macadamizing of Roseville Avenue, between Sussex and Fifth.

TO encourage road riding the Atalanta wheelmen have offered four prizes: one for the biggest year's record, one for the most club runs attended, one for each century run, and one for the new member joining before July 1, who makes the largest average per month to the end of the season. Six members during April made an aggregate of one thousand six hundred and eighty-five miles. C. G. Hulsey leads the record men with four hundred and eighty miles up to May 1.

TIME trials are of daily occurrence over the Irvington-Milburn course. The usual rumors of fast time are afloat, and the same ridiculous mystery about performances is observed. I do not look for as fast time as that made last fall when all the conditions were absolutely perfect. I will back my opinion to the extent of a good cigar that 1.40 is not beaten one minute.

IN MEMORIAM.

THE Albany (N. Y.) Wheelmen met and adopted the following memorial on the death of Eugene F. Brainard:

Whereas, It has pleased Him who doeth all things well, to call from among us our friend and fraternal brother, Eugene F. Brainard, to the ranks of the celestial league; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Albany Wheelmen do sincerely mourn the loss of him who has been the first to be called hence; and in his death this club has lost an earnest and efficient member, and one who has endeared himself to us by his genial ways and unassuming manners, and his ever readiness to respond to all duties which he was called upon to perform in the interest of this organization.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of the club, and a copy thereof be sent to the family of the deceased; and be it further

Resolved, That this club attend his funeral in a body.

SECOND ANNUAL TOUR OF THE MINNESOTA DIVISION.

THE Touring Board of the Minnesota Division, L. A. W., have decided upon a week's tour, to begin Monday, June 27, and close Saturday, July 2. Over two thirds of the distance will be run on prairie roads — the wheelman's paradise — while some seventy-five miles of the route lies along the Minnesota Valley, affording good roads and fine scenery.

While the tour is conducted under L. A. W. auspices, yet it is by no means intended to include only League members. A most cordial invitation is extended to every wheelman in the State who can spare a week to join the party.

Wheelmen intending to take the trip are requested to fill out a blank form, and forward to any member of the touring board, with one dollar as a guarantee. If for any good cause, any person forwarding such sum finds it impossible to go on the tour, the money will be refunded. The expense of the trip will not exceed $15 per man, which sum, less the guarantee, will be placed in the hands of the tourmaster the morning of the start, and receipts given therefor. The tourmaster will settle all bills and attend to all details en route. The party will stop at the best hotels on the route, and will be given a special entertainment by the Redwood Falls Bicycle Club.

Tourists should take no more baggage than can be conveniently carried in a bundle carrier at the head of the wheel: an extra suit of underclothing is sufficient. Cork helmets are the most desirable head gear. If a party of twenty-five can be secured to start, a team and wagon will go along to carry baggage, repairs, and "lame ducks."

The Alert Bicycle Club will entertain tourists at the Windsor Hotel, St. Paul, previous to the start.

THE ROUTE.

Monday, June 27. Leave Windsor Hotel, St. Paul, 9 A. M. Wheel to Minneapolis, 15 miles, via Fort Snelling and Minnehaha. Dinner at West Hotel, as guests of Minneapolis wheelmen On at 2. Wheel to Shakopee, 25 miles. Supper. On at 7 to Merriam Junction, 5 miles, where take train for Henderson. Keller House over night.

Tuesday, June 28. Leave 8 A. M. for St. Peter, 20 miles. Dinner at Nicollet House. At 2 P. M. visit hospital for insane. Wheel to Mankato, 12 miles. Mankato House over night.

Wednesday, June 29. Leave 9 A. M. for St. Peter. Dinner at Nicollet House. On at 2 P. M. for New Ulm, 30 miles. Dakota House over night.

Thursday, June 30. Leave 8 A. M. for Redwood Falls, 40 miles. Dinner, 11 A. M., Lone Tree Lake. Arrive Redwood Falls 3.30 P. M. Hill-climbing contest 5 P. M. for medal offered by Redwood Falls Bicycle Club, local wheelmen barred. Oopsehaugh Hill is three eighths of a mile long, with ascent of one foot in seventh part of the way, and two sharp turns. Evening, hop at Dunnington Opera House.

Friday, July 1. Leave at 7.30 A. M. for Glencoe, 65 miles. Dinner at Hector, half way. American House over night.

Saturday, July 2. Wheel to Minneapolis, via Excelsior, 45 miles. Any desiring can take train for cities during forenoon.

Further information can be obtained by writing to any member of the Touring Board, or to S. F. Heath & Co., 14 South Fourth Street, Minneapolis.

TOURING BOARD.

CYCLETS.

AND now we are off to the Meet.

ST. LOUIS, we are all looking at you.

EASTERN men will train to and at St. Louis.

RUMOR points to the union of two New York bicycle clubs.

THE last Clipper has a picture of F. F. Ives, the "professional bicycler."

C. R. OVERMAN took a header in the West last week, and received a bad cut in the jaw.

THE Springfield Club has organized a band. This club was always disposed to make music.

THE California Division will hold a meet at Santa Cruz. It is n't the place where the rum comes from, though.

MR. F. W. WESTON, after a year's rest, has again assumed the position of chief consul of the Cyclists' Touring Club.

THE annual dinner of the Berkshire County Wheelmen was held on May 3, and twenty-six covers were laid.

A STEAM tricycle and a Victoria, the latter to be ridden by the Boston delegation, will be novelties of the St. Louis parade.

THE Overman Wheel Company have an "Unknown" who will go into the Clarksville road race. Can it be Lacy Hillier.

E. H. WILCOX, formerly of Chicago, and W. L. Surprise, of Memphis, have established the "Chicksaw" agency at Memphis.

STODDARD, LOVERING & Co. will hang up a purse of gold containing $250 before those who ride their wheel in the Clarksville road race.

BOB ENGLISH, the ex-amateur, was beaten in his twenty-mile match with T. Battensby by half a length, after a slow race. Time, 1.11.20 4-5.

NO riding on sidewalks in the race of the Eastern Road Club. You must get off and walk if you can't pass a team except by going upon the sidewalk.

MR. R. E. BURNETT supplies the vacancy in the executive of the Eastern Road Club, made by the resignation of Capt. L. H. Frost, of the Chelsea Club.

THE Canadian Wheelmen's Association has issued a guide book, containing a description of roads, the constitution and by-laws, and a list of hotels, consuls, etc.

THE Paynesville (Mo.) Wheel Club wil have a five-mile road race on May 28, on a branch of the Clarksville belt road, which holds the fifty-mile record of the world.

L. D. MUNGER has written he will enter the Clarksville road rate on a tricycle. He does n't expect to beat the bicyclists, but hopes to lower the tricycle road record.

NEW JERSEY wheelmen will hold a mass meeting shortly for the purpose of instructing their delegates how to vote on certain matters likely to be brought up at the St. Louis convention.

PERCY FURNIVALL commenced this season by winning a five-mile scratch-race at Norwich, and doing the last lap (440 yards, grass) in 39s., which is at the rate of 2.36 for the mile.

MR. LADISH has sent us a very fine photo. of the cup to be offered as first prize in the road race, and also a view of Clarksville from the river. Copies of the Clarksville picture may be had of Mr. Ladish.

EXPERT COLUMBIA, No. 9,118 was stolen from Henry E. Ducker, of Springfield, last Monday. Information regarding it should be sent to Mr. Ducker, or to the City Marshal of Springfield.

CAPT. L. H. FROST, of the Chelsea Club and vice-president of the Eastern Road Club, goes to Chicago to take up his permanent residence. Chicago wheelmen will find him a good club worker and a hard rider.

MARTHA'S VINEYARD residents have appropriated $500 for the entertainment of the wheelmen who will meet there in August. There promises to be a large attendance of wheelmen from all parts of the State.

HAL GREENWOOD, of St. Louis, has been riding for the record to De Soto and back. He made the ninety miles in fourteen hours. The roads to De Soto are not sandpapered, and we doubt if Eastern men would call them roads at all.

WON'T some one send Mr. Ruskin a bicycle? He can't have a good machine or he would never say he is prepared to spend all his best bad language in reprobation of every contrivance for superseding human feet on God's ground. — Herald.

SECRETARY-TREASURERS are not members of the Board of Officers by virtue of the office. We state this at the request of one Secretary-Treasurer, who has been asked to use a proxy at St. Louis, by one who thought he was a member of the Board.

S. G. WHITTAKER has been playing in bad luck again, or is being properly punished for his carelessness. He took a bad fall the other day and was seriously injured, in the doctor's opinion, but not in his own, for two days later he was out riding.

THE Clarksville road race will be a good sample of animated hash, for professionals, promateurs, makers' amateurs, and amateurs will make up the field. Here they are: Neilson, Munger, Eck, McCurdy, Frazier, Rhodes, Stone, Whittaker, Prince, Bullock, Hardwick, Ashinger, Van Horn, and the 'Unknown."

A SAN JOSE, Cal., correspondent writes: "It highly amuses me to read some of your correspondents' letters in regard to the "coming" season. During the past eight months, I have ridden from twenty-five to ninety miles every Sunday, with the exception of three rainy days. That's the kind of roads and climate we have here."

ROBERT M. WELCH, chief consul of the California Division, arrived in Los Angeles April 25, having ridden his bicycle all the way down from San Francisco. Mr. Welch has the honor of being the only Californian who has ever accomplished this heavy trip.

THE new clubhouse scheme of the Cambridge Bicycle Club has temporarily fallen through, as the location on Winthrop Street was not acceptable to a majority of the members. A new and satisfactory location may be found, and the plan carried through. President Hayes is on the lookout for land.

FREDERIC JENKINS is taking a very despondent view of the situation. He writes us that he will have to give up the wheel. Last week he dislocated his knee, for the fifth time in three years, while jumping over a fence. A few weeks ago he underwent a second operation on his eyes. Jenkins has been a valuable man to cycling in many ways, and he will be sadly missed.

W. M. WOODSIDE, in an attempt to ride a bicycle twenty miles in an hour on the track at Ballsbridge, Dublin, Ireland, on April 16, covered the distance in 1h. ¾s. He was stated to have ridden about 198 yards over the distance. Woodside, W. J. Morgan, and Ralph Temple were to have left for Scotland April 19, where they were to appear at the Bon Accord, Aberdeen.

THE Springfield Bicycle Club, together with its infant offspring, the bicycle minstrels and the newborn bicycle band, celebrated its sixth birthday on Friday, May 6. An excellent supper was served at Barr & Barry's. Mayor Maynard was there, and Ducker, too, but no distinguished "bike" men from other cities. It was planned as a genuine "family celebration," and this idea was carried out to the letter.

SINGER'S "Victoria," with a crew of ten up, made its appearance in Birmingham on Saturday afternoon, and created a tremendous sensation, a crowd of nearly two thousand persons collecting to see the novelty start back on its journey to Coventry, the crowd being so great that the police had to hurry the riders through their tea and get them off in order to disperse the crowd and get the streets clear. — Cyclist.

THE Cambridgeport Cycle Club has issued a neat programme card of the road race which is to be run under its auspices on May 30. The course will be twenty-five miles, and it is expected that it will be covered in very speedy time. There will be five prizes for the winners, and in addition souvenirs, which will be given to every man riding the race to a finish. The first prize will be a cyclometer, the second a pair of rat-trap ball pedals, the third a saddle, and the other two useful cycling accessories.

THE Worcester (Mass.) Bicycle Club has opened new rooms at 52 Pleasant Street. On the door there is a very pretty curtain, painted by Woodward, on which is a large bicycle wheel with "L. A. W." near the hub. The room is sixty feet long by about twenty-four wide. At first it was the intention to fit it up as a club room, but experience has taught the "boys" that more riding and less club room would be productive of better results. In view of this, the room has been fitted as a wheel room, or a room in which to keep bicycles. The ground floor was selected with this in mind, and it is especially designed so that twenty or even more machines can be kept therein.

THE BULLETIN discusses the "Tough" question and we accord to Brother Bassett our heartiest commendation on his remarks. It is a lamentable fact, that there are many, far too many, cyclers who are decent enough fellows in their way, but who render themselves extremely obnoxious in public places. We have seen wheelmen act in the most boorish manner at hotels hereabouts, and we know that there are many hostelries which much prefer their room to their company. It is a sad criticism on cyclists, when even the money-grabbing hotel proprietor spurns their gold. We fail to see how the evil can be corrected, unless it be by the action of such wheelmen as appreciate the situation and do a little missionary work when the opportunity offers. — Bicycling World.

THERE would be a great saving of headers if all wheelmen were as philosophical as Arthur Young. When he comes to a bad place in the street or road he gets off and walks if he feels like it, but it must be said he does n't often walk, as he is a veritable tough. He reasons like this: "I know I can ride that bad place, but what's the use of going to the trouble." He says one day he and Felix (when "Fee" was tender) came to some fresh macadam. He dismounted, Felix rode on. A spectator said: "Why, how 's that, Art? I thought you were a better rider than Felix?" "That's the reason," said Art, "that I walked. I knew I could ride it and was n't ashamed to walk, but Felix, not being so certain of his ability, made the attempt to see what he could do." — Spectator.

BERNAY'S cycle brush tool is made and put upon the market by a practical rider, who saw the necessity for some such tool for ease of cleaning cycles. The cut tells its own story. There is a brush so shaped as to be useful in the intricate parts of the wheels, a screwdriver, spanner, and utility point The brush is of ivory, and the attachments of the best steel.

A MATCH between three bicyclists and a Russian trotter took place April 12, in Vienna. The prize was 2,000 francs, and the distance ten thousand metres, being forty times around the course. Three bicyclists took part in it, H. O. Duncan and Jules Dubois, from Paris, and Paul Medinger, from Bordeaux. The Russian trotter, a handsome gray, belonged to Herr Stefan Tupan, of Vienna. After the second round the bicyclists took the lead, and finally, after a nineteen-minutes' race, the horse was easily beaten, the result being a dead heat between the two Frenchmen. The second race, in which the three previous competitors ran again, was won by Duncan, who rode one thousand metres in 1 m. 52 s.

ARRANGEMENTS are being made for a road race from Ashton in on May 16. The prizes will consist of medals, the first to be to the value of the first ten entrance fees received, and the second of the balance. Crist, Robertson, Church, Rittenhouse, and several other local cracks, have already signified their intention of entering, and a few are expected from Baltimore. The contestants will leave Crist & Higham's, Sunday, the 15th, at 9 A. M., taking dinner and stopping over night at Ashton; and the start for home will be made at seven sharp, the next morning, finishing at the starting point. It is thought the present record of 1.35 will be lowered considerably. — Wheel News.

THE many friends of Dr. E. M. Senseney, among the wheelmen and medical men of this city, will be pained to hear of the death of his wife, which occurred on shipboard. Dr. Senseney was formerly Chief Consul of the Missouri Division, League of American Wheelmen, and a year ago graduated in medicine in this city. He left St. Louis some weeks ago with the intention of spending a year in the clinics of Vienna, Austria. He was accompanied by his wife, who had been ailing from heart disease for some time. When a few days at sea, the unfortunate lady died, and a cablegram to friends here states that the young husband, by the rules of the ship, was compelled to see the remains given ocean burial. Mrs. Senseney left one child, which is with relatives in this city. The bereaved husband will probably continue his journey, and in sadness take up his lonesome studies. — Post-Despatch.

THE Lindell Hotel is the League hotel at St. Louis, and will be the League headquarters, not only of the local committees, but of the visiting delegations so far as heard from. They have made a rate of $2.50 per day to wheelmen. For those who prefer the European plan, the Hotel Barnum has been secured. It is conveniently located half a block away from the main entrance of the Lindell, on the opposite side of the street. These two houses can undoubtedly accommodate the visitors who attend. This rate of $2 50 does not gives one a room by himself or provide bath, but it is not thought that there will be any occasion for crowding uncomfortably. If persons desire special accommodations, they will of course have to pay for them, and they should make their contracts when registering.

A CLERK in the Post Office Savings Bank, named Meek, brought an action in the Queen's Bench Division, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Denman and a common jury, to recover damages from the defendand, a Mr. Milichamp, for personal injuries sustained. In February last year, the plaintiff was riding down Cheapside on a bicycle. When near the Peel statue, the defendant sprang out from the curbstone and kicked the large wheel, throwing the plaintiff down and injuring his wrist. Plaintiff got up and turned round to the defendant, who, it was said, struck him a blow in the mouth and knocked him down. The defendant was charged at the police court, and, being of unsound mind, was sent to an asylum. The substantial defence was that the damages sustained were not so severe as alleged, and the defendant paid £10 into court, and contended that that would be sufficient. Ultimately the jury found for the plaintiff for £20, including the £10 paid into court. — Pall Mall Gazette.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.

MR. EDITOR: — Won't you please crowd out a few lines of your numerous Eastern correspondence, and let the only Ruralist Bicycle Club be heard from?

An original name, Ruralist, but out here in Northwestern Missouri, like the broad world over, a man is nobody if not original. How we envy your Eastern correspondents, who dwell in such glowing terms over the fine condition of their made roads, while we passively sit and wait for tardy nature to fan and smooth our gumbo roads with her fierce and blustering prairie breezes.

A year ago we had two riders here; business was flat, trade dull, and the natives were unfriendly to wheelmen. To-day we number thirty; business is booming, trade rushing, and wheelmen are welcome everywhere — a convincing argument that civilization and wheeling go hand in hand.

Well, Mr. Editor, we dare not ask to occupy too much space in our valuable BULLETIN, but I would like to add that the Ruralist Club are awfully glad to have any of their brethren of the wheel pay them a visit. Our latch-string is always out, we've a hearty welcome for any that chance this way, and we want you to know, that in the west, as well as the east, some of nature's noblemen are found astride the wheel. DILLUELUE.

WHY SHOULD NOT WHEELMEN USE SIDE WALKS?

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Does a wheel occupy more room than a pedestrian?

Is a wheel dangerous when ridden by an experienced wheelman?

Will not the same sidewalk accommodate three times as many travellers on wheels as on foot in the same length of time?

Will not the usefulness of many men (reporters, physicians, etc.,) be vastly increased?

Will not the community as a whole use many less horses, and thus effect a large saving in expense?

Cannot the houses be scattered over more ground, and will not the city be healthier?

Would not many men wheel home instead of using horse cars, and would they not obtain needed exercise?

Was there any accident at Buffalo when seven hundred wheelmen used the sidewalks, business streets and all, for three days on the occasion of the L. A. W. meet? 286.

BEHAVIOR.

EDITOR BULLETIN, — In a late issue of the BULLETIN I was glad to see an editorial on the subject of the conduct of wheelmen.

That "they sometimes forget they are gentlemen" does not express it. That term implies occasionally; the fact of the matter is, this is frequently the case. Hardly a gathering of wheelmen, hardly a club run wherein numbers participate, but that we hear of their indulging in these puerile pranks, to the detriment of the participators, the interests of the wheel, and to the disgust of all observers. I have known instances where these vulgar, ungentlemanly, clownish, and ill-bred demonstrations have been indulged in. Any one not knowing the source, or those interested, might with good reason consider themselves in the vicinity of lunatics or rowdies. Enjoyment can be had without resorting to such methods. Those who ride the wheel, and who have its interests at heart, should comport themselves so as to be respected, and those interests furthered. If not, they should at least, when in the presence of ladies and gentlemen, respect their rights. If possible, let us eliminate this tendency. Those using the wheel are supposed to be men of breeding and gentlemanly bearing. When in public let these qualities show forth.

If necessary to take the aggressive, let it be obligatory upon those applying for membership to the League to make such membership dependent in part upon their comporting themselves as gentlemen, at least when a-wheel, or in the society of wheelmen or when holding themselves out as such.

That it shall also be the duty of any member observing any ungentlemanly conduct on the part of a fellow-member to report the same to the membership committee for consideration and action. The same course to be pursued by those now members. If clubs will not recognize this evil seeking to rectify, nor the individuals themselves endeavor to maintain their good manners and bearing, then I say let the L. A. W. "take the bull by the horns" and stamp the thing out.

For the protection of the organization and the interests it seeks to enhance, it cannot afford to recognize or allow such proceedings within its ranks.

Yours in furthering the interests of the League.

No. 5080.

POPULAR VOTE.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Having waited with feverish anxiety for several weeks for some one to knock off the chip that I placed on my shoulder in re League organization, it comes rather flat to find not a single officer take up my challenge, and defend the mode of electing our president by the Board, and not by the members at large. You did editorially give me the compliment of a reply, and with you I will have to cross swords, although you were not half as pronounced an antagonist as I would like. If your readers (or those who may have looked through my former letter) will carry their minds back, they will remember that there were two counts in my indictment; first, that the Board had ignored the positive instruction of their constituents, in general meeting assembled; and second, that they had in other things gradually assumed an autocracy that was not conferred on them by any legal enactment; with the incidental reflection that our whole plan of organization had become an abortion.

That I am now in the charmed circle myself does not in the least alter my opinion that the Board has power that, if not in itself too great, is at least very ill-defined. Your argument against my proposition to return to a popular election of the president involved only one phase of it; that the election should be by the membership present at the annual meeting. My principal reason in advocating this was to introduce an element of interest to draw a large attendance to the Meets; but if we waive this consideration, what possibly can be the objection to having a mail vote by the whole membership cast for president on the same ballots that name the consuls and representatives? Nothing that I can see, except the absurd notion that an officer has a certain sort of God-given wisdom that is not shared by the common herd. For myself, I cannot find that I know any better how to select a president, now that I am a representative, than I did when I was a common, private member; and I don't believe there is any more judgment and common sense in the Board than out of it.

The advantages to be gained by popular election are, a free expression of opinion by the entire League, as to who will best represent it as its executive head, and on the other hand, an avoidance of the not only possible, but to a certain extent, actually existing evil: that men will be chosen for the Board not because they will make good representatives or consuls, but because they will vote for this or that man as president. It is a well-known fact that the State Legislatures, which have senators to choose, are invariably below the very low average of ability that prevails at our State Capitals; and the same causes will work in the same direction with the League, unless we reform our methods.

I would very much like, too, to hear what other members have to say of the suggestion that our constitution be re-modelled into a real organic law; which, while making the Board of Officers a counterpart of the National Congress, as the supreme legislative body, shall at the same time define and restrict their powers within lines which they cannot break through of their own will merely, but in amending which they must have the sanction of the whole membership, either by mail vote, in general meeting, or by popular, not representative, action at the Division Meets. I want to see our government changed to a system of law, from what is practically the dictation of a comparatively few men, tempered only by the fact that there is an annual election.

Yours truly,

EDWARD J. SHRIVER.

NEW YORK, April 30. 1887.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

BOARD OF OFFICERS.

ADDITIONAL REPRESENTATIVES.

PENNSYLVANIA. Chief Consul Jessup has appointed S. H. Murray, of Sewickley, an additional representative.

MASSACHUSETTS. Chief Consul Hayes has appointed John B. Seward, of Chelsea, and W. G. Marsh, of Springfield, to be representatives for Massachusetts.

NEW YORK. Chief Consul Bidwell has appointed the following representatives: F. Bingham, 49 Rose street, New York City; F. B. Graves, Rochester; E. A Bradford, 398 Madison street, Brooklyn; Allen G. Wood, Utica; F. T. Davis, Mt. Vernon; Dr. H. T. Appleby, Buffalo.

OHIO. Chief Consul Dunn has appointed the following representative: H. S. Livingston, Cincinnati, Ohio.

NEW JERSEY. Chief Consul J. H. Cooley has appointed C. V. Bitter, of Salem, to fill vacancy in list of representatives caused by the resignation of G. O. Waterman.

TO OHIO MEMBERS.

I REGRET the necessity of announcing the resignation of Secretary-Treasurer George S. Atwater, and the loss to the Division in his removal from this State.

I have this day appointed as secretary-treasurer, Mr. Frank C. Meyer, of Canton, feeling assured of his entire ability to fill the office to the honor of the division.

Mr. H. S. Livingston is appointed representative for Ohio Division, our growth in membership entitling us to one additional member of the Board.

I take this occasion to urge upon all the importance of attending the next annual meeting in St. Louis.

Address all inquiries regarding routes and rates from Ohio points to Mr. A. A. Bennett, Chairman Committee on Transportation for Ohio Division, No. 6 Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio. Respectfully, yours,

JAMES R. DUNN,
Chief Consul.

PHILADELPHIA DELEGATES.

PENNSYLVANIA representatives who will be unable to attend the approaching meeting at St. Louis are earnestly requested to place their proxies in the hands of some fellow-member who will go. The following have already signified their intention of being present at the Annual Meeting:

Isaac Elwell, Philadelphia.
S. H. Murray, Sewickley.
J. J. Van Nort, Scranton.
Geo. A. Gorgas, Harrisburg.
J. E. Harder, Clearfield.
Geo. A. Jessup, C. C., Scranton.

It is desired to have our full voting strength represented at this meeting.

GEORGE A. JESSUP,
Chief Consul.

T. HOUARD WRIGHT,
Sec'y-Treas.

NEW JERSEY SECRETARY-TREASURER.

To the members of New Jersey Division:

MR. F. R. BONNELL having resigned the office of Sec'y-Treas., I have this day appointed Robinson Pound, of Plainfield, N. J., Sec'y-Treas. for the unexpired term.

J. H. COOLEY,
Chief Consul.

May 7.

THE committee of Ohio on transportation and rates, consists of Messrs. R. B. Carey, of Elyria, Ohio; Frank Meyer, of Canton, and A. A. Bennett, Cincinnati, Ohio. Wheelmen are to take the train which starts from Cleveland, at 11 A.M., on 19th May, over the Bee Line via Indianapolis, buying round-trip tickets.

From points South of the Bee Line, take the train of the P. C. and St. Louis (the Pennsylvania system), leaving Pittsburg, at 8.55 Thursday morning, Columbus at 3.30 afternoon, Richmond, Ind., at 8 P. M., reaching Indianapolis at 10.20 P. M. Leave Springfield at 2.25 Thursday, Xenia at 3.10, Dayton, 6.05 P. M.

From Cincinnati take the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad train at 7 P. M. The fare will be one and one third the round trip.

A. A. BENNETT,
Rep. Ohio Div. of L. A. W.

ATTENTION SOUTHERN WHEELMEN.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made with the Southern Passenger Association for special rates to the Meet in St. Louis on the 20th and 21st inst. Full fare will be charged to St. Louis, and one-third fare for return trip, by presenting certificates which will be furnished by Mr. B. B. Ayers, at St. Louis. It is to be hoped that brother riders throughout the South will take advantage of this special inducement.

HARRY H. HODGSON,
C. C., La. Div.

NEW ORLEANS, May 4, 1887.

KENTUCKY DIVISION.

THE annual meeting of the Kentucky Division, will be held at the Kenton Wheel Club House, Covington, on Wednesday, May 18, at 7.45 P.M. Besides the election of a secretary-treasurer, a constitution will be adopted.

EDWARD H. CROSINGER,
Chief Consul.

COVINGTON, KY., May 5, 1887.

INVITATION ACCEPTED.

To the Sec. of Manchester Bicycle Club, Manchester, N. H.

DEAR SIR, — The kind invitation extended by your club to the New Hampshire Division, to hold its annual meet in your city; was duly accepted with thanks; I therefore shall call it on Monday, July 4, in your city, and hope it will be as successful and well attended as the previous ones at Portsmouth.

(Signed) H. M. BENNETT,
Chief Consul N. H. Div.

GEO. F. HILL,
Secretary.
MANCHESTER, N. H., May 5, 1887.

MEETING OF THE BOARD.

LATE advices from St. Louis inform me that the Board meeting will be held in the Exposition Building.

ABBOT BASSETT,
Sec.-Ed.

ILLINOIS ELECTION.

Dr. N. M. BECKWITH,
Pres. L. A. W., No. 21 W. 37th St., New York.

DEAR SIR: — Following is the result of election for Illinois Division L. A. W., as per certificate of canvassing board: —

For Chief Consul.

N. H. Van Sicklen, of Chicago, 151 votes.

For Representatives.

Chicago District,
Fred A. Ingalls, of Chicago, 90 votes.
W. A. Davis, " 101 "
Rockford District,
Freeman Lillibridge, of Rockford, 152 votes.
Peoria District,
H. G. Rouse, of Peoria, 153 votes.
Galesburg District,
E. H. Sleight, of Moline, 115 votes.
Paris District,
Milton O. Dole, of Paris, 111 votes.
Springfield District.
Chas. Hansel, of Springfield, 112 votes.

Illinois is now entitled to eight Representatives, but at time of election to seven only.

Quite a number of others received scattering votes, but the canvassing board, not deeming it necessary, omitted to make a note of such votes, hence a complete account cannot be given, the ballots having been destroyed immediately on adjournment of Board.

Very truly yours,

S. B. WRIGHT,
Secretary-Treasurer.

CHICAGO, April 27, 1887.

LEAGUE CLUBS.

THE Secretary's office is still without definite information regarding the following clubs. Secretaries will please give us at once the date of organization, the date of joining the League, and a certificate that the club still remains a League club. Many of the clubs below we know to be league clubs, but we have no record of the necessary dates. We are about to number the clubs, and those who do not give us data must expect to be placed at the end of the list or stricken from the rolls.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

(44) WHAT is the best course of gymnastic exercises for a wheelman to take to fully develop himself? I would like to hear what my brothers in the L. A. W. would recommend. Speak up, all who have had experience. BROTHER 12248.

(45) INTENDING to ride from Havre de Grace, Md., to Detroit, Mich., on my 'bike," about the first week in August, I would like to correspond with some League member who would go along, a part or all the way. L. H. ASCHERFELL, Havre de Grace, Md.

(46) CAN any one inform me where a book treating on the subject of road construction, etc., can be procured, — if such a work has ever been published, — also the price of same. B.

(47) MINNESOTA MEMBERS, — I am desirous of fixing up a frame of pictures, containing a minette size photograph of every L. A. W. member in the State, and would like to exchange that size photos with all the boys. Please send name and League number with all pictures. Think others should take hold of this scheme, as a frame of this kind would be a very attractive ornament on the walls of any club room. Will be pleased to hear from all the State members. GARDNER E. HART, Pipestone, Minn.

(48) WHAT is the best thing for muscular pain induced by hard riding? H. N. Ans. Try arnicated oil. 2. What is the best ointment for saddle soreness? Ans. Try camphorated ice.

(49) TELL 9392 that he will not sweat much if he doesn't drink water. A few peppermint drops carried in the pocket and occasionally eaten, will remove the desire for drink. S. T.

(50) In reply to No. 928: The best road from New York to Kingsbridge is via the Boulevard. From 155th Street he will have to take the sidewalk till it ends, then keep straight ahead. This is much shorter and better than via Jerome Avenue. Have tried both routes scores of times on a Rudge tandem, and have run from 58th Street to Kingsbridge in 1 hour and 5 minutes. Should be glad to meet 928 some Saturday P. M. and show him the way. 1908o

(51) In answer to query 30 in issue of April 29, in regard to road to New York from Springfield, would say, that he will find the best road by going direct south through Hartford to New Haven, and thence west through Bridgeport to New York. The road on east side of Connecticut River to Hartford, is good, and from Hartford to New Haven is good, by going through New Britain to Meriden, and then through Cheshire to New Haven. Hartford boys will put him on right road. From New Haven take shore road to Milford, thence by turnpike road to Bridgeport, and on to New York. From New Haven to New York is the worst part of the road, but it is ridable but rather sandy. If he looks up the N. H. B. C. when in New Haven, any of the boys would be glad to post him and start him right. 9992.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

DON'T DO IT!

The man who proposes to GIVE something for nothing is the same man who is trying to GET something for nothing.

WATCH HIM

Don't believe him when he tells you that a cheap Bicycle with cart-wheel bearings is "just as good" as a high-grade machine with Bown's Adjustable Ball-bearings. Nothing is had for nothing. Buy the best, and it will behave well, ride well, look well, and SELL WELL, after you have ridden it for years. Victor Bicycles are all forged steel.
If you find one ounce of cast metal in a Victor Bicycle, bring it to us, and we will pay $100 for it. All interchangeable. Catalog free.

THE PATH.

LYNN, MASS., May 7.—Races run under the auspices of the Institute of Technology Athletic and Cycling Clubs, at Lynn bicycle grounds:—

Two-mile bicycle.—C. H. Warner (1), 6.40 1-4; J. P. Heywood (2), 6.56 1-4; E. S. Hutchins (3) 7.01.

One-mile club record.—C. H. Warner (1), 3.16 2-5; E. S. Hutchins (2), 3.17 2-5.

Three-mile handicap.—C. H. Warner, scratch (1), 12.57; Willison, scratch (2), A. L. Davis, 50 yards; retired after one lap.

WE confess to a feeling of wonder at the report of the handicapping of the American team in Aberdeen last Saturday. Who is Linnsden that he should give America's champion two laps start in ten miles. We are not surprised, too, that the hard-headed Aberdeenians did not approve of Morgan beating Woodside in an exhibition race. We should counsel Morgan not to play the game in this way. It savors of mountebank business.—Wheeling.

FRED WOOD will not probably leave Australia before June some time, as he has engagements to race with Rolfe, the Australian, during the latter part of May.

ALBERT SHOCK and Louise Armaindo are to have a six-hour race, two hours per night, at Eau Claire, Wis., May 12, 13 and 14.

WOODSIDE and Howell, in London, May 2, signed articles for a series of races from a push-off, Wolverhampton rules to govern, at one mile, five miles, ten miles, twenty miles, and twenty-five miles, each race £20 a side. The first race and the longest to take place on May 21, at Belgrave grounds, Leicester, where Howell lives.

THE Cleveland Plain Dealer arouses curiosity as follows: "There will be an Ohio professional wonder on the racing path this summer. He is n't a Clevelander; will ride the mile in 2.30 or better; is six foot two inches high, and will ride a 59-inch wheel. He will weigh one hundred and seventy-five pounds in condition, and is a professional."

THE directors of the Lynn Track Association held a meeting May 2, and arranged the following programme for the meeting, Monday, May 30: First race, one mile novice, amateur; second race, three-mile handicap, amateur; third race, one-mile for boys under fourteen years of age; fourth race, five-mile professional, handicap; fifth race, two-mile 6.10 race, amateur; sixth race, one-mile run-and-ride, amateur; seventh race, Rowe v. one-mile record; eighth race, one-mile team, open to clubs.

THE following list of bicycle races are to be run at Cheltenham Beach, Cook County, Ill., 26th inst., under L. A. W. rules, etc.: One-mile novice, one-half mile dash, one-mile 3.20 class road machines, five-mile open, one mile-handicap, two-mile lap race, three-mile open, road machines, and consolation one mile. Suitable prizes awarded.

THE TRADE.

THE Pope Manufacturing Company has always advised prospective wheelmen who are not familiar with mechanical construction, to seek the advice of a first-class mechanical expert, and they are willing to rest the question—if there is any question—of the superiority of Columbia bicycles and tricycles with the opinion of any unprejudiced mechanical expert or engineer of ability. Isn't it fair to presume, that with ten years of experience, the best of material, the most skilful workmanship, the finest machinery and the largest plant, the products of the Columbia factory should excel anything produced elsewhere.

DR. E. W. BOGMAN, of Providence, R. I., has purchased a Columbia tandem. On one of his recent rides he met several wheelmen, and accepted their challenge to climb the hills in Roger William's Park. These hills, it will be remembered, are the ambition of novices. The tandem went readily up every hill, to the surprise and admiration of the dozen wheelmen assembled.

JESSE POWERS, on a Columbia Light Roadster, won the 5 mile race at the 12th New York Regiment Games, Monday night.

THE Pope Manufacturing Company is one of the very limited number of bicycle manufacturers, and the only American manufacturer who uses seamless steel tubing for forkes, the great expense of this material and the necessary work upon it, keeping nearly all of the manufacturers from using it.

CLAIMS can be as thin as the paper they are printed upon. The Pope Manufacturing Company back up all their statements with a showing of facts.

THE double grip handles used on the Columbia machines seem to be the popular handles of the day. One of their principal advantages is the easy rest they give the hand while riding upon smooth roads.

THE Columbia bicycle is the only machine that has been ridden around the world. It has been ridden the greatest distance within the hour, has been pedaled across the continents many times, and its riders hold the best world's records.

FOR ten years the majority of American riders of high grade machines have ridden Columbias, and are riding Columbias today,—the best possible evidence that the Columbias, for all around or special use, are superior to any other machines in the market.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 30, 1887.

GORMULLY & JEFFERY MANUFACTURING CO.,

Gentlemen,—Your "American Light Champion" was received last week. Since trying it, I have had every reason to be satisfied with the wheel. The bearings run well, the machine light, and the wheel rigid as a board; the ball-head has a perfectly free movement, without being too complicated; there is a good throw to the cranks that makes every kick count; but when it comes to the handle and bar, you have simply beaten your own record. A person with as short arms as I have is in a position to appreciate bars that are easily adjustable to any length of arm, besides you can get just the right purchase for a good solid pull. Every time I show the wheel to some 'cycler it is a case of "love at first sight." There will be many more here to keep it company before long.

Yours truly,
GEORGE S. DARROW,
Editor Wheelmen's Record.

CHICAGO, April 23, 1887.

GORMULLY & JEFFERY MANUFACTURING CO., CITY,

Gentlemen,—I have had the pleasure of taking a beautiful header on my new "Light Champion," just because it ran away from me. My last mount, a —— Light Roadster, which cost me $140, cannot be spoken of in the same breath as regards easy-running qualities. Your bearing is certainly the most easy running by far that I have ever tried, and if I don't "get there" in the Pullman Race, it will not be the fault of my machine.

Yours truly,
R. H. EHLERT.

E. F. LANDY will represent Yale College on a 53-inch Rudge Racer, during 1887.

ONE of the most noted divines in Buffalo, N. Y., uses a Rudge Bicyclette in his pastoral duties.

AT the spring races of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, held at Lynn, May 7, 1887, C. H. Warner of '89, won all three bicycle races on a 57 Rudge Racer.

THE Citizens' Bicycle Club, of New York, has a Rudge Crescent Tandem, which is let to different members at a nominal charge per day. So far it has been a very good investment.

L. A. W. TABLE.

Made of Georgia Mahogany,

Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.

L. A. W. SYMBOL,

Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered. Read what they say of it:

The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.
(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.

The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.
(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.

Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,
(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.

There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.— Thomasville Enterprsie.

Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

The Sensation of 1887!
ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!
The Latest American High Grade Wheel,
THE NEW MAIL.
A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,
Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE.—Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS.—Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

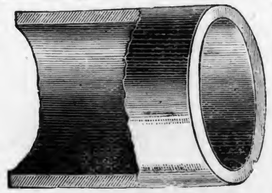
A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

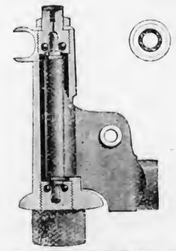
With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.



What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it,—but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.



Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

A FEW INTERROGATION POINTS, GENTLEMEN.

Why be deceived by middle-men who call themselves manufacturers and are not?

If their statements about themselves are untrue, why not their claims regarding the merits of the wheels they sell, or rather attempt to sell?

Why be deceived by statements about records acquired on wheels so frailly constructed as to be useless on the road?

Is not the effort to associate the performance of one wheel with another, because only it is sold by the same middle-men, an effort to deceive?

Is it not reasonable to suppose that the buyer can get a better value for his money from the agent of the manufacturer than from the agent of the manufacturer's agent?

Is it not logical and wise to conclude upon a mount from the arguments and testimony of road riders who hold all the more important world's road and long-distance records, obtained too on American champion roadsters, rather than from the testimony of riders using 22-pound machines on specially prepared surfaces?

If you wish to be convinced, why not send a one-cent stamp for a special catalog of testimonials, parts, etc., to

WE are in St. Louis. When this meets the eye of the reader, the annual meeting of the Board will be in process, the long line of wheels will be moving along the asphalt streets of St. Louis, or mayhap the moon will be shining down upon the revels of the merry crowd on board the Mississipi steamer. We shall be storing up rich experiences in any event.

WE have been not a little surprised at the reception our article on "Rowdyism" met with From all parts of the country have come letters with words of commendation and an indorsement of our idea that "rowdyism" in cycling circles is a growing evil, calling for the attention of League officials, and for the restraining force of the moral influence of the rank and file. If we would have the world say that "wheelmen are always gentlemen," we must cry down the rowdy.

THE New York Road Book is out, and the New York Division is to be congratulated for its successful completion of a most meritorious publication. Following the style of the book issued by the Pennsylvania Division, the compilers have reaped the benefit of the experience of their predecessors in this line of work, which has entailed greatly to their advantage. Mr. Barkman and his assistants, W. S Bull and W. H. De Graaf, are worthy of much commendation for the untiring labor they have given to this work.

WE know what such a book means in the way of work, for we have seen our Massachusetts committee at their task, which demands of them the hours of every evening till late into the night, and the sacrifice for many months of the time generally given to riding, to social duties, or to well-earned leisure. Thus do the workers among us evidence that the League does not exist in vain.

LATE advices from Albany give great encouragement to New York wheelmen that their bill will pass. Chief Consul Bidwell writes us:—

"I have information from Albany that the judiciary committee of the Senate have decided to report favorably on our bill, and, as I understand it, this means that the committee will report favorably over the protest filed by the Park Commissioners. I also understand that this protest was not an official one, and has never been before the park board meeting. Judging from this state of affairs now at Albany, I have reason to believe that our bill will pass the Senate within a few days, and will then go to the Governor."

New York May 18.

"Liberty bill passed Senate." No. 13,080.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

THIS week all eyes are turned in the direction of St. Louis, and we who cannot partake of the festivities must perforce listen to the tales that are told by those who are fortunate enough to be the recipients of the hospitality of the great city of the West.

NOTHING has been done, so far as I can hear, about a ladies' run. Where are the ladies of St. Louis and Chicago that they should allow so pleasant a feature of the Boston Meet to find no duplicate at St. Louis? Can it be wondered that few ladies are attracted to St. Louis if no inducement is offered them to attend?

WE have all been interested in the story which has been told of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Mason, who rode on a tandem, from New Orleans, through Indiana to Louisville. Here is their story as told by Mr. Mason, at Louisville: "It has been about sixty days since we left New Orleans. My wife has ridden with me on the whole trip. We came up the west side of the Mississippi, through Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, into Iowa, then through Illinois and Indiana into Ohio, and back through Indiana, till here we are. We have ridden as high as forty miles a day, and I don't believe any day a ride has been less than twenty-five. My wife had inflammatory rheumatism, and I was paying six to eight dollars a day for doctor's bills and medicines. It did her no good either. She was in constant pain, and we could hardly touch her to turn her in bed. I met a homeopathic doctor and he told me to get a tricycle for my wife and let her ride. I got one for her and one for myself; after using it about a week she bantered me for a ride, and here we are. But I've got enough of it for the present. We will take the iron horse for a while. My wife seems entirely cured." The ride will show a mileage of not less than 2,000 miles. And now, those who suffer from rheumatism need no longer carry a horse chestnut about with them, nor will they have need to experiment with patent medicines. A dose of steel is the best remedy after all, and Mrs. Mason's practical testimonial will have very much weight with the public.

ARLO BATES is responsible for a story which is incomplete. He vouches for the truth of the narrative and we must take his word.

A WEALTHY westerner, a man who has been married a score of years, but who has no children, has recently sailed for Europe on a quest of which the result is likely to be curious if he carries out his plan. He wishes to adopt two children, and for some reason by no means evident, has determined to select them on the other side of the water. His wife, who accompanies him, gave no better explanation than that European children were more picturesque than American ones, a statement which, if this meet her eye, I trust she will pardon my disagreeing with. The man has taken with him a phrenologist, a professor of physiology in a western college, who is his life-long friend, and his wife's brother, who prides himself on his skill as a physiognomist. These five people are to select a boy and a girl. The gentleman intends to educate the pair without regard to expense, to bring them up as if they were his children, and to make them marry if he can. He is confident that he shall be able to carry out this programme, even to the last item; although he acknowledges the possibility of a failure in the matrimonial scheme so far as to say that if they will not marry he shall divide his millions equally between them. In a romance they would of course hate the idea, quarrel with their benefactor, vow each to wed somebody else, and end by coming peacefully and happily together in the last chapter. What the result in real life will be is likely to depend upon the skill with which the physiognomist and the phrenologist do their work. It is almost a wonder, in these days of witchery and occultism, that an astronomer, astrologer, or a cheiosophist was not added to the party, but coming from the West, the gentleman is probably hardly up to these late improvements.

IN support of the truthfulness of the above, and to save his reputation for veracity, Mr. Bates says: "I do not expect anybody to believe this tale, but it happens, nevertheless, to be true. Indeed, it is so extremely improbable that I said to the man who first told me of it that my only ground for believing it would come from its innate absurdity if from anywhere. Whether it will be carried out, I cannot, of course, pretend to say, but it is a curious instance of the things people will do. The wife, it is only fair to add, acknowledges that she has moments when she doubts the wisdom of the scheme."

WILL they ride a tandem? or will they prefer a sociable? The wealthy Westerner has neglected to take a cycle expert with him to sound their opinions regarding the side-by-side or the single file double. I will nominate Mr. Weston, he is a man with pronounced ideas regarding the dual machine, and it might not come amiss to let the Duke of Wellington go along also. I can believe that the company would not lack entertainment if these two worthy gentlemen should come together and discuss double mounts.

I AM told that Miss Minna Caroline Smith, whose dainty book of poems, entitled "In Fruitful Lands," published last year in Cambridge, was so favorably received, has in the press of D. Lothrop Company a western story of juvenile life, entitled "The Boys of Carey Farm," which will shortly be published. We have lately missed Miss Minna from the ranks of the road riders, and we have seen no cycling stories from her pen. The reason has come out, she has been writing a book.

I HAVE often thought it might not be a bad idea to compile a list of the remarks that one hears while riding. I have many interesting ones in my note book that may come forth some day. A few evenings since I was riding along a country road, when I was thus saluted by an urchin, "Say, Sis, ring the chestnut!"

DAISIE.

THE OWL.

THE Ixion's fifty-mile Road Championship will be run on Decoration Day, over the club course, between New York and Tarrytown. Much interest is manifested among their members regarding it.

THE L. A. W. Meet programme has arrived. Well done, St. Louis! If the affair be only one-half as successful as it is pictured. I am indeed sorry that I won't be with you. The part I shall especially miss and regret, is the parade, that is, if the illustration is intended to portray the event. Usually I don't go in for parades, but under the circumstances as illustrated, I should be pleased to make an exception in favor of St. Louis, provided, of course, that I did not have to wear the same kind of a summery uniform, as the lady does in the engraving.

LITTLE thought the fond parents of Miss Ophelia Hedd, a recent convert to tricycling, how appropriate that name would prove, when their fair daughter later in life, would take an involuntary plunge from saddle to ground. It needs no injunction of "O! feel y'er head" when you land that way.

THE following is not original, which probably accounts for its being any good:

"How much racing men are like old shoes:
For instance, both a sole may lose;
Both have been tanned; both are made tight
By cobblers; both get left and right.
With shoes the last is first; with racing men
The first shall never be the last; and when
The shoes wear out, they're mended new;
When the men wear out, they're men dead too.

I HAD been reading a Western wheel paper, till my pipe had gone out, and my eyes, despite all my efforts to the contrary, closed themselves. I slept and dreamed, as follows: The League Meet in 1897 had been completed and the banquet finished, and among the many speakers there, a gentleman named Radish, if I remember right, was called upon to answer the toast of "The Amateur," and he responded as follows: "It must be about ten years since a large part of the discriminating cycling public was engaged in attempting to find the precise geographical situation and whereabouts of the amateur. The searchers for him were always baffled. He was harder to find than the North Pole. He was always waiting, or was said to be, at the next corner or across the street. Sometimes his counterfeit presentment, a thing of black racing tights and a twenty-pound wheel, mocked the weary explorer, directed by some faithful trainer. Sometimes it seemed as if a furtive and disappointing glimpse of the elusive amateur was caught by the seekers, but it always turned out to be an effect of mental mirage. The more the amateur was sought, the more he fled. He was as unknown and mysterious as the burial-place of Moses, as fugitive as Fortune, a needle in the haystack of the universe, a gipsy, and an unattainable boon. Because he could n't be found, every one was anxious to find him. Was he a licentiate of the School of Cads? Was he a distinguished traveller from the Land of Chumps? Who knew? Who could find out? The great question of where is the amateur, continued for some moons to employ the attention of the inquisitive, and wiggle the risibilities of the wags. Time has fuged since then, and curiosity been deadened, and, lo! the amateur is revealed upon the camera of ages" — Just at this important point, as I leaned forward with straining eye to discover this wondrous specimen of the genus amateur, I awoke, and I am therefore unable to tell my readers who this rara avis that Mr. Radish was going to exhibit was. So the niche reserved in history for the amateur had better have a sign of "To Let" put upon it, or else be auctioned off to the highest bidder among the professionals.

I DON'T want to intimidate any one, but I would suggest that my cousin, "The Raven," on the Bicycling World, take a few feathers from the wing of fancy, and place them in the tail of discretion, in his remarks concerning me. That's all.

SEVERAL New York racing men are going to Alaska to race this season. They have found out that there is a glacier there that moves only a mile in a year, and they think that, with a liberal handicap, they have at last found something they can beat.

"SIR," said an astonished landlady to me the other day, when I had sent up my glass the seventh time for milk, "you must be very fond of milk." "Yes, madam, I am," I replied, "or I should never have drunk so much water to get a little."

DR. BECKWITH is a military man which may account for the following: He and I went riding the other day, and I was taking a mean advantage of the safety of the bicyclette, to put him through a course of sprouts over some of the worst roads on Manhattan Island. Finally, he says, "Do you know this road reminds me of an ammunition box"? "How so?" I asked, eagerly searching for some military lore. "Because it is full of cart-ridges." Doctor declares I ran over a goat, but I know better; it was the awfulness of this pun that lifted me from the saddle and landed me prone upon my face.

DO members ever read the BULLETIN? Sometimes it seems to me they don't. Take, for example, the League uniform. Now, Wanamaker, as every one knows, or should know, makes that, and yet Spalding has had orders for over thirty suits within the past ten days. I don't know how well the Philadelphia house make them, but if they beat the ones Spalding has turned out, they are to be congratulated.

SONG of the racing man — Hum, sweet Hum."

A TIRED cycling novelist — Rider Haggard.

IF there be anything in a name, then surely Rhodes ought to win the road race at Clarkesville.

I SEE, by a Western cycling paper, that my given name in private life is Barney. Well, perhaps it is! I have given up trying to know anything, even about myself, until I have consulted the latest issues of the wheel press. They know it all, or think they do, and when it gets into print, that of course makes it a fact, and we must all abide by the verdict of these nineteenth-century Solomons.

IN my dissertation last week on amateur flyers on the path, I without intent, omitted the name of one here in New York, who will be heard from, well up in the procession, before the season is over, that is Jesse Powers, of the Harlem wheelmen. He is a fast, fearless, and safe man on the track, and is today as near the ideal pure amateur as exists in America.

YOU make me, in my comments on Crist in your last issue, call him a "vater," when I tried to use the racing term rater. Must I, too, follow Ducker's example and get a type writer? THE OWL.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

ACCORDING to the Philadelphia Times of May 13, "A clergyman at Millersville, Lancaster County, has been obliged to give up the use of his bicycle, because it seemed to lessen his dignity and influence for good in the community. On the whole this clergyman deserves credit for his self-denial; but it is small credit to to his congregation that it should contain a large enough number of narrow minds to make such a step on his part neccessary."

It is gratifying to know that wheelmen in this vicinity have at least one paper which is not afraid to come out and express plain, hard, horse-sense views in cycling matters, but the Times did not need to go so far from home even as Millersville to find an example of fossilistic foolishness equal to the above. In Germantown, but seven miles from the heart of this big village, there is a little Baptist church, the pastor of which is the Rev. J. S. James, an earnest, hard working, God-fearing man, with an immense district to cover in the discharge of his parishional duties. Although the roads of this district are not of the best, at the same time they are rideable, and Mr. James, who has devoted some of his little leisure to exercise on the bicycle, recently proposed to use his wheel as an aid in making his professional rounds. Most of his people saw no harm in this, and saw rather a benefit to themselves in the parson's increased time. Two or three old deacons, however, managed in some way to get an idea each, — a heretofore unheard of performance, — and of course that idea was detrimental to the use of the bicycle in any shape or form. As a result, the cycling ranks lose a member from whom much good might have been expected, and the devil scores one on the church through the deacons.

THE Souther tourists, under command of Roadmaster Wells, left Philadelphia about ten o'clock Tuesday, May 10. The party numbers twenty-six, and were accompanied to Paoli by ten other riders from the city, the majority from the Century Wheelmen. Two of the latter went as far as Lancaster, and reported everything moving smoothly to that point, with the exception of a few small accidents, such as the utter break down of Tourmaster Collamer's machine, several headers all round, etc., etc. A somewhat general amusement is expressed at the shortness of the rides allotted to each day. With a good early start, Lancaster should have been the dining place for the first day, instead of Paoli.

THE University Bicycle Association is awaiting a challenge to a road race from the Penna Bicycle Club, and the P. B. C. is also patiently awaiting a challenge from the U. B. A. Neither club is apparently anxious to take the initiative, and in the meantime the chance of the race seems to be about nil. Page, Keen, Whitaker, and Kolb should make lively running for almost any four of the Penna Club, and Art. Roberts, Richwine, Hill, and Shaeffer would have to keep moving to win; but we should like to see the race just the same.

THE two mile bicycle race, May 14, at the sports of the University of Pennsylvania Athletic Association, was won by Louis J. Kolb, medical department, in 6.08, being the college record C. B. Keen was entered, but fell on the completion of the first mile. Keen has had hard luck lately; three falls in as many races in one week.

THE date of the Schuylkill Navy Athletic Club sports, the 28th inst., was an unfortunate selection, inasmuch as the intercollegiate championship sports come on the same day. Keen and Kolb are both out of the A. C. G. N. races, as they are bound for the intercollegiate. PHACTOTUM.

JERSEY.

THE Hudson County Wheelmen are now housed in their new club rooms on the corner of Montecello and Crescent Avenues, Jersey City. the suite consists of a club, wheel, and locker room. The headquarters are located near the handsome house of the Jersey City Athletic Club, of which many of the wheelmen are members. As far as convenience, the location is not all that can be desired, since to reach fairly ridable road a bumping over two miles of Belgian block to Marion is required; but then Jersey City is a town of such badly paved streets that there is but little choice of location. Capt. E. P. Bagot, the new commander of the H. C. W., has entered on his duties. Yesterday the club had a well-attended run through the Oranges, and enjoyed themselves after the delightful manner of their most popular kind.

I STOPPED in at the new King bicycle factory, on my way to Orange, on Saturday, and under the guidance of Saich, the veteran wheel maker, was piloted through the recesses of the place, that have so long been shut off from public gaze. Everything is ready to put a large supply of the machines in the market at short notice. The whole truth of the delay is, that the powers that be, have been making so many changes that none can be actually completed until the suggestion of improvement runs to an end. Then again, Saich has changes of his own, on which he is obtaining patents; but everything is ready for turning out machines at short notice, as I saw a large stock of "parts" made and ready to be put together. So you may expect to see them in the dealer's hands, any day. Saich showed me the machinery of manufacture, every piece of which is of his own pattern and invention. I saw the tubes for the forks and backbone of the racer, that is to be made for Kluge, in which much of the success of the machine will depend. It will weigh but twenty-two pounds, and its speed will be exhibited by Kluge, in all the races in which he is eligible.

CAPTAIN and Mrs. Porter, of the Orange Wanderers, left last Thursday for a tandem tour of a week or so along the Massachusetts coast.

HERE is a story which may be of interest to Socialist Weston. The other day, a tall, supercilious anglo-maniac dude entered Johnson's at Orange.

"I want to hire a sociable, sir."

"I am very sorry, sir; but the only one I have is now out. But I have a tandem I can let you have."

"A tandem, sir?"

"Yes, sir, a tandem. And I will guarantee that you will find that it will run one third easier than a sociable."

Looking at "Llew" with a smile, half affronted and half of pity at his ignorance, he replied with a toss of the head, "Opinions differ, sir," and left the store.

As far as it is possible for an outsider to be interested, I am in the discussion "Daisie" and "Violet" are having over the dress question. From the great variety of makes and materials that I see worn by the ladies of the vicinity, I think that it is a problem that well needs solution. Certainly, the lady riders of the L. A. W. should come to some agreement as to uniform. Why not have a convention of the ladies, tailors, and man milliners of the League to settle this vital issue, which threatens, if not the disruption of the wheel sisterhood, at least brain fever to "Daisie" and "Violet"? And what a convention it would be! Imagine it! Picture it! The gory contests of the annual meeting would be peace pow-wows by comparison.

THEY have accomplished a great missionary victory up at Orange lately. The barriers of prejudice have been broken down in that pretty borough at least. Two ladies, leaders of a most conservative set, and pillars of propriety, have shown their independence of narrow-minded opinion in general, and men in particular, by buying a sociable, and enjoying it every pleasant day. And, bless their dear souls! why should n't they? I rejoice to see that the independence of American women is becoming more pronounced every day, and I am no woman's rights man either; but independence of bigotry in matter of propriety and modesty I do admire.

THE Montclair Wheelmen are out in their new uniforms, and a very tasteful combination it makes — dark blue coat and stockings, with light gray caps and Knickerbockers, with blue strip down the seam. And right here let me confess to my Montclair correspondent, that I have mislaid the list of officers recently elected, which he so kindly sent me.

DURING the greater part of April, bad weather prevented riding, still the fourteen men of the E. W., who have handed in their records, have managed to make an average of one hundred and twenty-five miles each. The leading racers are: D. B. Bennett, 360; L. B. Bonnett, 341; Barrows, 159; Caldwell, 149; G. Roorbach, 130; and Sylvester, 125. The boys have taken every advantage of the recent fine "spell of weather," and May will show some big figures. The first meeting was held in the new clubhouse, on Wednesday. A reception will soon be given to afford local friends an opportunity of seeing the cosy little quarters, and later on, the neighboring bicycle clubs will be invited to warm the house.

THE proposed century run of the Orange Wanderers, on June 4, has excited the ambition of the other clubs, and some day in June, Capt. Martin will pilot a party of Elizabethans over the hundred. The past records of at least twenty-five of the men, make him believe that there are fully that number who can stay the distance, if they can get off from business, and will make the attempt. It is hoped that the club century badges, and the company will be sufficient inducements for a trial. No attempts will be made to make time, but simply to get as many as possible ever the distance.

THE Plainfield Bicycle Club will divide itself up into two divisions for the Decoration Day outing. One will go to Red Bank and Long Branch, and the other to Orange and the road race. The new house erected last fall has given the club a great boom and it has now sixty-four members.

On Decoration Day the Elizabeth Wheelmen will start at 9 o'clock for a run through the Oranges, and will, of course, be on hand at the race in the afternoon. A stage will take up a party of ladies in the afternoon. I fear it is too late now to make arrangements; but it would have been an excellent idea for all the clubs to have had a joint run in the morning, as all the clubs in this vicinity are Orangeward bound on that day. It is expected that fully 1,000 mounted wheelmen will view the contest.

THE prominent candidates for places in the Jersey teams are: L. B. Bonnett, Caldwell, D. B. Bennett, Barrows, and Bowman from Elizabeth; Burnett, Moore, Farrington, Pierson, Hetfield, and Warner, from Union County; Iveson, Jackson, Burgess, Dean, Doolittle, and Hingle from Rutherford; and Stenken, Bagot, and Smith from Hudson County. The course is in prime condition, and fast time has been made in the practice spins. Stenken has covered ten miles of the distance in 36.40 and 37.30. Whether Hall's 1.37.12 4-5 of last fall will be beaten is a question; but that the middle men and stern chasers will show considerable improvement over the pace of the last race is now pretty well assured.

FRAZIER, Brooks, and McCurdy will represent the Star people in the Clarkesville race. They went a week ago to the course, accompanied by Wallace as trainer. Great things are expected of the team, all of whom are in prime condition, especially is it so with Frazier.

THE eccentricities of the Inter-State Commerce Law will have much to do with keeping the Jersey boys away from St. Louis. As a rule, they are a busy lot, and, sad to relate, are not of plethoric purses. They wish their more lucky brethren, however, the best of good times, and to the St. Louis boys all the success their enterprise and hospitality entitles them to. I received my programme this morning. It is undoubtedly the best yet, and one of the prettiest specimens of the printer's art I have ever seen.

THE Passaic County Wheelmen will have a lantern parade the 14th of next month. All the neighboring clubs will participate. JER. C.

ST. LOUIS.

ONE cannot board a car or pass along the streets now without hearing the continual buzz of convention chat. One national gathering follows on the heels of another, and St. Louis will be crowded with strangers from now until the early part of October. The L. A. W. Meet has not been the least noticed of the conclaves, and column articles have been cheerfully given it by the local press from time to time. The outlook grows brighter and brighter, as the long-continued rainy spell seems at last to have ended, and if the beautiful weather of to-day continues during the week we will be happy. Should old Probs fail us, however, there need be no tearing of hair, as there will be opportunities on every hand for defying the elements, and having the fun go on.

THOMAS STEVENS was invited by telegraph to visit the Meet, and arrangements have been made for tendering him, and all visitors who are in town on Thursday evening next, a splendid reception at the Missouri Club. The club has increased its entertainment fund to $600, and will excel its previous efforts in doing the handsome on this evening. The clubhouse itself is now as pretty and fresh as a spring rose, and the tennis grounds are to be converted into a cool promenade, and will be illuminated with Oriental splendor. Kennedy-Child arrived last night from Chicago, and will lend the light of his eloquence to the occasion.

WE are expecting much as regards the League banquet. Stevens will speak, and will, doubtless, do wheeling proud; but of more vital importance are the sentiments towards our fraternity which will be uttered by a select number of representatives of the public. The invitations to these gentlemen were first made by means of handsomely engraved invites, and these were followed up personally. The effort will bear good fruit, and the utterances of such men as Jacob Furth will be carefully noted for future use. I hear the name of a well-known humorist mentioned in connection with the toastmaster's chair, and if his acceptance is secured the merry banqueters will not get their faces into normal shape for a week, I fear.

BARING rain, nothing will prevent the runs from being popular, and the Manchester trip, with little detours, is expected to be the favorite. The gentlemen in charge of the three principal runs are calculated to produce a stunning effect on would-be scorchers. Their names are Greenwood, Alex. Lewis, and Hildebrand, and they are all of massive build and acknowledged toughs. These gentlemen and assistants will co-operate with the reception committee of forty men in directing and assisting visitors over the roads and through the cycling haunts.

A SPECIAL car, containing a few members of the Missouri Club and its guests, will leave the city Sunday night for the scene of the Clarksville road race. There will also be a number who will take the regular sleeper on this train, remaining in town Sunday to get a better chance at St. Louis sightseeing. Ladish has outshone himself as regards his boat, so far, and many were surprised to learn that he had obtained government leave to use the famous Arsenal Band, which is stationed at Jefferson Barracks below the city. This band is excelled by very few in the country, and then only in size, and will make the river trip one continuous dream of evanescent sweetness, — a heaven of harmony, before which all cares and discord will fade away as by magic. Ladish will provide a printed bill-of-fare for each meal served on the steamer, and the banquet table after the road race will seat two hundred people. Beside the regular passengers and a few prominent Clarksville gentlemen, little room will be left, and as the "second-table" nuisance is to be done away with, a great many may have to miss the spread. Ladish is handling his big road race single handed, but the troubles which would wear out most men do not seem to worry him a bit.

THE field of road races has increased decidedly the past week. Munger dropped in one morning and rushed directly to the "bakery" and its feminine attractions, skipping out twenty minutes later for Clarksville. He rides a quadrant trike, and a day or two since surmounted Crank Hill on it, being the third man to climb the hill. A contest will probably be held at this hill on Sunday preceding the race. The Victor boys are taking good care of themselves, averaging about seven miles per day. Frazier and McCurdy are there, and the latter's stomach has bothered him a little, though he has made the belt trip several times around, record time. Crocker of Massachusetts bobbed up unexpectedly, as did John Brooks, who surprised us still more by bringing a Star wheel with him. Hollingsworth comes next. All three have been training at home for some six weeks, and Brooks, who still maintains that the crank wheel is best for track work, has been bucking the Blossburg, Pa., hills on his Star, and feels confident the Clarksville grades will not trouble him. He has set his mind on winning the race, and will depend largely on the seven-mile Dover down grade for the desired result. Percy Stone also seems bent on getting the race, and speaks of it with much of the resolute manner so noticeable in his brother Cola. On the Clarksville course, this field of good men will create tremendous excitement among those who watch them from the various points of vantage, and will elevate road racing to the top notch in the cycling world.

GREENWOOD, whose great claim to road honors lies in his hill work, boldly challenges Percy Stone to a round trip race on the DeSoto road, and the event may occur after the road race. Greenwood, however, asks for a two month's delay, in order that Stone may not gain the advantage of long training too soon after the big event. The hill climbing medals awarded to some seven men by the old Ramblers Club for mounting Son-of-a-Gun (chance for the Owl) hill, are at last forthcoming, this being made possible by raffling the pictures of the club.

THE club fund of the Missouri Club is now $1,000, and the arrangements for spending every cent are completed. PHŒNIX.

NEW YORK ROAD BOOK.

WE received, last week, an advance copy of the New York Road Book. The book contains minute descriptions of the make up and general character of fourteen thousand miles of roadway, thirteen thousand of which are unrepeated. The routes laid on, described, and measured, extend north and south straightaway 1,078 miles, and east and west 1,023 miles; from Quebec on the north to Staunton, Va., on the south; from Bar Harbor on the east to Cleveland on the west. The book contains, besides the roads of New York, the principal through routes of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and Ohio; and road maps of New York State, New York City, Brooklyn, Long Island, Buffalo, Staten Island, Orange, and Philadelphia riding districts. A very elaborate index contains references to 1,641 towns and cities. In addition to the routes, there is an article on the "Law of Cycling," the constitution of the New York Division, and a list of consuls, hotels, repair shops, etc. The book is supplied to League members in New York State free of expense, and is sold to League members of other States for $1.00 per copy. Non-leaguers cannot obtain it. Mr. A. B. Barkman, the bookmaster of the League, is the compiler of the book, and he has been assisted by W. S. Bull, of Buffalo, and W. H. DeGraat, of New York.

MR. H. S. OWEN CELEBRATES HIS BIRTHDAY.

In a characteristic manner Mr. H. S Owen celebrated his blanktieth birthday on Wednesday, May 11 by a "wheel around the Capital," given to the Capital Bicycle Club and invited guests. "Owen's Run" has become a time-honored institution in the club, and each succeeding year the ingenuity of that gentleman is taxed to the utmost to find something that the "boys can't ride." Barring brick walls and telegraph poles, his search has been so far unsuccessful. This run is conducted somewhat on the "follow-my-leader" plan. It is usually short as regards distance by air-line; but the surface of the country chosen is so diversified by banks, ditches, curbs, ash heaps, brick piles, tin cans, and other topographical features, that the air-line estimate gives only a fraction of the actual distance travelled.

About seventy-five wheelmen arranged themselves in line before the Capital clubhouse yesterday to permit the cameras of Messrs. Dodge & Hausmann to do their deadly work. The majority wore the uniform of the Capital Club, with here and there a sprinkling of the green of the Cycle Club, and the gray of the District wheelmen. They were divided into squads of about ten men each, distinguished by a particular color of ribbon, care being taken also to have the riders grouped according to the construction of their wheels. Bicycles with big wheels in front, bicycles with big wheels behind, and bicycles with wheels of diametrical equality, occupied their proper place in line.

Under the leadership of Mr. Owen, the party proceeded in parade form out 14th Street to the Boundary and up the steep hill leading to Wayland Seminary, where a halt was made to view the city, and deliver some final instructions. From this point it is almost impossible to describe the run. If you take one of Chas. Lever's descriptions of a cross-country fox hunt in Ireland, and substitute bicycles for horses and glory for a fox, one may get a fair idea of the difficulties into which the accomplished leader conducted his followers. The danger in all cases was more apparent than real. At each precipitous descent men were stationed to encourage and direct the successful rider and save the unsuccessful from a fall, and to the credit of Washington wheelmen be it said that their services in the latter capacity were very seldom called for. Of course, to the Star bicycles and other safety machines these descents were easy, but it was an interesting sight to see the change of expression on the faces of some of the riders of ordinary crank machines as they got the first sight of the plunge they were about to take. It was generally either stern determination, pent-up horror, or absolute demoralization. After investigating a vast amount of property marked "for sale" in the northwest the party had an opportunity of comparing it with that lying in the vicinity of the observatory. The latter will not bring as much per square foot, but close examination (generally on all fours) proved that geologically it does not differ materially from the former. Then the desert wastes around the monument were visited, when, the approach of darkness putting a stop to any more feats of wheelmanship, the line of march was taken up for "The Cycleries" on New York Avenue. The riding park in the inclosure was brilliantly illuminated, while at one end was one of those "groaning" tables familiar to all readers of fiction and the literature of annual banquets. After this was cleared, the arena was prepared for the gladiatorial combats, the first pair of gladiators being Rex Smith and Will Robertson, who played a long and hard game of polo on Star bicycles, which was finally won by the latter — three goals to two.

Between the acts Mr. Owen was surprised by the presentation of a very handsome etching, appropriately framed, the gift of some of his friends in the Capital Club.

After the polo, occurred obstacle riding of every kinds, such as riding lengthwise over the rounds of a ladder, through an artificial mountain of sand, and, finally, over two eight-inch planks, having their ends supported by a box about four feet high. It is quite a feat to ride up a narrow plank on a bicycle, balance a second on the apex, and then descend the other plank without losing your head, and consequently breaking your neck.

Where all rode so well comparisons are invidious, but special mention should be made of the riding of Will Robertson, who made but one dismount during the entire run; of Mr. Lyon, of Richmond, whose daring, skilful, and plucky riding gained him three hearty cheers; of Crist, the racer, who is as much at home on the roughest roads as on the smoothest track; and of Dinwiddie, the one wheel rider, who exhibited his skill both during the run and at the park. The evening was further enlivened by singing by the Capital Glee Club, under the leadership of Mr. Chickering, who presided at the banjo.

The party broke up at a late hour with cheers for Bert Owen, who was unanimously pronounced "first on the bike, first on the trike, and first in the hearts of the C. Bi. C."

FLUSHING, L. I.

Can you find space for a few notes from the old North side, the old terror to wheelmen, now fast becoming regenerated by the influx of new blood from outside civilization. The old ideas, and also the inhabitants die hard, but education in the end will get the upper hand of ignorance and blindness to self-interest.

The turnpike from Long Island city is in a fair way to be macadamized, work having been commenced, and if the farmers of North Hempstead township can only be talked over, we will soon have a continuous good road from the above place to Roslyn.

Very few metropolitan wheelmen have as yet taken advantage of the new ferry running from foot of East 99th Street, New York City, to College Point, and giving easy access to all parts of the island. The streets of Cottage Point are good macadam, and by following League signs wheelmen should find no trouble in reaching any spot where riding is possible. Our club will shortly issue a card for posting in club houses, containing complete directions.

The grounds of the Flushing Athletic Club, of which we are all members, will soon open, and contain a fine gymnasium, with baths, etc., ladies' clubhouse, tennis, baseball, and a fine five-lap track. All wheelmen visiting the vicinity are expected to visit the grounds, and are welcomed to take a spin on the track.

A new club of eight members has been organized in Huntington, and one is talked of in Jamaica.

Two of our members claim the bun for this year's first through trip to Babylon on Good Friday. Was anybody down there before them?

The roads on the "Plains" are now in their finest condition, but need a little rain.

To New York riders I recommend the following trips (via College Point or Flushing): — No. 1. To Garrisons and Willett's Point. Turn left at Bayside cross-road direct. Clambake or dinner.

No. 2. To Garden City and Hempstead. Turn right at Bayside cross-road, and follow League signs to Hyde Park. Turn right at second hotel, cross railroad, and follow main road. From Hempstead, good roads lead back to Babylon, Patchogue, Sag Harbor, and Greenport, or by boat from either of the last two places to Shelter Island.

Consul No. 7,556.

PEORIA, ILL.

Our club is now in a more flourishing condition than ever before, and is now just moving into elegant new quarters in the public library building upon the best corner in the city. We there have pool and card tables, together with all the bicycle publications, which, together with the fact that our rooms immediately join the library reading rooms and overlook the Public Square, in the business part of the city, gives us very desirable quarters.

We yesterday held the first road race ever held here, and it was an unqualified success, and others will undoubtedly follow. The course was over what is known as the Prospect Hill and Big Hollow roads, going six miles and returning four, to complete the ten. There were four entries — Captain Bert Myers, John L. Seery, Hiram Pierce, Jr., and Chas. Wheeler. They finished in the order named, Myers making the ten miles in forty minutes and twenty-seven seconds, which we consider remarkably good time, considering that there are fourteen sizable hills in the course, and the roads were not in the best of condition, and some little trouble was experienced and time lost with vehicles. I scarcely know whether it is allowable to mention the wheels ridden or not, but will hazard the statement that the first two wheels in were Champions, while the third was a Victor, and the fourth man who did not finish, not having trained for the race at all, rode a New Rapid.

We are going to the League Meet and Clarksville races with a good-sized crowd. We have a special car from here to St. Louis and return, and are anticipating a great deal of pleasure. H. G. R.

LEAGUE PROGRAMME.

St. Louis has shown us a very pretty programme of the Meet, and if she does all else as well as she has done this, the Meet will be a grand success. The programme is of chocolate paper with the crazy edge, and in size is 8¼ inches long by 4¾ wide. From the title page to the end of the thirty-two leaves one happy illustration follows another, making the book a real work of art. The first page is worked in seven colors, the inside in one, a reddish brown, which makes a beautiful combination with the chocolate color. The sketches were contributed by local artists. A. L. Spurgin furnished the designs for the covers. Other cuts were donated as follows: "A Modern Lochinvar," by H. R. Heaton; "An Easy Coast" and "A Catastrophe," by Fudge; "The Pump in Forest Park," by Miss Lillie Stone; "Central Drive, Tower Grove Park," from a photo by Edward Sells; "Tennis Paraphernalia," by a lady cyclist; "O, Where Are You Going, My Pretty Maid," by Julian Pogue; "A View of Bartold's," by Mrs. C. H. Stone; "He Fell on His Neck," Luke xv., 20, by Gus Thomas; "A Picture from Life," by John Fry; "On the Road to Des Peres," by William Barron; "A Combination," by H. R. Heaton; "The Foot of Monument Hill," from a photo by Ed Sells; "I dipt into the Future," by A. M. Blanchard. A map of the city and of the route of the parade is also printed. The programme contains reports from the various committees, which treat of transportation, reception, entertainment, parade, tours and runs, and banquet. Some happily arranged "tips" will give the visitors valuable pointers. The programmes, which are the work of Buxton & Skinner, will be sent to each League member. The pretty book is the result of the assiduous labor and artistic taste of Mr. A. K. Stewart, chairman of the Programme Committee.

SHOCK.

When a person has received an injury, besides the local damage done, there may be produced constitutional symptoms known as shock.

Causation. — Shock may be due to mental or physical, or both causes.

The mental causes are naturally most marked in those of a weak, nervous organization. The degree of shock produced by physical causes depends both on the extent and nature of the part injured; thus a far more profund shock is produced when a limb is torn off, than when it is simply broken; and a very small wound of an organ whose integrity is of vital importance, produces a far more intense degree than the most terrible injuries to the extremities. The surroundings have much to do with the degree as it is always less marked when produced during a period of excitement.

Symptoms. — These may be so slight as to pass off in a few minutes.

When they are marked, the patient partly or entirely loses consciousness; his pupils are dilated; his skin cold, damp, and pale; his pulse rapid and feeble; his breathing labored and shallow; and the patient passes from this state into that of collapse, and death or reaction occurs.

At the commencement of reaction vomiting may occur; the intelligence returns; the skin becomes warm; the pulse and respiration become stronger; and there is often a slight fever.

From this state he may return to that of shock and again react until one or other predominates.

Shock is more profound and death most apt to occur when there has been much hemorrhage.

Treatment. — Place the patient in the horizontal position, cover him with blankets, and place hot bottles by his side; gentle friction of the skin of the extremities is of great service.

If he can swallow, give him hot coffee, whiskey or brandy in tablespoonful doses, or half a teaspoonful of the aromatic spirits of ammonia in water.

If he is unconscious hold ammonia to the nose.

If his breathing ceases commence artificial respiration.

No operation, unless absolutely necessary, should be performed during shock, as they tend to increase it.

Surgeon,
Brooklyn Bi. Club.

CYCLETS.

St. Louis.

We are there.

We wish you were with us.

Ten thousand wheelmen in St. Louis would surprise us.

The brewery man might regret his invitation.

The papers are picturing new officers.

And writing histories of the League.

Likewise casting for it a brilliant future.

They always do it and St. Louis must fall into line.

The orators of the city are going to talk to us and say, "I never rode a bicycle, but I have often wanted to."

And wheelmen can have that year in and year out, and not ring a bell.

We have n't heard yet about the beauty of the St. Louis ladies, can it be that they have no beauty to speak of? We shall see.

The Chelsea Club members said "good bye" to Captain L. H. Frost at the Albany depot on Friday evening last, and presented him with a gold-headed cane. He goes to Chicago to engage in business.

Representative L. H. Porter, of the New Jersey division, has been sampling Boston roads the past week in company with his wife.

Gormully & Jeffery make an important announcement in another column.

C. H. Lamson is anxious to locate in California Here is a fine chance for some one to buy a good business.

The Overman Wheel Company has made a 64-inch bicycle, which they claim to be the largest ever made in America.

A dealer writes: "We suggest that you advise all riders to use a fine quality of cylinder oil in their bicycle heads. The ordinary lubrication oil has not body enough for the head. It needs a heavier oil."

The Executive Committee of the Ohio Division has voted to hold the annual Meet at Mansfield, Marion, and Springfield, on July 26, 27, and 28 next.

The Camden Club has a number of "flyers" In whose capabilities the club has unlimited confidence, and a race such as above proposed would excite widespread interest among wheelmen in this neighborhood.

Karl Kron writes that he will publish N. M. on May 25th. He has sent us specimen pages from his indexes which testify to the laborious work he has been about. Due notice of the issuing of the book will be given in the Bulletin.

The Rudge people have designed a machine to carry five men, a small machine gun, and an ammunition box. The machine has five wheels, the steering wheel being ridden, and in form is like a kangaroo; the next two wheels, which are connected by an axle like a tricycle, are ridden bicycle fashion or kangaroo fashion, one man in front and one back of the wheel; the other two wheels carry the machine gun and the ammunition box.

The Bicycling World, replying to a par in the Boston Globe about Lacy Hillier, says, "Imagine Lacy on an American machine — why, my lad, it would n't hold him." Well, perhaps the World won't believe it, but we have seen G. L. H. on a Yankee mount, and it did hold him. It was Golder's "Victor" (Overman Wheel Co.), and the ex-champion made it skip to such a tune we could n't hold on to the back wheel. — Cyclist.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors held for the purpose of determining who should be the representative of the Outing Magazine at the League Meet in St. Louis, it was unanimously agreed to send Outing's Cycling Editor, Mr. Thomas Stevens. Mr. Stevens will therefore accompany the New York contingent that leaves for St. Louis on the 17th. A happy coincidence was the arrival of a letter from the Chairman of the Banquet Committee at St. Louis, containing an invitation to the banquet on the 21st, at the very moment the Board of Directors had decided to send him.

On Sunday, April 17, the driver of a buggy deliberately attempted to run down Messrs. Reber and Kluge, while out riding in the Oranges. They called to the driver, but without avail, and they only escaped serious accident by expert manœuvring. Another gentleman, who happened to be driving by, chased the driver of the buggy, caught up with him, and stopped him, thus enabling the cyclists to come up with him. The would-be runner-down proved to be E. S. Lyon, a livery-stable keeper of Newark, against whom the wheelmen made a charge. On the day set for the trial, the man begged off so piteously that the wheelmen agreed not to press the charge.

Mr. Lester E. Hikok, a travelling salesman of the Wilcox & Howe Hardware Company of Birmingham, Ct., has completed six thousand miles on his bicycle, attending to the regular duties of his business. One of his most remarkable trips was from Newport, N. H., to Amesbury, Mass., stopping at twelve towns, and making twenty-one business calls, requiring a riding distance of one hundred and twenty miles, all of which was accomplished between 7. A. M. Wednesday and 4 P M. Friday. Mr. Hikok says that he could not have made the trip without one or two additional days had he depended upon the railroad for transportation. He rode a 56-inch Columbia, with luggage carrier on handle-bar, on which he carried a rubber suit, and on the perch was fastened, by a pair of clamps, a bundle containing an entire change of underclothing.

H. E. Ducker, accompanied by Marshal Clune, returned to Springfield from West Roxbury Saturday evening with the thief who took a bicycle from Mr. Ducker's shed a week ago this morning. The machine was also recovered. Circulars giving a description of the wheel had been sent out broadcast and police quarters everywhere were notified of the theft. The West Roxbury police saw a dust-covered young fellow in a public square asleep beside a bicycle, and on examining the wheel found the numbers were the same as those on the circular, and the dismounted rider was pulled in. Marshal Clune started for West Roxbury Saturday morning, and Mr. Ducker came out from Boston and identified the machine. The thief gave the name of George Merry, and said that his home was in Pawtucket, R. I., but that he had been in Springfield about six months. He said that he did not steal the bicycle, but bought it for $25 of a fellow, who delivered it to him near the pine woods on the Boston road, according to agreement. He stated that he was going home anyway, if he had not got the machine. It was found that the thief went by the name of George Scott while here, and is not known to have done anything but speculate in tickets around the Opera House. He boarded at the corner of Main and Worthington streets. The machine was in fair condition, with exception of the handles, which were bent in every way, showing that the thief was a poor rider. The only thing which had been done to conceal the identity of the wheel was the unscrewing of the name plate on the fork. The cyclometer showed that the thief had travelled one hundred and twenty miles. The thief had no money, but had a revolver when he was arrested. He said that he had not been indoors since he started. His case will be brought up in the police court this forenoon.

THE WHEELMEN'S HUMBLE PLEA.

All lovers of sport must sympathize with the woes of wheelmen. They are excluded from the paths in the parks because they are not pedestrians, and they are admitted to the driveways in niggardly fashion despite repeated legal decisions that bicycles and tricycles are vehicles. They now approach the Legislature with a respectful petition; namely, that since the common law classes them as vehicles they be declared by statute entitled to the privileges and subject to the duties of wheeled traffic.

This seems reasonable. The wheelmen outnumber horseback riders several times. Yet horseback riders are provided with special paths, while wheelmen are denied admission to existing roads. Nobody grudges horseback riders their privileges. On the contrary, to watch them is part of the pleasure of a visit to the parks. For a similar reason there is little reason to doubt that a popular vote would be in favor of letting the shining wheels and sightly uniforms add variety and motion to the scene. But the horsemen would vote against it, not for any particular reason, but on "general principles." How baseless their prejudice is appears from the experience of Brooklyn. For the past few months bicycle riders have been admitted to some of the roadways of Prospect Park, and, so far as is publicly known, without misadventure of any sort. There is nothing strange about this. It is common experience the world over, that a horse cares nothing about a bicycle the second time he sees it. If the horsemen, like generous sportsmen, would only give a fair chance to those who are compelled to take their constitutionals by "riding afoot," many would be happier and nobody would suffer.

On the other hand, let the wheelmen be modest. Horsemen are ignorant of the exigencies of equilibrium. Which is to say, that they have some excuse for thinking, and acting on the thought, that wheelmen are a little too presumptuous, when perhaps they are only dodging a stone or avoiding a soft spot which threatens a tumble. Nor should wheelmen complain if they are excluded from the crowded parades of beauty and fashion, as, for instance, along the eastern drives of Central Park. The traffic is already excessive in such places. Let them get up Rotten Rows of their own elsewhere. Perhaps if they rode discreetly, and made no enemies — as recently they have not — it might in time be feasible to extend their privileges. Their progress will be all the surer if they make haste slowly. Meanwhile, the general public, and horsemen, too, should remember that this petition to the Legislature asks nothing excessive. It merely provides that Parn Commissioners and such dignitaries shall not deny to wheelmen, because of unjust prejudice, rights which the law already grants them on all highways not within the parks. — N. Y. Times.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

OF GORMULLY & JEFFERY MANUFACTURING COMPANY, TO THEIR AGENTS AND FRIENDS.

It is pretty well-known to the cycling public generally, that a combination of Eastern manufacturers so called, has been formed to injure the business of several manufacturers in this country, one of whom is the undersigned. In communicating a few facts to our interested friends, we wish it distinctly understood that we do so with no intent to influence public sentiment in our behalf, as we believe ourselves perfectly competent to fight our own legal battles without calling upon the public for assistance. But the emissaries and travellers of some of the members of this combination, whose business it seems is to call upon our agents, endeavor by gross misrepresentation, deliberate falsehood, and threats of stopping their business peremptorily, knowing that neither they nor their employers have the ability or legal right to accomplish this result,— these emissaries, by such methods, endeavor to frighten our agents into refusing to handle our goods. Our travellers having been withdrawn from the road at present, we take this method of notifying our agents, friends, and any individual contemplating the purchase of one of our wheels, that we are prepared to fight every suit brought against them on our account, and will hold any one who may be so annoyed entirely harmless. It might be well to remark here, that no suits of this character have been brought, up to the issue of this paper. Another favorite falsehood with these people is that we are selling no wheels, although they know full well that since this litigation has arisen, we have more than doubled our capacity, and still at no period since the opening of the riding season have we been able to catch up with our orders. Still another falsehood with these minions of the aforesaid combination is that our bicycles and tricycles are made of inferior material. To this we answer that all our productions are warranted and guaranteed, and it is only necessary for the customer to examine into our financial status to satisfy himself that there is no occasion for misgivings on this point. The falsehoods of these hirelings generally take the color of the three foregoing; but whatever is claimed by them, we wish our friends to feel perfectly tranquil in the knowledge that we have the power, and will protect them in every instance.

Respectfully submitted,

Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co.
R. Phillip Gormully, President.

BROOKLYN TO MONTREAL.

CONSPICUOUS in the new clubhouse of the Ilderan Bicycle Club of Brooklyn is a neatly executed and framed circular, surrounded with maps, which reads, "Regular Annual Tour of the Ilderan Bicycle Club."

The regular annual tour of this club will leave Brooklyn on Saturday, July 9, at 5 P. M. for a run of three hundred miles over the best roads of Canada, and will embrace many celebrated points of interest, including the City of Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Rapids, a morning trip across Lake Ontario, the City of Toronto, where we will be the guests of the Wanderers (the largest cycling club in Canada), Belleville (Canada's summer resort), Kingston, Thousand Islands, River and Rapids of St. Lawrence, and the City of Montreal, arriving home Monday, July 18. Total distance, over 1,300 miles. The arrangements now being completed preclude all delays or annoyances while en route; also, insure the best of hotel accommodations and entire comfort while on the road, the average speed being regulated to forty-three miles per day. Total expense of entire trip less than $50. Members are earnestly requested to invite their friends to accompany us. The list will be limited to fifty, and all names must be in hands of the committee on June 20.

It can safely be said that this will be the most complete and attractive tour ever made from this city, and will afford wheelmen opportunities seldom offered. Full particulars may be obtained upon application to the committee.

R. L. CALKINS.
W. J. SAVAGE.
H. C. METTLER.

Secretary Calkins has recently returned from a three days' trip in the vicinity of Buffalo, where he has perfected the plans of the tour, which owes its origin to his labors. It is earnestly hoped that members of adjoining clubs in New York or New Jersey, who might desire such a summer trip, will not hesitate to address one of the committee for particulars, and decide before June 20. Already about a dozen of the Ilderans, with a few friends from other clubs, have booked themselves, and Secretary Calkins smilingly predicts that many others will fall into line before the last day.

TOUGHS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I want to preach a sermon from a text taken from a recent letter of the "Owl," and the text is to be "toughs." I have recently had frequent occasion to be where wheelmen most do congregate, and with great mortification I confess that our craft contains many who come under the designation of "toughs." I am only a beginner, and like all beginners anxious to learn all that can be gathered from the experience of older riders. For this purpose I frequented all the places where such information could be gotten. But alas, I soon found that a gentleman could not afford to tarry long where the young wheel "bloods" of to-day assembled, without having his moral sensibilities shocked by, — mind I am writing with the brake on, — blasphemy, profanity, obscenity, and (not or) vulgarity. I may have been specially unfortunate in my crowd. There are, beyond question, many riders who are gentlemen. But it is not very pleasant to state that in the last three months I have not been able to find more than one in ten persons with whom I could comfortably take a Sunday afternoon spin. I am not a "goody-goody," and don't want others to be; but I do most emphatically draw the line at the moral jigsty. Cannot the men of the League do something to counteract this tendency to toughism? Don't let us misunderstand the term. A man can be a "tough" muscularly, and still be a gentleman; but when toughness strikes his morals, I don't care how much money, or good clothes, or influence he has, nor to how "tony" a club he belongs, he is not a gentleman. 13,392.

MEMPHIS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — In the last issue of the BULLETIN, your New Orleans correspondent, in speaking of the proposed trip from that city to Baton Rouge, says: "If the programme is carried out this will be the first century run made in Louisiana, or any other Southern State with the possible exception of Georgia, and will prove etc."

On January 30, four riders of this city made a century run on the roads around this city, covering 110 miles between daylight and dark, and could have kept up the pace, but some had to see their best girls that night. Now I would like to know if this has been accomplished on the road, in any other State, during the month of January. TENN.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

DR. N. M. BECKWITH, President L. A. W.: —

Dear Sir, — The committee to whom you have referred the ballots cast at the special election of Chief Consul for the District of Columbia, has received from the Secretary-Editor fifty ballots in all, and finds that sixteen of them are for Edson B. Olds, and thirty-four of them are for E. F. Pettengill; and beg leave to submit this statement of the result as their report.

Very respectfully,
CHARLES E. PRATT,
A. S. PARSONS,
For the Committee.

May 16, 1887.

MASSACHUSETTS APPOINTMENT.

I HAVE appointed John Wood, Jr., of Beverly, a representative for Massachusetts.

H. W. HAVES, C. C.

NEW JERSEY DIVISION — APPOINTMENT.

I HAVE appointed Mr. Edmund G. Fraser, of Red Bank, as representative.

J. H. COOLEY, C. C.

TWO-MILE CHAMPIONSHIP.

BY a unanimous vote of the Racing Board, the two-mile national championship (bicycle) has been located for 1887 with the Wilkesbarre (Penn.) Bi. Club, and it will be contested at the annual Meet of the Pennsylvania Division, to held at Wilkesbarre, July 4.

ABBOT BASSETT, Chairman.

CONNECTICUT REPRESENTATIVE.

I HAVE this day appointed Mr. Edwin B. Gager, of Ansonia, a representative for the Connecticut Division, L. A. W.

LEWIS A. TRACY, C. C.

HARTFORD, May 14, 1887.

TO OHIO CLUBS.

AT a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Ohio Division, held in Cleveland yesterday, it was decided to offer the remaining "hand-books" in lots of ten or more to the League clubs of the State, at the exceedingly low price of fifty cents per copy; neatly bound and accompanied by the large road map of Ohio. Club Secretaries will please bring this matter before their members and see that every rider has a copy of this useful manual.

Fraternally
FRANK C. MEYER, Secretary Treasurer.

CANTON O., May 11, 1887.

VIRGINIA MEMBERS.

THE hotels designated by my predecessor, Dr. Frank L. Harris, and the consuls appointed by him during 1886, are hereby continued till further notice. I shall be glad to hear from L. A. W. members in the State, and especially from consuls, as to the best means to adopt in order to bring in new members, so that our division may grow and flourish.

J. C. CARROLL, Chief Consul.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

(52) I WILL feel obliged for the best route from New York City to Liberty, N. Y. Can it be ridden in one day by a strong rider? 3484.

(53) CAN a club which has not joined the League, hold a national championship, H? Ans. No.

(54) WILL some one send me the best route from Boston to Worcester? F. S.

(55) IN reply to "44," as to best course of exercise for wheelman to develop himself, would say ride a wheel!
S. H. M.

(56) IN reply to "12248," let me advise standing with heels together, and then raising himself on tip-toes. Repeat this slowly till you can do it a thousand times. The man that can do it that number of times will have strong calves. N. C. D.

(56) ANSWER to "36." Electric timing was used in Montreal, on July 1, 1886, and you can obtain information from "Club Three" about it. They consider it a success.
G. H. ORR.

(57) TELL "46" to write to E. R. Shipton, Secretary C. T. C., 139 Fleet Street, London, and get pamphlet on "Road Making," free for stamp.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

THE CLUB.

NEW CASTLE. — The New Castle, Penn., Bicycle Club officers elected: President, H. Warren Terry; secretary-treasurer, C. L. White; captain, C. J. Kirk; first lieutenant, A. G. Thalmer; second lieutenant, O. H. P. Brown.

ALBEMARLE CO. WHEELMEN, Friendship, N. Y. — Officers elected May 2: President, E. S. Latta; vice-president, Irving Saunders; secretary, F. G. Mortimer; treasurer, F. H. Rice; captain, W. T. Lane.

NEW BRITAIN WHEEL CLUB, New Britain, Conn. — Officers elected May 5: President, James W. Williams; secretary, A. W. Abbe; treasurer, F. C. Porter; captain, H. B. Arnold.

GRAND RAPIDS. — The Grand Rapids Bicycle Club held its annual meeting Monday evening, May 9, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, A. B. Richmond; vice-president and captain, W. S. Turner; secretary, O. L. Palmer; treasurer, W. H. Bennett; color bearer, Ed. M. Moore. The club now numbers ten members, and is in a prosperous condition. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Wilson of this city for an elegantly embroidered stand of colors. This club is a member of the L. A. W., and is proud of it. The Thos. Stevens Club of this city, although named after a man who has been entertained, and is an honorary member of that organization, not one member has joined. The G. R. Bi. C. will be in their new rooms in a few days, and are always glad to receive a call from any wheelmen visiting our city, and we will try and show them around, and give them a spin on our fine gravel roads. Come up boys and see us, and you never will regret it.

EAST HARTFORD. — The following are officers of the East Hartford Wheel Club for the ensuing year: President, L. S. Forbes; captain, H. E. Bidwell; first lieutenant, E. E. Arnold; second lieutenant, E. S. Horton; secretary, H. D. Olmsted; treasurer, W. K. Ackley. The spring races of this club, June 4, will offer strong inducements to wheelmen in the shape of an improved track, good variety of open races, and good prizes. A novel and interesting race will be the half-mile handicap in heats, English fashion, only the first man in each heat to start in the final, every rider in the latter to receive a prize. A good time is assured.

DON'T DO IT!

The man who proposes to GIVE something for nothing is the same man who is trying to GET something for nothing.

WATCH HIM

Don't believe him when he tells you that a cheap Bicycle with cart-wheel bearings is "just as good" as a high-grade machine with Bown's Adjustable Ball-bearings. Nothing is had for nothing. Buy the best, and it will behave well, ride well, look well, and SELL WELL, after you have ridden it for years. Victor Bicycles are all forged steel.
If you find one ounce of cast metal in a Victor Bicycle, bring it to us, and we will pay $100 for it. All interchangeable. Catalog free.

CANTON, O.—At the annual meeting of the Canton, O., Bicycle Club, held May 3, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Frank L. Casselberry; vice-president, C. W. Keplinger; secretary-treasurer, Will G. Saxton; captain, Wm. A. Bell; first lieutenant, W. H. Deuble; second lieutenant, Norm. Krause; first bugler, Frank W. Joy; second bugler, Chas. A. Vigno.; color bearer, Norm. L. Deuble. Executive committee consists of the president, secretary-treasurer and captain. Our club has recently been completely reorganized, and incorporated under the laws of Ohio. Our new club house now in course of erection on Court Street, will be ready for occupancy in about two weeks. This is the first building erected for the special use of wheelmen in Ohio, and will, when completed, be a nice, comfortable headquarters for the members of the club, with all necessary conveniences and the latest improvements usually found in such buildings. Fifteen members have signed the new constitution, and we soon expect to double that number.

L. I. W. and K. C. W.—The bowling match between the Long Island Wheelmen and the King's County Wheelmen, took place Wednesday evening, May 11, at the Casino, Brooklyn. The Long Island Wheelmen were successful, winning both games, the first by forty pins and the second by one hundred and two pins. The teams were composed as follows: Long Island Wheelmen, Messrs. Warner, Hulse, Luscomb, W. W. Shaw, Jones, F. P. Shaw and Brown. King's County Wheelmen, Messrs. Bridgman, Neppert, Stevens, Long, Snyder, Koehler, and Grosch. The match attracted considerable attention, and many members of both clubs were present during the bowling.

VERMONT WHEEL CLUB, Brattleboro, Vt.—Officers elected for 1887: President, O. A. Marshall; vice-president, F. L. Shaw; secretary-treasurer, Leslie Scott; captain, F. T. Reid.

COLUMBIA WHEELMEN, Stockport, N. Y.—Officers elected for 1887: President, R. B. Reynolds; vice-president, John Kittell; secretary-treasurer, Joshua Reynolds; captain, Joshua Reynolds.

THE PATH.

THE first of a series of five international bicycle races took place at London, Saturday, May 14, between Richard Howell, England, and W. M. Woodside, America. The distance was twenty miles. There 5,000 spectators present. Woodside, at the beginning, rushed to the front, and led at the end of the first mile which he covered in 2m. 48s. At the end of the tenth mile, Woodside was still in the lead, but toward the close of the races, Howell gained on him, and finally won by fifteen yards. The time for the twenty miles was 1h. 4os. The distances in the other races will be, respectively, one, five, ten, and twenty-five miles.

[The above is telegraphed from London, but the articles of agreement call for the first race to be at Leicester, on May 21.—ED.]

A RACE for the ten-mile championship of Scotland was contested at Aberdeen, on Saturday, April 30. The American team was represented by Woodside and Temple, but the race was won by J. Young, Temple second, and Woodside fourth. Young is the rider who lately defeated Howell.

THERE will be a two-mile bicycle race at the spring games of the New York Athletic Club, which are to be held on June 11, at Mott Haven.

AT a meeting of the Eastern Road Club's executive committee, it was decided to run the first race, twenty-five miles, Saturday, June 11, at 3.30 P. M. All clubs intending to join will notify W. R. Maxwell, secretary, Pollard Square, Somerville.

T. A. CARROLL, of the Lynn Cycle Club Track Association, has been appointed manager of the bicycle park.

THE Hagerstown (Md.) Bicycle Club will hold its annual Meet on Monday, June 13. The following races will be run: One-mile dash, amateur, open; one-mile dash, open to those who have never won a first or second prize; one hundred yards, slow race, open; one-mile dash, club championship; half-mile, open, in heats; two-mile handicap, open; two-mile lap race open to Maryland Riders; One-mile team race, three from each club; one-mile consolation. They have secured the grounds of the Washington County Fair Association, situate within the corporate limits of the town. The track is half mile, elliptical in shape, and made of red brick clay. With the aid of a seventeen-ton steam roller, the track will be made as smooth and solid as floor. Address all communications to Edwin J. McKee, Secretary, Lock Box 125, Hagerstown, Md.

L. A. W. TABLE.

Made of Georgia Mahogany.

Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.

L. A. W. SYMBOL,

Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered. Read what they say of it:

The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.

(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.

The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.

(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.

Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,

(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.

There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world. Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.— Thomasville Enterprsie.

Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W. member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

PRICE $2.50. When five or more are shipped to one address, the freight will be just one-fifth of what it would be on shipment of one. Address

Fill up the blank in the adjoining column and, together with $1.75, send it to the Secretary of the League,

ABBOT BASSETT,
22 School Street, Boston, Mass.
P. O. BOX 5267.

Write your full name, your full address, and your club name in full.

WRITE VERY PLAINLY.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training, or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

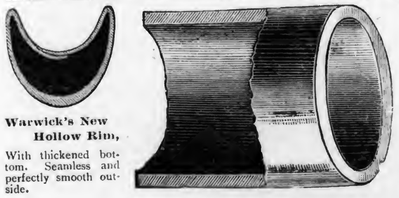
A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.



What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

A FEW INTERROGATION POINTS, GENTLEMEN.

Why be deceived by middle-men who call themselves manufacturers and are not?

If their statements about themselves are untrue, why not their claims regarding the merits of the wheels they sell, or rather attempt to sell?

Why be deceived by statements about records acquired on wheels so frailly constructed as to be useless on the road?

Is not the effort to associate the performance of one wheel with another, because only it is sold by the same middle-men, an effort to deceive?

Is it not reasonable to suppose that the buyer can get a better value for his money from the agent of the manufacturer than from the agent of the manufacturer's agent?

Is it not logical and wise to conclude upon a mount from the arguments and testimony of road riders who hold all the more important world's road and long-distance records, obtained too on American champion roadsters, rather than from the testimony of riders using 22-pound machines on specially prepared surfaces?

If you wish to be convinced, why not send a one-cent stamp for a special catalog of testimonials, parts, etc., to

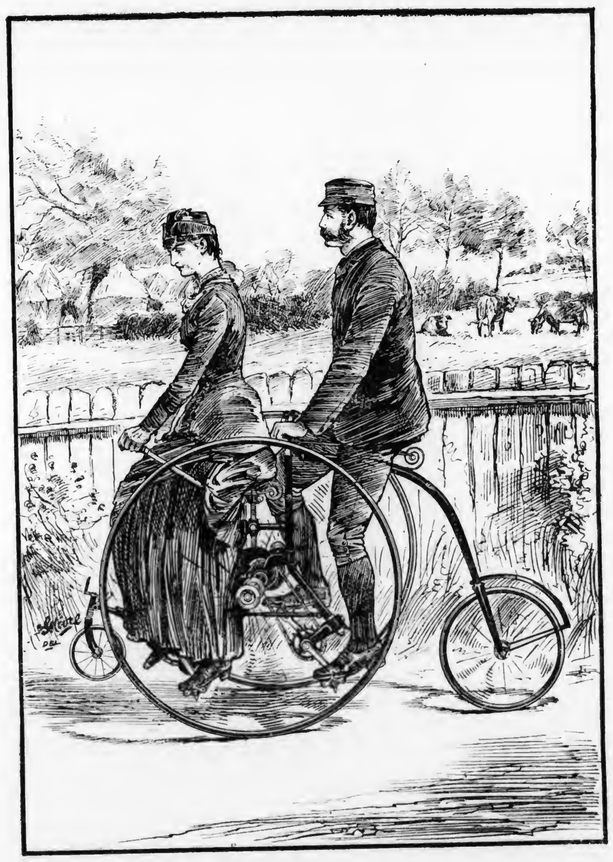
☞ As this list is constantly changing, it is advisable in ordering to state second and third choice, to be sent in case the first is already sold. Any of the above machines will be sent on approval if freight charges both ways are prepaid.

COLUMBIA DIRECT SPOKE LIGHT ROADSTER.

We have a few of these excellent machines still on hand, in 56, 58 and 60-inch sizes only, and recommend them for riders who wish light roadsters at a very low price. They are about seven pounds lighter than the Expert, closely resemble it in lines, and are very easy-running bicycles. While the cost to make this machine was greater than that of the Expert, we have now materially reduced its price, on account of having only a few sizes left.



They have ⅞-inch front, and ⅝-inch rear tires, seamless-steel hollow-front felloe, 68 and 20 direct spokes, detachable cranks, ball bearings to both wheels, bolted sliding spring, long distance saddle, straight, hollow handle-bars, ball pedals. If desired, the Kirkpatrick saddle and cow-horn handle bars will be substituted for the regular equipment. Finish, I; enamelled wheels, balance nickelled.

Price, any size, only $1.00; $5.00 less if Columbia Parallel Pedals are taken.

ANOTHER Meet has passed into history. (That's been said before, but it always fits in.) St. Louis has added her name to the list of cities that have entertained the national organization, and the record she has made is one that she may well be proud of. The Meet of 1887 has given to those wheelmen who were lucky enough to participate in it a very large stock of pleasant remembrances.

THE form of entertainment offered by St. Louis differed in many respects from that employed by the Eastern cities, and its novelty was one of its most charming characteristics. The wheelmen were assisted by their lady friends in the work of entertaining the visitors, and their presence at the gatherings gave a tone of refinement to them not always to be observed at meetings where men alone do congregate.

THE sail down the Mississippi in a cotton steamer was a most charming item on the programme, and the Eastern delegates enjoyed this with eager curiosity.

THE parade was very good in its way, but parades are not attractive to wheelmen of the present day, for they have gone by. The wheelman has no use for elaborate uniforms and gilded trappings, and one bicycler is much like another in appearance, and so there is little to please the eye in a procession of cyclers. The outside world has come to see this, and wheelmen themselves are becoming more and more disinclined to exhibit themselves.

A VISIT to a brewery is most certainly a novel form of entertainment, but it proved of no little interest at St. Louis, for they could show us the largest establishment in the world, and the wheelmen found very much to entertain them during the afternoon spent at the brewing establishment.

THE Meet did little in the way of legislation, but all that was done, was done with great unanimity, and everything was harmonious.

OUR new executive officers were elected unanimously. The little differences that existed between several of the divisions were happily adjusted, and an era of perfect peace was regnant.

WE commend to our readers a perusal of the various reports which appear in the account of the Meet published in another column. We are indebted to "Phœnix," our regular St. Louis correspondent, for the report.

To the Missouri Division the League is indebted for a very rare, and a very generous entertainment. The League appreciates it, and it will be cherished in the memories of those who participated, for very many years.

THE OWL.

AMERICANS can find many novel bits of information in the C. T. C. Gazette. I note in last issue the advertisement of a cyclometer which rings a bell every time the machine has been ridden a mile. Nice arrangement that for a lazy man, but useless to a deaf one. To such of my readers as glory in being "tough," I would commend a little article in same issue headed, "Do not forget you are gentlemen," in which the writer complains of the very ungentlemanly conduct of some cyclists who had committed the outrageous offence of "burning a candle down to the socket while reading and indulging in smoking" in the room they had hired. Rather strict in their ideas of a gentleman over there, eh?

"THE knee-breeches boom in Chicago has burst. The young men had the courage, but they did n't have the legs." — Call. "The Philadelphia boys have the legs, but they lack the courage." — Ex.

If Philadelphia and Chicago will waive the clause in relation to competitors being "boys," I'll back Vassar College to fill the other requirements of the "boom."

EX-PARK Commissioner of Public Parks Powers, who, by the by, is the father of Jesse Powers our city racing crack, has retired from the Park Board, much to the regret of all good citizens, and of every cyclist on Manhattan Island. He was a just and efficient holder of a public trust, and proved it by giving the cyclists all support possible in the fight for their rights in Central Park.

REAL estate in New York, or near it, is much too valuable a commodity to attempt any bungalow village experiment, but I believe that the need of some such rendezvous is what riders most need here. A ride from your club to nowhere and return is not pleasant, nor especially entertaining. I would suggest that the metropolitan clubs meet and arrange a plan to hire, for the exclusive use of club men, an apartment in the Clairmont, which shall be kept solely for their use, and where refreshments of various kinds will be served at a specified tariff. This plan is pursued successfully by all large city clubs at Coney Island hotels during the summer, and would not fail to be a prosperous experiment if tried. I am certain that not less than two hundred and fifty wheelmen will pay at least $1 per month for the privilege as above, during the riding season, and with this sum our own servants and rooms could be maintained in good shape. Won't some of our city clubs take this hint?

THE magazines are full of cycling this month. Demorest's has a very complete historical article on the birth and growth of cycling, in which appears some fac similes of caricatures by Cruikshanks, drawn in 1819, and entitled "Every man on his own perch, or going to the hobby fair," which amusingly illustrates some well-known prototypes of modern cycling. Harper's Bazar has a back page on the same old grind of rider, header, pretty girl as nurse, and a sequel of sociable ad libitum, drawn by Hooper. While I know full well that as long as cycling exists, this stereotyped form of illustration and romance will be perpetrated, I would like to suggest to such aspiring artists as Mr. Hooper, that they mount the hero and heroine in the sequel upon a tandem, not a sociable; it will be more abreast of the times, even if it is not more truthful.

MANY wheelmen in New York are induced to join the militia by the plea that through doing so, they will be exempt from jury duty. The fact is, that you can be drawn on jury duty but once in each year, and to avoid this the militia man gives up his freedom, for goodness knows how many days during the year. Look at Dr Beckwith as a case in point. He was all ready to go to St. Louis, when he gets some sort of orders from the 7th Regiment, of which he is a member, and forthwith, he is forced to stay at home, and shoot holes in targets, or perform some other deadly military work, while others go and have fun in St. Louis. Oh, yes! the militia is a great thing.

THE wheelmen of New York are elated over the passage of the bill appropriating $1,500,000 for the enlargement and improvement of the city parks as any movement in that direction will naturally tend to increase the present small amount of good riding.

THE Philadelphia Item, in speaking of the League Presidency, wails mournfully for "a fresh hand at the helm." That's just what's the matter with the L. A. W., they have had too many "fresh hands" grabbing at, and manipulating the "helm," or trying to at least.

MALCOLM W. FORD, the all-round champion, is causing the N. A. A. A. A. the same "monkey-and-a-parrot" sort of a time that Mr. Renton did the L. A. W. Ford has been declared a professional, simply because sworn testimony is alleged to have shown that he competed in Springfield under an assumed name for cash prizes. He says he will pull the whole affair into the courts. How funny this all seems when we are not in the fight?

THE press has been full of the recent experiments in England, of the cycle for war purposes, but it remained for Canada to introduce them as life savers in a scene of turbulence. Last week Mr. William O'Brien, while in Canada addressing a meeting on the wrongs of Ireland in general, and of Governor-General Landsdowne's hand in same in particular, he was attacked by an irate mob of God-save-the-Queener's, and forced to fly for his life, and had it not been for Mr. Thomas Lalois hiding Mr. O'Brien among his stock of bicycles, Mr. O'Brien would have lost his life, and I have missed this item, while Canada would not have secured the record of first introducing cycles for actual defensive purposes.

CYCLING races have always been admitted to have a plentitude of the spice of danger in them, but it remained for Philadelphia to intensify same, by running them out-doors by gas light last week, at Olympic Park, where John Radcliffe managed to defeat James Carson in a mile race, in 3.26, without breaking his neck. The last part of the affair is the most wonderful part of the performance.

IN England a newly cut grass track is always considered à la mowed for cycle racing.

THE plan of disbanding wheel clubs during the non-riding season, and of reorganizing them again in the spring, which is practised to some extent in the West, does not seem to find much favor in this section. A club's organization of fraternal feeling should be maintained equally as much, if not more, during that portion of the year when its members cannot ride, as it is then that the true beauty of club life shows itself most prominently.

THE OWL.

THE Maryland division will hold its regular Meet at Baltimore 20 and 21 June, on which occasion a lantern parade, banquet, races, and theatre party will form attractive features. A complete programme will be published later in the wheel press.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD R. LEWIS, of the Philadelphia Bicycle Club, sailed on Tuesday last for an extended tour through England and France on a tandem; that is, they did not sail on a tandem, but expect to make one sail when the steamer gets over. The Philadelphia Club tendered them a farewell run and dinner on the Saturday preceding. They have been practising hard road scorches for some time past, so as to be able to get most enjoyment from their trip awheel, and there are those who say that Mrs. Lewis is the fastest rider in the Philadelphia Club. Craven, of the Germantowns, is willing to back this statement with his life if need be, and says he never was so completely and utterly done up in his life as he was after a run in company with the Lewis tandem.

Captain Arthur Roberts will lead a club run of the Pennsylvania Club men to the Oranges on the 28th of May, taking train from Philadelphia to Newark; I say, Art., wh-w-w-wh what 's the matter with riding over on wheels? They expect to take in the New York and New Jersey road race, and will return on the 30th, and altogether should have an extremely pleasant time. The Germantown Club, under the al eged captaincy of Geo. Craven, will make a run for three days down in the heart of the New Spain, where mosquitos, black snakes, card and other sharps prevail, and the weary cease to rest. It is truly to be prayed that some of the irrepressibles on this trip will allow the older members more time for sleep than on previous similar excursions.

At the championship sports of the State Intercollegiate Association, on Saturday last, in the two-mile bicycle race, Keen, the champion of last year, Kolk, and Geary, all of Pennsylvania, with Morton, of Lafayette, were entered. Keen sped to the front and stayed there until the middle of the seventh lap. Here Kolb, who was following close behind, rose erect for a moment for wind, and then buckled down to a vigorous spurt. Keen lacked the necessary endurance, and champion as he was, had to take second place, while Kolb finished in splendid time, breaking the college record. The time-keepers gave him 6. 5 1-2. Kolb is riding in splendid form and should have a look in at the National Intercollegiate.

Stevens, of Millville, N. J.; Pearson, of Vineland, N. J.; Wilhelm, of Reading; and Hill and Bailey, of this city, are said to be among the entries to the bicycle events of the Schuylkill Navy next Saturday.

At a mile race given by a clothing firm on Saturday, M. J. Bailey won first, and F. Coningsby second.

PHACTOTUM.

JERSEY.

WERE I the Owl, I might perhaps be excused if I remarked that the BULLETIN, this week, will be as full of Meet as an egg; but as I believe in every man 's grazing on his own pasture, I will not attempt to invade the domain sacred to the punographic correspondent, whose powers, unlike mine, are confined within no pent up limits. Jersey is mine. The whole boundless universe is his. But to return, I suppose you will have little space left for Jersey, this week, Mr. Editor, and lucky for me you have so little, for there is a dearth of news bicycular just now. We scan the papers eagerly for tidings of the Meet, and precious little the New York dailies give us to supply our craving. You fellows in Boston and Philadelphia are no doubt better treated. We hope that some day our own journals will tear out a leaf from their contemporaries' book of example. We all are looking anxiously for this week's BULLETIN to tell us all about the things that we can enjoy, alas! only in recital. And we do hope that first we may be told of the pleasures of the Meet, before the terrible dose of the windy annual meeting forces all things interesting from our organ's columns for a month or so.

My correspondents have evidently settled down to their long summer nap, and forgotten all about poor me. Not a scratch of a pen have I had from any of them for a fortnight. Happy in the consciousness of having done one good deed, having sent one budget of items apiece, they leave me to drift on the sea of ignorance. Perhaps they think that in my garden grows the tree of cycling knowledge, and all I have to do is to go out and shake it to have a lapful of fruit fall down. In my despair at the strange reluctance of mankind to furnish me free what I may sell for cash, I mount my wheel and sally forth in quest of news.

To clubhouse, dealer, and individual I go; but all they know, all they will talk about is "the race." They have enough to say about that, — enough wild rumors to tell me, — enough stories of marvellous times made, — enough stories of veterans going faster than ever and dark horses beating records, — enough prophecies of who will be first and who will be last, what teams stand any show of taking the cup from Kings County, and those that are bound to be target carriers. If there is to be nothing but race, I stroll from Orange across the Valley Street side path to the course. I find it somewhat rough, the small stones having come to the surface. Unless we have a good rain, I guess my bet that 1.39 will not be beaten will sail above par by the day of the race. If we do, then I fear another fellow will smoke my good cigar. I reach the Hilton Inn, and the Union County team candidates are starting out for a trial twenty-five.

THERE are six of them, and I understand this is to be the final test, so I watch the clock. This is the result for ten miles: Pierson, 43.00; Hetfield, 44.00; Moore, 44.30; Burnet, 44.45; Farrington, 48.00. Warner gives up the fight here. The twenty miles are finished as follows: Pierson, 1.28.30; Moore, 1.30.30; Burnet, 1.32.00; Farrington, 1.39.00; Hetfield, 1.45.00. Pierson stops at 23½ miles in 1.48.00. Moore finishes 25 miles in 1.53.00; Burnet in 1.59.00, and Farrington in 2.05. The men seemed well satisfied with their trial spin, so I suppose they must have had plenty to spare up their sleeves.

BUT now we are going to have a race. Kluge, of Jersey City, and Stenken, of the Hudson County; Greenman, of the Ideran, and Bowman, of the Elizabeth teams, bring forth their steeds for a ten miles scorch. They all have had their machines at the Irvington Hotel for a week, and every afternoon have had a trial for ten miles. Kluge is at it morning and afternoon, getting into trim to ride his King when it is ready for him. His mount is a crank, to which he was introduced for the first time but three weeks ago. He is practising with this type so as to get accustomed to steering with the big wheel front. This evens things up. The quartette starts out at a rattling pace, which shows that it is to be a race for fair this time. I wait a half an hour, and then a tall man on a Star appears over the crest of Hilton Hill. Down the grade he flies with sweeping stroke, though his machine wobbles more than I like to see. Otherwise, the rider's action is perfect. It is Stenken, and he finishes in 36.35. Behind him comes another Star, ridden by a sturdy young man. He comes up the last hill with a rush. He bends his leg outward at the beginning of the stroke, and seems to me thus to lose some of his power; but he gets there in 37.42. Bowman, a delicate-looking boy, comes steadily up the hill, and finishes without spurting in 39.13. He rides in perfect form, and it is to this alone that I attribute his making the creditable showing he did, for he is far from a strong lad. Kluge brought up the rear on his crank in 39.10, and looked as though he wished for his old friend the Star, or his new friend, the King.

AFTER the quartette had dressed and cooled off, we had a chat together about the run. Stenken and Greenman were sure that unless it was a very unfavorable day 1.39 would be beaten, and they ought to know; for, mark my word, they will be pretty close to the man that does it. All the Jersey boys pin great faith on Stenken, and, if I am not mistaken in reading indications, Hall, Valentine, Powers, and the other flyers from over the river will have to ride faster than 1.35. I say this on my own responsibility, and not as coming from Charley, for a more modest fellow never bestrode a wheel. He now weighs 176, and is in the pink of condition, as 36.5 for ten miles the other day will prove. Greenman is also going well and I look for him among the leading six. Valentine, however, will be a troublesome customer this time, as it is well-known that he was out of shape last fall, when Hall beat him, and yet he finished inside of 1.40. I hear great stories too, about Powers, of the Harlems, on whom, with his clubmates, Halstead and Fontaine, of the Citizens, the New Yorkers pin their hope of the individual championship. I hear that Edwards, of the Harlems, may start. If he does, and is in trim, I warn the Kings County men to look out for Harlem; for if any team is to down them it is this.

THE race is to be started from a point not far from the Hilton Inn, at one o'clock. The proprietor of the inn is making preparations to entertain a big crowd, and will be ready to dine 450 at noon on that day, at one dollar a head. It will be the biggest cycling banquet ever given in this country, if as many are present as are expected. No need to send word ahead, as everything will be ready for you.

THE Elizabeth Wheelmen were out in full force on Saturday, and parties of two and three kept wheeling up to the Irvington Hotel all the afternoon, the most of them having been to Orange, and crossed by the favorite Valley Street side path. Surgeon Oliver piloted a convoy of the ladies' division among whom I noticed several of the new members. The Elizabeth ladies are enthusiasts, and each week is pretty sure to bring a convert to their ranks. Quite a number of them may be seen in the mornings riding about on their wheels, attending to their shopping.

CAPTAIN AND MRS. L. H. PORTER, of the Orange Wanderers, have returned from their Boston trip, much delighted with their sojourn, though with hearts far from weaned from their own beautiful riding district. They were of the first party that went out on the Victoria six in hand, that has been the sensation since its appearance on the road.

THE Essex Bicycle Club had a run to Stone House Plains on Saturday, while the Orange Wanderers' Bicycle Division journeyed to Springfield and Milburn.

THE Elizabeth Wheelmen will have a short parade at 9 o'clock, before starting on their Decoration Day run to Orange and the race. They will be pleased to have visiting wheelmen that arrive in the city at that early hour accompany them; and clubs, by the way, will have to start early to have a run through the Oranges and be at the Hilton Inn in time for dinner at noon.

THE Roselle Ramblers are to have a clubhouse soon. A friend has started the ball rolling by giving a check for $50, and a successful entertainment given by the club last Wednesday added somewhat to the fund.

THE Union County wheelmen are offering liberal inducements to their racers and riders — a medal with a bar for each thousand miles ridden, a prize for the one-mile track championship, and a trophy for the fifteen miles road championship.

AN old lady, to whom I showed the L. A. W. programme, was highly shocked, in the parade page, to see the female riding the bicycle au naturel, and it took me some time to convince her that the cut was merely there for artistic effect, and that the lady in the airy attire was not to be one of the features of the parade.

THE problem of the King machine has at last been settled, and Saich is to make it after his own pattern without interference from the powers that be. He has shown me models of every part, and machines will be turned out as soon as the dies can be made. The hitch was in reference to the axles and bearings. Saich showed me his solution of the problem, and were not my mechanical section of cranium a hollow instead of a bump, I would give you his explanation. A friend of mine, who was with me, said he understood it, and as I have great confidence in that friend's mechanical acuteness, I I can safely say that everything is all right now, and that the new King will be, etc.

SAICH treated me to a little bit of sarcasm that amused me. Turning to my friend's mount he said, "That's the best tandem I 've seen yet. It will never get out of repair," My friend smiled with satisfaction. "You see it will never run fast enough to break anything if it strikes anything."

JER. C.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE EIGHTH ANNUAL SESSION OF THE L. A. W., HELD IN ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI, FRIDAY. MAY 20, 1887.

THURSDAY, May 19. The travelling public and denizens of the Union Depot were rather surprised this morning to hear snatches of cycling melodies wafted on the air, and emanating from one of the early trains just arrived from the East. The songsters were the delegation of friends who have come from far-off Eastern States to shake the hand of the West, and lend their jolly aid toward making the eighth annual Meet a rousing success. The Boston and New York contingents, composed mostly of the most prominent men interested in the welfare of the L. A. W., had special cars, and were accompanied by a number of others, all too numerous to mention, whom they had picked up in passing through their respective States. Abbot Bassett, and our genial friend Charlie Howard, were viewed curiously by our boys and then welcomed heartily, and Col. Pope, Mr. A. H. Overman, and Herbert Hayes were the centre of attraction. Mr. Kirkpatrick has been with us before, and with his merry crowd of Ohio ladies and gentlemen was made to feel at home immediately. The forty members of the Reception Committee had been on duty since six o'clock, one party guarding the Union Depot, another looking after the parties arriving by steamer, and others going over to the east side, and preparing our friends, as they rolled over the big bridge, for a comfortable arrival in the city.

The Meet may be said to have already commenced. Numbers of the city cyclists are out for a week's furlough, and numerous squads of Missouri club men, in their new uniforms, were seen evoluting gracefully on the asphalt at an early hour, presumably getting themselves into shape for the parade of Saturday. The outlook is cheerful in every respect, and the weather and roads are to-day perfect, cool breezes coming from the west, making the probability of that bane of all meets, rain, sink into insignificance. At the clubhouse all is activity, and the same condition of things exists at the headquarters down town. Across the veranda of the Lindell Hotel is spread a banner bearing the words, "Headquarters, League of American Wheelmen," and in the corridors are found a large number of wheels, the number at the regular storage room being comparatively small. At noon, I found the Colonel and a bevy of friends, sitting contentedly about the corridor of the Lindell, talking over the coming events of the morrow.

THE election of L. A. W. officers, the result of which seemed to have been a foregone conclusion a few days ago, has taken on a new aspect, and from the rumors which are flying about one would judge that a few surprises are in store. Some have it that Mr. Jessup, of Penna., will receive a strong nomination for the presidency, and a local boom seems to have started in favor of W. M. Brewster, of St. Louis, as the national treasurer. John C. Gulick will have a decided opponent for the position of third member of the Executive Committee in George Bidwell.

A FRESH interest is given to the Clarksville road race by a rumor that Wm. A. Rowe, Gaskell, and Ives have been entered at the last moment for the event, and Kennedy-Child firmly asserts that Rowe has been training quietly at Crawfordsville, Ind., for the past three weeks, running forty miles per day. Inquiry of Mr. Ladish shows that Rowe is not yet entered, and parties hailing from Boston say they met Rowe in that city before leaving, claiming that there is no truth in the report of his having been in Indiana. True or not, excitement is getting to a high pitch. St. Louis has suffered a sad disappointment as regards the road race, Percy Stone having been taken suddenly and severely sick this week, and he is just out of a sick bed to-day, not being strong enough to mount a wheel. A sudden cold is assigned as the cause.

THE special Meet number of the Wheelmen's Record is on sale at various stands, and is provoking a great deal of mirth. The local hits are amusing, and all the points well taken.

THE Fair Grounds Association has at last yielded to the request of the Meet Committee, and thrown open its gates to wheelmen during the Meet. I do not know that a great many will visit the Zoological Gardens, but we consider that a strong point has been scored.

MISSOURI CLUB RECEPTION.

Messrs. Dennis, Northrup and Pratt have spared no pains to make this, the opening event of the Meet, as enjoyable as possible, The clubhouse decorations are simply superb, and how they could have been arranged in so short a time is hard to imagine. One little arrangement which went straight to the hearts of the St. Louis Boys who entered the clubhouse door this evening, was a striking likeness of dear old Cola Stone, which greeted the eye from the wall of the reception room. Gay bunting and floral decorations are seen all over the house, and the lawn-tennis park is illuminated à la the late parade; and as I jot down these notes I see a number of Eastern boys sauntering up and down the cool aisle, arm-in-arm with the beauty of St. Louis. Many of the ladies are in decollete dress, and a fair proportion of club members, I see, have donned the festive swallow-tail, somewhat to the disadvantage of the visitors, Col. Pope, Mr. Overman, and many others being attired only in the true wheelman's dress. Tom Stevens held a levee in the parlor, grasping the hands of his many admirers, and greeting all with that bland, calm smile, which seems to be mistaken by some for taciturnity. At 11.30, lunch was served, and there I found the uselessness of trying to fill up the Secretary-Editor. His capacity is limitless. After lunch, Mr. Aiken, of Brooklyn, made things musical in a vocal way, being encored repeatedly. Then some wicked person whispered in the ear of President Stewart that vigorous little Mr. Overman was a recitationist. "Overman, Overman," was the cry, and at length they brought him forth and listened, with many an interruption of laughter, to his rendition of "Barbara Frietchie," in the German dialect. Then did they haul forth "Verax," and make him screech out in skilful discord Patti's "Coming through the Rye." A period of dreamy enjoyment and chat, visions of girlish beauty, glimpses of a pair of yellow shoes (Harry Corey) flitting nimbly o'er the gymnasium floor, amidst the crowd of merry dancers, one o'clock, and — home.

FRIDAY. — A glorious day; air cool; sky cloudless. The entire Reception Committee is on duty at the Union depot, while Chairman Smith and Ira Hubbell find their hustling powers wholly inadequate to cope with the crowd at the Lindell Hotel. The Touring Committee is on the qui vive for victims. Hal Greenwood has captured several good men for his De Soto run, while Hildebrand has scampered away through Forest Park with a jolly but rather tired crew. There does not seem to be much enthusiasm on the part of the general membership to take advantage of the open Board meeting, an account of which will be found in another column. There would seem to be good reason for this apparent lack of interest, inasmuch as the meeting, which was called to order at 9.15, was delayed until 11.30 on account of the hard work encountered by the Committee on Credentials, and the attendance quickly decreased to about fifty members, and forty-four of these were representatives and officers. Entertainment Hall proved to be a little large for the purpose of the meeting, though it was found to give admirable scope to the sonorous eloquence of Mr. Luscomb, of New York, with whom all seemed charmed. One of the boxes was occupied by a bevy of ladies, who took an animated interest in the proceedings, and smiled with the rest when the chairman raised his unique gavel, — a hammer with the danger side broken away. Great satisfaction was expressed on the passing of the peacemaking resolution offered by Mr. Luscomb, which was understood to be the result of a consultation, in which the representatives of the Pennsylvania Division expressed a wish to set aright, in open meeting, the position of their division anent the New York unpleasantness. The fact that the resolution passed unanimously evidenced the desire on all sides for perfect harmony in the future.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF OFFICERS IN ENTERTAINMENT HALL OF THE EXPOSITION BUILDING.

Mr. Bassett called the meeting to order at a quarter past nine o'clock, stating that the meeting was, by common consent of the board, to be open to the general membership.

Mr. Brewster moved that Dr. C. S. Butler, of Buffalo, New York, be elected temporary chairman.

Mr. Bassett put the question.

It was carried unanimously, and Dr. Butler was escorted to the chair.

The Chairman stated that the first business in order would be the appointment of a Committee on Credentials.

Dr. Cooley, of New Jersey, moved that a Committee of Credentials of three members be appointed.

Seconded, and motion being put, was carried.

The Chair appointed Messrs. Cooley chief consul of New Jersey, W. W. Share, representative of New York, and A. C. Stewart, representative of Missouri.

Mr. C. H. Luscomb, of New York, moved that a recess be taken until 10 A. M. to give the Credentials Committee time to complete its work.

The committee at once went to work in an adjoining room, but owing to some technical difficulty, did not reappear until half-past eleven. Its reappearance was greeted with applause.

Dr. Cooley, as chairman of the committee, said: The Credentials Committee beg to report that there are present in this meeting one hundred members by proxy (roll-call, later, shows forty-four personally present.) Five proxies have been rejected by the committee, as they are not filled in in the handwriting of the persons signing them, the names being C. C. Moore, of California; J. C. Arkison, of California; R. C. Woodsworth, of California; S. H. Day, of Rhode Island; A. A. Bennet, of Ohio; Jno. V. Stephenson, of Pennsylvania. F. T. Mittauer, of Nebraska, rejected because proxy not held by a member of the Board of Officers; C. H. Griffin, of Ohio, rejected, as the signer is not a member of the board.

Mr. Jessup, of Pennsylvania, moved that the report be received.

Mr. Elwell, of Pennsylvania, arose to a point of information, desiring to know the reason of the rejection of Mr. Stephenson's proxy.

Dr. Cooley stated that the proxy of Mr. Stephenson had first been made out to Mr. Bassett.

Mr. Elwell stated that the proxy bore an inscription giving Mr. Jessup power to sign for him (Stephenson). Mr. Elwell also asked if the inscription on the proxy was not a revocation of the first proxy.

THE CHAIR. I understand that Mr. Stephenson first made his proxy in proper form to Mr. Bassett, Secretary-Editor. He revokes this, making it to Mr. Jessup, writing on the bottom, "this proxy is to take the place of the one sent to Mr. Bassett," and signing, John F. Stephenson. The Chair would rule that this action revokes the proxy of Mr. Stephenson made to Mr. Bassett, and the question as to whether the one held by Mr. Jessup is in proper form, would hardly come in for consideration. Mr. Stephenson evidently desired to revoke the first proxy, and I think that would be the proper decision. He should have notified the party to whom his first proxy was made.

Dr. Cooley begged permission to withdraw the report of the Credentials Committee, so as to withdraw entirely the proxy which was made to Mr. Bassett, and would do so if all were agreed.

Mr. Longley thought that the writing on the bottom of the proxy should not cut out Mr. Stephenson from representation at the meeting, and opined that the second proxy, reading to Mr. Jessup, should be rejected, and the one to Mr. Bassett should stand.

THE CHAIR. The second proxy would not be legal until the first one was revoked.

MR. LONGLEY. Is the second one a legal proxy?

THE CHAIR. That does not seem to be the question under discussion.

Mr. Livingston, of Ohio, desired to know why the proxy of A. A. Bennett had been disallowed.

Dr. Cooley answered that the handwriting in which the proxy had been filled out and the signature were not the same.

Mr. Dunn, of Ohio, explained that Mr. Bennett was in the habit of using more than one style of writing.

The proxy was handed to Mr. Dunn for inspection, and he reiterated his belief that the writing was all the work of Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Elwell moved that if the proxy was written entirely in one handwriting, that it be accepted. Motion seconded, and the question being put, was carried.

The committee withdrew to amend its report, reappearing at 11.40, reporting that the proxy of Mr. Bennett had been accepted, and that the proxy of Mr. Stephenson had been thrown out.

It was moved that the amended report of the committee be accepted and adopted as the action of the Board. Second and carried.

The secretary read the president's list of appointments during the year, by himself and chief consuls, as follows: —

By President Beckwith.

Francis Bloodgood, Jr., of Milwaukee, Wis., to be chief consul of Wisconsin.

By Chief Consul Jessup, of Pennsylvania.

Representatives.

By Chief Consul Cooley, of New Jersey.

Representatives.

C. V. Bitters, of Salem, to fill vacancy caused by resignation of G. O. Waterman.

By Chief Consul Tracy, of Connecticut.

Representative.

Edwin B. Gager, Ansonia.

It was moved that the list be confirmed, as read by the secretary. Seconded and carried.

The secretary now called the roll of those members personally present, the following answering in the affirmative: —

H. G. Rouse, Peoria, Ill.
Chas. Hansel, Springfield, Ill.
A. B. Irvin, Rushville, Ind.
W. H. Pontious, Crawfordsville, Ind.

F. T. Sholes, Cleveland, Ohio.
H. B. Hane, Marion, Ohio.
A. P. Seilers, Mansfield, Ohio.
F. L. Casselberry, Canton, Ohio.
H. S. Livingston, Cincinnati, Ohio.
C. W. Keplinger, Ohio.
George A. Jessup, Scranton, Pa.
I. Elwell, Philadelphia, Pa.
J. E. Harder, Clearfield, Pa.
J. J. Van Nort, Scranton, Pa.
S. H. Murray, Sewickley, Pa.
C. S. Davol, Warren, R. I.

Forty-four names were responded to.

The Chair stated that the election of new officers, for the ensuing year, was in order.

Mr. Luscomb, in that connection, offered the following resolution:

Whereas, certain misunderstandings have arisen in the past between Divisions of the League of American Wheelmen; And whereas, after a full and fair discussion of all matters in difference, we are satisfied that no affront has been intended to any Division of this League, more especially Pennsylvania and Maryland.

And whereas, it is the conviction of the meeting that that fraternal unity which should exist among all the members of our institution is firmly established and should be declared by a statement at this time;

Resolved, that the action taken at the last meeting of the Board of Officers was not directed against or in derogation of the rights of any Division;

That the inference that such was intended was a misconception of the facts of the case, excusable under the circumstances, but unfounded in the light of fuller understanding;

That harmony exists between all the Divisions of the League.

That whatever has occurred in the past to disturb this harmony, is buried forever under that fraternal tie which holds us together as one body of American wheelmen;

That we pledge ourselves to the maintenance of that harmony and the earnest promotion and advancement of all the interests of the Order to which we yield fealty.

Mr. Hayes, of Massachusetts, seconded the motion to adopt the resolution. The question was put and carried unanimously, the result being greeted with cheers.

Mr. Luscomb, after paying an eloquent tribute to the energy of those having in charge the eighth annual Meet, and to the West for its efforts to advance the interests of the L. A. W., added: "Now, it is only proper that the West should be more fully and strongly represented in the government of our organization than heretofore. Gentlemen of the West, we come to bear tribute to you The East, and more particularly New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey, come here to-day to honor you, and we cannot do it better than by placing in nomination for the highest office in the gift of the league, that of President, the name of T. J. Kirkpatrick, of Ohio." (Loud applause.)

Mr. Dunn, for Ohio, responded to the address of Mr. Luscomb, and heartily seconded the nomination.

It was moved and seconded that the nominations close. The question was put and carried, and the Chair appointed as tellers to receive the ballots, Messrs. Jessup and Brown.

Mr. Brown moved that the secretary cast the unanimous ballot of the meeting in favor of Mr. Kirkpatrick. Seconded and carried, and the secretary thereupon cast the ballot accordingly. "What's the matter with Kirk," vas responded to with enthusiasm, "He's all right."

Messrs. Bartlett of Maryland, and Brewster of Missouri, were appointed to escort Mr. Kirkpatrick to the chair. At exactly 12.15 the newly elected president was gracefully introduced to the meeting by Mr. Butler, who then retired. Advancing to the edge of the platform, Mr. Kirkpatrick said: "Members of the Board! I have to thank you for this very generous endorsement, and for the overwhelming honor which you have thus put upon me. I realize, perhaps better than some of you do, what this means. For two years I have stood, as it were, in the wheel-house of this organization, and now you have called me forth for active duty at your head. I know that the office of president means a great deal of hard work; it means a great deal of careful work. It means a great deal of heart and a great deal of enthusiasm for the League of American Wheelmen. All of this I want to pledge you here and now, so far as in my power lies. I ask, on your part, that you give me your sympathy, your encouragement, your assistance. I ask, too, that you will give me freely your suggestions, and any ideas that you may have that will tend to improve our organization. My address is T. J. Kirkpatrick Springfield, Ohio, and you will always find me ready to receive and consider any suggestions that you, as members of the Board or as individuals, may offer. I am your servant, and to the best of my ability I pledge you I shall endeavor to uphold the laws, constitution, by-laws and interests of the League of American Wheelmen. I have long nursed a wish, and I believe that that wish is not born to die. I believe that the League of American Wheelmen will go on and on until we have done away with horses, and all men will ride wheels. I believe that that day is coming, and that some day the League will have the proud honor of saying, "We made the roads that carried the United States of America." Mr. Kirkpatrick then took the chair amid applause and rousing cheers.

Mr. Davol, of Rhode Island, nominated Mr. Herbert W. Hayes for the office of vice-president, admirably setting forth his qualifications for the position. Dr. Emery seconded the nomination, and it was then moved and seconded that nominations for the office close.

Question put and carried.

Mr. Jessup moved that the secretary cast the unanimous ballot of the meeting for Mr. Hayes.

Motion carried, and the ballot cast accordingly.

Messrs. Dunn, of Ohio, and Hodgson, of Louisiana, were appointed to escort the gentleman to the platform.

In a few well-chosen words he expressed his thanks, and pledged his time and energy to the L. A. W. for the ensuing year, trusting that his actions would speak for him louder than words of promise.

Dr. Brown, of New Jersey, nominated Mr. W. M. Brewster, of Missouri, for the office of treasurer.

Mr. Sanford Lawton warmly seconded the nomination, — so warmly that Mr. A. C. Stewart, as representative of Missouri and president of the Missouri Club, responded, dwelling upon the self-sacrificing qualities of the candidate, and his fidelity to the interests of cycling and the L. A. W.

It was moved and seconded that nominations for the office close.

Carried.

And on motion instructing the secretary to cast the deciding ballot being also carried, Mr. Bassett dropped the ballot into the canvas covered box from which come forth so many useful things, picked it up, and gravely announced that it appeared from the ballot that Mr. Brewster had been unanimously elected.

(Yells of glee, especially from Missouri members.)

Messrs. Lawton (ex-treasurer) and Jessup were appointed to escort Mr. Brewster to the front.

He said: I feel, gentlemen, that this honor is intended more for the Missouri division than for me; but, nevertheless, I admire the wisdom of your choice (smiles), for I have always had a fondling love for the handling of money, and I will handle that of the League — and I hope you will make the sum a large one — to the very best of my ability (audible smiles).

Mr. Butler nominated Mr. George R. Bidwell, of New York, as an exceedingly fit candidate for the position of third member of the Executive Committee.

Mr. Cooley seconded the nomination.

Mr. A. C. Stewart moved that the nominations close.

Seconded and carried.

And upon motion of Dr. Emery, that the secretary cast the ballot, being carried, this was done, and Mr. Bidwell, amid cheers, declared elected.

Messrs. Brown and Davol escorted the gentlemen gently to the footlights, which promptly went out in the light of his presence, and neatly expressed desire to deserve the honor conferred, and to particularly advance the financial status of the L. A. W. as far as lay in his power. He said: If I can swing the other members of the committee to which you have elected me into my way of thinking I believe that our organization will be placed on its feet financially as well as otherwise.

The report of the President was called for. There being no report at hand, the treasurer's report was called for and read, as follows: —

Mr. Jessup moved that the treasurer's report be accepted. Seconded.

A member asked if the report should not have been inspected by the executive committee before acceptance. Mr. Lawton explained that such had not been customary, and that the limit of time prevented its practicability.

Motion to accept was put and carried, unanimously.

Mr. Hayes was requested to read the report of the Executive Committee, which he did, as follows:

REPORT OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, LEAGUE OF AMERICAN WHEELMEN.

To the Board of Officers, League American Wheelmen:

We, your Executive Committee for the past year, have but little to report, beyond what has already become public regarding our actions and decisions. Much regarding such actions and decisions has been published in detail in the BULLETIN. To a few other matters we desire to call your attention.

At the Buffalo meeting, in September last, the Executive Committee were directed to look after the officials subject to arrest in the Renton matter, and to take such steps as were necessary to protect them. The president had retained Mr. John C. Gulick to defend them, and this gentleman was continued in charge for the whole number of indicted members, except Mr. Hill, who appeared by Mr. Frost. A notice of the arrest of Beckwith and Hill, on the original warrant for libel, appears in the BULLETIN, July 23, 1886, p. 81. The charge was made against all the members of the former Executive and Membership Committees. After a number of hearings the charges were dismissed. Renton then went before the grand jury, and got an indictment found against the same parties for the same alleged libel. This, of course, was much more serious, and the consequences of an unfavorable result, prompted us to take every precaution. At this point it was decided to also retain Mr. Greenfield, one of the leaders of the State Island bar. These gentlemen then made preparation for the trial, and were successful in securing the dismissal of the indictment. A short account of this appears in the BULLETIN of March 16, 1887, page 226. The result was very satisfactory to us, and we trust it is to you. Much time and trouble was taken, because we felt that we were upon our mettle, and that we should not allow the slightest chance of defeat.

We also wish to refer to the matter of incorporation. This becomes more and more important every year; and while we were authorized to have the League incorporated we can not do so unless there is a radical change in the Board of Officers, and the organization in general, especially in the matter of reducing the number of members of the board.

The treasurer's report shows the financial condition of the organization, when taken in connection with the report of the secretary-editor. To the reports of both these officials, we invite your careful attention.

At your meeting in New York, in January last, you gave us certain instructions regarding the office of secretary-editor. With much of the annoyance and delay in fulfilling your instructions you are already familiar; but of a far greater part of this annoyance and trouble you are not cognizant, and we do not deem it necessary to here recount our manifold trials. Suffice it to say that very soon after the New York meeting it seemed advisable to us to remove the office of the secretary-editor and of the publication of the BULLETIN to Boston. In due time this was accomplished, and that official is now peacefully quartered at 22 Schoolstreet, Boston.

A few words regarding the BULLETIN. We still believe that it can be made self-sustaining. However, it came into the hands of Secretary-Editor Bassett, with a number of yearly advertising contracts made at what seems to us now, as a low rate. These contracts must be fulfilled. We trust that in view of the large circulation and of the fact that it is a bona fide circulation, to none but cyclers, that when these contracts expire our advertisers will agree that a moderate advance in rates is but a fair demand.

We recommend a more economical management in the secretary-editor's office, and in the publication of the BULLETIN. The substituting of what is known as a "running report" of meetings for the voluminous stenographic reports will effect a large saving. In a number of smaller ways we think the expense of publication can be materially reduced. If then the expense can be reduced and our income from advertising increased, we believe that the BULLETIN can be made self-sustaining. But this will take time; and while much can be done by the management during this summer and fall, looking toward the accomplishment of this much-desired end, we still think that a full year will be required to put the paper on a paying basis.

We wish to commend the patience and long-suffering of our present secretary-editor, under the trying circumstances through which he has been compelled to pass since his election. We have found him energetic, faithful, painstaking, and obliging, and we feel quite sure that in electing him to that important office the board made no mistake.

The year as a whole has been a crucial one for the organization; but we congratulate you that the grand old League lived out the storm; and to-day, with favoring winds and clear sea, with valuable lessons learned in the experiences of the past, starts on another year's voyage, grander and better and stronger than ever before.

N. MALON BECKWITH.

JOHN C. GULICK.
Executive Committee.

Mr. Butler moved that the report be received and placed on file, a sysnopsis to be prepared for publication in the BULLETIN. Seconded and carried.

Mr. A. C. Stewart here requested the attention of the meeting for a moment on behalf of the Missouri Club, and for them extended the hospitality of the club, and freedom of its quarters to the ladies and gentlemen of the League. The interruption was made at this time, as Mr. Stewart was obliged to leave.

Dr. Brown, of the Membership Committee, submitted the folllowing majority report of the committee:

REPORT OF MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE.

We, the undersigned, a majority of the Membership Committee, beg leave to report, that, owing to the culpable negligence of the Chairman of the Committee, it has been impossible for us to do any work during the past year.

We believe that a clear statement of facts is due alike to us and the Board.

Since the last annual meeting, neither of us have received any communication from the Chairman, either in regard to the committee's work or in reply to our letters.

No lists of applications have been sent to either of us for action, each supposing that the other was acting with the Chairman, the signatures of but two members being necessary.

The first intimation we had that anything was wrong, was in a letter from the Secretary, dated May 3, calling upon us to do something to keep the committee up to its work, and stating that the last list that had been acted upon was the one published March 4; also, stating that protested parties were justly incensed at the committee's delay in acting upon their cases.

We had each thought it strange that no business had been referred to us, but this was the first intimation we had that any protests had been made. Upon inquiry, we found that all the papers in these cases were in the hands of the Chairman.

The Secretary had written and telegraphed him repeatedly, but received no answer. To enable applicants to receive their tickets before this meeting, we sent an order to the Secretary on May 6, approving all applications to date which had not been protested. In the matter of the protests, we have been unable to do anything.

President Beckwith was requested to send a registered letter to the Chairman ordering him to surrender to us all papers in his possession, but without effect.

The committee have now the names of the protested parties in their possession, but neither the protests or accompanying documents, so that any action thereupon, until the papers are regained, is impossible.

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES R. DUNN,
G. CARLETON BROWN.

Mr. Butler moved that the majority report be received and filed.

A VOICE.—Is the chairman of that committee living?

The CHAIR. Presumed to be living.

Motion to receive the report was seconded and carried.

The Secretary-Editor's report was read, as follows:

REPORT OF SECRETARY-EDITOR.

To the Members of the Board of Officers, L. A. W.:

The report of the Secretary-Editor must be at best very largely statistical; and as figures have the ability to speak for themselves, you will pardon me any extended remarks in explaining them.

I submit for your consideration, in connection with my report, a detailed statement of the financial condition of the League to May 1, a statement of our accounts with the Divisions, and a compilation of the number of members in the League at the time of the two previous meetings. From the financial statement, it will be seen that our assets amounted on May 1 to $5,548, and our liabilities to $3,957.79. The excess of assets over liabilities amounts to $1,590.59, which amount will shrink to $1,343.88, if we deduct $246.71, which represents certain accounts that we believe to be of doubtful value. This showing is taken without respect to our relations with the Treasurer of the League. We owe the Treasurer $1,751.76, which is much less than the $2,000 of working capital allowed the office last year, and a balance shows that our liabilities are in excess of our assets in the sum of $407.88. Since the 1st of May we have paid all outstanding bills for printing, and have paid $450 to the Divisions, and our only large creditors to-day are the Divisions to whom we owe $2,122.08. Much of this we expect to pay before the end of the month.

When the office was taken possession of by the present incumbent, the books showed the League to have a balance in its favor, after paying all bills, of $25.98; but there were bills justly due from the League, which did not appear, and which have since been paid, amounting to $585; and of the accounts due, we have had to carry $135 to profit and loss, and $330 to suspense: other accounts remain to be adjusted, and liberal concessions will have to be made in many cases. It is a low estimate therefore, to place the sum at $1,500 to represent the bankruptcy of the League at the time of the officers' meeting in January.

The future has a hopeful aspect. The BULLETIN is now paying for the mechanical work done upon it, and its patronage is having a steady growth. We believe the day is not far distant when it will show a profit, though it may be not able for some time to pay all the expenses of the Secretary's office, many of the duties of which are not at all connected with the paper. Taking what was paid for printing the BULLETIN, on the one hand, and what came to it for advertising on the other, we find that the loss for the three issues in January, that were published after the officers' meeting, amounted to $230.30. In February, the loss was $411.06. In March, the BULLETIN was transferred to Boston, a fact which involved an entire new setting of the paper for one week, and the loss on the paper for that month was $10.69. In April, the BULLETIN showed a profit of $72.84.

Regarding the future of the BULLETIN we think it would be unwise for us at this time to venture an assertion. We are still new to the office, and we have had as yet little time to study the problem which its publication presents. We can assure the membership that an earnest endeavor will be made to conduct the journal on business principles, even though a strict adherence to those principles, results in a sacrifice of the quantity of reading matter set before its readers. It may be that it will be found to be the wiser plan to make the paper a bi-weekly during the winter months, and it may be that it will be made a bi-weekly the year round. These solutions of the problem will be considered and weighed by the Executive Committee; and your Secretary, who will keep steadily in view the fact that is strongly apparent to them that the membership wants a weekly journal, and a weekly journal they shall have, if it is possible to issue it, and meet our financial obligations promptly when they mature.

We present for your consideration a tabulated statement of the membership of the League to date, the total amounting to 9,224. This number have fully qualified, and are entitled to full membership to-day. Besides these, we have 91 applicants, whose names appeared in our issue of May 13, and 165 names will be published in the paper which is issued in Boston to-day, making a total of members and applicants of 9480. We find that there were names enrolled at the time of the Boston Meet in 1886, and the number at the Buffalo Meet in 1885, was . The percentage of increase is largely to the advantage of last year, but there have been many things to militate against a phenomenal growth this year, though we are firmly convinced that the future months will bring us a sure and steady increase that shall give us the coveted 15,000 before the close of 1887.

The constitution makes it a part of the Secretary's duty to compile and keep at hand for ready reference very much statistical information; and to comply with this obligation, we find that we have very much work before us. We have already set on foot measures to record properly the League Clubs, and we have asked the coöperation of Secretary-Treasurers of Divisions in getting up what shall be a complete statistical history of the Divisions. The office is almost entirely without statistics, from which a stranger could gain an idea of the growth and progress of our organization. It has no files of those papers which were the official organs before the BULLETIN was established, and is very far removed from what a repository of records and statistics should be.

Your Secretary has been an incumbent of the office but a few months. He has made mistakes, perhaps, and there have been delays which may be unpardonable, but he has made an earnest effort in the face of great difficulty, and he asks no more of the members than that they will be as patient with and considerate for him in the future as they have generously been in the past.

Report of Racing Board was submitted, as follows:

REPORT OF RACING BOARD.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF OFFICERS L. A. W.

Gentlemen,—The Racing Board has little to offer this year in the way of an annual report, and what it says shall have the merit of brevity. The eyes of the racing world were turned away from the acts of this board during the fall tournaments of 1886 and nearly all the large race meetings were held under the rules of another organization; but there has been a change of heart lately, and men are returning to the old love with a feeling that the League is doing very much to foster and encourage amateur racing among the class who are amateurs in spirit as well as in name. The policy of the board was to do not-ing whatsoever to hinder the growth of the new organization, but to let it work out its own destiny, and this it has most surely done.

During the year that has passed, the board has been called upon to declare some dozen or more men to be professionals, and it has suspended many parties from the race track for unbecoming conduct or defiance of rules.

The board has been called upon to accept but few records the past year, for our fastest men were in the amateur class during 1885, and they left us a legacy of very fast times which the amateur riders of 1886 could not surpass.

The following records were put on the books during the year:—

Tandem tricycle, 1-4 mile, 44 3-4, Bidwell and Jackson, Hartford, Conn., Sept. 9.

Tandem tricycle, 1-4 mile, 41 1-5; 1-2 mile, 1. 21 2-5; 3-4 mile, 2. 1 3-5; 1 mile, 2. 43 1-5; W. E. Crist and P. S. Brown, Springfield, Sept. 14.

Tandem tricycle, 1-4 mile, 40 2-5; 1-2 mile, 1. 19; Crist and Brown, Springfield, Sept. 18.

Tandem tricycle, 4 miles, 13. 19 2-5; 5 miles, 16. 46 2-5; 6 miles, 20. 35 4-5; 7 miles 23. 45, 2-5; 8 miles, 27. 13; 9 miles, 31. 1 2-5; 10 miles, 33. 59 2-5; L. H. Johnson and H. A. Wolcott, Roseville, Oct. 21.

The board has made few changes in the rules for 1887, and all have been published in the BULLETIN.

ABBOT BASSETT,
Chairman.

Report of Transportation Committee was read by the secretary, as follows:

REPORT OF TRANSPORTATION COMMITTEE.

To the Board of Officers and Members, L. A. W.:

ALL railways of importance in the United States now carry wheels free when accompanied by owners and at owner's risk, with exception of the Boston and Albany and Pennsylvania Railroad. Certain roads running north of Boston, maintain an uncertain attitude toward wheelmen, but the committee has not been in receipt of complaints from New England. The Southern Pacific Railroad, running from New Orleans to San Francisco, and from Ogden, Utah, to San Francisco, has just withdrawn its free transportation privilege on account of lack of room in its baggage cars. But competing lines to that section of country still carry wheels free.

The notable acquisitions of the past year, are the New York Central and the Chicago and Northwestern roads. The policy of the committee from the beginning, has been to maintain the closest friendship with certain strong trunk lines, and to use the influence of the League in directing travel their way. In other words, certain roads have been designated "League Railroads," and a travel that otherwise might be scattered, is concentrated over these lines, who in turn give our craft due consideration. The influence of the larger lines sets the example for the smaller, and hence we have to-day the same treatment for our wheels as we have for our trunks, with our influence for maintenance of the privilege and extending it, gradually but surely increasing.

In many cases wheelmen are charged by baggage men. This is always an enterprise originating with the thrifty trunk-lifter and is never encouraged by his employers. These cases seem to be less each year, and in a few years will probably cease entirely as, according to our present rate of progress, it will become an established practice with railways to transport a wheelman's bicycle free.

Moved and seconded that the report be received and filed. Carried.

Dr. Butler stated for the Committee on Rules and Regulations, that no occasion had arisen for submitting a regular report, and that therefore he had no report.

A characteristic letter, which had been received from Mr. Burley Ayers, chairman of the transportation committee, was also read to the meeting, explaining his inability to be present. Complaints were made by members regarding the strictures placed upon League members by the New Jersey Central and other roads, and the Chair suggested their reference to the committee. Motion to receive and file the report of the Transportation Committee was seconded and carried.

Bureau of Information: no report.

REPORTS OF SPECIAL COMMITTEES.

The report of Special Committee on Information, Relative to League Cloth and Uniforms, it was stated had already appeared in the BULLETIN, and it was joco-sely suggested that Dr. Emery pose before the meeting as a living specimen of the result of the committee's labors.

Committee on Investigation of certain charges which appear in the Wheelmen's Gazette, was submitted as follows:

REPORT OF INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

PURSUANT to the resolutions passed at the meeting of the board, Jan. 18, 1887, your committee report that it has endeavored to obtain the grounds of the charge or intimation made in the Springfield Wheelman's Gazette, of Janu ry, Vol. 1., No. 9, to the effect that a commission was paid on the L. A. W. uniforms to Pre-ident Beckwith.

The chairman of your committee called personally upon Mr. H. E. Ducker, the editor of the Springfield Wheelman's Gazette, and submitted a series of questions which, with the answers thereto, are now given:—

Q. Are you the editor of the Springfield Wheelman's Gazette?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you cause to be published the following items in the issue of above paper, Vol. I., No. 9:—

"In the event of the League electing a new executive at the annual meeting next spring, the question arises, who will receive the commission on League uniforms? Echo answers ——?"

"Considerable is being said relative to the League using the League pins and having the profits on same revert to the League treasury; on the same line of reasoning, why is it the League cannot receive the commission on League uniforms?"

Q. Will you inform the committee who is referred to as "executive" in the above item?

A. I refuse to answer.

Q. Is it the purpose of this article to intimate that this "executive" receives a commission on any or all of the League uniforms?

A. I refuse to answer.

Q. If so, what knowledge as to the amount and nature of this commission have you?

A. I refuse to answer.

Q. By whom is it paid, and what is the consideration?

A. I refuse to answer.

Q. Have you any proofs of your statement?

A. I refuse to answer.

Q. Will you give to our committee these proofs or the source of your information?

A. If my informants are willing.

Q. Will you ask the permission of your informants for this proof?

A. Yes.

Q. What was your object in publishing this item in your paper?

A. As a matter of news.

As may be seen from these answers, Mr. Ducker was not a particularly fruitful source of information. As he promised, however, to ask permission of his informant to give the information asked by our committee, we waited some period and then requested an answer, to which Mr. Ducker replied that he still had no further proofs to give to our committee, and we were consequently obliged to look in other quarters for our information.

The following was then received from president Beckwith:—

STATE OF NEW YORK, }
CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW YORK. } ss.

N. Malon Beckwith, being duly sworn, says that he has not, either directly or indirectly, in any way, shape, or manner, received commissions from Browning, King & Co., or any other persons, for procuring the contract for said firm for making the uniforms of the League of American Wheelmen, and that, from them or any other person he has not received, does not expect to receive, and has no promise or agreement from them to pay to him any pecuniary profit, emolument, advantage, share, compensation or reward for, or on account of, making said uniform, and that he has therein no pecuniary interest whatsoever.

N. MALON BECKWITH.

Sworn to before me this thirty-first day of March, 1887.

J. F. WILLIAMS,
Notary Public, New York City.

And we also received from Browning, King & Co., the following:—

STATE OF NEW YORK, }
CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW YORK. } ss.

Edward W. Dewey being duly sworn, says that he is one of the firm of Browning, King & Co., who are the official tailors of the League of American Wheelmen for the manufacture of said League's uniform; that his said firm or any other person for said firm has not paid commissions to N. Malon Beckwith for procuring for said firm the contract for making said uniform, and that said firm or any person for said firm, does not expect to pay, does not intend to pay, and has not promised or agreed to pay to said N. Malon Beckwith any pecuniary profit, emolument, advantage, share, compensation, or reward for or on account of making said uniform. That said N. Malon Beckwith has no pecuniary interest whatsoever therein.

E. W. DEWEY.

Sworn to before me, this twenty-fifth day of March, 1887.

JOHN MCGRERAN,
Notary Public, King's County, New York.

In view of these very full and explicit denials under oath, in addition to other information in possession of our committee, and from the unsatisfactory replies and absence of any evidence or proof whatever on the part of Mr. Ducker, your committee would report that they are unable to find any foundation for the statements of Mr. Ducker, and that they must have been made for some motive into which your committee does not feel at liberty to enter.

We would further report that we have every belief in the entire integrity and innocence of President Beckwith in this matter, and would recommend a vote to this effect by the Board of Officers now assembled.

Yours respectfully,

H. W. HAYES,
GEO. R. BIDWELL,
C. G. HUNTINGTON.

Mr. Dunn moved that the report be received, adopted and endorsed. Seconded and unanimously carried.

COMPLAINTS.

A member respectfully submitted a complaint regarding the heated atmosphere of the hall. Referred to the janitor.

Mr. Butler offered the following resolutions:

Resolved, that a special committee of four, consisting of the Chairman of the new Committees on Rights and Privileges, Rules and Regulations, Membership, and the elected member of the Executive Committee, be appointed to consider and report at the winter meeting of the Board of Officers, the best plan or method for the reconstruction of the League constitution and by-laws, looking toward the better recognition of the individual and financial rights of State Divisions;

That upon the approval of such plan by said Board of Officers, a constitutional convention be called at the next annual meeting of the League to take action thereon.

Mr. Rall, of Iowa, moved to amend by empowering the president to appoint the committee of four, not particularly choosing the chairmen as stated. No second, and upon the original resolution being seconded and put to the house, same was carried.

Mr. Luscomb read a communication sent through him by E. J. Schriver, of New York, and same was referred to proper committee.

On motion, the communication was referred to the proper special committee.

Letter from Messrs. W. H. Kellogg & Co., Palmer, Mass., relative to League shoes, was referred to Uniform Committee.

Invitation from the directors of the Young Men's Christian Association, to make free use of their quarters, was, upon motion, accepted with thanks.

Mr. Jessup moved the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, that it is the pleasure and duty of the Board of Officers that it express its appreciation of the manner in which the members of the Missouri Division had received and entertained visiting members of the League; and that it is the sense of this meeting that we extend to them our heartfelt gratitude for the honor which they have conferred upon us by extending to us the freedom of their city, and making pleasant our stay by their many courtesies and acts of kindness. Seconded and carried.

Mr. Luscomb moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Butler, of New York, for having graced the meeting as temporary chairman. Seconded and carried.

Motion to adjourn was carried.

It being now ten minutes after one o'clock, the was immediately called to order. It was moved and seconded that the resolution offered by Mr. Jessup before the Board of Officers be taken up. Carried. Motion to adopt the resolution was seconded and carried.

GENERAL MEETING

Mr. Bidwell offered the following resolution, and moved its adoption.

Whereas, the New York Legislature, in assembly and Senate, have, by legislative enactment, recognized the right of wheelmen to ride upon roadways and parkways in the State of New York, subject only to the usual regulation governing the use of other pleasure vehicles; and prohibiting all park and highway commissioners and trustees from discriminating against the bicycle and tricycle riders;

And whereas, said bill is now in the hands of the Governor of New York for his approval;

And whereas, the League of American Wheelmen, in annual convention assembled, regard this action of the New York Legislature as an emphatic declaration by statute of the common law rights of every wheelman to the free use of all highways and parkways, and a recognition of the strength and importance of cycling in this country;

Resolved, that this action by the New York Legislature has the hearty approval and endorsement of the League of American Wheelmen;

That the passage of the bill is an important step in the direction of liberty to the citizens, and takes away from narrow-minded officials with antiquated notions the power to unjustly oppress and interfere with the exercise of the lawful rights of American citizens;

That the Governor of the State of New York be requested by this national body of the League of American Wheelmen to give his approval and signature to this bill;

That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted over his official signature by the Secretary of the meeting to the Governor of the State of New York.

Motion to adopt was seconded and carried.

Mr. Rall, of Iowa, arose to inquire whether the League had as yet adopted a distinctive color as its standard. The Chair answering in the negative, Mr. Rall moved the adoption of purple, as the standard color of the League. Seconded and carried.

Moved and seconded that the general meeting adjourn. Carried, and the meeting closed at 1.25 P. M., having lasted but fifteen minutes.

[Report continued next week.]

CORRESPONDENCE.

BIG FEET.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Seeing the item in Daisie's letter in the BULLETIN of May 20, referring to the remarks one hears while riding, reminds the writer of a remark he heard himself one afternoon last summer. While riding along a fine piece of road in one of the suburbs of Boston, I came to a long but very gradual descent, down which, as the wind was "astern," I coasted rapidly, legs over the handles, causing a small boy, who was standing by the roadside to make this facetious observation: "What's the matter with usin' the pedals, mister, ain't they big enough for yer feet?" 10,592.

BEST ROUTE FROM CHICAGO TO BUFFALO.

EDITOR OF BULLETIN:—In the number of the BULLETIN for December 17, W. B. Greenleaf asks for the best route from Chicago to Boston, or any part of it I believe; and in the next number the Nashville Bicycle Club ask for the best route from Toledo to Niagara Fall. As I have been over these routes by wheel, when the roads were at their very worst, I can tell about what they are. I do not claim to know the best, best route, but I can speak of one or more of the best routes definitely.

"There is but one way to leave Chicago on the south," practically, as Burley B. Ayers says, "and that is by the cars, till you get beyond the sand to good roads." By taking train to Valparaiso, Ind., only sixty-five (65) miles at the most (as that is the distance made it by the highway riding, when the sand was n't too deep), where you strike good roads; or you need not ride by railroad much over half that distance, if you wheel out of the city to Dolton (a little place made up of Germans and lager), about twenty-five (25) miles from Lake Street, via South Side, Pullman, etc., all the way first-class riding; then training from Dolton to Valparaiso, you avoid forty (40) miles of as sandy road as you can imagine, and most of it through an almost uninhabited locality, timbered to the very roadbed's edge with scrubby burr oaks, the landscape being for miles simply sand, burr oaks, and telephone line, the only variation being once in a half dozen miles a very small house, literally a log cabin, often empty, so that you can cry with Longfellow, "this is the forest primeval"—or prime evil, rather,—and if suddenly placed there on a sultry August afternoon, with the mercury hovering about the century mark, you would as soon think yourself in the interior of Africa as in the Hoosier State; but this must offset an equal stretch of the good roads of the State On reaching Valparaiso, you find a very good road at the worst, and an A 1 road at its best to Elkhart, via Westville, La Porte, Carlisle Hill, and South Bend; from Elkhart to Coldwater, Mich., fifty-eight (58) miles, via White Pigeon, Sturgis, and Bronsons, the road is quite sandy after a drouth, but in the spring or late fall would be a medium road; from Coldwater, by the way of Jonesville and Hillsdale to Adrian, about sixty (60) miles, the road is fair at its worst; from Adrian to Toledo the road is pretty good. This route of about two hundred and eighty (280) miles from Chicago to Toledo, is one of the shortest, and is about as good as any that can be found, having only two stretches of bad sand road, i. e., from the outside of Chicago to Valparaiso, less than forty (40) miles; and from White Pigeon to Coldwater, also about forty (40) miles. Both of these stretches can be trained easily, as the termini of both are at points on large railroads, as the L. S. & M. S., etc.

There are two more best routes between Chicago and Toledo, which I will briefly point out. From Toledo to Buffalo there is practically but one route. These two routes are both lower than the one described. The first of these two I will call the Air Line Route. This route, as far as Elkhart, Ind., is the same as described above; from Elkhart you strike off due east to Toledo, through Northern Indiana and Ohio, via La Grange, Angola, Ind., and Wanseon, O.; but this route is more or less sand all the way.

The third, and the very lowest route, requires taking the train nearly a hundred miles farther south, to near Crawfordville, where you find as good roads as you need look for. The route from there is by the way of Indianapolis, Noblesville, Kokomo, Peru, Wabash, Fort Wayne, Defiance, and Napoleon, to Toledo. By this route you have to go about a hundred and fifty out of your way, you then find first-class roads—and to many this would pay for the trouble. The riding distance by this route to Toledo is about ten miles farther than the whole distance of the upper route through Lower Michigan and Northern Indiana, more fully described.

The route from Toledo to Buffalo, along the lower shore of Lake Erie, is about as straight and short as it can be, and is very good riding all the way to Buffalo, with few exceptions. From Toledo, going a few miles over a good clay and sand cement* road towards Sämoin, you strike the pike—I believe it is called the Perryburg Pike, but am not sure,—which is followed through Woodville, Hessville, to Fremont, thirty-two (32) miles; from Fremont through Clide, Belleview, North Monroeville, etc., to within a few miles of Elyria, when a gravel and sand road is found to Elyria, fifty-three (53) miles; from Elyria to Cleveland the riding is quite good, via Ridgeville, Dover, and Rock River, coming into Cleveland by Detroit street, which leads into Superior, being twenty-five (25) miles from Elyria; taking Euclid avenue from Superior street through the suburbs, and Mentor to Painesville, over the famous Ridge Road, thirty (30) miles. On this ride from Cleveland to Painesville, you pass Wade Park, with its pretty drives, Lake View Cemetery, Garfield Monument, which you can see from your saddle; at Mentor, Garfield's home is passed; from Painesville to Erie, Pa., you pass through a very pretty country, via Madison and Uniontown, Ashtabula, Conneaut, the Two Springfields, Girard, and Fair View, to Erie, about seventy (70) miles; from Erie you have excellent riding to Silver Creek, through Harbor Creek, North East, Ripley, Westfield, Portland, Fredonia, and Silver Creek, fifty-seven (57) miles; the part of this from Ripley to Silver Creek in Chautaugua County, N. Y., a distance of thirty-five (35) miles, has few equals and no superior in North America as a first-class highway, scenery, etc.; from Silver Creek the distance to Buffalo, through Irving, Evans Centre, North Evans, Bay View, Father Hines's Reformatory, Seneca or Elk streets, to Main, is thirty (30) miles, making the riding distance from Cleveland one hundred and eighty-seven (187) miles; from Toledo, about three hundred (300) miles; from Chicago, total distance, about five hundred and ten (510) miles. The road from Buffalo to Cleveland is the Ridge Road, and between Ashtabula and Painesville it is triple, i.e., North, Middle, and South Ridges; between West Springfield, Pa., and Conneaut, O., is a long stretch of sand, which can be avoided by taking side paths; also, beyond Ashtabula, is another stretch, which can be avoided by keeping to the south. The pike, beyond Elyria, is quite hard—in some places a little too hard,—the stones of which it has been rebuilt, repaired, or retopped, are too large. This can be helped some by taking the dirt road north of it, a sort of overgrown side path to the pike, used almost entirely in dry weather.

The scenery, views, landscapes, etc., along the way are many and interesting. I will just mention some of the principal ones, leaving off the shading, "the greys, the browns, and blues" of the Solitary Club and President Bates. Out a few miles from Buffalo you will find the Lake Bluffe of Weatheredslate, and have distant view of city for eighteen miles; between Evans and Irving, Indian reservation, Sazinessetcetery; at Silver Creek and Ashtabula, sights of great railroad accident; at Fredonia, first gas well in America, and one of the most powerful gravity water-works in the world, also rock scenery, slate, and limestone; Westfield, county monuments; Girard, Pa., home of Dan Rice, the pioneer showman, and soldiers' monument; Erie, soldiers' monument and cathedral; Ashtabula, Conneaut, and Painesville, lake fronts and harbors, also Erie for same; small fruits and the milk can bloometh much back in York State, here also; railroad bridges and hills at Silver Creek, North East, Walnut Creek, Girard, Springfield; Conneaut, Ashtabula, and Painesville for sudden heights; at Walnut Creek Mill is one of the finest perennial springs in Pennsylvania, also an old-fashioned water-wheel in use. Out on the Pike you soon reach a rocky country, worth stopping to see in some places, and the log huts of the pioneers; south of Sandusky you find some sand, so much, in fact, that you see it in the name of Sandusky; at Adrian and Hillsdale colleges, "and they do say" that "the Adrian Bicycle Club has the finest club-rooms in Mich-igan"; and one thing I know, that is, that the Toledo and Coldwater clubs are as "white" a set of boys, with "no flies on them," as you will find in wheeldom; between Coldwater and White Pigeon, Mich., are Madison and Klinger lakes, summer resorts, or breathing places, where I clung a short while, like the sand of those localities, to my clothes; at South Bend, and for miles between there and Elkhart, you get many pretty views of the river. I forgot to mention Baubese Lake, at Hillsdale, and the many-colored granites of Michigan, which clothe even the cobbles of the road with beauty, which are scarce, even when you want to throw one at a dog. Last, at Valparaiso, is a very pretty court-house, which, if it is as handsome inside as it is outside, will well repay close examination.

A fuller and tabulated description of this route will be found in the New York State Road Book. Of the lower or Indianapolis route, the L. A. W. road maps of Indiana, and P. C. Darrow, are excellent authority. Mr. Ayers, "our Burley," tells me that there is a fair route by steamer, across lakes from Chicago to St. Joe, Mich., and then wheel to Detroit, and thence to Buffalo, via Canada. This route is described in Michigan's Road Book, which I have not seen yet.

* By cement road I mean the natural hardening of clay and sand, when mixed by the natural moisture and road use.

WOUNDS.

A WOUND is a solution of continuity in a bodily structure.

They are divided into the simple incised, the contused, the lacerated, the punctured, and the poisoned.

The simple incised is a clean-cut wound.

The contused wound is one in which there is both bruising and wounding at the same time.

The lacerated wound has rough, uneven edges.

The punctured wound is such a wound as is produced by pins, needles, stabs, and gun-shot injuries.

Poisoned wounds are due to the stings of insects, bites of animals and reptiles, or by unclean instruments.

Wounds are also classified into simple, complicated, and penetrating.

A simple wound is one that does not involve any important structure.

A complicated wound is one that does injure some important structure.

A penetrating wound is one that opens one of the great cavities of the body or a large joint.

THE INCISED WOUND.

These are caused by a cut from a sharp instrument, by a sudden blow from some smooth object over a bony prominence, or by a rapid cut from a dull instrument.

Symptoms. — Are pain, hemorrhage, and retraction of the parts. The pain is sharp and burning. The amount of hemorrhage depends on the size and situation of the wound. Thus a wound of the face bleeds more than one of the foot, on account of the greater number of vessels in the skin of the face. The bleeding from the capillaries and small veins is usually not great and ceases of itself. When a large vein is wounded, the blood flows in a large claret-colored continuous stream. In arterial wounds, the blood jets forth in a pulsating cherry-red stream which shows no tendency to stop of itself, except in arteries of the smallest size; and which, if unchecked, proves fatal. When the vessel is deep-seated, the pulsating character may be lost and the blood flows in a bright, rapid stream. The gaping which takes place differs from the nature of the issue injured. The skin retracts the most, the arteries next, then the muscles, while bone, ligimen do not retract.

Causal. — A wound may heal in four different ways: by primary adhesion, by granulation, under a scab, and by secondary adhesion.

By primary adhesion is meant the growing together of the sides of a wound without suppuration and granulation. This only occurs when the sides are in close contact when there is no dirt, blood, or foreign bodies in the wound, and when there is no inflammation. Very small wounds may heal and leave no scar; but usually within a day the edges become reddened and swollen, while a dull burning pain is felt. This gradually disappears, leaving a depressed dull-red mark over the site of the wound. This becomes smaller, turns blue and then white, forming the scar.

Healing under a scab only takes place in small wounds. The deeper parts heal by primary adhesion, while the superficial parts are covered by dried blood, under which the wound heals. Unfortunately the scab often becomes loosened from violence or discharges collecting under it, falls off and leaves an open wound.

When any of the causes which prevent primary adhesion are present, the wound heals by granulation or secondary adhesion. The surface of such a wound is at first dark red, and the different tissues can be distinctly seen. On the second day, the wound becomes covered by a gray gelatinous material which, on the third day, becomes yellow. The discharge is at first bloody serum, which gradually becomes thicker, turns yellow and forms pus. The edges of the wound are red and swollen. By the end of the third day, little bright red pointed bodies are seen on the surface of the wound; these steadily increase in number, coalesce and fill the cavity of the wound. As these granulations approach the surface a thin blueish-red covering springs from the skin and covers them. The broad scar thus formed gradually loses its color and contracts.

Secondary adhesion is meant when two granulating surfaces are placed in such close contact that they unite as in primary adhesion.

Large wounds may heal in one part by primary adhesion, and in another by granulation. The discharges may collect in the deep parts of such wounds, decompose, and cause sceptic poisoning.

If any of the tissues have been so badly injured that they die, turn black, and then white, and are thrown off by granulations springing up between them and the living tissues.

Treatment. — The indications are to stop the bleeding, to clean the wound, to bring the lips in contact, and prevent retention of the discharges.

Capillary and veinous hemorrhage by cold, in the form of water or ice, or a compress and tight bandage.

Arterial hemorrhage can be controlled by pressure, either by the fingers or by a temporary tourniquet. To make this, wrap a stone the size of an egg in a handkerchief, tie this around the limb, so that the stone presses on the bleeding vessel, then insert a stick through the handkerchief, and twist until the blood stops.

This pressure may be made on the side of the wound nearest the heart, or over the main artery of the part.

To find the femural or main artery of the leg, feel in the middle of the groove which separates the thigh from the abdomen. Here it will be felt pulsating over the pubic bone, against which it can be compressed. From this point draw a line downward to the inner side of the knee. This will indicate its course in the leg.

Feel behind, just above the bend in the knee, and you will feel the popliteal artery which supplies the leg and foot.

Place the arm at right angles to the body, feel at the point where the anterior fold of the armpit joins the arm, and you will find the axillary artery.

Draw a line from this along the inner side of the biceps to the middle of the bend at the elbow, which will indicate the course of the brachial.

The ulnar and radial arteries may be felt in the wrist, and the inner sides of the bones of the forearm. In wounds of the hand compress both, as they join in the palm. The supra-orbital may be felt in the eyebrow at the junction of the middle and inner third.

Draw a line from the bony prominence at the back of the head to the bony prominence felt behind the lobe of the ear, in its middle lies the occipital which supplies the back of the scalp.

The temporal artery, which supplies the side of the scalp, can be felt just in front of the middle of the ear.

The facial artery crosses the lower border of the jaw at the junction of its middle and posterior thirds.

The carotids lie in the neck, in a line drawn from a point midway between the angle of the jaw and the lobe of the ear, to the inner end of the collar bone.

To clean the wound, gently wipe its surface with a piece of wet cotton and let a stream of water flow gently over its surface. If foreign bodies still adhere, don't rub them off, but pick them off.

The sides of small wounds may be kept in contact by sticking plaster, but in large wounds or where there is any discharge, sutures are required. All that you need do in this case is to bandage the wound so as to bring the sides in contact. If the bleeding comes from a point where you cannot control it by pressure or cold, you may use stiptics, as the perchloride or sulphate of iron, alum, tannic acid, nitrate of silver, or the red hot iron; all these act by coagulating the tissues, and leaves a slough which will prevent primary adhesion.

SURGEON BROOKLYN BICYCLE CLUB.

KARL KRON's posters name May 25, as publication day, and he wrote to us on Monday last, that all the printed sheets of his 908 pages would then be in the binder's hands, though he hardly expects to ship any books to Boston before the middle of June, as San Francisco, Australia, and other remote points will be given the precedence. Meanwhile, though he continues residing at West Springfield, Mass., he wishes subscribers not to trouble him by sending in any money until they read his volume announced in the advertising columns of the BULLETIN and other cycling papers.

THE Maine division held its second annual meeting at the rooms of the Portland Wheel Club on the 20th inst. Prior to the meeting a run was made to Cape Elizabeth, where a pleasant time and a royal banquet were enjoyed at the Cape Cottage. About thirty-five representatives of the Portland Wheel Club and York County wheelmen were present at the business session in the evening. Chief Consul F. A. Elwell, of Portland, presided, A. L. T. Cummings, of Biddeford, was re-elected to the office of secretary-treasurer. Action relative to the compiling of material for a Maine road-book was taken. The meeting was a very enthusiastic one.

W. T. FLEMING, of the Century Wheelmen, Philadelphia, starts for Nebraska on his wheel next week. It will be his fifth annual trip to that section. He is working for a record of 8,000 miles this year, and has covered 2,000 miles since January 1. Last year he made 5,400 miles, and in 1885 he rode 5,500 miles.

THE Camden Club has a number of "flyers" in whose capabilities the club has unlimited confidence, and a race such as above proposed would excite widespread interest among wheelmen in this neighborhood.

THE NORTHERN LEAGUE TOUR OF 1887.

THE success that characterized the Southern League Tour from Philadelphia to Staunton just ended, has induced me to begin preparations for a northern tour to Lake George, leaving Orange, N. J., about August 20, and passing through the Delaware Water Gap, Port Jervis, Newburgh, and Saratoga.

Wheelmen who have vacations at their disposal should save about two weeks, and join this tour.

Consuls and club secretaries along the route are requested to communicate with the undersigned on the subject, and any suggestions that may be offered will be thankfully received.

N. L. COLLAMER,
Tourmaster.
ST. CLOUD BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE annual meeting of the Kentucky Division was held at the Kenton Wheel Clubhouse, this city, May 18, '87, with Chief Consul Croninger in the chair, and fifteen members present and nineteen presented by proxy. After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, and the Secretary-Treasurer's financial report, both of which were approved and accepted, the meeting proceeded to adopt a constitution, which is substantially the same as that of the Ohio Division Secretary-Treasurer T. J. Willison was re-elected by acclamation.

The committee on road book, reported that the book was ready to be printed, and will be supplied to members in a few weeks at most. The meeting then adjourned to discuss an ice cream supper.

Fraternally yours,
THOMAS J. WILLISON
Secretary-Treasurer.

HALF A MILLION CYCLISTS.

THE sage Coniston has lately fulminated against cycling, in the interests of "Shanks his mare" and the adequate study of the picturesque. It is to be feared that his protest is likely to be as practically effective as Mrs. Partington's contest with the Atlantic Ocean. Cycling is not to be wiped out any more than the ocean was to be mopped up. Mr. Ruskin can have no idea of the dimensions of the giant to which he thus carelessly gives battle. Viscount Bury and Mr. Lacy Hillier should send him a copy of their book on cycling, just contributed by them to the Duke of Beaufort's "Badminton Library." It is calculated to open the sage's eyes on this particular subject. It might not alter his opinion — it would be difficult at this time of day, to shake any of Mr. Ruskin's pet theories, — but it would at least convince him that cycling has grown too big to be pooh-poohed. This stout volume of 450 pages is a sort of type of the pastime to which it is devoted; large and important, it has to do with a variety of matters. Cycling is now a great interest, with a history of its own, a special dress, a special training, special vehicles, special clubs, special organs in the press, and what not; moreover, it is secure in the sympathies of women as well as men. In the course of 1885 Viscount Bury ascertained that there were as nearly as possible 400,000 cyclists in the kingdom, and that number may by this time have run up to the half million. Think of that Mr. Ruskin! Why, cyclists will soon be wanting representatives in Parliament, though we hope that, unlike other powerful bodies, they will not in voting think first of their hobby and only afterwards of their country. — London Globe.

THE CHAMPION OPENS THE SEASON BY WINNING THE PEORIA ROAD RACE.

Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co., Chicago.

Dear Sirs, — The Peoria Bicycle Club 10-mile road race was won yesterday afternoon by Bert Myers on a 52-inch light champion in 40.27, fourteen hills in the course. The second man was John L. Seery (our repairer) on a full roadster champion. The third man straggled in on an '87 light roadster. The boys are all enthusiasm for your wheels nowadays.

Yours truly,
GEO. W. ROUSE & SON.

PEORIA, ILL., May 13, '87.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

If No. "40," in "Notes and Queries," will examine Pennsylvania, New Jersey, or Maryland road book, he will find several routes from Philadelphia to Long Branch. Nos. 7 and 8 being in my opinion as good routes as any. The distance (seventy-nine miles) can be easily ridden in less than two days. 3463.

Answer to "54." Boston direct to South Framingham, through Newton, Natick, etc.; then to Framingham, round reservoir direct to Southboro; next, direct to Northboro, Shrewsbury to Worcester. 962.

(58) I have read and heard several articles for and against the healthfulness of early morning riding and would like the opinion of the Bulletin and of other riders on the subject. 13894.

Answer to "44." Let "12248" try light clubs and sprint running, and, if convenient, chest weights, and a home trainer. Avoid all heavy exercise as it is injurious, for it will make muscle at the expense of his "staying" qualities, which he mostly needs; but in good riding, he needs nothing but his wheel, excepting, perhaps, his clubs, which will develop his chest and overcome the tendency to being round-shouldered, which is caused by leaning forward on his handles. 14236.

(52) Can any member tell me anything about the condition of roads between the Thousand Islands and Montreal; whether the roads are better on the Canada or American side? Any information will be appreciated by 9460.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:—

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

Grand Rapids Bi. Club, Grand Rapids, Mich.—Officers elected May 9: President, A. B. Richmond; vice-president, Will S. Turner; secretary, O. L. Palmer; treasurer, W. H. Bennett, captain, W. S. Turner.

The Hudson County Wheelmen have leased commodious quarters at 555 Communipaw Avenue, corner Crescent Avenue, Jersey City, where members have all the advantages of a club house: lockers, spaces for wheels, all the prominent papers treating of subjects pertaining to bicycles, tricycles, etc.; and at their last meeting, Mr. E. P. Baggot was elected Captain, and Mr. Frank Eveland a Trustee, to fill vacancies that had occurred. Very successful club runs have taken place under the new Captain, who is infusing new life into the sixty-nine members at present on their "roster."

Every Wheelman and Sportsman will give them his approval when he examines the Shoulders, Arm Holes and Neck, as they are made to fit. These goods are PATENTED, and all infringements will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

Made same as full tights, to three inches below the knee.

TRUNKS

Are a great protection to tights, receiving all the wear from the saddle, and can easily be removed, and thus save the more expensive garments.

We offer them to the trade and clubs as SOMETHING NEW, and invite all to examine them.

LADIES' JERSEY FITTING TRICYCLE PANTS.

A NEW THING

These Pants are close fitting, come three inches below the knee, are very elastic, and the most comfortable garment a lady ever wore. Made in Cream-Colored Cotton, Drab, Red, or any colors in Worsteds. Racing Wheemen tell us it is a loss of fifteen seconds in a mile to have some slight irritation from a non-elastic pair of cloth pants.

Would like to have every Wheelman see these

JERSEY-FITTING STOCKINGS,

As we believe there is nothing better.

Send us your order for any of these garments, with your measure and a Post-office order for the same, and we will send by mail or express the garment ordered; and if you do not find them satisfactory, you can return them, and we will return the amount paid for them, or we will send them C. L. A. W. TABLE.

Made of Georgia Mahogany.

Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.

L. A. W. SYMBOL,

Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered. Read what they say of it:

The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.

(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.

The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.

(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.

Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,

(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.

There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.— Thomasville Enterprsie.

Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W. member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

PRICE $2.50. When five or more are shipped to one address, the freight will be just one-fifth of what it would be on shipment of one. Address

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training, or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.

What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

A FEW INTERROGATION POINTS, GENTLEMEN.

Why be deceived by middle-men who call themselves manufacturers and are not?

If their statements about themselves are untrue, why not their claims regarding the merits of the wheels they sell, or rather attempt to sell?

Why be deceived by statements about records acquired on wheels so frailly constructed as to be useless on the road?

Is not the effort to associate the performance of one wheel with another, because only it is sold by the same middle-men, an effort to deceive?

Is it not reasonable to suppose that the buyer can get a better value for his money from the agent of the manufacturer than from the agent of the manufacturer's agent?

Is it not logical and wise to conclude upon a mount from the arguments and testimony of road riders who hold all the more important world's road and long-distance records, obtained too on American champion roadsters, rather than from the testimony of riders using 22-pound machines on specially prepared surfaces?

If you wish to be convinced, why not send a one-cent stamp for a special catalog of testimonials, parts, etc., to

* Freshly Painted.  Trick Machines, Extra Rake. § Only Shopworn.

No. 1 condition denotes scarcely used, and as good as new. No. 2, tires and bearings in very good condition, finish slightly worn. No. 3, tires and bearings showing wear, and finish marred. No. 4, tires, bearings, and finish considerably worn.

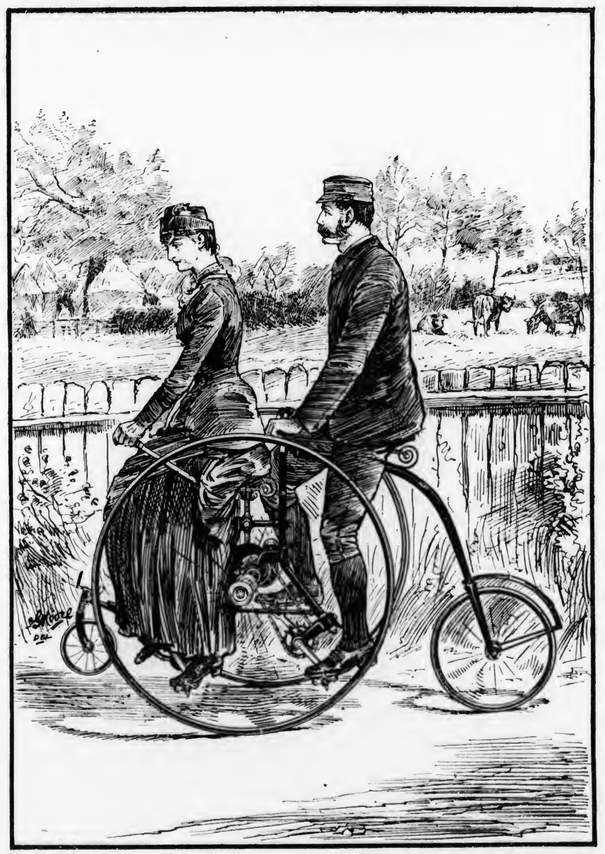
CLASSIFICATION OF FINISH.

A, every part nickelled. B, felloes painted, balance nickelled. C, felloes and spokes enamelled, balance nickelled. D, perch, forks, felloes, and spokes enamelled, balance nickelled. E, perch, forks, and felloes enamelled, balance nickelled. F, perch, forks, steering-head, felloes, and spokes enamelled, balance nickelled. G, perch, forks, and felloes painted, balance polished. H, felloes enamelled, balance nickelled. I, wheels enamelled, balance nickelled, K, perch-forks, and wheels enamelled, balance nickelled.

☞ As this list is constantly changing, it is advisable in ordering to state second and third choice, to be sent in case the first is already sold. Any of the above machines will be sent on approval if freight charges both ways are prepaid.

COLUMBIA DIRECT SPOKE LIGHT ROADSTER.

We have a few of these excellent machines still on hand, in 56, 58 and 60-inch sizes only, and recommend them for riders who wish light roadsters at a very low price. They are about seven pounds lighter than the Expert, closely resemble it in lines, and are very easy-running bicycles. While the cost to make this machine was greater than that of the Expert, we have now materially reduced its price, on account of having only a few sizes left.



They have ⅝-inch front, and ⅝-inch rear tires, seamless steel hollow-front felloe, 68 and 20 direct spokes, detachable cranks, ball bearings to both wheels, bolted sliding spring, long distance saddle, straight, hollow handle-bars, ball pedals. If desired, the Kirkpatrick saddle and cow-horn handle bars will be substituted for the regular equipment. Finish, 1; enamelled wheels, balance nickelled.

Price, any size, only $100; $5 less if Columbia Parallel Pedals are taken.

Subscribers should be careful to notify the EDITOR promptly of any change in their address. Great care is taken with the mailing list. Failure to receive THE BULLETIN may usually be traced to carelessness on the part of the subscriber.

All matter for publication, whether reading or advertising matter, should be addressed to the EDITOR. All checks should be made payable to his order.

Reading matter, to insure publication in the following issue, must be in the EDITOR'S hands not later than Saturday afternoon; advertisements not later than Monday morning.

The EDITOR must in all cases have the full name and address of the authors of contributed articles, as a guarantee of good faith. As the Executive Committee has decided that it is best to discourage the use of assumed names by writers for THE BULLETIN, the EDITOR will publish the author's name unless particularly requested not to do so.

FOR the entertainment of the League the Missouri Club is entitled to much credit. The work was done in the name of the Missouri Division, but the Missouri Club furnished by far the great majority of workers. The invitation was given by representatives of two clubs at one time prominent in St. Louis, but long before the time set for the meeting one of these clubs had disbanded, and the other gave little or no sign of activity. For the credit of the State and city the Missouri Club stepped into the breach and undertook to entertain the visitors in the name of the Missouri Division, for they are not a League club. They did a grand work under great disadvantage. In saying this we do not wish to disparage the work of many men in the division who are not members of the Missouri Club. There were many such who are entitled to credit, but the laboring oar was pulled by Stewart's men and Brewster's followers.

BUT while we were all indebted to the Meet committees and the clubs for entertainment, we must not forget that representatives of the defunct Ramblers did very much to make our stay in St. Louis a very pleasant one. St. Louis wheelmen forgot that there were factions and divisions in wheeling circles, and in a spirit of carmaraderie they united to play the part of generous hosts.

WE are in receipt of a number of letters, from clergymen and others, protesting against what they call an "indecent" picture in the League programme. This office is not responsible for the programme nor for the picture, and so we have sent the letters to the managers of the Meet. A discussion of this question opens up the well-worn controversy between those who discover indecency in the nude forms which artists place before us, and those who recognize nothing of the kind in the human form divine. We are not inclined to take up this question The picture was drawn by one of the leading artists of St. Louis, who is incapable of doing a vulgar thing. He put upon paper the embodiment of his ideas regarding a thoroughly artistic bicycle picture, and we can imagine his surprise when he is told the picture is considered indecent. If this picture is indecent, what can be said of the nude forms that ornament the walls of art galleries — yes, and of churches — the world over?

SHALL the League recognize and encourage road racing? The powers that be say "No." The following from a St. Louis paper anent the Clarksville race may stand as an argument for the League:

"The fact that no serious accident occurred is attributed to the lucky rainstorm of the night before, which made the road hard, covered up the stones, and let the wheel take a good grip. Had the road been dry and dusty, giving an uncertain surface, and allowing the stones to protrude, it is considered certain that bad accidents would have resulted. Any one who had stood at the foot of some of those steep hills and seen the men pedalling at full speed down the grade could not fail to have shuddered at the thought of what a header would mean in that rushing group of excited racers. The race has called attention not only to the dangers that lie in such a course, but also to the strain of such a long ride. There was not a thoughtful person of either sex who did not feel pity for the men as they passed through the town with the perspiration streaming down their white faces. When Rhodes came around the first time his face seemed to be covered with a white foam, and some thought he was about to faint."

OUR report of the St. Louis Meet says that one of the reasons for disallowing proxies at the meeting of the Board of Officers was because they were "not made out in the signers' handwriting." We would respectfully ask the sapient committee men who made this ruling, how about the legality of deeds and other documents that are made out in handwriting other than that of the signer? We must express the opinion that we think the ruling not well taken. — Ft. World.

We can't see what the "legality of deeds and other documents" has to do with the interpretation of a clearly expres-ed rule. It was the names that the committee wished to have in the signer's handwriting. If the ruling is not well taken, we would like to know how else the World would interpret the following clause:

"No officer shall be proxy for another, and vote in his stead, unless he be designated by name in the handwriting of the officer signing the proxy."

WE are obliged to go to press this week without the second instalment of the report of the Meet. "Phœnix" has disappointed us, and we have looked in vain for his despatches. The absence of these despatches cannot be accounted for by us.

APROPOS of bright wheels, an old friend — a good bicycler — not long since took an adept lady tricycler for a ride on his tandem. Not far out they saw in front of them a couple of bicyclers, to catch and pass whom naturally became a matter of duty. "Can you spurt;" he asked. "I can, but it will not be necessary," was the reply. "Why not?" "Why, don't you see? We shall wear them down easily — they have full nickelled machines!" And the result proved that she was right; they were new riders, easily caught. — Philadelphia Times.

THE OWL.

THE term "knickerbockers" is frequently incorrectly used in describing American cycling costumes. What the writers evidently intend to refer to are not knickerbockers, but knee breeches. It is of course true that knickerbockers are knee breeches, but knee breeches are not knickerbockers. The latter are a pattern of knee breeches, worn to some extent abroad, which are very lo se, drawn to the knee by a band and allowed to fall over the same in a baggy and, to me, ungraceful manner, while knee breeches are tight-fitting, differing only from ordinary trousers by terminating at the knee, as the name indicates, and not at the foot as a pair of ordinary breeches do.

THE cycling press again gives me some news regarding myself. This time the "Raven" informs me that I am going to take a tandem tour, with the "old vet" Pitman, to Boston. I had not intended doing so, but this week I have received an incentive that may cause me to think seriously of the affair. I have received an invitation from Dr. W. G. Kendall, to make my headquarters at the Boston Club, should I take the trip, and accompanying the invitation was one of the doctor's handsomest photos of the Boston Bicycle Club's house, and this, with the cordiality of the invitation, and a full knowledge of what the Boston Club's hospitality is, sorely tempts me to take the trip.

THE recent attempt on the part of Mayor Hewitt of New York, to cause the Governor to veto the cycling bill now before him for signature, was met by protests from wheel clubs all over the State. The official protest of the Ixion Club consisted of a message containing two hundred and sixty-five words, which was telegraphed to the Governor, so as to arrive in time to prove effective.

MY old friend, Fred C. Hand, manager of the Scranton Bicycle Club's minstrels, has sent me a pressing invitation to come to Scranton, and gain fame as a minstrel end-man. I am forced to see this glorious chance for histrionic glory fade away unaccepted, because the walking is very bad between here and Scranton, a fact which under the circumstances Scranton ought to be very thankful for.

TO such cranks and fossils as try to maintain the threadbare argument that tricycling is neither a graceful nor a lady-like accomplishment for one's wife or sister, I would ask no better or more convincing argument to the contrary, than to have them upon Riverside when Mrs. Elliot Mason shot by on a Columbia two-track. I am not a fashion writer, so I cannot describe technically her riding costume, but if "Daisie" will take my word for it, she wears the most becoming and appropriate tricycling costume I have ever seen.

THE Evening Sun of Saturday had a column-and-a-half article in favor of the free use of Central Park for cyclists. Out of consideration of the good intent evinced, I am willing to overlook many of the mistatements it contained, though some of them are too funny to pass unrecorded. For instance, they say, "The pastime is now practically monopolized by men, most of whom are gray haired," and that the members of the various New York Clubs "spend a great deal of their time in Druid Hill Park, which is only a few squares away." This introduction of venerableness into the sport, and the reduction of the distance between New York and Baltimore to "only a few squares," makes me smile.

THE wooden-legged sailor who recently rode a journey of 850 miles in England, upon a tricycle propelled by levers worked by hand, says he has found it extremely difficult to make both ends meet.

WHEN Mr. Thomas Stevens made his debut before a metropolitan audience in Brooklyn, some months since, I noted the fact in a friendly manner, and to the best of my ability, without any attempt at "ghoulish glee," I declared that Mr. Stevens would never be the success as a lecturer that he was as a traveller. In last week's Wheel he takes me to task for this opinion, in an article headed "Unjust Criticism." I am well aware that to those that are unfavorably criticised all criticism seems "unjust," but in the present case it was in the most perfect spirit of fraternal feeling that I passed an adverse opinion upon the great Stevens, and I see no reason at this late date to change it, or to plead guilty to the charge of "ghoulish glee" in formulating it. Sincerely trusting that Mr. Stevens may overcome his present faults as a lecturer, as well as he has done the more formidable ones of his great journey, I renew to him the assurance of my distinguished consideration.

THE high winds that have annoyed wheelmen so much during the past two Sundays, must be one of the unpleasant results of the New laws, which are now making life in Gotham a burden.

WHY don't some enterprising wheeling journal issue a portrait of Kennedy-Child in the full dress of a Wild Earthman of America, which, if report be true, is condensed into a black racing jersey and a single-barrelled eye-glass?

WHATEVER may be the fate of the "Liberty Bill," now before Governor Hill for signature, wheelmen throughout the State of New York must not forget to pay the debt it has brought upon them. Should the Governor fail to make the bill a law, pay your debt to him by defeat at the polls, when he appeals to you for your votes. Whenever, and at whatever time or place, you can aid in the defeat of Messrs. Crimmins, Beekman, and Senators Daly and Dunham, or Assemblyman Shea, do so. Vote and work with all your power to strike them in their only vulnerable point, i. e. by keeping them from handling any of the public money by defeating their election. When in your power, do not fail to be equally just to Lieut.-Governor Jones, and Senators Cantor and Pitts. Your power is great, let your friends feel the benefit of it, and your enemies its stength in their defeat, and you will merit the justice you will then surely receive.

THE United States is trying to induce emigration to Alaska. I would suggest a remedy that will meet with the perfect approval of all wheelmen. Let the "road hog" and his equally obnoxious canine brother, the "yaller dorg," be transported to Alaska, and condemned to perpetual banishment there. The combination is a good one, and it would be a pleasant sight to see the hog and the dog fight it out unmolested.

IT seems to me that the surest way for wheelmen to get justice from the legislators, is to elect only such ones as will pledge themselves in wheelmen's favor before election. While writing this, though it may be a little bit premature, why do not the wheelmen in New York and Brooklyn nominate Messrs. Bidwell and Potter for the Assembly in their respective districts, and elect them to represent them there? It can easily be done, and even if a failure result, politicians will not fail to note this new element in politics, and will be careful not to offend it, or refuse, when it seeks to secure some merited legislation. Let every one of my readers think over this proposition, and remember, that while I have named only two men and two districts, that wherever wheelmen abound, the same plan can be followed with beneficial results to those interested.

THE OWL.

NEW ORLEANS.

WELL, the agony is over and the New Orleans Bicycle Club will remain a League organization. At the regular meeting, held Wednesday night, 12th inst., it was so decided, one vote carrying the motion in the League's favor, and now some of the boys are happy and some are mad. This action of the club will bring some fifteen or twenty new members into the League, and swell the Division's roll to such proportions that a representative will be added to our list.

On April 30, Mr. W. W. Crane, a member of the N. O. B. C., was run into by a wagon driven by a careless negro, who was driving on the wrong side of the avenue. Mr. Crane swore out an affidavit against the "coon," charging him with violating the city ordinance regulating driving on the avenue, and also entered suit for some $20 damages to his wheel; Mr. C. himself having fortunately escaped without injury. The negro was arrested and fined $5 for his violation of the law, and when last heard from was endeavoring to compromise the damage suit.

Our city dads have passed two more ordinances that will be of interest to wheelmen. One is for the construction of a gravel road, three miles in length, and the other authorizes the repair of Carrollton Avenue, a mile and a half stretch much used by cyclers.

For various reasons, the projected ride to Baton Rouge, which was fixed for the 7th inst, failed to head, and is now off, so far as that particular party is concerned. Several of the boys have, however, announced their intention of making the run before the summer is over, and some of them will doubtless do so. Charles Fairchild contemplates making the trip with the object in view of establishing a Southern record.

Col. C. C. Fenner, Gormully & Jeffery's agent here, last week sold nine American Challenge bicycles to parties in Opelonsas, this State, and a club will shortly be formed there, and another, of six, is also about to be organized in Shreveport. Chief Consul Hodgson has his wires out and will doubtless land both clubs in the League.

I dropped in on Mr. Hodgson a day or two since, and had quite an interesting chat with him over L. A. W. affairs generally. He leaves for the St. Louis Meet next week, and on his return he intends calling a meeting of the Division, and expects to make this a monthly feature during his administration; heretofore very few had any knowledge of Division affairs, and Hodgson means that hereafter no one shall plead that he has had no opportunity to become acquainted with them. Our retiring chief consul did a great amount of work in his quiet way, but he was, if anything, too modest, and his efforts were not fully appreciated on that account. Mr. Hodgson also seems to realize that the "great unattached" have a finger in the pie, and are entitled to a taste or two, and will give them a chance to get a whole bite during his term. In the past they have been nothing more than a set of dunces, so far as League matters were concerned, and now that the Louisiana Division is no longer to be merely the New Orleans Bicycle Club, perhaps renewed vigor may manifest itself, Let us hope so.

Prince Wells, the trick rider, is in the city filling a second engagement at the dime museum. He leaves for Mobile in a few days, and after giving exhibitions at several other Southern cities, will take in Cincinnati, etc.

What 's the matter with the grumblers? Here 's the BULLETIN of May 6 with letters from the principal cities of the different sections and tid-bits from the smaller places, and the paper actually clearing nearly $100 profit. Won't some one please find something else wrong with the BULLETIN, so that a growl can be raised?

May, with its gentle zephyrs and cloudless skies, has not been up to the standard this year, for instead of the balmy breezes and clear heavens, we have had copious showers nearly every day, and, as this means muddy roads, our road fiends had to content themselves with scorching on the asphalt. The rain last Sunday overtoook on the road one of our new riders, who straddles a full nickeled wheel, and caused him much concern, as visions of his beautiful steed covered with rust floated through his imagination. The aforesaid rider is wiser now, and takes a becoming pride in telling how his wheel "was out in the rain last Sunday, and there's not a speck of rust on it yet, either." Oh! for a sister who took pleasure in keeping bright a nickelled wheel!

The rain also caused a postponement of a trip to Baton Rouge, which Fairchild and Guedrey had planned for yesterday, 19th inst.

On Monday, 16th inst., quite a number of the boys pulled themselves out of bed an hour or two earlier than usual, and hied themselves unto Lee Place, from which point Prince Wells, whom the daily papers modestly refer to as "the champion trick and unicycle rider of America," and who has been filling an engagement here, had announced his intention of starting on a unicycle record-making ride. A few minutes after six o'clock, Wells made his appearance, and shortly after announced that all was ready. Timer Rea mounted his wheel, the word was given; Well's stepped nimbly on to his ticklish-looking steed, and the start was begun. The time for the first mile was not caught, but from there on it was as follows:—

Second mile, 1.4. 57; two and a half, 17. 30; three miles (here a rest of 3 minutes was taken), 21. 47; four miles, 31. 55; four and a half miles, 34. 47; five miles, 38. 20; rest of 3 minutes; 6 miles, 45. 50; rest of two minutes and a half; 7 miles, 57. 30; 8 miles, 1, 5.46; rest of two minutes; 9 miles, 1, 15.55; rest of two minutes and a half; 10 miles, 1, 24.58 1-2, including all stops for rest. Actual riding time, 1, 9.58 1-4. Messrs. Crane, Rea, Fenner, and Guedery, of the N. O. B. C., acted as officers of the event. The course of the run was entirely over our St. Charles Avenue asphalt, and Wells was followed the entire distance by fully a dozen wheelmen. Prince had not specially trained for the occasion, having fully intended to attempt the ride later in the season at Louisville, but with a little urging he was persuaded to try it here; his object being more the establishment of a record than extraordinary time. Since the run was made, however, some one has started the report that there are already records for the distances, made about four years ago by F. F. Ives, but as nothing definite can be learned here, we will have to call on the Racing Board for information on this point. In the mean time, we are congratulating ourselves on having stolen a march on the North and East, by having the first record ride of 1887 take place away down here in the sunburned South.

Wells left for Louisville the evening of his exploit (having cancelled his other Southern engagements), and after a short visit to his relatives there, he leaves to join the Wilson & Rankin Minstrel Troupe, with whom he has a forty-five weeks' contract. BI.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

THE railroad stations were almost as full of cyclers on Saturday last as were the roads,—almost all of those who could possibly get away hurrying off for the Decoration Day holidays. The Pennsylvania boys are off to Orange, and the Germantowns down Jersey; all enjoying to the full the good roads and cooler weather. The news of the election of Kirkpatrick to the presidency excited very little comment, as it was universally acknowledged that he would have very opposition. All the same, there are not a few of us who think that almost any other man in the League would have been better calculated to uphold our organization to public respect. However, he is admitted to be energetic and pushing, so give the man a chance.

At the sports of the Athletic Club, Schuylkill Navy, on Saturday, May 28, the entries for the mile bicycle race were: William Lamb, Jr., of Birmingham, N. J., on a racing Star; C. S. Stevens, Millville, N. J., on a new light roadster Victor; and A. D. Whitaker, University of Pennsylvania, on an expert Columbia. Lamb and Whitaker alternately led until the last quarter, when Stevens went by and won easily by twenty yards in 3.09¼. Lamb just taking second by a foot.

In the two miles, on the same day, Lamb and Stevens were the only starters, and Lamb led the little procession for two and three quarter miles, when Stevens again attempted to pass. This time Lamb was watching for him, however, and managed to stall him off all around the track. Coming up the straight, Stevens made another effort, and would have won a great race by perhaps a length, but the Star man's wild steering crowded Stevens almost into the outer fence, although the path at this point is fully twenty feet wide. Stevens had to sit up to avoid a header, and the referee rightfully gave him the first place.

Two or three of the Germantowners have set out to make the trip from the city to Jump-off-ville, where the entire corps has congregated, on Sunday, and back Monday. As the trip is some sixty odd miles of Sahara-like sand waste, it is possible that they may finish up per train. Two cameras, a set of boxing gloves, and a club bathing towel have gone down, so it is presumed that those of the club who are able to come home at all will hardly be able to walk, much less ride.

The fifth annual meet of the Pennsylvania Division, to be held at Wilkes Barre on the Fourth of July, in connection with which the Wilkes Barre Bicycle Club will hold its third annual tournament, promises to be an event of unusual interest, and will draw a large representation from this city, several of our clubs proposing to attend in a body.

The Fourth of July falling this year upon Monday, while Saturday is observed as a general half holiday, will give visitors from this city two full days at the beautiful mountain city. The commitees having the Meet in charge are as follows: Finance, R. L. Ayers; printing, A. C. Robertson; transportation, W. E. Shupp; reception, Bert Voorhis; track, W. R. Bowman; prizes, G. H. Shupp. The general management is in the hands of Mr. J. G. Carpenter, of the Wilkes Barre Club.

The parade will form at 10.30 A. M., and after a short route through the city, the riders will be received by the chief consul. The attraction for Sunday will a run over the famous "cinder path," a bicycle road of nine miles, extending from Wilkes-Barre to Pittston, and as celebrated in that section of the State as our own Lancaster pike is in this locality. Prizes are offered for the club turning out the largest number of riders, as also for the club presenting the best appearance on parade.

The races, which are to be the main attraction, will be held at Lee Park. The track is a clay one, and should the weather be dry for several days preceding the Fourth, will show a fine surface. The programme of events is as follows: Two miles, L. A. W. championship; three miles, lap; one mile, team; one mile, tricycle; one mile, club; half mile, boys; one mile, novice; two miles, handicap; one mile, ride and run; one mile, tandem; two miles, 6.45 class; and one mile, consolation. The race committee is endeavoring to arrange a special time race between Titchener, of Binghamton; Hersey, of Elmira; and Schlager, of Scranton, three very fast amateurs.

The West Philadelphia Athletic Associaton will hold its first meeting on the grounds at Elm and Belmont Avenues, on Saturday, June 4. The events include four bicycle races. An effort is being made to have the city championship race, won by Richmond last fall at the association's meet, run off. If the necessary arrangements can be effected, a very interesting race may be looked for.

The Century Wheelmen have secured a new clubhouse on Broad Street, near Norris. A splendid location both for riding and social purposes.

Say, what 's a parade for? Do you think it is fun to paddle around on a wheel just to be looked at? You would n't, if you were as lean, ugly, and ill-favored as is PHACTOTUM.

JERSEY.

IN view of the fact that to-morrow will be the day of the great team road race, perhaps on the part of one so enthusiastically interested in it as I am, a wild desire, even at this late day, to launch forth into a discussion of possibilities and probabilities is excusable. But I am going to endeavor to check my mad impetuosity in this direction, and save all my powder for the separate account of it, which I shall send you, in the hopes that, even at so late an hour as Wednesday morning, it may not arrive too late. We have had nothing but race! race! race! for the past month, and expectation has reached boiling point now.

THE New York daily press has, as usual, treated the wheelmen with so little consideration that until our men got back from St. Louis we learned almost nothing of the happenings out there. To think of it in this land of telegraphs and news enterprise to-day (Sunday, May 29), I know almost nothing of the great road race which took place six days ago. The Tribune told us about the first two laps, and then abruptly that Rhodes was the winner, no second and no time mentioned. Dr Brown told me that, just as he was leaving St. Louis, he heard that Crocker was second. He could tell nothing more. I hope that this week's BULLETIN, which I have not yet received, will enlighten me. When a big event like this happens, why does not some wheelman go at once to the telegraph office and wire one of the great dailies "correct," that his brethren at home may be informed. Let him not assume that a reporter has been detailed, for such hopes in the past have been a delusion and a snare. I speak as to the great metropolitan journals. The papers of Boston, Philadelphia, and the other little towns, are no doubt more alive in this particular.

I HAD a pleasant chat of an hour with ex-Chief Consul Brown the other day about St Louis and the Meet. Of the limitless hospitality of the St. Louis wheelmen he spoke with the greatest enthusiasm. It was open house, open heart, and open arms,—open all the time with them. He tried hard to get rid of his money, but they would not let him spend a cent. In two things only was he disappointed—the roads and the hills. In the former he expected to find smooth macadams, but encountered only broken stones spread, and then seemingly unrolled, and left to take care of themselves. But you see he has been spoiled by the Orange "billiard tables." The hills he expected to find steep and long, and only surmountable by the veriest "toughs." "The famous 'Nigger Hill' was a short, steep, loose surfaced grade, which few of our boys would have failed at. I would sooner climb 'Nigger Hill' any day than the hill on High street, Newark, running up from Clinton avenue,—and you know that all the boys about here can climb that." In justice let it be stated that he did not go in the De Soto run, which, I understand, is the St. Louis terror, or he might perhaps have come back with a different story.

LAST Sunday thirteen members of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club took the train to Plainfield, and had a run with the Plainfield Bicycle Club of forty-eight miles over the roads of Middlesex and Somerset counties. The Brooklyn boys proved to be scorchers from way back, but in Marsh and the Martin brothers, it is whispered, they found men who were not to be numbered among "the left." They re turned late in the afternoon, and were loud in their praises of the hospitality of the Brooklyn boys.

BOB MEAD, ex-captain of the Essex Bicycle Club, and one of the best known of the veteran riders about here, has just published by far the most complete map of the roads of this vicinity that has yet appeared. The map will shortly be put on sale at stations, news stands, and bicycle dealers. No rider in the State has done more for the good of cycling hereabouts than this same popular, genial, hardy Bob Mead.

CRIST will do some riding on the Roseville track soon.

SECRETARY WHITEHEAD, of the Trenton Bicycle Club, again favors me with a newsy letter about affairs down his way. "Never before," he says, "has there been such an interest taken in cycling in and about Trenton as during the present season. The prejudice of the last two or three years against cycling, as against all things new, has about disappeared, and to-day you find our riders on business or pleasure in all parts of the city at all times of the day and night. Notwithstanding the poor roads of this section of the country, two of our clubmen made more than 2,200 miles last season, and the prospects are that many will do this or better, before the close of the year. Although not distinctively a 'star' club, the Trenton Bi. Club has beat their cranks among its twenty-five members. Much dissatisfaction is expressed on account of the recent change in the League uniform. The old has proved very serviceable to us, far more so than seems possible from the new cloth, judging from the sample we have seen. Through the untiring efforts of Capt. Crozer, great interest is being taken in our Decoration Day Club run through the Oranges. A number of our unattached friends will accompany us. This run promises to be well attended, and will undoubtedly be the event of the season. We are greatly indebted to Mr. F. B. Hallett, of Orange, and to Mr. Dennison, of the N. J. W. for their very kind assistance in selecting route, etc., for our day's ride." Thanks, Mr. Whitehead, would that we had a few more secretaries in the State as full of enthusiasm in helping along the good cause, and especially the humble recorder of New Jersey events as you are.

THE Elizabeth Wheelmen had a busy afternoon of it yesterday. In the first place, Ex Chief Consul E. W. Johnson with two H. C. W. clubmates, and an Orange Wanderer en route to Philadelphia were met, taken to the clubhouse, lightly lunched, and then escorted part of the way to Rahway. At half-past five twenty-three members of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, of Philadelphia got off at the station. They were met by some fifteen or twenty of the boys, taken to the new shanty, and introduced to the lemonade bowl of temperance, and the cake plate of frugality. After a little chat, they were escorted out to the Newark boulevard, where they were given over into the care and guidance of four of the N. J. W. They will make their headquarters at the Continental Hotel in Newark, will wheel to Morristown to-day, and to-morrow make the tour of the Oranges, and view the road race in the afternoon.

TO-MORROW morning the Citizens and New York clubs will have a little preliminary side show in the shape of a ten miles team race over the Irvington-Milburn course. These clubs were originally entered for the great run, but when the time came for sending in the teams were numbered among the missing. Without desiring to be censorious, or to meddle in other people's affairs, let me say that it seems to me hardly to be expected from such great clubs as the Citizens and New Yorks, to confess weakness by withdrawing from a contest, in which their relative merits could have been just as well tested, to have a little run of their own over the tenderfoot distance of ten miles. Why not come in along with the rest, and "the devil take the hindmost"? Little Union County and tiny Rutherford are in and ready to take their chances, and should either of them finish last it will lose none of its reputation for pluck against heavy odds. Three clubs fairly wiped up the course with Elizabeth last fall, yet it comes up smiling to the scratch to try again, and will do so as long as the association lasts. It is true that "to the victor belong the spoils"; but far from all the honors. Come, brethren, let us have no more side-shows after this, but let us all be in the fight together, that the greater may be the victor's glory, and that there may be more to sympathize with the losers. If I have said anything harsh, brothers, pardon me. I am so interested in the association, heart and soul, that I hate to see any of the lambs stray from the flock. That is all, and you know it. JER. C.

May 29, 1887.

WON THE CUP WITH THREE MEN.

KINGS COUNTY, first; Idleran beats Elizabeth for second place by one point. Hall beats his own record and wins the individual championship.

THE third semi-annual twenty-mile race of the New York and New Jersey Team Road Race Association, run over the Irvington-Milburn course on Decoration Day, attracted an audience of a thousand mounted wheelmen and several thousand spectators in carriages, and proved one of the greatest struggles in the history of road racing in this country.

The following were the contestants: Elizabeth Wheelmen, L. B. Bonnett, W. H. Caldwell, S. B. Bowman, D. B. Bonnett; Harlem Wheelmen, E. I. Halsted, C. W. Griffith, E. C. Parker, E. C. Locke; Hudson County Wheelmen, C. A. Stenken, E. M. Smith, E. P. Baggot, R. A. McAva; Ilderan Bicycle Club, H. L. Bradley, H. Gremmen, W. L. Richardson, J. W. Schoefer; Kings County Wheelmen, H. J. Hall, Jr., E. Valentine, L. P. Weber, J. H. Knox; Rutherford Wheelmen, E. W. Dean, Jr., W. C. Ivison, A. P. Jackson, R. A. Burgess; Union County Wheelmen, A. N. Pierson, E. B. Moore, T. H. Burnet, A. Farrington.

The start was made at 2.38 P. M. and the men got off at the second attempt, with Stenken in the lead. Hall soon caught him, however, and hung to his little wheel throughout the race until a half a mile from the finish.

The leaders at five miles were:—

		Club.	Time.
1	Stenken,	Hudson County,	17.38
2	Hall,	Kings County,	17.38 1-5
3	Valentine,	Kings County,	17.39
4	Halsted,	Harlem,	17.48
5	Bradley,	Ilderan,	18.03
6	Caldwell,	Elizabeth,	18.12

At ten miles:—

1	Stenken,	Hudson County,	36.01
2	Hall,	Kings County,	36.01 1-5
3	Valentine,	Kings County,	36.56
4	Bradley,	Ilderan,	36.57
5	Halsted,	Harlem,	37.40
6	Caldwell,	Elizabeth,	37.44

At fifteen miles:—

1	Stenken,	Hudson County,	54.47
2	Hall,	Kings County,	54.47 1-5
3	Bradley,	Ilderan,	55.52
4	Valentine,	Kings County,	55.56
5	Caldwell,	Elizabeth,	57.03
6	Halsted,	Harlem,	57.32

At twenty miles:—

1	Stenken,	Hudson County,	1.13.46
2	Hall,	Kings County,	1.13.47
3	Valentine,	Kings County,	1.15.18
4	Bradley,	Ilderan,	1.15.19
5	Caldwell,	Elizabeth,	1.17.00
6	Halsted,	Harlem,	1.17.39.

IT was now an assured fact that Kings County would win, as Hall was second, Valentine, third, Knox, seventh, and Weber well up in the first half. All interest centred in the contest between Hall and Stenken, the two Star men, for first place, and in the struggle for the second place between the Elizabeth, Union County, Ilderan, and Hudson County teams, who were running very close On the way home from Irvington, Weber ran into a careless pedestrian and had a serious fall, which prevented him from finishing. Halsted and Moore took headers, the former dropping out, and the latter mounting again and going on. At the Hilton Inn, three-quarters of a mile from home, in answer to the cheers of his clubmates, Hall spurted past Stenken, and held the lead to the finish, winning by four seconds in 1.33.53, beating his own best record for the course made in last fall's race by 3m. 19 2-5s., remarkable time, considering the fact that sixteen long steep hills had to be climbed, and five dismounts had to be made at turning points. The men finished as follows:

1	Hall,	Kings County,	1.33.53
2	Stenken,	Hudson County,	1.33.57
3	Valentine,	Kings County,	1.34.48
4	Bradley,	Ilderan,	1.34.49
5	Caldwell,	Elizabeth,	1.37.02
6	Knox,	Kings County,	1.38.17
7	Bagot,	Hudson County,	1.40.02
8	Bowman,	Elizabeth,	1.40.20
9	Greenman,	Ilderan	1.43.36
10	Pierson,	Union County,	1.43.45
11	Burnet,	Union County,	1.44.26
12	Parker,	Harlem,	1.46.05
13	Smith,	Hudson County	1.46.56
14	L. B. Bonnett,	Elizabeth,	1.47.27
15	Richardson,	Ilderan,	1.48.38
16	Farrington,	Union County,	1.49.00
17	Moore,	Union County,	1.52.14
18	Schoefer,	Ilderan,	1.53 14
19	Ivison,	Rutherford,	1.54.27
20	D. B. Bonnett,	Elizabeth,	1.58.05
21	Dean,	Rutherford,	1.58.52
22	Burgess,	"	2.01.45

The position and points of the club at the finish were,

1	King's County (3 men finished),	77
2	Ilderan,	70
3	Elizabeth.	69
4	Hudson County (3 men finished),	65
5	Union County,	62
6	Rutherford (3 men finished),	25
7	Harlem (1 man finished),	17

The race was, on the whole, undoubtedly the fastest run ever made on the road in this country, considering the course. Five men beat the best previous record, six beat 1.40, fourteen beat 1.50, and no less than twenty-two out of twenty-eight contestants finished.

Charles E. Kluge, of Jersey City, started five minutes after the race, to beat the best American tricycle road record for twenty-five miles, which was 1.45. He was successful, as follows: 5 miles, 18.10; 10 miles, 36.59; 15 miles, 55.44 2-5; 20 miles, 1.14.40 2-5; 25 miles, 1.34.40 2-5.

In the morning the New York and Citizens clubs had a team race over the course for five miles. The Citizens won, getting in, Fontaine, W. H. McCormick, and Thomas Smith, before any of the New Yorkers. Fontaine's time was 38.40.

NOTES OF THE RACE.

Hall, Stenken, Valentine, Knox, Bowman, Greenman, Halsted, Smith and the two Bonnetts rode stars.

D. B. Bonnett took Barrows' place in the E. W. at the last moment, and rode without preparation.

Thirty members of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club of Philadelphia viewed the race.

The Rutherford and Elizabeth clubs had stage loads of friends to cheer them.

Caldwell, of the E. W., is a sixteen-year-old boy, and finished third in this first race in 1.48.

Bowman, of the E. W., is a vegetarian, and trained on a diet of strawberries and wheaten grits..

MR. TEMPLE, the trick bicyclist of the American team, made a successful attempt on Monday night to ride along the wall of the North pier at Aberdeen on one wheel. Attired in a racing suit, and having a rope attached to the handle-bar of the bicycle, with a companion holding his hand, Temple balanced himself for a short time and moved rapidly off toward the lighthouse. On reaching the sloping rise of two feet, he nearly ran off into the sea, but quickly regaining his equilibrium, he sped along in safety for a distance of about one hundred and fifty yards. The daring bicyclist did not consider his feat as at all a dangerous one, stating that, if he had been unfortunate enough to fall into the sea, he would not have hurt himself, as the tide was rapidly running in; besides he is an expert swimmer, and at the worst, would only have had a bath. The height from the wall to the water is about twenty-five feet, and some five fee to the roadbed. The event naturally drew together a large crowd, who heartily cheered Temple on his accomplishing his astonishing task.—Aberdeen Express.

A CASE AT LAW.

THE first case ever before the Superior Court of Norfolk County, on a question of damage to a cycle by collision with a carriage on the highway, was tried May 18. The accident took place Sept. 14, 1886. Mr. H. M. Carter, a member of the L. A. W., and of the Ramblers of Hyde Park was riding on his tricycle from his home to his place of business, just as it began to get dusk, and while passing through River street, the main thoroughfare, his machine was run into by a hack going rapidly in the other direction. Mr. Carter was on the right hand side of the street near the curb, having just passed across a side street. The wheel of the hack struck the left wheel of the tricycle, buckling it, and bending the axle, but Mr. Carter was not dismounted or injured. The bill for repairs was $29.50, and Mr. Carter offered to settle with Mr. A. Raymond, the owner of the hack, agreeing to bear part of the expense although believing the hackman entirely to blame, as he was contrary to the "rule of the road" driving on the left. The offer was refused, and Mr. Carter brought suit for the whole amount of damages. The case was tried before Judge Hammond (no jury). Mr. J. S. Dean, of Boston, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. J. E. Cotter, of Hyde Park, for the defendant. There were five witnesses on each side, and the burden of the testimony was that the driver was on the wrong side of the street, and the horse going at a fast gait. Mr. Cotter's plea was, that as this was a main thoroughfare, Mr. Carter should have used more care in keeping out of the way of carriages. The Judge informed the plaintiff's lawyer that it would not be necessary for him to make any argument, and immediately ordered the hack owner to pay all damages and costs of court.

MICHIGAN ROAD BOOK.

CHIEF CONSUL J. H. JOHNSON, of the Michigan Division, has completed and issued the Michigan Road Book, and has given us a very creditable piece of work. The book contains a hundred pages, and has sixty-two well-described routes, besides several through routes taken from the New York road book. There are seven good maps, and besides these, there are the Constitution and By-Laws of the L. A. W. and the Division, together with full lists of officers, consuls, hotels, repair shops, etc.

The book is furnished free to members of the Division, and is sold for one dollar to League members. None sold except to League members.

CENTURY RUN.

ON May 15, 1887 (Sunday) three members of the Patapsco Cycle Club — Messrs. Sykes, Gibbons, and Fulton, started from Ellicott City at 4 A. M. for Frederick on a Century run — they arrived at 9 o'clock (route No. 48), stopped one hour and half for breakfast. On the route to Westminster, variation C No. 47, they were greatly delayed by the difficulty in getting something to eat, and didn't arrive there until 4.30 P. M.; and after resting a while they wheeled for Ellicott city, via. Arlington, Wetheredsville, and Catonsville, arriving at 10 P. M. (not quite as fresh as at the start,) the cyclometer registering 108 miles; time, 18 hours. The road from Ellicott city to Frederick reported good, from Frederick to Westminster, 11 miles good, 10 poor, 7 very bad; from Westminster, home good. The whole distance was covered, with no serious mishap, for which they were extremely thankful.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

SOUTHERN CENTURY.

EDITOR BULLETIN: "Tenn" and your New Orleans correspondent are discussing the first century run made South. Mr. T. L. Ingram, of Columbus, has twice covered the one hundred miles in one day, each time straightaway, on the country roads, starting from Columbus. First of these runs was February 2d, 1886, just one year ahead of the Memphis four, and sixteen miles was ridden with only one crank.

BEHAVIOR.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — In your issue of May the 13th, you publish an article on "Behavior," from the pen of a brother wheelman. I most heartily favor his suggestion to make membership in the League dependent, in part, upon gentlemanly behavior, and to expel from the League such as bring discredit upon its name. But I cannot quite agree with all our confrater says. He uses too strong expressions, and applies them too generally. I have never noticed anything deserving the name of bad behavior among members of the clubs in this part of the country (Maryland, Virginia), and I am sure the same can be said of most clubs, wherever be their locality. At the runs and drills of the club of which I have the honor of calling myself a member, a most exemplary discipline is kept up by the captain and other officers, who look to this duty as carefully and successfully as to others. I think our confrater, No. 5980, made a mistake by using so very energetic expressions, which, in the manner in which he employs them, bear upon wheelmen all over the country. I do not make bold to praise the League men of one section of the land to the disparagement of those of any other, for I am not acquainted with all, and have confidence in there being but few riders admitted to the League, against whose membership objections could be raised. (See Article III. of the Constitution.) But I assure you, among the clubs I know, those of Hagerstown, Baltimore, Washington, and many others, I look in vain for one "ungentlemanly, clownish, ill-bred, lunatic, or rowdy." (I quote from the article on "Behavior" in the BULLETIN of the date mentioned.)

Like No. 5980, yours in furthering the interests of the League,

CYCLETS.

JUNE.

PERFECT days.

GOOD riding, but dusty.

THE summer is coming when we may not ride.

LEAGUE members are back at their desks, and St. Louis is a memory only.

BOSTON sent a large delegation to St. Louis, and Massachusetts scored the greatest number of attendants among the Eastern States.

ST. LOUIS roads are not ideal ones. We tried them on a machine, or rather off of it, for we walked much of the way. Here is what John S. Prince says of the Clarksville course: "I'm no fancy rider, and when I went around the road the first time I took a header that made me open my eyes to the dangers of the road. They told me the road was wavy-like, but I didn't know the waves were so blarsted high. It's as much as a man's life is worth to take those hills brakes off, as some of the fellows do. I only got here a few days ago, and in that time I have had no time to develop into a fancy rider."

HOLLINGSWORTH, Whittaker and McCurdy have been running against the records of each other for a couple of years. They met at Clarksville, and came in at the finish, as we have placed them above. Their records against time stand in a reverse order from the above.

WHITTAKER was the favorite with the ladies at Clarksville. Several wept at his discomfiture, and nearly all had bouquets for him at the finish, though he was not the first man. Happy Whittaker!

THE churches had a harvest day at Clarksville. They furnished dinner at twenty-five cents a head, and found much patronage.

KENNEDY-CHILD told a Clarksville granger to throw some water on Crocker as he passed. The granger gave him a whole bucketful, and Crocker went over into the ditch. This was a case where "A little more than a little is by much too much."

EASTERN wheelmen left many badges in St. Louis. The girls are grateful.

COLONEL POPE sang a solo on the train en route for St. Louis. Col. Overman recited "Barbara Frietche" at the Missouri Club reception, and Col. Oliver sang a solo at the reception. Who says we have no talented men in the trade?

EASTERN men were warned against drinking St. Louis water. Apollinaris and coffee were in demand.

THE club song of the Boston party on the Victoria paralyzed St. Louis.

THINK of a bicycle track on a steamer. That's what we had at St. Louis, and the Victoria was carrying men and women around and around the track while the steamer ploughed the Father of Waters.

FOR the benefit of those who desire a picture of the St. Louis Meet, we will say that the photos taken on the steamer at time of excursion, also the group taken in Forest Park, can be obtained of Genelli, 923 Olive street, St. Louis, at two dollars each, twenty-five per cent of which, will be donated to the L. A. W. Entertainment Fund. Amount to be remitted with order, and the pictures will be mailed to any address The negatives are very fine and promise beautiful pictures. Genelli also took pictures of Stevens, which are on sale at fifty and seventy-five cents.

THE Boston delegation to St. Louis came home in sections. Several went to Chicago, and others spent a day at Niagara.

THE annual meeting of the Vermont Division will be held at Montpelier, June 19, at 2 P. M. The C. V. R. R. will carry passengers at half rates.

THE Rover's Cycle Club of Charlestown, will keep open house on Bunker Hill day, and all wheelmen will be welcome.

THE annual meeting of the Connecticut Division will be held June 9, at Hartford.

W. L. SHERIFF, a deaf and dumb rider, of California, Mo., has sent in his entry to the Clarksville road race. Sheriff is a stalwart young fellow, about six feet high, and he says he can put a mile in on he road in three minutes.

THE first fifty bound copies of "X. M. Miles on a Bi.," were mailed to England and other foreign countries on May 31. The second lot of 250, were promised for June 2, and will cover all the paid-in-advance subscriptions in America, outside the towns where boxes are to be sent by express. The third lot, 200, were to be shipped to San Francisco June 3; and every day henceforth 200 will be sent out to the various depositories until Boston's turn is finally reached. Karl Kron will continue to reside at West Springfield, Mass., superintending the distribution, for about a fortnight longer.

WE have received the photos of the Meet from Genelli. The group in Forest Park makes a fine picture, and the faces come out clear and sharp. The boat view is not so good as the other, but makes a fine picture. Every one who went to St. Louis should have one of these groups.

THE tool-bag menu, which was used at the League banquet is a very pretty souvenir of the Meet. The committee have a few left, which will be sent post-paid to any address for $1.00. Address Dr. H. H. Keith, 2,248 Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

HENRY STURMEY is engaged on the production of another edition — the sixth — of the "Indispensable Bicyclists' Handbook," which will, it is hoped, be published in three or four weeks time. The last edition, which was issued in 1882, has been out of print now over two years, and the "Handbook to the Safety Bicycle," issued in 1885, is also out of print. The new edition will embody the subject matter of both these works, and will form a complete encyclopædia on the subject of the bicycle and its construction.

KENNEDY CHILD appears in the League picture with a child on his shoulder. It was not his own.

ONE of the St. Louis dailies exhibited its enterprise at the Meet. On Saturday night it printed an account of what "had been done" at Clarksville on the two following days, dating the sheet two days ahead. It was particularly pleasing to read about the race before it came off.

HARRY COREY climbed Crank Hill, at Clarksville, on a Humber safety. Only three men had been up before he tried, and he finished out the quartette.

THE bicyclers of Maryland propose to have a reunion in Baltimore for one day during the latter part of June. Every club in the State and representatives from different clubs in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Boston, and other cities will attend. During the day the club rooms will be open to visitors. At night all the wheelmen, to the number of about five hundred, will parade through the principal streets on their machines, carrying lanterns and dressed in fantastic costumes, headed by a band of music.

NEILSON is home again, and is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon his prowess at Clarksville. He is to have a benefit and ball shortly. He says that road races may be all right, but he is of the opinion that his future efforts will be confined to the path.

ANOTHER hundred-mile road race will shortly be run for the championship. This time the race will be at Crawfordsville, Ind., over a course which is said to be very smooth and free from hills. It is likely that the men who met at Clarksville will again come together.

THE Minneapolis, Minn., Bicycle Club has appointed F. A. Leland, Charles Barwick, E. A. Savage, and J. W. Hayes, a committee to confer with similar committees from the Mercury Club and the Caledonian Society relative to the expediency of making an athletic park, one feature of which is to be a first-class bicycle track.

IN England, lottery schemes for the wheelmen seem to flourish. The latest scheme of some enterprising concern is to empty in a M I P. bag thousands of steel balls of assorted sizes, and charge a shilling per guess as to the number. It is called the Jubilee Guessing Competition, and there are twenty bicycles, tricycles and safeties for prizes.

THE Rovers' Cycle Club, of Charlestown will make the following club runs during June: June 5, Woodland Park Hotel; June 12, Cobb's Tavern; June 19, Waltham; June 26, Dedham.

AT a special meeting of the Rovers' Cycle Club, of Charlestown, held on Tuesday evening, May 24, A. W. Robinson was elected president and captain, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Captain Brown.

G. W. NELLIS, Jr., of Herkimer, N. Y., left that place last Tuesday morning, mounted upon his Columbia bicycle, en route for San Francisco.

HOWELL has beaten Woodside in three out of five races, and no more will be run. America now looks to Rowe.

ON Thursday, May 19, at 4 A. M., E. J. Hale, J. R. Stockdale, M. A. Sailor, M. Stahl, and J. Purvis Bruce, all of the Minneapolis Bicycle Club, started out with the intention of breaking the State record, namely, 62 miles in 8¼ hours, if possible. Hale returned on his wheel, reaching Minneapolis at 9.15 P. M., actual riding time 10 hours and 15 minutes. The distances covered were, E. J. Hale, 103¾ miles; J. P. Bruce, 98 miles; J. R. Stockdale and M. A. Sailor, 66¾ miles; M. Stahl, 30 miles. On account of the terrible head wind the ride was an exceedingly tough one.

THE touring board of the Minnesota Division, L. A. W., have decided upon a week's tour, to begin Monday, June 20, and close Saturday, June 25. The route takes in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Ft. Snelling, Shakopee, Henderson, St. Peter, Mankato, New Ulm, Redwood Falls, Glencoe, and, if desired, Lake Minnetonka. Over two thirds of the distance will be run on prairie roads — the wheelman's paradise — while some seventy-five miles of the route lies along the Minnesota valley, affording good roads and fine scenery.

THE first annual Meet of the Wisconsin Division will be held at Oshkosh, June 6, 7, and 8. There will be a parade, banquet, ball, and business meeting besides many tours and runs.

BALBO, the noted Cuban pool player, has become interested in bicycling, and has purchased a wheel. He is a general athlete, and captain of the Havana athletic and base ball clubs, and his action will doubtless influence other Cubans to take to the wheel.

MAYOR HEWITT, of New York, may as well abandon all hope of receiving the suffrages of the cycling portion of the community should he again become a candidate for public office. On Friday last he wrote to Governor Hill, asking him to veto the bill giving wheelmen the right to ride through any part of Central Park at all hours. The argument he advances is the old one of making the driveways dangerous for the use of carriages.

S. P. HOLLINGSWORTH has resigned his membership in the League.

A VICTOR bicycle was stolen from the Lynn track on Decoration Day, and a reward is offered for its recovery, in our advertising columns.

THE Brockton racing team is in active training. It consists of A. E Randall Walter Brown, Ed Severance, and W. H. Senter. The club will undoubtedly hold a tournament before the season is over.

WE haven't seen all the club houses in America, but all those we have seen must take off their caps when the Missouri club house is mentioned.

A MEETING of the Connecticut division of the L. A. W. will be held at Hartford on June 10. Elaborate plans for entertaining the visitors have been arranged by the local clubs. A 25-mile road race for the championship of the State will be run in connection with the Meet. Prizes valued at $100 will be given.

AND now the Massachusetts Division will make arrangements for the Cottage City camp.

SINGER'S Victoria six-in-hand created a sensation at St. Louis. It was ridden by scores of people in and about St. Louis, and on the steamboat there was a track which afforded good riding, and gave many people a chance to try it. Again at Clarksville it was in use on the belt road, and carried many riders over the course. No better machine for a club can be found. It runs easily, and six riders can get a great deal of speed out of it. W. B. Everett was in charge of the machine, and placed it at the disposal of all who wished to try it.

WHY not go to Baltimore next year? We suggested this to Chief Consul Bartlett at St. Louis, and he thought very well of the idea. It is a fine city; they have a beautiful park, and the Baltimore boys are a warm-hearted set. We will say nothing about the reputation the city enjoys for the loveliest women in America.

THE future of the Massachusetts Club is still very uncertain. A special meeting was held on Tuesday evening last for the purpose of discussing the problem which stares the club in the face. At the meeting, the facts in the case were stated very plainly, and it was shown conclusively that with the present income the club could not meet the expenses necessary for keeping up its present quarters. The organization is burdened by a debt of several thousand dollars, but this might be removed could it be shown that the club would thereafter prosper. The membership has within the past few months fallen from two hundred and fifty to about one hundred and fifty. After a lengthy debate, it was voted to instruct Secretary Farrington to notify the president of the corporation that after June 30 the club would cease to occupy its house. In hopes, however, that all was not yet lost, the secretary was also instructed to send out circulars to the members and see if it is possible to secure one hundred who will pay annual dues of $50. If this can be done the present quarters will be retained. Another circular will be sent to the members, asking how many will remain with the club should it move to cheaper quarters. Further action was postponed until the regular monthly meeting, which will be held on next Tuesday evening.

The Columbia Bicycle Club of North Attleboro', Mass., enjoyed their second annual clambake at Lake Pearl on the 14th inst. Fifty persons sat at the table, and all had a very pleasant time.

ANNUAL MEET, CONNECTICUT.

The regular annual meeting of the Connecticut Divison will be held in the rooms of the Hartford Wheel Club on Thursday, June 9, 1887, at 7.30 P. M. In accordance with a mail vote of the Board of Officers, a sufficient sum has been appropriated from the funds of the Division for the entertainment of its members which will be given at the parlors of the Connecticut Bicycle Club and Hartford Wheel Club immediately following the business meeting.

In the afternoon, a twenty-five mile road race will be run, open to Connecticut L. A. W. men only. Three prizes will be given, aggregating in value one hundred dollars, which amount has been generously subscribed by Hartford wheelmen. A circular containing full information has been mailed to each L. A. W. member in the State.

It is earnestly requested that every man in the Division come to Hartford on that date, if he can possibly do so, not only on account of important business to be transacted, which certainly should claim his attention, but also to enjoy one of those social and festive occasions that all true wheelmen so delight in.

Fraternally,
Louis A. Tracy, C. C.

Hartford, May 31, 1887.

CONNECTICUT APPOINTMENT.

I have this day appointed Ex-Chief Consul Charles G. Huntington, chairman of a special committee on publication of the Connecticut road book.

Louis A. Tracy, C. C.

WISCONSIN APPOINTMENT.

Editor Bulletin, — I have this day appointed Frank Bull, of Racine, to be representative for Wisconsin.

Fr. Bloodgood, Jr., C. C.

Milwauker, May 19, 1887.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ANNUAL MEET.

To the Wheelmen of New Hampshire Division, L. A. W.:

Gentlemen, — Upon invitation of the Manchester Bicycle Club, I will call the fifth annual Meet and run of the New Hampshire Division, L. A. W., at Manchester, on Monday, July 4, and trust it will be as successful as the previous ones. Hoping this will meet the approval of all, and wishing for your assistance to make this one of the largest numerically.

I am, yours truly,
H. M. Bennett, C. C.

Manchester, N. H., June 1, 1887.

RESIGNATION.

Abbot Bassett, Secretary-Editor:

Dear Sir, — I hereby tender my resignation as a member of the League of American Wheelmen.

S. P. Hollingsworth, No. 5914.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 25, 1887.

TENNESSEE APPOINTMENTS.

In my letter some days since I sent in some appointments, among them was C. Able, Knoxville. I have misspelled the name, it is "C. Aebli." I have appointed the Nicholson House the League hotel for Nashville. Regular rates, $2.50 and $3.00; to L. A. W. members, $1.50 and $2.00; single meals or lodging, fifty cents.

J. C. Combs, C. C.

VERMONT ANNUAL MEET.

The annual meeting of the Vermont Division, L. A. W., will be held at Montpelier, June 17, 1887. The business meeting will be held at 2 P. M., and, as matters of importance will come up, it is hoped every member will be present.

Those having the matter in charge are arranging a most enjoyable programme, which will include a hill-climbing contest, a ride to Barre, a grand road race, a street parade, banquet at the Pavilion, etc., particulars of which will be given later. The Pavilion offers reduced rates.

The Central Vermont, Connecticut River, and Passumpsic Railroad will give half fare from stations in the State.

Special round trip tickets must be called for on the Central Vermont Railroad or no reduction will be given.

F. E. Dubois, Sec.-Treas.

West Randolph, Vt., May 30, 1887.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

J. G. CARPENTER, General Manager, 21 N. FRANKLIN STREET, WILKES BARRE, PA.

THE TRADE.

Two St. Louis riders, Lindell and Gordon of the American Wheelman, and R. E. Lee, recently climbed Son-of-a-Gun Hill on a Rudge Humber Tandem, geared to 54. The importance of this feat may be imagined when one remembers that this hill is generally known to be worse than the famous Corey Hill.

The Pope Manufacturing Company, at its factory, has more tools, dies and machinery for the manufacture of bicycles than has any other two factories in the United States.

The twenty-five mile club race, of the Waltham Club, was won by A. W. Hales on a 56 Rudge Light Roadster.

The Pope Manufacturing Company is, and has been for years, the largest maker of high-grade bicycles in the world.

The great International Bicycling Championship was won by our Howell, at Leicester, Eng., May 21, on a 59 inch Rudge Racer.

The Pope Manufacturing Company has made and sold more high-grade bicycles than all the other makers in the United States combined.

L. A. W. TABLE.

Made of Georgia Mahogany.

Presenting the brightest and most attractive finish of any of the native American woods. No pains or money has been spared to make these tables the most attractive piece of furniture ever offered.

L. A. W. SYMBOL,

Finely painted, ten inches in diameter, making the handsomest Card Receiver ever offered. Read what they say of it:

The beautiful finish and fine appearance of these Tables render them so attractive that L. A. W. members must prize them, as both ornamental and useful.

(Sgd) AUG. H. HANSELL, Judge Superior Court.

The Georgia Mahogany works beautifully in all finishing work, and we should think that this Table would be very attractive for the L. A. W. members for whom it is designed.

(Sgd) A. P. WRIGHT & CO., Bankers.

Mr. W. F. Moss: It affords me pleasure to commend the beauty and strength of the L. A. W. Card Receiver manufactured by you. The bright and pleasing color will make it attractive to Wheelmen or any one else. Yours,

(Sgd) S. G. McLENDON, Rep. Thomas Co.

There seems to linger in the delicate and peculiar shade of Georgia Mahogany lumber, something of the rich sunlight that has fed it and nourished its sturdy growth. It would strike the eye of an artist anywhere, and it exquisite finish would rival the famed hard woods of the world. Mr. Moss deserves and should receive encouragement, he is taking the crude elements of our wealth and turning them into money.—Thomasville Enterprise.

Photograph sent on application. Every L. A. W. member should have one in his house or room, and every League Club should have three to ten in Club rooms. Special discount given where three or more are ordered.

PRICE $2.50. When five or more are shipped to one address, the freight will be just one-fifth of what it would be on shipment of one. Address

BICYCLE, TENNIS, YACHTING and ROWING JERSEYS,

In Long or One-Quarter Sleeves, or Sleeveless, High or Low Neck, Lace Front, or Standing Collar, Plain or Fancy Colors.

Every Wheelman and Sportsman will give them his approval when he examines the Shoulders, Arm Holes and Neck, as they are made to fit. These goods are PATENTED, and all infringements will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

Made same as full tights, to three inches below the knee.

TRUNKS

Are a great protection to tights, receiving all the wear from the saddle, and can easily be removed, and thus save the more expensive garments.

JERSEY FITTING KNEE PANTS,

Buttoned in Front, same as Pantaloons, without Certai Objections.

We offer them to the trade and clubs as SOMETHING NEW, and invite all to examine them.

LADIES' JERSEY FITTING TRICYCLE PANTS.

A NEW THING

These Pants are close fitting, come three inches below the knee, are very elastic, and the most comfortable garment a lady ever wore. Made in Cream-Colored Cotton, Drab, Red, or any colors in Worsteds. Racing Wheelmen tell us it is a loss of fifteen seconds in a mile to have some slight irritation from a non-elastic pair of cloth pants.

Would like to have every Wheelman see these

JERSEY-FITTING STOCKINGS,

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE.—Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS.—Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.

What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it,—but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

A FEW INTERROGATION POINTS, GENTLEMEN.

Why be deceived by middle-men who call themselves manufacturers and are not?

If their statements about themselves are untrue, why not their claims regarding the merits of the wheels they sell, or rather attempt to sell?

Why be deceived by statements about records acquired on wheels so frailly constructed as to be useless on the road?

Is not the effort to associate the performance of one wheel with another, because only it is sold by the same middle-men, an effort to deceive?

Is it not reasonable to suppose that the buyer can get a better value for his money from the agent of the manufacturer than from the agent of the manufacturer's agent?

Is it not logical and wise to conclude upon a mount from the arguments and testimony of road riders who hold all the more important world's road and long-distance records, obtained too on American champion roadsters, rather than from the testimony of riders using 22-pound machines on specially prepared surfaces?

If you wish to be convinced, why not send a one-cent stamp for a special catalog of testimonials, parts, etc., to

ON the way to St. Louis, Col. Pope gave to the wheelmen on the train some very good ideas regarding League work. He said that the improvement of the roads was the one thing more than another that the League should strive to bring about. "Let the League hire a man whose sole duty it shall be to direct the attention of town and city authorities to the crying need for good roads. He must be well acquainted with the science of road building, must be a good talker, and must be fertile in resources for the bringing about of the objects he is aiming at. Let him show to the people what will come as the result of good roads, and he will have taken an important step in securing action on their part. Let him show to them that a good road to a town decreases the wear and tear on vehicles, makes the transportation of heavy loads a thing of easy accomplishment, and withal attracts trade that would avoid a place embargoed with bad roads. Such a man could do very much good. He would have to be paid well, and his expenses would be large; but the results would justify an increased assessment, or the manufacturers could be called upon to help pay the bills. In such a movement the League could look for the aid and coöperation of horse owners, for they would be benefited no less than the wheelmen." There is very much in the foregoing that is worth consideration.

THE improvement of American roads presents so huge a problem that it is almost disheartening to start out upon a crusade with this object in view. And yet difficulties with more discouraging outlooks have been met and conquered. To know how to begin the good work is the first question at issue, for to make a mistake at the outset would be a misfortune. Our towns and cities are not overburdened with wealth, and where the roads are the poorest the material must be carried for long distances at great expense. It is very largely a question of money, and therefore it should be our duty to not only convince the authorities that good roads are essential to prosperity, but we must tell them how to make good roads at the least expense.

THE Bicycling News has this to say anent road racing: "When some seventy or eighty cyclists are summoned for furious driving, and the authorities seek to put checks upon our speed upon the road the main body of wheelmen will regret that individual clubs should have been permitted to inflict such injury upon the sport as a whole."

That is just the idea held by League officials.

PHOENIX'S despatches turned up at a late hour last week, and they appear in our columns to-day. It is unfortunate that we had to delay the publication so long, but our correspondent has made a very pleasing story that will well repay the reading.

THE people of Montclair, N. J., are very naturally incensed against wheelmen and the wheel on account of the accident which occurred in that place through the carelessness of a wheelman who was riding on the sidewalk. An ordinance has just been passed by the authorities forbidding path riding, and it is very likely that an attempt will be made to restrict the use of the wheel in other directions. In this way one careless and inconsiderate rider will undo in a moment the work of years of those who are endeavoring to secure the equal rights of wheelmen. The bicycle has no rights upon the sidewalks, and path riding should be discouraged by all who have the interest of the sport at heart. In many places bad roads lead to the toleration of the wheel on the path, and where this condition of things obtains cyclers should remember that they are enjoying a privilege by favor of the people, and should respect that privilege by careful riding, and a considerate regard for the rights of pedestrians.

ON Tuesday next, Governor Hill, of New York, will give a special hearing to parties interested for and against the so-called "Liberty Bill." The fate of this bill is now in the hands of this official and it behooves wheelmen to make a strong presentation of their case. We have faith to believe that the officials of the New York Division will leave no stone unturned that will advance their own interests in this matter, but we hope to see them backed up and supported by the rank and file a little more enthusiastically than they have heretofore been. If every wheelman within easy distance of Albany would give next Tuesday to the cause, an impression which goes with a numerous gathering of people determined to have their rights might not prove ineffective.

IN all the accounts of the Clarksville road race we have seen no mention of the boy who rode in from the country on a home-made bicycle. It was carved out of wood with an axe. The backbone was made of three pieces of plank, the wheel was of wood, the pedals were immense square blocks of wood, and the whole affair presented about as uncouth and clumsy an appearance as one could possibly imagine. The boy was met by several riders on the road about five miles out, making slow but sure progress towards Clarksville. He got there, and exhibited his wheel to the curious crowd. That boy is a genius. It wasn't much of a machine, but he made it himself under the most adverse circumstances, and produced something that would work. Of such stuff are the world movers made of.

THE ANNUAL MEET.

The River Excursion, the Parade, the Banquet, and the Road Race.

I BELIEVE that for brevity the business meeting took the record, which was in accordance with the order of things during the Annual Meet. Reporters had the freedom of the board and business meetings, five daily papers being represented, and the splendid reports which followed shows the admittance of the press, where all is open and above-board, to be a wise policy.

Everybody now flocked back to the hotels for dinner, and at three o'clock large squads of sunburned wheelmen, in their variegated uniforms, are seen moving along Washington Avenue, generally on foot, making for the levee and the steamer Chouteau. On the wharf we find Jones Irvine busily handing tickets to the city wheelmen, the visitors having only to show the purple badge with cow-horn bar. At the gang plank stands handsome Fred Beckers, checker in hand, and I might note that the little instrument recorded about 575 as the total number on board when the boat backed away from its moorings. Those who remained a-shore sent us on our way with a rousing cheer. At the same time Schoen's orchestra of sixteen pieces struck up "The Last Cigar," a melody with a local cycling interest, that, handled by so skilful a band, went straight to our hearts, and brought our voices into involuntary action. Even the cluster of hollow-eyed committee men on the front guard seemed to brighten up, and the merry-go-rounders on the six-in-hand sped along the skating rink surface around the lower deck all the faster. We are backing across the river. Now the steamer swings majestically about, turns down stream, and, with a parting cheer to the crowd behind us, we are gliding brakes off down the broad Mississippi. Every one is a trifle tired, and the noiseless motion of the boat, the delightful breeze, and the intoxicating presence of the fair sex, seem to overcome our cyclers with a dreamy quietude. The iron works and Carondelet are passed; we are nearing the bluffs, and are soon speeding silently along under their shadows, for the sun is sinking low in the West. Now and then a suburban train dashes swiftly along beneath the overhanging rocks, and but a few feet from the darkening waters, —a cheer, and they are gone How quickly time flies when one is weary! But come, it is growing dark, and if we would see the fun we must be stirring — that is, most of us. A glance about shows there are exceptions. Here is Charlie Howard, that demure Boston scribe, with handsome face and pensive air, —at the start he caught a lovely girl, a rich blonde, and for him, at least, there is to be no change, for he is satisfied. The orchestra has now removed to the spacious dancing floor on the lower deck, and the negro jubilee singers usurp its former position on the guard. These are soon surrounded by an admiring throng, for to a great many their plantation melodies are an entire novelty. Seven o'clock. The steamer suddenly swings about, and prepares to land. We are at Montesano. Soon Greenwood and his De Soto party ride down to the plank. He has but eight men, Messrs. Bowbeer, Chicago; Probst, Hullman, Hill, Indiana; Monaghan, Dallas, Texas; Bert Hill, Peoria, Illinois, and Charlie McDonald, of St. Louis. There were three Star wheels. They had left De Soto at 11.10, and made the exciting trip without a mishap. A few minutes later, Alex Lewis arrived with six others, Pallister, Ottumwa, Ia.; McGill, Chicago; Norton, Champaign, Ill.; Jaccard and others, St. Louis; the latter party having started from the Missouri Club at two o'clock. All the visitors were full of praise when asked their opinion of the De Soto road, but admitted that they had never seen the up grades or coasts equalled.

Genelli took a fine photo of the steamer, and I noticed at that instant our rotund Secretary-Editor performing an athletic feat by climbing out on the ropes and dangling dangerously over the canvas canopy below. Why did you smile, Mr. B? It disarmed the camera of its powers, and showed, instead of you, a blur.

Supper was now announced, and, by reason of the large number on board, the caterer was kept busy until a quite late hour. Meantime, the boat steamed back towards the city, while everybody seemed to imbibe new life with the cool air of the night. Downstairs the merry dancers held full sway, and others sat and listened, whilst chatting with some pretty companion, to the soft music produced by the orchestra. I met Harry Corey wandering disconso ately about. He had lost his girl. I took him under my wing, and in a pleasant chat learned of three things which he could not understand. "First," said he, "Why do St Louis girls wear such large hats? Next, how does it happen that a city so far north contains so many negroes; and lastly, where on earth did you find so many mules. We have n't one in Boston."

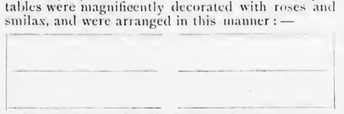
Chairman Smith was sitting before the smoke stack with Chief Consul Bartlett, of Maryland. The night was perfectly black, and the thin slip of a moon, so widely advertised ere the Meet came on, had long since disappeared. "I am expecting a few fireworks from one of the bluffs," remarked Smith, who had just been told by Mr. Bartlett that Baltimore might ask for the next Meet. At that instant a rocket shot up into the sky, and simultaneously a flood of red and green light enveloped a towering rock not three hundred feet away, revealing the old Chouteau mansion and the surrounding verdure in a weird, glorious beauty. "Few fireworks, indeed," exclaimed Bartlett. "This breaks my heart. If you folks keep up this sort of thing you will ruin Baltimore's hopes completely." The steamer had stopped and was slowly drifting, while the multitude remained in silence during the grand pyrotechnic display. Under way again, and now for the last hour of fun. Numbers viewed the Vulcan Works at Carondelet, and at midnight we were scrambling up the St. Louis levee, and scattering our various ways.

SATURDAY. — The parade feature of a Meet comes and goes as a matter of course, and an extended account of it is hardly interesting reading. Many of the gay cyclers were loth to leave the couch of down this morning, and they straggled out to the place of rendezvous in sleepy couples and squads; and not a few of us were disgusted to find one or two sprinkling carts casting their contents over the granite streets. On the asphalt, too, the festive "coon" met our reproachful stare with a calm, benignant smile, while he doused the street with unwelcome moisture. The long delay in starting, however, gave the streets time to dry, and the boys filled the tedious wait with many a little frolic. Addington, the phosferrone man, came to the front with his usual generosity, and distributed the cooling beverage freely. A squad of Wisconsin boys created a roar of laughter by riding to the starting point arrayed in oriental splendor, with flags, fans, and bonnets of gaudy paper, their standard-bearer carrying a banner reading, "Hong Kong Division," etc. Shortly after eleven o'clock, "Get ready," came in silvery notes from Ned Oliver's bugle. A few moments later — "To wheel," and the parade was in motion, moving in this order

Detachment of eight mounted police under Sergt. Florisch. After the police came A. K. Stewart, pacemaker; then President T. J. Kirkpatrick, ex officio grand marshal; Prof. C. H. Stone, parade chief Col. Albert Pope and Geo. H. Day on a tandem, and Thomas Stevens, who circumcycled the globe. And then came the divisions in the following order: Massachusetts division, led by Chief Consul Hayes; New York division, led by Chief Consul Bidwell; Pennsylvania division, led by Chief Consul Jessup; Maryland division, led by Chief Consul Bartlett; Ohio division, led by Chief Consul Dunn Illinois division, led by Capt. W. B. Buckley, of the Illinois club, Chicago; Kentucky division, led by Capt. J. F. Adams, Indiana division, led by Chief Consul Irwin; Iowa division, led by Chief Consul Thrall; Kansas division, led by C. C. Candy; Wisconsin division, led by Capt. J. A. Hinman, of Oshkosh; Missouri division, led by Geo. C. Peters, unattached L. A. W. members, led by H. W. Belding; Missouri Bicycle Club, led by Lieut. Alex Lewis; tricycle division, led by Dr. H. H. Keith.

The six-in-hand was the greatest novelty of the parade, and carried Secretary-Editor Bassett, W. B. Everett, H. W. Hayes, Sanford Lawton, G. H. Hill, and C. L. Smith.

I will not enlarge upon the route etc.; suffice it to say, that the path through the granite-paved thoroughfares was not strewn, as were, with roses. The line passed the Lindell in good form, but on Fourth street a crowd was encountered, and several halts occurred ere the asphalt was again reached. From this on it was smooth sailing, and the line presented a fine sight, as it stretched away over the undulations of the Olive Street road. As I passed the corner of Grand Avenue and Chestnut, I heard the number, "227," and careful estimates show that 300 would about cover the number in the parade. At one o'clock, the hot and dust-laden riders dropped their wheels into the long grass of a pretty dale in Forest Park, and strolled through the woods to the place of refreshment. Ices, milk and lemonade disappeared with marvellous rapidity, while the substantia's were sadly neglected. Genelli took the customary photograph after the lunch, and though the number of faces contained in the picture reminds one of the very first, taken on the rocks at Newport, I believe the proportion of celebrities is larger than ever, and the picture was splendidly taken.



And now for the brewery! They went in squads. Some went in carriages. Some took the wrong road, and got off and walked. 'Twas a hot five-mile trip, but when the hundred and more reached the cool precincts of the brewery yard they felt amply repaid by the generous manner in which President Busch placed his entire office force at the service of the thirsty visitors. Never mind what happened there. Most of you know the effect of a cool, foaming glass of malt refreshment upon a heated system. Perhaps the intricate machinery of the great manufactory was not as distinctly visible to a number of eyes as it should have been, for a few moments. But do not misinterpret the joke. The afternoon was very pleasantly passed, and upon leaving the institution each visitor carried away a pretty souvenir, and a large quantity of good humor.

THE BANQUET. — Now do words fail me. Those who were fortunate enough to participate at that feast of eloquence which followed the banquet proper, will acquit me of boasting when I say, it can never be surpassed. Space will not permit me to verify the assertion, but perchance the words there spoken may greet your eyes from the columns of a St. Louis journal. The banquet was a surprise, not only to our friends, whose hands were stopped while reaching for their purses, but our own anticipations were wholly inadequate to grasp the magnitude of the affair. As a toastmaster, Gus Thomas was simply perfect. The Hon. Jacob Furth drew two hundred and twenty-five cycling hearts nearer to him by his welcoming address. Col. Pope excelled himself, and Tom Stevens showed himself an orator. And above all the other surprises towered the magnificent speech of our president, T. J. Kirkpatrick. I hope some day to find space for it in the columns of the BULLETIN, for it should see the light. Again, who that heard it will ever forget the wonderful manner in which the Rev. John Snyder finished his response to the toast, "The Ladies," when he said: "Happy that man who knows one good woman; still happier the man who, by his own loyalty, his own tenderness and truth, has helped to keep this woman good, who loved him best. In mother, wife, and daughter we find three golden links that bind man's life to the here or hereafter. Gentlemen, God bless your mothers, your wives and your sweethearts, wherever they may be to-night. May each one of you be able to say of one woman in the world, at least: —

> "'Why, man, she is mine own!
> And I as rich, in having such a jewel,
> As twenty seas, if all their sands were pearl,
> Their waters nectar, and their rocks pure gold!'"

The toasts responded to were: Address of welcome by Jacob Furth, representing the citizens of St. Louis; response by Col. Pope of Boston; "Our Guests," Thomas Stevens; "St. Louis and Her Merchants," by A. Moore Berry, Esq.; "The L. A. W.," by President Kirkpatrick; "The Ladies," by Rev. John Snyder, D. D., of the Unitarian Church of the Messiah; "Cycling and its Relation to Literature," by Prof. J. K. Hosmer, of Washington University. There were also other speeches of an informal nature.

I almost forgot the menu. At the tap of a bell ninety waiters entered the room, keeping time to the plaintive harmony produced by the famous Spiehring, and at a second tap deposited at the side of each plate a saddle-bag! The menu itself was contained within, being printed in gold on a broad silk band of purple, the L. A. W. color. The banquet tables were magnificently decorated with roses and smilax, and were arranged in this manner: —

At the head of the centre table stood a decorated bicycle, which for some reason seemed to please Ned Oliver immensely. The speakers were seated at the head, and to hear them to better advantage, the wheelmen drew their chairs as near as possible.

The banquet closed at 1.30 A. M., our gem of a toastmaster leading in "The Modern Prodigal," and the assembly forming the chorus.

THOSE who intended remaining in the city now scattered to their hotels and homes. The rest of the banquet-laden crowd lugged their wheels and their own weary bodies down the streep grade of Washington Avenue, to the Hudson, which steamed away toward Clarksville at two A. M., affording them a quiet but short rest. They say that plenty of oxygen lessens the necessity of a long rest. Be this as it may, at six o'clock Sunday morning, nearly all on board were awake and stirring. We were away behind time, and the morning hours were pleasantly passed by sitting on the guards and talking over past and coming events. Harry Corey wrote a letter — to whom he would not say. The dapper Mr. Overman chatted and hustled his trimly built figure here, there, and everywhere. Charlie Howard remained in strict seclusion, for the poor boy has been sick, and Jack Rogers, on the contrary, had not slept a wink. Boston, ask Mr. Everett why. Ladish had his hands full, but took things coolly, though he looked a trifle sad over the fact that the steamboat people had not filled their contract in the matter of food in the manner he had expected. Jerry Davis brought forth his guitar at ten o'clock, and led the old Rambler gang in the famous "hog song." At 11.30 A. M. a glimpse of Clarksville, still seven miles away, was obtained between the headlands. A sun shower came up, but failed to disturb a merry party who had gathered on one of the swinging stages, and were "raising Cain," at the risk of dropping off the plank into the Mississippi.

At 1.35 P. M. the Clarksville levee hove in sight, and in a few moments all were on shore, greeting the Clarksville boys, and mingling with the mass of people who had gathered at the little hamlet from all parts of the Mississippi Valley. A special wheelmen's service at one of the churches was largely attended, but those not religiously inclined either sauntered about town, or took their wheels from the steamer, and cycled up and down the long grades of Pike County. The six-in-hand was taken around during the afternoon by six ex-Ramblers. With many others, they were caught in a storm while out, and a photograph of the party, taken on its return, shows a set of half-drowned and sand covered fellows.

Greenwood, Corey, Davies, Harry Gordon and others tackled Crank Hill, Greenwood alone gaining the top. Corey, however, had not previously seen the grade

George Tivy, a tough roadman of St. Louis, had tried his powers of endurance on the Belt the day before, and succeeded in reeling off one hundred and fifty miles in 14.04, according to his own timing.

Toward sunset we enjoyed some great sport by throwing pennies (that is, some wealthy people threw pennies) from the hotel veranda into a crowd of little negroes on the street, and watching them scramble for the bits of copper. It was very cloudy when darkness came on, but all hoped for the best. There was not much sleeping done on Sunday night, what with waiting for the St. Louis train, and the various frolics in ulged in. The Secretary-Editor came up on the midnight train, and under the pretence of sleepiness or somnambulism, or something of the sort, usurped the berth of a weary scribe and left him standing without, wondering how it all happened.

MONDAY, May 23. — Those lowering clouds, what do they augur, success or failure, to the road race? If they will but keep their moisture from the earth, a finer racing atmosphere could not be wished for. The town is full of people. The racing men sit quietly about, but nervousness displays itself on the the faces of some. At half-past eight we watch the men as they climb into vehicles with their wheels, and great crowds move out of town with them to the starting point. The only hard hills on the course are encountered southwest of town, but a glance at these grades, and the rather wet gravel surface, convinces us that the record will not go.

A few minutes after nine o'clock the men were placed in position in the following order: —

H. G. Crocker, Boston, 53-inch Columbia; A. A. McCurdy, Lynn, Mass., 45-inch Star Samuel Hollingsworth, Rushville, Ind., 53-inch Columbia; Robt. Neilson, Boston, 52-inch Victor; S. G. Whittaker, Chicago, 52-inch Champion; John Brooks, Blossburg, Pa., 54-inch Star; Chas. Frazier, Smithville, N. J., 54-inch Star; Chas. Ashinger, Omaha, 52-inch Champion; Wm. A. Rhodes, Boston, 59-inch Victor; L. D. Munger, Detroit, Quadrant tricycle.

As they mounted their wheels the sun broke through the clouds, and a slight cheer went up. Half a dozen photographers pointed their cameras at the racers. "Are you ready?" The reporters held their pencils in suspense, and all stood silent. Bang went Starter Brewster's pistol, and at 9.16 3-4 A M the men dashed away up a slight grade, with Crocker in the lead After them went a Post Dispatch reporter, bound to gain a scoop of some sort, and the crowd moved back to town, the wheelmen turning back for an instant as they passed over the crest of Gilham Hill, and drinking in the fresh beauty of the Pike County fields, which stretched away to the West. Jack Prince was the only man who trained for the race but did not enter. He averred that he could not coast, and was afraid to speed down the grades. I heard many regrets that poor Cola Stone was not there to enter the race. Road racing over these hills was his element.

In town a St Louis pool seller had opened a list, and appeared to be doing a rushing business. Odds of three to one were offered on Rhodes, but when he was seen following his men coolly as they crossed the tape the first time, the odds soon went the other way. It was a pretty sight that squad of athletes pedalling rapidly down the stretch near the finish, and as they passed they were cheered. Frazier dropped out of the race in the first lap, having injured his knee while training. The men passed through town the first time at 10.25.

The second lap of 20 3-4 miles was ridden in 1.18 1-2, Rhodes leading at a whistling gait, with Neilson close behind, looking at Rhodes' little wheel in a dazed manner. Rhodes was evidently getting down to work, and he certainly seemed to be master of the situation. Crocker was close behind the leaders, and Hollingsworth came along three-quarters of a minute later. Sammy, by the way, is not much of a believer in liquid nourishment, and took his piece of steak on each round with great gusto. Neilson's manner of riding was a great surprise, as it was not expected that a man with so little experience on the road could possibly hold out. The camera fiends "shot" the racers as they flew by. Soon Whittaker came down the stretch with a disabled wheel. He changed mounts and went on, and right here, in justice to Whittaker, it is but proper to say that he was handicapped throughout the race by having to lug around nearly twice the weight of steel that his competitors did. McCurdy dragged along wearily soon after, his sick stomach having settled his chances. Ashinger was twenty-five minutes behind the leaders, Brooks, thirty minutes. The two latter here dropped out of the race.

At one o'clock, Rhodes, Neilson and Crocker rode through town in a bunch. Trainer Daniels handed his men liquid nourishment, and they soon disappeared around a corner. Hollingsworth passed at 1.20, fresh, Whittaker ten seconds behind. The men were now riding inside of the record, but strange to say, a report went about town, particularly among those interested in the losing wheels, that Clarksville had seen its road racing days, and that this would be the last Quite a smile was created by the odds offered on Munger, the tricyclist — 500 to 1. McCurdy came round for the third time and dismounted

Harry Corey, mounted on a Humber safety, geared to fifty-five inches, made two attempts at Crank Hill, succeeding in gaining the top on the second trial. Everything is business with Corey. He remarked offhand that he would do the hill, and when he had done so he coasted quietly to the bottom, and complacently asked for a "puff." Keep your temper, Harry D., you have got the puff, and you earned it. "You don't tell me," said A. H. Overman, when he was told of the feat. "Come, Harry, tell me truly —— ah! Yes, I'll believe you now. You did it." Overman's eye rested at the moment upon the pedals, which proved to be of his own make.

I have entirely forgotten to say that after the second lap of the race the sun came out, the clouds cleared away, and all looked well for a grand, record-breaking finish.

At 2.26 Rhodes and Neilson passed by, and entered the last lap, Crocker four minutes behind. The men all looked very fagged, Neilson had caught a flying stone from Rhodes' wheel on the second lap which blacked his eye. Rhodes had dropped a dipper into his spokes and fallen, and Crocker overturned while holding a bottle over his mouth and riding.

At 2.49 Munger, on his trike, ambled into town, and stopped for a meal. He had broken the fifty-mile tricycle record by a fraction of a second, in 4.53. Whittaker soon spurted by, with Hollingsworth right at his little wheel.

I will not suffer myself to enlarge upon the exciting finish of the great race. A great multitude awaited it, and it was with bleeding hearts that we saw that desperate spurter, Neilson, take away from Rhodes what seemed to be his race. Hardly a cheer greeted the winner as he crossed the tape at 4.05 P. M., and it is said that poor Rhodes, who had set his heart and not his purse upon the race, went to his room and wept, so great was his disappointment. Below, is given a table showing the various times: —

	50 Miles.	Position.	100 Miles.	Position
Rhodes,	3.14.12	2	6.46.51	2
Whittaker,	3.25.48	5	7.12.45	5
Crocker,	3.14.12	3	6.51.27	3
Frazier,	——	—	——	—
Brooks,	——	—	——	—
Neilson,	3.14.00	1	6.46.27	1
McCurdy,	3.33.12	6	——	—
Hollingsworth,	3.26.24	4	7.12.39	4
Ashinger,	——	—	——	—
Munger,	4.36.48	7	10.04.00	6

The evening was a very exciting one. A display of fireworks was given, and there were all sorts of amusements. The pool seller narrowly escaped arrest by betaking himself to the steamer. There was no banquet on the steamer, which started on its return to St. Louis at nine o'clock, amid great cheering from those on the shore. The Missouri Club's car, which had remained on a side track during the day, returned to the city early next morning.

On Tuesday morning most of the visitors left for their homes, though a great many slumbered through the day and departed in the evening, after a needed rest. And so I must bring my feeble description of the glories of the Eighth Annual to an end.

PHOENIX.

INJURED BY A BICYCLE.

MRS. ROBERT GREEN, residing on the Orange road, Montclair, started to take a walk to the village on Monday evening, and, just as she reached the sidewalk a bicycle came dashing along on the sidewalk, and before the rider, who, it is thought, came from Orange, could stop, the wheel struck Mrs. Green and knocked her to the ground, and injured her about the body in a horrible manner. The rider did not wait to see what damage he had done, but jumped on his bicycle again and rode off, leaving the injured woman on the sidewalk. Her husband heard her moaning and, on reaching her side, was told of what had happened. He hitched his horse to his buggy and started after the bicycle rider, but was unable to get any trace of him. Mrs. Green is still confined to the house from her injuries, and her husband has offered a reward for information concerning the identity of the careless wheelman. The Montclair Township Committee last evening ordered the clerk to issue a notice prohibiting the riding of bicycles and tricycles upon any of the walks in the town, and that the police be instructed to enforce the rules, and if any persons be found disobeying them, to have the law breakers arrested and fined for disorderly conduct, — Newark News.

THE QUEBEC TOUR.

THOSE of our readers who are contemplating a vacation on the wheel this summer, would do well to consider the attractions offered by Elwell's Quebec tour, Starting on the wheel at the head of the St. John River, the party will ride over a fine military road for a distance of 80 miles to Rivière Du Loup and Cacouna, the famous Canadian watering places on the lower St. Lawrence. After a pleasant stay here they will take one of the magnificent steamers of the St. Lawrence S. S. Line, and for two days enjoy the finest sail in America, up the Saguenay and St. Lawrence rivers to Quebec. Few cities in this country possess so many peculiar and distinctive characteristics as Quebec; its citadel, the Plains of Abraham, and the Falls of Montmorency will be visited. From Quebec the party take a straight away ride through a wildly picturesque and interesting country to the head of railroad navigation in Maine. The first seventy miles is through the land of the French Canadians, and the last forty miles along the banks of the beautiful Kennebec river, over one of the best roads in the State. It is a tour unique in its remoteness from the ordinary routes of wheelmen, and abounds in everything that goes to make a delightful vacation. The party is limited to thirty; about twenty well-known wheelmen from various parts of the country are already booked; there is room for ten more, and any rider of the bicycle who wishes to take a two-weeks vacation, would do well to write to Mr. F. A. Elwell, Portland, Me, for descriptive circular of the tour.

MR. DUCKER LEAVES SPRINGFIELD.

HENRY E. DUCKER, president of the Springfield Bicycle Club, editor of the Gazette, and superintendent of the Springfield Printing Company, will leave this city July 1, much to the regret of thousands of friends. It seems like writing an obituary. Everybody who knows Mr. Ducker admires him, not only for his honesty, integrity, and moral courage, but also for his undaunted pluck in everything he undertakes. It has been owing to his influence that Springfield has been made the bicycling centre of the world; to him belongs the credit of putting into circulation millions of money for every kind of wheel made. A word from him, an article in his paper would turn the fortunes of a manufacturer. He never, however, let pleasure interfere with his business, and his whole energy was devoted to the concern by which he was employed. He worked for their interests, not his own, and turned thousands of dollars into the treasury for book, job work, and other printing for the bicycle tournaments in this city.

Mr. Ducker's principal branch of the business is a bookbinder. He was imported to this city from New York, April 20, 1863, when but fifteen years of age, and entered the employ of Samuel Bowles in the old Republican building, where D. H. Brigham's store now stands, two days after, May 1, 1863. He worked himself up at such a rate that four years from the day he entered, he was made foreman of the bindery and has continued at it ever since. It is safe to say there is no man in the country who can figure as closely on a job as Mr. Ducker. His father was a bookbinder before him and it was born in him. He has several good offers awaiting him, and after a week's hesitation will accept the best. He leaves this city about July 1, and in the meantime will dispose of his residence on Worthington Street.

Mr. Ducker's chair will be filled by L. H. Orr, who has been in the printing business opposite J. D. Gill's for the past four years. Mr. Orr has purchased a controlling interest in the concern and steps into the harness to look after his own interest as well as that of all the stockholders. Hence Mr. Ducker will have to go.

Mr. Ducker will continue to edit the Gazette and have it printed in this city He is a very popular man with the help, every one of whom will regret his departure very much. — News.

BANQUET TO PRESIDENT KIRKPATRICK.

CAPTAIN THOMAS JEFFERSON KIRKPATRICK, our own "Kirk," was banquetted in royal style at the Arcade hotel last (Tuesday) evening, in honor of his recent elevation to the Chief Executiveship of the National League of American Wheelmen. The affair throughout was characterized by hearty good fellowship and in its social features left nothing to be desired. It was a fitting and complete recognition both on the part of the citizens and the wheelmen, of a gentleman, whom the great league of cyclers have recently intrusted with their highest gift. It was more — it was a hearty outburst of esteem, which showed that genial "Kirk" was honored here at home where his daily life is passed, as well as by those who know him only through his zeal, enthusiasm, and executive ability as a wheelman amongst wheelmen.

It was designed at the outset to have only a modest little club affair; but the scheme kept growing in dimensions, until, at the time of its realization, it was nothing short of a banquet, at whose generous board our best commercial, professional, and social elements were represented, together with almost the entire membership of the bicycle club. The latter were attired, for the most part, in their club suits, and looked very natty and striking.

The company occupied itself until about 9.30 in the parlor, and then the dining hall was thrown open, and the guests filed in to partake of the spread that Mine Host Rockfield had prepared. The table was very handsomely laid. In the centre was a life-size bicycle, composed of pine, cedar, calla-lillies, and smilax. Captain T. J. Kirkpatrick occupied the post of honor at the head of the table, flanked by the speakers of the evening. Hon. Charles W. Constantine, as toast-master, occupied a seat about the centre.

At each cover was a handsome buttonhole bouquet, and each guest was furnished a neat badge of ribbon with a bronze fastening. It required almost an hour and a half for the merry crowd to fully test the merits of the banquet. Then cigars were passed around, and amidst a cloud of fragrant smoke from fifty admirable weeds, the toasts and responses began. Mr. Constantine was in his happiest mood, and his prefatory remarks as he introduced each speaker were invariably bright, pointed, and full of the gentleman's own personality. On his own account, he paid a handsome tribute to President Kirkpatrick, and rejoiced in the honor extended the Champion City in the selection of one of its citizens for the exalted place in which Captain Kirkpatrick has just been placed.

"The Lord Mayor," as the toastmaster characterized him, Oliver S. Kelly, answered to the first toast of the evening — "The Champion City."

Captain T. J. Kirkpatrick next responded to the toast, "The Wheel," and made decidedly the most finished and elaborate address of the evening, as it was very appropriate he should. He said in effect: It is with great and sincere gratitude that I am here as your guest. When a man goes away from home and acquires a measure of honor and celebrity it gives him pleasure; but when he returns home and finds his friends rejoicing in the acquisition it is doubly touching. The position is not one of dollars and cents, but of honor, and as such I accepted it.

W. T. Stillwell responded to "Ohio the Home of Presidents;" Paul A. Staley spoke for the "Champion City Club;" C. M. Nichols responded for "The Press," and Louis Werrelbaum spoke for the "Tripod and Bicycle."

Impromptu remarks were made by Mr. Alfred Ely, of Cleveland, Mr. George Warder, Mr. E. A. Morgan, Mr. Toulmin, Mr. John A. McCarty, Dr. Bryant, Mr. Constantine, and others. Dr. Bryant paid a gallant tribute to the honored wife of President Kirkpatrick, which was applauded to the echo. The crowd dispersed after singing, "For He's a Jolly good Fellow." — Springfield Republican

AROUND THE WORLD ON A BICYCLE.

We have received from Thomas Stevens an autograph copy of Vol. I., "Around the World on a Bicycle," published by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. The volume reproduces the wonderfully interesting series of articles which Stevens contributed to the pages of Outing, and describes his adventures from the time he left San Francisco until his arrival at winter quarters in Teheran. The volume is dedicated to Col. A. A. Pope, and the introduction is written by Col. T. W. Higginson. There are five hundred and forty-seven reading pages and one hundred and ten illustrations. The frontispiece is a fine portrait in colors of the author awheel in the costume he wore on the roads of India. It is handsomely bound, and the outside cover has a design showing Cupid crowning Mercury for having circled the world on a bicycle. This book is one of the most interesting contributions that has been made to cycling literature, and it should find a place in the library of every wheelman. Mr. Stevens is very anxious to sell autograph copies of his work and he has made the following proposition: —

Ten thousand autograph copies are what I ought to sell among five times that number of wheelmen. As soon as that number is reached, I will send $500 in gold to the person who has sent in the greatest number of orders; and another $500 to some one individual purchaser, to be determined by lot in the presence of a committee of three gentlemen, well and favorably known to the fraternity of the wheel. Ordering your book through some friend engaged in working for the first $500 gives you the same chance for the second $500 as if you sent your individual order to me, but your name and address must be sent with the order, to be placed on file.

If at the end of two years the number sold should be short of ten thousand copies, the premiums will be awarded in proportion; i. e. two premiums of $250 each for five thousand copies, etc.

Mr. A. C. Stewart, of St. Louis, has in his possession a small gold League pin which was lost on the steamer Chas. P. Chouteau during the excursion. He is anxious to find the owner. Address him, Equitable Building, St. Louis.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

It is whispered that the ladies' tour of 1887 will take a somewhat different route from that which has been run over the past two years, and both Providence and Worcester are talked of as points of destination.

Variety is the spice of life, they say, and this old saw may be used to turn the minds of the ladies away from the seacoast and the delightful scenery along the North Shore. Be that as it may, I hope to go with the ladies, but if we go inland I shall look for the harder work which is always incident to poorer roads and scenery of a quieter description.

It is now quite time for the programme to be laid out, and for the invitations to be promulgated. We want a large party this year, and Philadelphia, Orange, New York, and other cities ought to send us representatives.

Many darts have lately been thrown in my direction by those who charge me with being other than I pretend, and others magnify a discussion on dress between myself and a friend into a "lively war." I am not to be diverted from the course I am pursuing by these attacks. I have many true and faithful freinds who will indorse me for what I am, and controversy is to me very distasteful.

Can it be that the wheel journals have no knowledge of the etiquette of journalism? Else why do they fail to respect that sanctity of a nom de plume which is cherished in the world of literature which they seek to enter.

A friend of mine has sent me a clipping from a New York paper which has something to say regarding dress on the tricycle. As it comes very near to what I have said myself, and as my friend Violet says I was altogether wrong in my advice, I, perhaps, may be excused from reproducing.

"The tricycle will be ridden this summer much more extensively by women than has been the case in any year before. For one thing, the machine is an expensive foible, and it has taken some time to make its way. It is heavier than the bicycle, too, and a little unfair to the weaker sex in handicapping it at the start in point of speed. In spite of these disadvantages, however,—and they are not nearly so noticeable as in the lumbering things that went by the same name a half dozen years ago, — the tricycle, and especially the improved tandem, that allows husband and wife, or lover and lass to ride together, — is gaining ground rapidly, and Mr. and Mrs. Pennell will find many imitators in their vacation trip on the wheel. Tricycling is an exercise that calls for special dress. Nobody who has been through the dusty and oily experiences of wheel life will think of disputing that fact. The gown worn by the experienced is always of a medium weight woollen material, and, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, is quiet and unconspicuous in color. English women choose, almost without exception, a flannel or merino combination of ordinary walking length, with overdress made as simple as possible, loose trousers to match the dress in color, black woollen stockings, Norfolk jacket, straw hat, a club ribbon, and a free and substantial walking boot. American women, as a rule, have not yet adopted the trousers, but wear a skirt of slightly different cut. The dress used by women riders in Central Park this spring shows a skirt without back drapery, but ornamented as the wearer's fancy chooses in front. For length it is like the usual promenade dress, but has a slope of about three inches behind to prevent lifting by the saddle at the back. For headgear one should choose a light weight cap of the same color as the dress, or on a long trip or a parade, a ventilated helmet. Kid gloves are out of order. Silk and linen or lisle thread are the only things allowed on the wheel. For underwear the same rules that govern the boating dress hold; flannel next the skin, no corset nor crinoline, and as few skirts as may be."

I have faith to believe that American women will not wear trousers, nor will they adopt the tobaggan suits which Violet speaks of.

The gentlemen have returned from the Meet at St. Louis, and from what I can learn from them I judge that there is very little riding among the ladies of that city. There may be more in future, for I am told that very many ladies took their first ride awheel on the Victoria around the track on the steamer. If the visit of wheelmen to St. Louis results in the appearance of Western ladies in wheeling circles then it has not been altogether in vain.

I have a letter from a friend on the Pacific slope who tells me she has been able to ride her wheel throughout the past year nearly every day. She attends school five miles distant from her home, and has ridden to and from the school on two hundred and eighty days. Besides this, she has ridden in the evening, and she thinks she must have a record approaching thirty-five hundred miles. I think we can all congratulate her upon her remarkable advantage. Nature has a kindly smile in localities such as that in which our young friend lives, and yet, under her frown, rise up the men and women who have achieved greatness. Nevertheless, I would like to be able to ride the year round.

Daisie.

THE OWL.

Probably no endorsement of the wheelmen's rights has had more weight with Governor Hill than that written by Henry George. Backed as he is by the enormous laboring vote of this State, which holds in its hands the balance of political power, the Governor is too politic not to heed carefully any endorsement of his. Wheelmen should remember this in Mr. George's favor.

The combination of the New York and Ixion Clubs is now virtually an established fact. Ground will be broken for the new clubhouse within the next month, and winter will find the club located in the new quarters.

The wise injunction, "train up a child in the way he should go," has as much bearing upon the pleasures of life as upon its sterner duties, and, in truth, the real character of the man is more frequently revealed by his voluntary pursuits than by those which accident, or circumstances beyond his control, lead him to adopt as his regular avocation. The impressions of youth exert an influence upon all the later life, and in most instances are strong enough to control it, thus justifying the sequel of the injunction, that he will not depart from the way he is trained. The highest character is one so formed that all its inclinations turn to that which is refined, elevating, and intelligent, — one which recognizes and obeys the unwritten laws of nature as well as the written laws of the land, and orders its life by the combined decrees of divine and human wisdom. It is just because amateur cycling is elevating that it takes high rank with the best men of the day. Recognized as requiring the instincts and accomplishments of the gentleman, it has risen above the narrow prejudices of the past, and will overcome the last lingering remnants cherished by those who make a horse their god. Its principles make the best of early training for youth, because they extend far beyond the mere mechanical skill of winning a race or taking a tour into the limitless field of Nature with all its refining influence upon the heart and its educating power over the mind, and may thus well be set down as a safe pursuit for the youth of our land, as no better impressions can be stamped upon the soft wax of the youthful mind than those which early acquaintanceship with true wheelmanship gives. If a boy is taught that it is a creditable thing to excel in any of the different branches of field sports will he not exert himself to do this, and if in connection with such teaching he is led to see that superiority can only be purchased at the price of care of health, and observance of the physical and moral laws which promote this, will not his cycling interests be the strongest incentive he can have to such observance? The gain does not stop with physical benefit, for to be a thorough wheelman involves a knowledge of Nature herself, and no study can be better suited to bring out all that is good and manly in the student. Not only does he gain an insight into that which is as beautiful as it is mysterious, but also by being brought face to face with the economy of nature, and seeing how she preserves and utilizes all her possessions, he is led to appreciate them at their true value, and recognize the brutality and unmanliness of wasting them When the twig is once bent it is far more difficult to straighten it than to keep it straight in the first instance. The boy will prove difficult soil upon which to raise a good crop of manly virtues, and he who has been allowed to enter cycling with lax or mistaken ideas of what belongs to the sport can seldom become better than a gambling professional. The man who wishes his boy to get the most benefit from his boyhood in the way of preparation for later life, will, in addition to preparation for the duties of life, give him an insight into its purest and most remunerative pleasures by getting him a wheel, and teaching him it is the key to health and to knowledge, which cannot be gained so well in any other way, and then, from time to time, showing such interest in the youthful rider's progress as a racing man or tourist awheel as will spur him on to make the most of his opportunities. By such a course the boy's attention is turned to things which exert a good influence upon body and mind, and through these he is strengthened to resist evil, thus giving a twofold chance for that development which produces true physical, moral, and mental manhood. The Owl.

JERSEY.

Never was the neglect of the New York daily press to cycling news more apparent than in their supreme contempt of the great road race, although it was of interest to thousands of wheelmen, and was witnessed by four or five thousand people. The Tribune devoted a few lines to it, but in those few lines gave an exhibition of ignorance of the subject treated that will make the quotations of journalistic stupidities that the "Owl" gives us occasionally seem intelligent by comparison. We were informed that the Kings County Wheelmen entered seventy-seven men, the Ilderans, seventy-four, and the Elizabeths, seventy-three. I must own that when I see from a half to a whole page devoted to baseball each day it angers me to see but a beggarly paragraph now and then relating to our own sport, which, next to baseball, has more devotees than any outdoor exercise in this country. In my condemnation of the press in the road race matter let me credit the World with an honorable exception. What little it had, barring a mistake of names, which may have been the fault of the typo or the proofreader, was correct and to the point. In our boycotted condition small favors like this are thankfully received.

Great interest is being taken by the Passaic County Wheelmen in the three thousand miles badge which has been offered by the club. Extensive riding has been the outcome. Although April was a wet and stormy month, the following creditable records were made: — W. Abbott, Jr., 311; W. B. Bunker, 303; D. W. Romaine, 301; and N. G. Palmer, 265.

The prize offered by the Somerset Wheelmen for the first thousand miles covered this season has proved a powerful incentive to road riding, as the first eight records handed in for May will show: P. V. Bergen, 438; J. S. Frelinghuysen, 396; W. H. K. Davey, 364; N. Y. Denyan, 299; John Van Eps, 315; Wm. Brokaw, 265; W. H. Paulison, 137; L. C. Haynes, 205 — a total of 2,410, or an average of 301 miles per man.

The Rutherford Wheelmen are now houseless, awaiting the completion of a new building, the second floor of which they will occupy.

"Jodo" says that the Passaic wheelmen are hanging on the ragged edge of indecision about joining the Road Racing Association, for fear of being the tail enders. I say to them, better to have run and lost, than never to have run at all. Let them come in by all means. And why should they be the last in? Practice will work wonders. And what if they were last? They would amount to much more in the eyes of their fellow wheelmen, carrying the target in such a grand procession, than do some of our "silent partners" among the big guns, who stand aloof lest the brilliancy of mighty planets may be eclipsed by little stars. Application for admission must be made three months previous to the regular semi-annual meeting. Address M. L. Bridgman, Secretary, P. O. Box 1392, New York City. Plainfield, Essex, and Atalanta, why do you not join the happy family, also? Have I omitted anybody? Pardon me, then. Come one, come all.

By the way, I hope my Passaic friend will not forget to send me a clipping or something about the lantern parade of the P. C. W., which is set down for the 13th instant.

What is this I see in Jodo's clippings? Romaine and Blake made the run to Morristown and back in seven hours and a half, and the distance is sixty-five miles. And still P. W. C. hesitates to come in!

Hello! Here is something more in the Jodo clippings. Fred Shuit is to make a trip awheel through Orange County, N. Y., and Lieut. Rose is to tour from Buffalo along Lake Erie. With this I will say au revoir to Jodo and his clippings. With such kind assistance every day, the life of the cycling scribe would be a happy and easy one.

The Elizabeth wheelmen will have their century run in about two weeks. One of the lady members will probably attempt to go the distance with her husband on a tandem.

Final arrangements for the race meeting at the Roseville track in connection with the Meet of the New Jersey Division L. A. W., at Orange on July 4, have not been completed. Should there be any hitch, it is probable that the Orange Wanderers will step in and give a tournament.

Whether the stock of the New Jersey Cycling and Athletic Association will prove a bonanza in paying dividends is an open question. Every racer should hold a share, however, for each stockholder is entitled to the use of the track for training. As there seems to be little chance of their being any opposition from Springfield and Lynn, now is the golden opportunity for Roseville to make a strike and give such a tournament as will obliterate even the memories of the others. If it is done in the right way and if no attempt is made to give the earth for prizes it should pay.

The Elizabeth wheelmen are now comfortably settled in their cosy new quarters, and are reaping the harvest of prospective increase thereby. The locker room has been completed and now all is ready for the boys to house their wheels in the shanty.

J. W. Smith and L. H. Johnson explored the roads between Long Branch and Ocean Beach yesterday, and a club run between these points is one of the events to which the Orange Wanderers are looking forward this latter part of the month.

Having accepted Saich's suggestions and ceased experimenting, they are as busy as bees with the King wheel over at Newark. I saw a big wheel set up on Saturday, and was much impressed with its lightness and the arrangement of the spokes. When the first machine will make its appearance I will not attempt to say, or on my sayings in reference to this wheel I will lose my reputation as a prophet.

If we have "road hogs" among the horsemen, we have also "sidewalk hogs" among the wheelmen. One of these good-for-nothings, the other day, ran into a lady at Montclair, knocking her down and seriously injuring her, and then, coward that he was, scooted away without waiting to see what damage he had done, or offering to assist the fallen lady. A reward is offered for his identification, and I do hope he will be detected and severely dealt with. Such cowardly hogs are a disgrace and injury to our fraternity, and any steps toward their punishment should have the hearty assistance of wheelmen. My wail is based on an account published in the New Jersey edition of the New York World. If I am misinformed, if I do any one an injustice, pray let me know it, for I will gladly defend any brother wheelman who has been maligned or persecuted.

"Jodo" is doing good work up at Passaic in stirring up an interest in the wheel through the columns of the local press. As I have before remarked, and I know from experience, there is no better way than this of doing effective missionary work. And the best of it is that my good friend (I have never met him, but he is my good friend just the same) sends me the clippings. "A wink is as good as a nod to a blind horse," and, as I remarked above, "small favors thankfully received."

Charley Stenken will do considerable track racing this season under the training of Kluge.

Why does not the executive committee of the New Jersey Division do something about having a State camp? Good ground could be obtained somewhere in the Orange district, which is the centre of a great wheeling population. The location would be most convenient, as those who could not give up a whole week to it could easily join the campers after business hours. The New Yorkers and Brooklynites could be invited to join in the enterprise, and a right jolly time could be had. As to tents, a contract could easily be made with some firm or the military authorities to furnish them. September would be a good month for it, and there is ample time between now and then to make all arrangements.

If Lady Luna will only show her fair face to-night, the Elizabeth Wheelmen can count on a large attendance on their moonlight run through the Oranges.

"Little Caldwell," of the E. W., has again distinguished himself. On Friday, on the boulevard between Newark and Elizabeth, in a trial for the medal offered for the member who should beat three minutes over the "boulevard mile," he succeeded in scoring 2.56 on a 51-inch Columbia light roadster.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

In the report of the grand jury of Philadelphia for the May term is the following clause handed in to the Quarter Sessions Court, June 3: —

"The former use of cobblestones in paving so many of our streets has made for Philadelphia the reputation of being one of the worst paved of large cities. We recommend to city councils the advisability, utility, and economy of paving Broad Street with an improved concrete or asphaltum pavement, and using the Belgian blocks now on Broad Street to repave the side main streets leading into Broad Street that are not used by the passenger railway companies."

This is one step forward, and as the Press well says: —

"The improvement of the roads around this city is slow but it is sure. In a short time there will be open to cyclists a new highway which will dispute with Lancaster Pike for the patronage of the wheelmen. The old Lancaster Road, or Montgomery Avenue, as it is now called, is to be macadamized from Bryn Mawr to the City Line Road. The contract has been awarded and work is to be commenced at once at the terminus of the present macadam and continued until City Avenue is reached. In addition to this improvement, the road running from Elm Station to Montgomery Avenue, ending at the General Wayne Hotel near the Belmont Driving Park, is also to be macadamized. The stone for the same is now being hauled ready for the workmen. One mile from Elm Station this road taps the Lancaster Pike, and the macadamizing of the remaining portion will be a question of a very short time."

With these improvements, we shall soon have as fine a suburban riding district as any city in the country save only Boston, while the new concrete paving on Broad Street, recommended by the grand jury, if it is ever placed, will open a magnificent highway for wheelmen directly through the city.

The West Philadelphia Athletic Association held its first spring meeting Saturday, June 4, at their grounds, Elm and Belmont Avenues. The bicycle races were one mile novice, one-mile city of Philadelphia, half-mile for boys under sixteen years, and one-mile open.

The novice race brought to the line G. J. Bowman, W. Morgan, H. Lynnes Veldt, J. Smith, and P. E. Bechtold. Morgan won in 3.25, with Lynnes Veldt second in 3.31.

The city race had three starters: L. Kolb, T. A. Schaeffer, and J. Bailey. Kolb won easily with Bailey second. Time, 3.10 4-5. Bailey's time, 3.14 2-5. Richwine did not enter.

The boys' race was between E. C. Crawford and H. J. Flennard. Crawford was overmatched by his opponent, a much larger boy, and though he rode a game race, could not success in heading his competitor, who won in 1.46.

The one-mile open was the best race of the day. The entries were Bailey, C. S. Stevens, Millville, N. J., Kolb, and Schaeffer. Bailey led for three laps when Kolb came, followed by Stevens, and on the last lap Schaeffer forged ahead of Bailey, and he, Stevens, and Kolb all crossed the tape close together, with Kolb in the lead, and Stevens second. The time was 3.18 for first and 3.19 3-5 for second man. PHACTOTUM.

ST. LOUIS.

I AM being soundly berated on every hand because the last half of the meet account does not appear in the BULLETIN, which came to hand to-day. No one can possibly regret this more than I do, but, unfortunately, in this case, my time is not all my own, and the very best I could do was to have the "copy" in Boston on the Thursday morning preceding the date of issue.

MEET talk has not yet entirely subsided. St. Louis wheelmen are indeed proud of the unlimited flattery which has been heaped upon them, and Missouri club men especially, are shaking hands with themselves over the kind words they see in every cycling sheet. The boys are all looking ruddy and plump, now that they have rested up well.

A GLANCE at the reading room table in the club house shows quite a number of marked newspapers from all over the country, containing laudatory accounts of the big event which were written by gratified delegates after they had returned home.

ROAD races seem to have developed into a business, judging by the manner in which a certain journal runs down the racecourses used by its rival to boom its circulation. St. Louis has never contended that the Clarksville course was a perfect race track, in fact, the slight element of danger offered by those grand old hills has lent a fascination to the races held on the Belt, which a level, uninteresting track could not do. It is a fact, moreover, that not a single header was taken during the last great race that could be ascribed to the road's surface.

OUR new L. A. W. treasurer of the League, Captain W. M. Brewster, has played the part of entertainer more thoroughly and longer than all the rest, and had the pleasure of sending away the last visitor, Kennedy-Child, on Wednesday. In the capacity of captain of the Missouri Bicycle Club, he is waking up most decidedly, judging by the way he is hustling the boys out of their lethargy and out upon the road. To-day's run is fourteen miles northwest, over a slightly travelled pike to Florissant, a little old French settlement, stowed away in Florissant valley. The town is almost as old as St. Louis itself, and in the gray dawn of any Sunday morning the quiet inhabitants may be seen filing slowly over the dewy hills to the little church, in which the Catholic rites are performed now, as they were half a century ago.

A NUMBER of ex-Ramblers and unattached met at the Lindell Hotel Tuesday evening, in response to over a hundred postals sent out by energetic George Tivy, for the purpose of forming a new club. No action was taken beyond the election of certain committees, on constitution, etc., and I understand they will organize some evening this week. The main feature of the new club is to be that it will pay attention to cycling, pure and simple, by making it a road-riding club, and nothing else. The ex-Ramblers have been distinguishing themselves continually on the road since their disorganization, so that in this respect the club is bound to be a success. With the good men composing it, too, there is no telling what may develop, as there is certainly room and material in St. Louis for two hustling clubs.

SPEAKING of the ex-Ramblers, Bob Lee and Lindell Gordon have been doing themselves proud recently. The other day they mounted Son-of-a-Gun hill, at Manchester, on a Humber tandem trike, and on Thursday they mounted their trikes and sauntered down the Gravois road to find the end. At Marsh's Mill, forty miles away, and over some very rough country, they turned east toward Hillsboro. They made the ten miles in a drizzling rain, and came back to town on the De Soto pike, having covered about seventy miles of the toughest road-bed to be found hereabouts.

THE squabble between the P. D. cycling editor and the American Wheelman force culminated in a little row last Sunday, in a secluded nook of Forest Park. It is to be regretted that the good sport of cycling should be the primary cause of personal wrangles.

IF it is agreeable to ye editor, I would like to follow in the wake of "Jer. C.," and present Missouri news more fully than at present, and would be pleased to receive any items of news at 1,901 Oregon Avenue, St. Louis, at any time. PHOENIX.

ARKANSAW.

ARKANSAW is on a cycling boom of no small proportions. Never before has such interest been manifested as at present. Arkansaw Travellers, Little Rock, Pine Bluff Wheelmen, and a club at Texarkana are the clubs. The oldest and most influential are the "Travellers," but the Pine Bluff Wheelmen have their share of vim and enthusiasm; organized March 18, its membership is yet small. The officers are G. E. Greenfield president; Ben McCannon, vice-president; Frank Fergus, Sec'y Treas.; Lawrence O. Knox, captain. An athletic association has been organized with ample capital to make a success of the venture, and a boat house and gymnasium will be erected as soon as possible. Little Rock Athletic Association has long been an established fact. Their quarters are situated upon the river front, and is a very comfortable frame building. Upon the ground floor is the boat house, bath and toilet rooms, with the usual supply of lockers; while upon the second floor are the gymnasium, committee rooms, etc. The boating department is amply supplied with pleasure boats, canoes, double and single racing sculls. Two crews aae training for the championship race, which takes place on July 4.

About our roads. Although not always the best, yet they are ridable nearly the year round. In the hilly portions they are generally good, as is also the case in the more level counties. Along the larger water courses the hard sandy roads, and the level levee tops are a cyclist's delight, especially the latter, as the elevation (six to ten feet) gives a good view, in passing, of the surrounding country.

Nearly all the principal machines, both foreign and domestic are found in our midst, Victor, Rudge, New Rapid, Apollo, Challenge, Champion, Star, Columbia, and Premier (English). The Victor is the general favorite, but the Star, on account of its lever power and non-header qualities, is finding favor among us of the "crank" disposition. The new safety type machines are creating quite a sensation, and several of our local physicians are thinking of adopting them to facilitate their practice, since they are as safe and much faster than horses.

Little Rock has a good cycling track, while the Citizens' Street Railway Company, of Pine Bluff, are preparing one of cinders, which they will kindly place at the disposal of wheelmen free of charge.

Few tours have been made. Little Rock to Hot Springs, seventy-two miles, and Little Rock to Pine Bluff, forty-eight miles, are the only ones the writer is aware of, although several are talked of for this summer.

A race meet was to be held at the latter city on April 19, but adverse circumstances prevented. One or more have been held at the capital.

Tell No. 28 that we dispose of the dog question in short order out here. The town doggie is either run down, or an end put to him with the nearest brick, while in the country tours a leaden messenger is found equally as effective. S. G. SMITH.

SELF-SUPPORTING STOCKING.

THE new self-supporting stocking which Holmes & Co., of 17 Kingston street, Boston, are putting out will be appreciated by all wheelmen who have had trouble with garters and with bands. The stocking is in the regular form, but attached thereto is a band of jersey cloth which only half encircles the leg, and goes up to the waist, where it expands and ties like drawers. The band above is made of cotton or wool, thin or heavy. We have been wearing a pair of these, and have found them very easy and comfortable; in fact, we have never experienced true comfort in knee breeches before. An advertisement in another column presents a cut of the stocking, showing its form, and also gives the price, which is reasonable.

A ROAD HOG.

ON May 15, a party of five wheelmen were quietly riding up a gentle incline between Akron and Hudson (twelve miles distant), in single file, and on the right hand side of the road, when they met a gentleman (?) driving a high-spirited horse, hitched to a handsome two-seated carriage. The horse shied slightly from the first two riders, who were several rods in advance of the third rider. This apparently angered the driver, as he deliberately attempted to drive over the third wheelman, who barely escaped the horses' hoofs by riding into the gutter, and the horse shying violently from the bicycle. Had the gentlemanly (appearing) driver kept his own side of the road, instead of maliciously endeavoring to drive over a cyclist, his horse would have passed on without danger. Failing in his attempt to injure the third wheelman, he endeavored to drive over the last two, who were some distance in the rear of the third. His horse then thoroughly frightened, shied violently across the road, cramping the wheels so sharply as to break one of them. Though none of the wheelmen were dismounted or injured, it was no fault of the "hog's" that at least one of them was not seriously maimed. It is to be hoped that Mr. "Road Hog" will benefit by his experience, and have more respect for the rights of wheelmen hereafter.

NICKEL.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — In your issue of June 3, I read an item quoted from the Philadelphia Times, in which riders of full nickelled bicycles are rather held up to ridicule, the writer indirectly claiming that riders of full nickelled machines are almost entirely confined to men who are just beginning to ride, and like young soldiers fond of display. I think possibly the writer is correct in a very few cases, but I know that his sarcasm is not appropriately directed to the riders of full-nickelled machines as a whole, for it is well known in cycling circles that there are many old riders who always have ridden full-nickelled machines and are to-day riding them, it being claimed by them that full nickel is the most durable finish for a machine, and that the care required to take care of it is very much less than is popularly supposed. I could cite several instances, but it is unnecessary, as such instances are known to every wheelman; but I would mention the fact that Thomas Stevens's bicycle, which carried him from Liverpool to the Pacific Ocean, was a full nickelled Expert, and the last time I saw it exhibited in a Washington Street window, one could plainly see that even after what it had gone through, the most remarkable test a bicycle was ever subjected to, the nickel had by no means entirely disappeared.

A WHEELMAN OF SEVERAL SEASONS.

CHICAGO TO BUFFALO.

EDITOR BULLETIN: Mr. Gates' article in your issue of May 27, affords me an opportunity of calling your attention to Routes "Two" and "Five," Michigan Road Book. Route Two, Chicago to Detroit, has two exits from Chicago, one the same as Mr. G.'s, and one more southerly, via Crown Pt. and St. Johns. The latter I think preferable, as it substitutes clay and prairie soil for sand. Both join at Valparaiso, and continue, with some slight changes, over Mr. G.'s route to Adrian. From Adrian, instead of going south over fair clay roads to Toledo, go north, over fine gravel ones, via Saline and Ypsilanti, to Detroit. Wheelmen visiting the "City of the Straits" are always sure to receive a hearty welcome and good care if they will but apprise us of their coming.

If their time permit, let them linger with us a while, and we will take them out for a spin over our famous "Pointe Road," and feast them on one of "Aunty Weaver's" delicious frog suppers. A visit to Mt. Clemens and its springs would not be amiss; and a day or two spent among the lakes of Oakland County (distant but twenty-five miles), would be something long to be remembered.

From Detroit, Route Five leads to Buffalo via St. Thomas, London, Hamilton, and Niagara Falls, over good gravel roads almost the entire distance. That portion from Detroit to St. Thomas (one hundred and twenty-seven miles) being particularly fine.

Ask our only "Burley" if these routes and suggestions are not good ones, and ask Toledo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and Louisville tourists who have visited us, if they do not entertain pleasant recollections of their pilgrimages. J. H. JOHNSON,

CONTUSED AND LACERATED WOUNDS.

THESE two kinds of wounds are usually associated in the same injury. Its sides are rough, torn, and bruised.

Cause. — Blows from blunt instruments, as stones and clubs; kicks of horses; bites and gores of animals; machinery accidents; and crushing from cars and carts.

Symptoms. — The edges are rough and contused. There is not much gaping, but portions of the tissues may be partially or completely torn out. The pain is of a dull, aching kind. The bleeding is usually slight, even large arteries, when torn completely across, often do not bleed, and when they do, the blood escapes in a steady stream. In crushing accidents, the injury to the skin is often much less than that to the deeper structures, for in these injuries the bones are often split up to the next joint, the muscles separated from the tendons, and the vessels crushed and torn.

Variously sized portions of tissue around the edges of these wounds often die and are thrown off in a few days in pieces of skin to many weeks or months for bone. This, with the uneven character of the wound, prevents primary adhesion, and these wounds heal by granulation.

Pus may collect in the irregular cavities found in these wounds, and burrow between the tissues. Here it may decompose and cause both local and general trouble.

When only a portion of the wall of an artery has been injured, it may slough on the sixth to twelfth day, and hemorrhage occurs.

Lacerated woands of the scalp are apt to be followed by erysipelas.

Gangrene may occur in a limb that has been badly crushed.

Treatment. — This is like that of the incised wound. Never remove pieces of skin unless completely separated, for these will often live under the most unpromising circumstances. Every facility to the discharges to escape.

PUNCTURED WOUNDS.

These wounds resemble the contused or the incised. Sometimes the superficial portions heal by primary adhesion, while suppuration occurs in the deeper parts; the wound then reopens or the discharges burrow and may make a new exist.

Foreign bodies are often found in these wounds and must be removed.

Needles, when they have penetrated deeply, had best be let alone, as they seldom cause any trouble.

Fish-hooks should not be withdrawn but pushed forward until the barb emerges from the skin; this should be cut off, and the hook then withdrawn.

POISONED WOUNDS.

The stings of insects are usually unimportant, unless very numerous, or in the eye or back part of the throat, where there may be so much swelling as to cause suffocation.

Remove the sting, if it remains in the wound, and then touch with ammonia water, after which you may apply cold or rub with oil.

Snake-bite. if of the poisonous kind, may produce both local and general symptoms.

General symptoms are a rapid, feeble, and irregular pulse; shallow and labored breathing; partial or entire loss of speech; delirium, followed by coma; vomiting, diarrhœa; and the skin is pale, covered with perspiration, and often jaundiced. These symptoms, if they occur, come on in a few minutes, and may prove fatal in one half to twenty four hours.

Local, an intense, pricking pain is felt in the wound, which rapidly becomes swollen, livid, and bleeds; then the whole limb becomes swollen, discolored, and painful. If the patient lives, erysipelas is apt to occur, or abscesses form, or the whole limb become gangreneous.

Tie a ligature as tight as you can (in India several are tied a few inches apart), around the limb on the side towards the body; enlarge the wound with a knife, and encourage bleeding. After the bleeding has continued a few minutes, cauterize with a red-hot iron, nitric acid, or caustic potash.

For the general symptoms, give alcoholics, coffee, or ammonia, and if the patient becomes drowsy, keep him moving about.

Dog-bite. — A healthy dog causes only an ordinary contused wound, and requires no special treatment; but if there is any suspicion of rabies, or the dog is unknown, it should be thoroughly cauterized.

Brooklyn Bicycle Club.

HEALTH PRECAUTIONS.

IN our Dundee notes this week, will be found the record of the death of a local cyclist through taking a chill on the football field. This sad incident recalls many others (which have, however, in the majority of cases, happily resulted in less serious calamities), through want of caution when cycling. Cycling it must clearly be understood, is not more dangerous than any other athletic exercise in this respect, but in common with all other bodily exercise, requires the thoughtful care of maturer years, which, unfortunately, young men often lack. Any exercise which heats the body, and induces perspiration, leaves the pores of the skin open, and exceptionally liable to contract chills. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that the body when heated should be kept from all cold air and chilling influences. The best safeguard in this matter is undoubtedly the proper attention to dress. Many men especially beginners, who make up their minds to get a uniform by-and-bye, commence their cycling efforts — in the beginner, by the way, more perspiration is induced than is the case with the expert — clothed in the cotton garments of everyday life. The least perspiration wets these garments through, and they rapidly cool if brought under any cooling influence, or if removed from the warmth of the body, the contact then of the wet, cold garments being most productive of colds and chills. The moral induced from this, is the care with which woollen garments should be worn next the skin. Even in the warm days of summer woollen garments should be used. These may, of course, be thinner in summer than in winter, but the cyclist should eschew cotton as he would poison. Woollen clothes, whilst taking up all moisture they come in contact with, retain the heat, and do not get cold and clammy like cotton. This precaution taken — especially at this time of year, when one day may be as warm as summer and the next cold as an icicle, with biting east winds — another point to be observed is, that when the ride is finished, or a dismount made, the rider should be particularly careful not to stand in a draught, or in the entry of an inn or stable yard; and we should advise all to carry a light woollen or silken wrap in the pocket to put round the neck immediately exercise is ceased. This, with the coat buttoned round, keeps the heat of the body in, and prevents the cold air getting down to it. Neglect of these precautions very frequently produces colds, which are in themselves slight, but which may lead to more serious results. Rheumatism, too, finds a willing ally in similar neglect of caution, and all who dread this insidious foe should be particularly careful when cycling — even if it is but a half-mile spin — to see that due precaution is taken against overheating and sudden chilling of the blood. — Cyclist.

MASSACHUSETTS CLUB.

AT a meeting of the Massachusetts Club held on Tuesday evening, it was voted to take immediate steps towards disbandment. About fifty members were present.

Previous to the meeting a committee from the Boston Club, consisting of Messrs. Dean, Fourdrinier, Doane, and Weston, appeared before the executive committee, and on behalf of their club offered the free use of their house to the Massachusetts Club members during the summer months should they decide to disband. Mr. Dean, in making the offer, referred to the good feeling which at present existed between the two organizations, and told how happily they, years ago, jointly occupied quarters on Park Square, opposite the Boston & Providence depot.

At the general meeting of members, after the vote to disband had been passed, this kind and generous invitation was accepted with thanks.

The vote was not to disband at once, not until the club has paid every dollar of indebtedness. A committee was appointed to take charge of the club's property, and dispose of it in a way that will discharge all the club's debts. The club will meet again at the call of this committee, and if all obligations have been settled, finally disband. Should the assets of the club not prove sufficient to pay all the debts, an assessment will be made upon the members.

WANDERERS' CENTURY RUN.

THE regular club run of the Orange Wanderers called for June 4 was for the purpose of getting as many members as possible to accomplish one hundred miles.

Out of nine who had agreed to start, the following six started: — Captain Porter, Lieutenant Hening, C. S. French, W. A. Belcher, C. A. Lindsley, and J. M. Gilmour. Belcher had been sick the previous week, and was suffering from a lame ankle, so that he was much out of condition, and Hening was obliged to go in to business during the morning but rode again in the afternoon, covering in all sixty miles. Belcher was obliged to drop out at seventy miles.

The start was made at 4.44 A. M. from the club rooms, and the finish at 7.5 P. M. The lapsed time 14 21; actual riding time, 10 21; distance covered, 100 58 miles; average riding, 9 1-5 miles per hour.

The total time of stops was three and a half hours. Of this, one hour was for breakfast, one hour and seventeen minutes for dinner, and ten short stops averaging about seven minutes each. The route taken was through the Oranges, Irvington, Hilton, Millburn, and Short Hills. No mishap occurred till within half a mile of the finish, Gilmour, who had a painful ankle, slipped a pedal, and fell heavily. He was a good deal shaken up.

The distance was taken by three cyclometers, which agreed.

The wheels ridden were two Victors, a Rudge, and a Regent.

Lieutenant Hening continued his ride through the evening, and at 1 05 completed his century, having made up in five hours the distance covered by the others while he was at business in the morning.

CYCLETS.

THE Topeka wheelmen will tour to Junction City, Sept. 20 and 21.

DR. J. H. COOLEY, of Plainfield, N. J., is the new chairman of the Racing Board.

THE City Council of Dayton, Ky., has passed an act putting bicycles on the tax list as personal property.

NEXT Monday comes the Crawfordsville road race. Whittaker says the course is a good one, and that the record will surely go.

LYNN wants Howell to come to America to race her William. She will make it an object for him to do so. Come over, Richard, and try our best man.

CALIFORNIA wheelmen are making great preparations for the annual Meet of the division which is to be held at Santa Cruz on July 2, 3, and 4. Three days of fun and business.

A. W. GUMP, of Dayton, O., is out with his new catalogue, which contains twenty large pages of descriptive and illustrated announcements of his machines.

A CORRESPONDENT suggests that the League adopt a straw hat for summer wear, which shall have a purple cord in the ribbon. One Boston club adopted a club straw hat last year.

CAPTAIN DONNELLY and Lieutenant Knapp, of the San Mateo (Cal.) wheelmen, made a run of one hundred and thirty-four miles to Gilroy and return May 22, the time taken being sixteen hours and fifteen minutes.

JOHN S. PRINCE is superintending the building of a four and a half lap track on the Omaha baseball grounds, and will shortly hold a tournament for amateurs and professionals.

JOSEPH DEVEY, a well known cycle maker of England, has been sentenced to eight months imprisonment for stealing. During his trial he spent much of the time in the dock reading religious works. He has an ample fortune.

CRIST, of Washington, has been to Canada to meet his old opponent, Fred Foster, on his own ground. As a result of their meeting the mile was run off in 2.42 1-5, with Foster ahead.

SPRINGFIELD without Ducker will be a city hardly known in cycling circles. There is only one Ducker and only one Springfield. Each needed the other to give us what has gone forth into history from central Massachusetts.

IT was Junius E. Beal, of Ann Arbor, Mich., who moved at St. Louis to make the League color purple, and when his motion was carried he telegraphed home to finish off the edges of the Michigan road book in that color.

ON all the exchanges yesterday, petitions were circulated asking Gov. Hill to veto the bill allowing bicycles to be used on all the drives in Central Park. The bicyclists now have the run of the West Side and Riverside drives. —New York Times, June 3.

THE Minneapolis police have been ordered to arrest every person caught riding a bicycle on the sidewalks. Under the new regime the law will be rigidly enforced, and bicyclists are hereby warned to keep in the road. The above order is just and desirable, and wheelmen, if they desire to keep the rights which they have got, must respect those of others.

KARL KRON reports to us that exactly four hundred copies of "X. M. Miles" were despatched from Springfield during the first four days of June (one hundred and thirty-five of them to Europe, and one hundred and eighty-one to the Pacific coast); that he hopes to start eight hundred towards St. Louis, Detroit, Chicago, and New York by the 10th; and that Boston's turn will probably arrive as early as the 15th.

RATHER a peculiar way was adopted to frame the handicap of the old Trafford Cycling Club. Each rider entered had to send in his idea of the starts which should be given to competitors, and these being averaged, the handicap came out. The "Artful Dodger" intends entering the next race. His idea of the handicap is: "Artful Dodger" three days' start, all others on scratch. He anticipates having ridden the course, had a bath and his tea, before the others start.—Athletic News.

CHARLES A. BEIDERMAN, ex-representative of the California division, while out on the San Leandro road last Thursday night, training for the Decoration Day races, was thrown from his wheel and robbed by two unknown men. His many friends, who have expressed their desire to see him race, will be glad to know that he is rapidly recovering from a bruised knee, wrist, and a bad scare. — S. F. Chronicle.

"CONSTANT READER, MELROSE. — Will you please inform me if a man winning a prize in an amateur bicycle race, becomes a professional by selling it to a friend, two or three weeks afterward? No; most certainly not." — Outing.

A CYCLIST ceases to be an amateur by (c) selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash any prize won by him." — Extract from amateur rule.

THE Star Bicycle Club of Detroit, is noted for its very fine stationery. It's notices of club runs are gotten out in a style surpassing many pretentious wedding invitations. A very pretty special circular has come to us in which the club throws open its arms (for it does not appear to have a clubhouse) to visiting wheelmen, and gives the addresses of the principal officers. The club has got a "pusher" in charge of its affairs.

CAPTAIN WILL HURLBUT, of Stamford Wheel Club; the well-known artist, Arthur Munson (the solitary club, by the way), and the Rev. Mr. Wheaton, a Baptist clergyman, sail July 7 on a National line steamer for a six weeks' tour through England. It is not at all unlikely but that the "baby club" of the State may send representatives over the briny deep. If so, we will try to keep the BULLETIN posted. — Cor., Greenwich.

THE cycling world will mourn with England in her loss by death of Hon. Ion Keith-Falconer. His name appears on the record book of England as the first in many a contest. He did very much in the early days of the sport to popularize it. He was the first to make the record from Lands End to John o'Groats, and his twenty miles within the hour followed close to that of Cortis. He went to the East as a missionary, and died of heart disease before reaching the field of his chosen labors.

AS our readers know, Mr. R. E. Phillips has been experimenting for some time with an apparatus for timing races by electricity, and we believe with considerable success. It will be used publicly for the first time to day at the athletic sports of the City of London School, held at Stamford Bridge, and, should it there prove satisfactory, will no doubt be in great request during the season. Mr. Phillips uses an ordinary split-seconds chronograph, the buttons of which are operated mechanically entirely without human agency. —Cycling Times.

A. L. BURG, of Allentown, and H. C. Tropp, of Weissport, Pa., started June 5, on a three week's bicycle tour through Virginia. They start from Weissport, go to Harrisburg, then to Hagerstown, Antietam, Harpers Ferry, Washington, D.C., Richmond, Va., and Natural Bridge, and then go up through the Shenandoah Valley. Parties wishing to ride along will be welcome to do so. They will leave Natural Bridge June 16, for up Shenandoah Valley.

HICKS of St. Louis says he has only one object in life, — to introduce the flying start in cycle racing. He hopes he will not die till he sees this brought about. If we were inspired with a mission of this kind we would get up a race meeting of our own, and demonstrate what we are preaching. It would be sure to draw, and we might make some money. But Hicks will not do this. Come East, brother Hicks, and we'll guarantee that some one of our Eastern clubs will put on a special race for you to experiment with.

AND while we are agitating the question of reforms, let every wheelman become a committee of one to discourage the rude and boisterous conduct which has quite justly brought a good many individual cyclers into disrepute, and which has quite as unjustly led many good people to judge the whole by a small part, and therefore to look with unfriendly eyes on the noble and sensible recreation of wheeling. "Feign a virtue if you have it not," and try at least to be a gentleman while you are within sight of your wheel, or wearing the garb of a wheelman. — Spectator.

A GENTLEMAN, resident at Pawtucket, is a familiar figure on the three-wheeler, and proves himself to be an expert with the tricycle. Having business with a party in the extreme southerly part of Barrington the other day, he made his journey to and from, skipping over the road at a marvellous pace, and apparently hugely enjoying his trip. As he is only eighty-three years of age, we patiently wait to hear of another expert equally advanced in years before we make a match, and when time is called, fourscore-and-three will prove heavy weight. — Providence Journal.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., will be alive with wheelmen on June 13, for then the local club will hold its annual race meet. The Hagerstown Club and the citizens of Hagerstown are famous abroad for their hospitality. Last year they banquetted all the visiting wheelmen free of expense. Entries for the races are rapidly going in, and some of our best riders have sent in their names. After the Meet there will be an 80-mile road race from Hagerstown to Baltimore between teams of five each, to be selected from the Baltimore, Maryland, Ramblers, Centaur, and Alert Clubs, the finish to be at the observatory at Druid Hill Lake, Baltimore.

THE Victoria Rifles of Canada have taken unto themselves a bicycle corps, to be used for scouting and signalling purposes. It is composed of a sergeant and seven men, all members of the Montreal Bicycle Club. They were out with the corps for a drill and march the other day, and made quite an addition to the corps. They are placed immediately behind the band. At present they are mounted on ordinaries; but if they are to be a success it is likely they will have to come down a little lower in the world and ride safeties of some sort, likely of the Rover or Premier type.

THE hon. sec of the Montreal Bicycle Club has taken unto himself a partner, and could n't find one good enough in Canada, so he went over the line for her. He has n't ordered the tandem yet, but, of course, it will have to be.

MR. A. T. LANE is for the fifth time a subject for congratulation. It is a daughter. — Montreal Cor.

A RACE between Rowe, of Lynn, and the big English professional would be a great one indeed, with the odds in any one's favor. It will come some day, and when it does there are plenty of riders patriotic enough to back the Lynn boy for all they are worth. Such a race would be really international, as Howell is recognized as the best man in all England, and Rowe holds the acknowledged premier position here; each rides the principal wheel manufactured in the country to which he belongs, and each is head and shoulders above his racing brethren, so that when they meet the natural rivalry of country and of manufacture, in addition to the prize, will drive each to his utmost speed. In the case of Woodside versus Howell, while, of course, the races are honest and probably won on merit, at the same time Woodside, though born in Philadelphia, spent the greater part of his youth in England and Ireland, is English in sentiment, and rides as well an English machine, the "Premier." Woodside, too has been beaten a number of times by Prince, Wood, Rowe, and others, while Rowe and Howell are each at scratch practically unbeaten men. — Phila Times.

ON Thursday evening of last week there was a large gathering of St. Louis wheelmen at the Lindell Hotel, for the purpose of forming a new club in that city. C. H. Belden was elected Chairman, and Walter Wylie Secretary. It was almost unanimously decided to make the new organization a League club. The opinions of the meeting were simply informal, the decision being to postpone formal organization. The question of a name was thoroughly discussed. Mound City, St. Louis, Eclipse, and Wanderers, were those most favorably considered, but the whole subject was referred to a committee on name. About fifty have signified their intention of becoming members. The first run of the fledgling will be to Creve Cœur Lake.

THE Springfield Bicycle Club met Tuesday night and empowered the Board of Directors to decide on the desirability of holding a "pony" tournament on Hampden Park July 4. The members generally are in favor of giving a two hours' tourney if the track can be put in suitable condition. The races will be confined strictly to amateurs, and there is some talk of having a directors' race as a drawing card. A committee were appointed to prepare a suitable testimonial to be presented to Henry E. Ducker, before he leaves the city, as a slight token of the club's esteem for the man who made it what it is. The committee is composed of D. E. Miller, W. H. Jordan, C. B. Whipple, A. B. Wassung, and Sanford Lawton, all old members. It was voted not to maintain the bicycle band, and the musicians are accordingly sore at heart.

CHIEF CONSUL BREWSTER'S reputation as an after-dinner speaker, which made him in great demand at the last Meet, was achieved last year at Clarksville. At the banquet in the hotel the village brass band rendered selections. It happened that the cornetist, a fellow whose powerful lungs made up for the want of dulcet sweetness in his tunes, sat right behind Brewster, and kept pumping his ears full of tales of the cornet's sorrow. Brewster could be seen during the meal squirming about in his chair in agony every time the cornet would go off. At last he was called on for a toast to the hero of the evening, George E. Weber. With the look of agony still on his expressive features, Brewster arose and praised the great performance, remarking in closing as the stern look sardonically relaxed: "And, ladies and gentlemen, if this great record ever is beaten, the person who does it will have to have the endurance and wind of the gentleman who sits behind me." The roar that followed this sally gave the horn-blower a chance to skip, and he was seen no more. Post-Dispatch.

LAST Sunday, Walter Thompson, Harry Hammond, and Walter Sharpe, of St. Louis, three boys under thirteen years of age, rode to Creve Cœur Lake and back, a total distance of forty-two miles, and that, too, on cone-bearing wheels, and over a hilly rutty road.

THE PATH.

TERRE HAUTE, IND. — The Terre Haute Bi. Club held a twelve-mile handicap road race on Decoration Day. Ed. Hulman, scratch, (1), 48.20; Bruce Cooper, 1.15 (2), 50.13; Chas. Crain, scratch, (3). This is the second time Hulman has won the medal which goes with this race, and one more win will make it his property. The next race will be run June 30.

WOODSTOCK, CAN. — A tournament, the events being chiefly bicycle races, was held by the Woodstock, Ont., Amateur Athletic Association on May 24.

One mile (green). —C. P. Smith, Stratford (1), 3.13 1-5.

Half mile. — First heat: W. E. Crist, Washington (1), 1.24 3-5; M. F. Johnston, Toronto (2). Second heat: Crist (1), 1.23 4-5; W. S. Campbell (2). In the run-off for second place Johnston beat Campbell, 1.21.

One mile. — F. Foster, Toronto (1), 2.42 1-5; W. E. Crist, Washington, D. C. (2), by four feet; H. P. Davies, Toronto (3).

Five miles. — F. Foster, Toronto (1), 16.4 2-5; W. E. Crist, Washington (2); H. P. Davies, Toronto (3); F. J. Bruner, Toronto, 0.

HARTFORD, June 4. — Races under the auspices of the East Hartford Club.

Half-mile handicap. — G. L. Lewis, Springfield (70-yard handicap), 1.23 2-5.

Three-mile handicap. — C. H. Thomas, New Britain (20 yards), 1.13.

Two mile lap. — C. F. Richmond, East Hartford, 6.51.

One mile club handicap. — W. K. Ackley (120 yards), 3.14 4-5.

William Haradon, of Springfield, rode against the track quarter-mile record, but could not beat it.

THE fifty miles road race given under the auspices of the Oatford Cycling Club on the Brighton roads England, May 13, had the enormous number of seventy four starters. G. P. Mills won the medal for fastest time, 2.54.5, a wonderful performance considering that he had a high wind against him on the return journey, and that the road was a fairly hilly one. The winner turned up in J. S. Smith, who had seventy five minutes start, and won very comfortable in 3 30.0.

PROGRAMME of races for the Meet of the California Division at Santa Cruz, July 2, 3, 4: One mile, novice; one mile, League of American Wheelmen, State championship; ten mile, League of American Wheelmen, State championship; two-mile, League of American Wheelmen, national championship; half-mile dash; one-mile handicap; three-mile handicap; five mile handicap; one hundred-yard slow race and a competitive exhibition of fancy riding. The location of the State championships have yet to be approved by the Racing Board. The ten-mile national has not yet been assigned to this division, but it has been asked for, and it is not likely that it will be refused.

LONDON, June 4, 1887. — In the bicycle races at Grimsby, to day, Battensby of Newcastle, beat Temple of Chicago, in a mile handicap by a foot. Lees of Leicester and Temple ran a dead heat in the five-mile handicap. Lees won the ten-mile handicap from the scratch, Woodside second, English of Liverpool, third. Morgan, of New York, did not receive a place.

THE programme of sports to be given in Brookline on the morning of July 4, will include a two-mile bicycle race, open to all amateurs; one-mile bicycle race; one hundred-yard slow bicycle race, and a junior mile bicycle race. The last three are limited to Brookline riders. The junior race is open to contestants of not over eighteen years of age. Handsome medals will be given first and second man in each event. The entrance fee, one dollar, and entries, should be mailed to E. W. Baker, Brookline, before Wednesday, June 29.

AT the close of the Fourth Annual Tour of the Indiana Division, L. A. W., which takes place from July 8 to July 13, 1887, a bicycle Meet will be held at Terre Haute; the principal features of which will be a hill climbing contest and bicycle races, closing with a concert at Hulman's Park by the Ringgold band, an address by the mayor of the city and distribution of prizes.

July 12, 3 P. M., Hill Climbing Contest on Coal Creek Hill, nine miles northwest of Terre Haute. 5 P. M., Grand entry into the city with Ringgold band.

July 13, 10.30 A. M., parade; 1.30 P. M., wheel to fair ground; 2.30 P. M., Races; 7.30 P. M., distribution of prizes.

RACES. — One-mile club championship; one-mile novice; two-mile State championship; half-mile ride and run; three mile inter-state championship; one mile, 3.30 class; half-mile State championship; one mile road wheels, forty pounds and over; one mile amateur (open); one mile star; half-mile, 1.40 class; three-mile club team, Ind. championship.

For Hill Climbing Contest and Championship Races there will be Gold Medals, and for the remaining, three or more prizes.

Entrance fee to each event, $1.00.

Sec'y-Treas.

THE CLUB.

HOMESTEAD, PA. — At a meeting of the Homestead Wheel Club, held on June 2, 1887, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, F. T. Alter; captain, J. A Doyle; secretary-treasurer, H. W. Fairfield; first lieutenant, James Bryce; directors, C. H. Alter and Robert Nicholson.

EAST SAGINAW, MICH. — On May 22, 1887, the following officers were elected by the East Saginaw Bicycle Club: President, N. W. Ely; vice-president, Ralph Corbyn; secretary, Geo. W. Smith; treasurer, D. E. Prall; captain, Peter F. Trainor; first lieutenant, Fred T. Richardson; second lieutenant, Harry C. Andrews.

ROXBURY, MASS. — The Roxbury Bicycle Club held its regular monthly meeting Friday evening, June 3, President Emery presiding. Three new members were admitted; H. B. Goodrich was elected bugler; and Captain J. S. Lowell called the following runs for June: —

Middlesex Fells, Sunday, June 5, at 10 A. M.; moonlight run to Chestnut Hill reservoir, Wednesday, June 8, at 7.30 P. M.; Lexington, Sunday, June 12, at 10 A. M.; Framingham, Sunday, June 26, at 9 A. M.; all form at corner of Westland Avenue and West Chester Park; Nantasket Beach, Sunday, June 19, at 9.30 A. M., starting from corner of Walnut Avenue and Warren Street.

President Emery gave a highly interesting report of the L. A. W. Meet at St. Louis, to which he was a delegate.

The new League uniforms ordered from Wanamaker, have been received by several of the members.

MASSACHUSETTS APPOINTMENT.

I HAVE appointed George W. Parker, of New Bedford, a representative for Massachusetts.

H. W. HAYES, C. C.

TO MASSACHUSETTS CONSULS.

THE committee on signboards, of the Massachusetts Division, have prepared a sign to be placed at the top of dangerous hills. We have two signs, one marked DANGER and the other, CAUTION.

The former, is to be placed only at the top of hills that are absolutely dangerous for cyclists to descend, and where, in doing so, the greatest care must be exercised by the rider to avoid accident. The other, is to be used on hills that are moderately dangerous, from the fact of cross roads, railroads, or where foot of hill cannot be seen and there is a liability of danger at the foot. We have prepared but few of these signs, as they are expensive, and we cannot afford to put them only on main thoroughfares or such as are most used by cyclists.

Please advise me at once if any such signs are necessary in your town, and, if so, whether DANGER or CAUTION.

Please bear in mind that these signs are erected at the expense of the Division, and are not meant for every hill, but only for such as are so dangerous as to render an accident liable to our members while descending. An early reply will oblige,

H. W. HAYES, C. C.

CALIFORNIA APPOINTMENTS.

THE Division, through its increased membership, has gained another representative, to which the second, or San Francisco district, is entitled, under the provisions of the by-laws, that no district shall have a less number of representatives than one to every fifty members. I therefore take great pleasure in appointing Mr. S. F. Booth, Jr., of San Francisco.

The following standing committees have been appointed for the year 1887-8: Finance, R. M. Welch and N. A. Robinson, ex-officio, B. H. Patrick, — all of San Francisco. Rights and privileges, George H. Strong, chairman, Oakland; Harrison Houseworth and S. F. Booth, Jr., San Francisco. Racing board, H. C. Finkler, chairman, San Francisco; R. C. Woodworth, Los Angeles; A. S. Ireland, Jr., Oakland. Touring board, J. W. Gibson, chairman and bookmaster, San Francisco; D. T. Thornton, San Jose; Beverly Letcher, tourmaster, San Francisco.

ROBERT M. WELCH, C. C.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:—

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

(53) Is there any way to prevent, or to relieve cramp in the hands, from hard or long riding? Information is earnestly requested. 13080.

(54) WILL some member who has made the run, be kind enough to give me the best route from Boston to Providence. L. A. W., 13583.

(55) WHAT is the best material for underwear for summer riding? 2256. Ans. Flannel.

(56) 1. In case, in a race a prize is advertised, e. g., a bicycle saddle, and the winner is given five dollars to get it, and he uses the money for other purposes, does he forfeit his amateur standing? 2. When the second prize only is money, is a person racing for a money prize within the meaning of the rule. I take it a man rides for the first prize. 2962. Ans. (1.) Yes (2.) A man rides for any prize that may fall to him. This would be competing for a money prize.

(57) WILL you please reply through columns of inquiry in BULLETIN whether a man that was formerly a fancy rider or a professional racing man, and who has got through riding for money, and now rides for the sport, can he become a L. A. W. member? Is he not an amateur now? Ans. He is not an amateur.

(58) WHICH is the best route from Lock Haven to Wilkes Barre, Penn.? Also from Lewisto n to Wilkes Barre? Will some member of Penn. Division please answer above as fully as possible. There is a small party from this section that wants to wheel to the Meet of the Penn. Division at Wilkes Barre, July 4, and desires to obtain above information early.

L. A. W. 10507.

(59) WILL my friend on the steamer "Hudson," Mr. Lucas, of Iowa, please drop me a line, care of G. R. & I. R. R., Grand Rapids, Mich. ED. M. MOOAR, L. A. W. 6805.

(60) IN answer to No. 18, Notes and Queries: There is no good road book of England, Scotland and Ireland. There are several,—notably Paterson's, and "The Roads of England and Wales,"—more or less bad; having been written many years ago, and imperfectly revised for cycling. Let 1415 join the C. T. C. and obtain a handbook and his information from the Chief Consuls until the C. T. C. Road Book appears: this work is now under way. THE FOREIGN MARSHALL.

(61) IN C. E. Gates's letter on the "Best Route from Chicago to Buffalo," I would suggest an amendment to go from Adrian to Ann Arbor, thence to Detroit, through Canada to Buffalo, according to the routes in our road book. That will give far better roads than via the desert of sand about Toledo. B.

IMPORTANT.

The Grand Union Hotel, opposite the Grand Central Depot, New York City, is the L. A. W. and C. T. C. Headquarters. European Plan. Rooms, $1.00 per day and upward. First-class Restaurant, at moderate prices. Good care taken of wheels.

FOR SALE, EXCHANGE, ETC.

Advertisements will be inserted in this column as follows: $1.00 for four lines, first insertion; 50 cts. for each subsequent insertion. Extra lines at proportionate rates. About nine words to a line.

FOR SALE.—54-inch Royal Mail, detachable cow-horn handle bars, balls all round, and extra ball head, buffer, saddle; bought new last summer, and in good condition; price, $90. H. J. FILER, Sharon, Pa., Mercer Co.

BROTHERS OF THE WHEEL.—Feeling that the extent and rapid growth of cycling in this country have created the need of some place where wheelmen desiring a change of mount can sell easily and quickly their machines, we have established the MANHATTAN WHEEL EXCHANGE at 49 Cortlandt Street, New York, where they can be disposed of at the cost of a small commission. Second-hand cycles are in constant demand. Such a place will attract this class of buyers, and quick sales will be the result. Sellers will have the advantage of liberal advertising, and buyers a wide scope for selection. Sellers will not be obliged to submit to the sacrifice in price demanded by second-hand dealers, and buyers will have a chance at the best bargains. Fraternally,

WETMORE & CHESTER.

JERSEY-FITTING, SELF-SUPPORTING

BICYCLE STOCKING.

The attention of the Wheelmen and the trade is kindly called to our new Self Supporter Stocking, for which we have obtained Letters Patent June 11, 1887. The enclosed cut gives a correct description of this stocking and its design, and needs no argument to show that they are the best thing that has been made for holding the stocking in position. They are Ribbed, Jersey-Fitting, and very elastic, regular made, double heel and toes. The form and proportions of the foot, heel, toe, ankle, calf and leg are perfect, as represented in the cut, and there is no better made or better fitting stocking in the market. The part above the stocking for holding it in position is made of cotton or wool, thin or heavy, as may be desired, and comes up and fastens around the waist, same as tights, and holds the stockings where they belong.

Any infringement will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Price, $2.25; without double heel and toes, $2.00; or stockings without supporters, $1.50. Send us your order for either of these, with color, size of foot, and length from bottom of foot to waist, and post office order for amount, and we will send same by mail or express to any part of the country; and if you do not find them satisfactory, return them, and we will return amount paid for them. THOMAS STEVENS'S GREAT WORK,

Around the World on a Bicycle.

From San Francisco to Teheran. By THOMAS STEVENS. With a preface by THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON. With a Colored Frontispiece—Portrait of the Author in Costume—by KELLY, and over One Hundred Illustrations - - 8vo. $4.00

"Mr. Thomas Stevens need have little doubt that the most splendid piece of personal adventure of this century will be placed to his credit. For the originality of its idea, the physical endurance and pluck necessary for its execution, the dangers involved in it, and its own inherent interest, this bicycle trip round the world will pretty certainly remain unequalled in our time." Pall Mall Gazette.

"The mere moral courage demanded of the man who essays an expedition into regions where such an outlandish carriage has never before been seen is sufficiently notable to entitle Mr. Stevens to the credit which he will no doubt obtain for his plucky exploit. No man who honors courage, pluck, endurance—no man who is capable of understanding these qualities—will feel anything but admiration for him." The London Standard.

OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

Made same as full tights, to three inches below the knee.

TRUNKS

Are a great protection to tights, receiving all the wear from the saddle, and can easily be removed, and thus save the more expensive garments.

JERSEY FITTING KNEE PANTS,

Buttoned in Front, same as Pantaloons, without Certain Objections.

We offer them to the trade and clubs as SOMETHING NEW, and invite all to examine them.

LADIES' JERSEY FITTING TRICYCLE PANTS.

A NEW THING.

These Pants are close fitting, come three inches below the knee, are very elastic, and the most comfortable garment a lady ever wore. Made in Cream-Colored Cotton, Drab, Red, or any colors in Worsteds. Racing Wheelmen tell us it is a loss of fifteen seconds in a mile to have some slight irritation from a non-elastic pair of cloth pants.

Would like to have every Wheelman see these

JERSEY-FITTING STOCKINGS,

As we believe there is nothing better.

Send us your order for any of these garments, with your measure and a Post-office order for the same, and we will send by mail or express the garment ordered; and if you do not find them satisfactory, you can return them, and we will return the amount paid for them, or we will send them C. O. D., with the privilege of trying them on. Address,

HOLMES & CO., 17 Kingston St., Boston, Mass.

PATENTS secured on reasonable terms. Work reliable. Papers carefully and legally drawn. Special attention given to inventions in cycling by an experienced wheelman and League member. Write for particulars. N. L. COLLAMER, Patent Attorney and Mechanical Engineer, Room 47, St. Cloud Building, Washington, D. C.

WRITE VERY PLAINLY.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training, or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

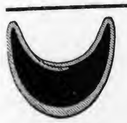
A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.



What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

A FEW INTERROGATION POINTS, GENTLEMEN.

Why be deceived by middle-men who call themselves manufacturers and are not?

If their statements about themselves are untrue, why not their claims regarding the merits of the wheels they sell, or rather attempt to sell?

Why be deceived by statements about records acquired on wheels so frailly constructed as to be useless on the road?

Is not the effort to associate the performance of one wheel with another, because only it is sold by the same middle-men, an effort to deceive?

Is it not reasonable to suppose that the buyer can get a better value for his money from the agent of the manufacturer than from the agent of the manufacturer's agent?

Is it not logical and wise to conclude upon a mount from the arguments and testimony of road riders who hold all the more important world's road and long-distance records, obtained too on American champion roadsters, rather than from the testimony of riders using 22-pound machines on specially prepared surfaces?

If you wish to be convinced, why not send a one-cent stamp for a special catalog of testimonials, parts, etc., to

Subscribers should be careful to notify the EDITOR promptly of any change in their address. Great care is taken with the mailing list. Failure to receive THE BULLETIN may usually be traced to carelessness on the part of the subscriber.

All matter for publication, whether reading or advertising matter, should be addressed to the EDITOR. All checks should be made payable to his order.

Reading matter, to insure publication in the following issue, must be in the EDITOR'S hands not later than Saturday afternoon; advertisements not later than Monday morning.

The EDITOR must in all cases have the full name and address of the authors of contributed articles, as a guarantee of good faith. As the Executive Committee has decided that it is best to discourage the use of assumed names by writers for THE BULLETIN, the EDITOR will publish the author's name unless particularly requested not to do so.

10,002!

LIST of Applicants No. 91, published this week, brings our membership above ten thousand. And now we are anxious to get above 10,264, which was the whole number enrolled in 1886.

THE special committee on the reorganization of the League has called for suggestions. Here is a chance for reformers to put in their work. A great many criticisms come from outsiders, and to all such an opportunity is here given for a mapping out of what they think the ideal League should be. We believe the committee will accept good ideas, whether they come from inside the organization or from the outside.

WE are all aware that the League is growing out of its present clothes. This reconstruction may mean the creation of a large family of strong and healthy children in place of the old mother League. What the new work shall be depends upon the demands of the membership. This the committee must know for its guidance, and there is so much scope to the committee's action and the changes already suggested, while natural, are so radical, that the committee cannot too freely invite an expression of ideas from the membership they are endeavoring to serve. Everything is yet inchoate. What shall be developed it is hoped will be from the best judgment of all interested in the good of our institution.

BICYCLING has never made much progress in Mobile, for the reason that wheelmen have never been allowed on the shell road which runs out of the city about seven miles. This is the best road in the vicinity. War has now been declared. New Orleans wheelmen, Captain W. W. Crane especially, have been advising the boys to obtain their rights, and immediate steps will be taken to get them. A club has already been formed, and they propose to go out in a body and get arrested. Developments will be eagerly awaited.

A CORRESPONDENT suggests that cycle racing be made attractive to outsiders by having the races "short, sharp, and snappy." He would have the contests for one lap only, and give the prize to the man who wins three in five of these. It is a fact patent to all that there is little interest in cycle racing among the non riders, and some such plan as that which our correspondent suggests must be employed if we hope to see the racing interests flourish. A baseball match in Boston drew 23,000 people on Decoration Day. A cycle race would not have brought out a single thousand. There is a want of "snap" in cycle racing that Americans cannot excuse, and this must go in before the sport will be popular.

CYCLETS.

BUNKER HILL day.

WE touch 10,000 this week.

ALL names published after next issue will, for three months, be accepted for $1.50.

PARTIES who send a change of address will please send their number.

PROVIDENCE wheelmen are coming to Boston in August.

THE annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Division will be held at Wilkes Barre on July 4.

THE Chelsea Club enjoyed the first clam bake of the season at Revere Beach, last week.

THE New Haven Club has voted to join the parade on the occasion of the dedication of the monument in that city.

THE Long Island Wheelmen of Brooklyn admitted sixteen members at the last meeting, and the average age of these was thirty-two years.

CHARLESTOWN celebrates to-day and the Rover Cycling Club keeps open house. They receive the ladies in the evening.

THE committee appointed to dispose of the furniture and other effects of the Massachusetts Club consists of Messrs. Slocum, Parsons and Miller.

THE Leavenworth County Wheelmen are collecting autographs, and prominent wheelmen are being asked to contribute.

THE Wayside Wheelmen of New Bedford, at their regular monthly meeting on June 1, voted to change their name to the New Bedford Cycle Club.

T. R. MARROTT was to attempt three hundred miles in twenty-four hours on a tricycle at the Crystal Palace track on June 8, starting at 7.30 P. M.

SECRETARY Charles E. Walker, of the Chelsea Club, took a header on Sunday, and was taken up insensible and carried to his home in a carriage.

CHIEF CONSUL HAYES, of Massachusetts, is sending out circulars reminding the authorities of towns and cities that they are now obliged by law to erect direction boards.

ALBERT HYATT and L. A. White, of Waterbury, Conn., rode from that place to New York on June 5, and covered the distance, one hundred and two miles, in twelve hours.

TELZAH gives us some interesting reminiscences in another column. The name "Telzah" has become a reminiscence, so long is it since we have heard from him.

Texas Siftings for June 4 has a very clever satire on the back-country practice of working out a poll tax by repairing the roads. The evils of the system are clearly set forth in a humorous way, and illustrations aid the text in showing up the whole thing.

CAPT. T. S. MILLER, of Chicago, Ill., has issued the third edition of his "Bicycle Tactics." He has enlarged and revised it, and now offers it for sale at twenty cents per copy. It is the only book of the kind.

THE Waltham Ramblers dispute the time made by the winner of the Cambridgeport road race on Decoration Day, and they are anxious to arrange for a road race between a team from their club and a team from the Cambridgeport Club.

THE clubhouse of the Long Island wheelmen is nearing completion, and they expect to occupy it in the latter part of July. Their total active membership is now 108. At the last meeting (June 7) sixteen members were admitted. The club is believed to be the third in size in the State.

GEORGE N. ROCKWELL, of Scranton, Pa., has written a bicycle waltz which he has dedicated to the Scranton Bicycle Club. The waltz will be performed for the first time by a full orchestra on the occasion of the minstrel entertainment by the Scranton Club, July 4th.

THE Massachusetts Bicycle Club will occupy its present quarters until June 30. In response to the circulars sent out by the secretary, sixteen agreed to pay the assessment of $50 for a year, and twenty-four agreed to remain if the club went into smaller quarters. The club will disband July 1.

ENGLISHMEN are highly indignant over a very scaly piece of rascality at the Alexandra Park track. Some enlightened individual, as a spite against the lessee of the track, against whom he had some fancied grievance, clambered over the palings of the park, wrecked the decorations, tore down the flags and bunting arranged for the next day's races, and cut several deep gutters directly across the cinder path, filling in with soft cinders, so that the trick might not be discovered until the racers struck them

THE Connecticut Division has taken up the case of W. H. Allen, of Wethersfield, and through its attorney, J. Y. Calhoun, has brought suit against Dr. Mayer of Hartford. Allen was riding down Main Street, Hartford, June 4, on the right side, when he was run down and injured by the doctor's team, driven by his man. Dr. Mayer refused to settle the matter, and suit was brought.

WHEN Corey climbed Crank Hill at Clarksville, President Overman pointed to the pedals on the machine, and said: "Ah, I see! Overman pedals; those are what did the business." And when Neilson finished the road race Corey pointed to the pedals on the bicycle, and said: "Ah, I see! a pair of fourteen-ounce Rudge racing pedals. Those are what did the business." And then Overman and Corey went in, and ate some ice cream with the Presbyterians.

CONSUL H. M SNOW, of Detroit, Mich., entertained the Star Club of that city on June 9. The following paragraph from the captain's call indicates the nature of the invitation: "Consul Snow announces that, having added to his large herd of milch cows, and employed a large force in the manufacture of gingerbread, he thinks he will be able to satisfy the well-known appetites of the 'hungry little Stars.' Now, what's the matter with Snow?"

A HORSE was scared by a bicycle at Council Bluffs, Iowa, last week, and the local paper says: "Something must be done to prevent the use of these machines on public thoroughfares." The editor must remember that it was the horse and not the bicycle that got scared and broke things, and it would be much better policy to take such horses off the streets.

WE have received a long letter from Clarksville in which the writer seeks to remove the impression that the Clarksville course was a very poor one, and he makes very many severe criticisms of the Crawfordsville course. The road race has passed into history, and there seems to be little occasion to discuss the might-have-beens, or to go into ecstacies over the grandeur of the race.

THOMAS NICHOLS, at one time Garfield's private secretary, is trying to form a company to build a tricycle railroad. The cars are to be forty-six inches wide, and are to run on a single track, suspended above existing railroad tracks. Nichols says that a speed of two hundred and twenty miles an hour can be reached in this way, and that the journey from New York to San Francisco can be made in a day.

A WORD to the riders who "scorch" after a heavy midday meal. A gentleman, described as "an official of the Plumstead Vestry," fell dead off his tricycle at Sidcup, Kent, last week, and the medical evidence at the inquest was that the heart and all the organs of life were healthy, but that the cause of death was syncope from over-exertion in riding after partaking of a heavy meal — Cyclist.

WE have received the programme of the League of American's Wheelmen's Meet, which took place at St. Louis on May 20 and 21. This is one of the best things that even America has produced in connection with cycling. The printing is superb, and the illustrations full of grotesquerie. Nothing like it has been seen in this country. Hail Columbia!— Wheeling.

A. C. LEWIS, secretary-treasurer of the Missouri division is now in Paris. He went into a dealer's, and picked out a bicycle, with which he proposed to scorch some of the French toughs. As he was about to take it out he asked what the rent for a week would be. When told it was forty francs ($8) he dropped it, and went back to the hotel with sorrow in his heart because he had not brought his bike with him from St. Louis. He says new bicycles, which are mostly of the English make, cost new from $100 to $110 in Paris, but the rental paralyzes him in a place where two per cent is considered good interest.

DURING the six days ending June 11, Karl Kron despatched from the Springfield Printing Company's works 1,074 copies of "X. M. Miles," raising the total to 1,476; and he hoped then to send 1,200 out this week,—bringing Springfield and Boston both "on the list" by Friday or Saturday. St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Memphis, Nashville, New Orleans, Macon, Washington, and Baltimore were supplied in advance of New York, together with many outlying towns in the West and South. The club books, 323 copies, were sent to New York on Friday and Saturday; and a second lot of 255 for New York and Brooklyn were to go on Monday, the 13th.

UP to May 31, the following have registered for F. A. Elwell's Canadian tour: H. D. Cahill, E. S. Kennard, F. A. Elwell, R. F. Sawyer, C. C. Tukesbury, F. E. Warren, J. B. Moore, all of Portland, Me.; E. G. Whitney and E. P. J. Morton, Boston, Mass.; G. G. Tyler, Baltimore, Md.; W. A. McLauchlan and George Robertson, St. John, N. B.; Julius E. Beals and friend, Ann Arbor, Mich.; F. W. Davis, Hartford, Ct.; W. S. Mills, Naugatuck, Ct.; F. H. Messer, Stoneham, Mass.; G. E. Cain, Franklin, Mass.; F. J. Arnold, Waterville, Mass.; Park G. Dingley, Lewiston, Me.; Marcus Moses, Tallipolis, Ohio; F. H. Douglass, Brooklyn, N. Y.; C. W. Flanders, Malden, Mass.

THE New Haven (Conn.) Bicycle Club has leased the brick house at No. 169 St. John Street from Samuel L. E. Barney, and will use it as a clubhouse. It has two stories, besides a basement. The house is occupied at present, but will be vacated within a week, and the work of fitting the quarters will be begun without delay. About $1,000 will be expended. The house contains nine rooms and a bath room. On the first floor the front room will be used as a reception room and parlor, and the room directly in the rear will contain a pool table. Another room on this floor will be fitted as a dressing room, with lockers for the convenience of members. A large and well-lighted bath room connects with the dressing room. The rooms on the second floor will be used as smoking, card, and reading rooms. The front room in the basement will be used for a billiard room, and in the rear is a room to be devoted to miscellaneous purposes. A large shed will be built in the rear of the house for storage of bicycles.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

As usual, after the epidemic of road-racing has reached every other place in the land, Philadelphia gets the contagion, and we are now to have, in September next, an Inter-Club road race, open to all organized clubs within a radius of thirty miles of this city. E. K. Tryon & Company are the promoters of the scheme, and will offer for competition a silver cup. Teams must consist of four men, each mounted on bicycles only, with an entrance fee of fifty cents, each man. The course is from Bryn Mawr, Easton Lancaster Pike, to new tollgate, back to the foot of the hill at Devon, and finish at Bryn Mawr at starting point. The distance is a trifle over twenty-one miles. All management of matters pertaining to the race is to be in the hands of a committee, consisting of one man from each of the principal clubs, which committee will meet about June 20, to arrange details. The course is a good one, and the race should prove very interesting, with the odds in favor of the Penna Club.

I HAVE had, Mr. Editor, during the past week, the opportunity of making a careful and minute examination of the Northrup Steam tricycle, and propose, with your permission, to give you the result of my investigations. I found it to be an ordinary three-track Invincible tandem, with the usual long straight frame, trailing out behind to the small steering wheel. On said frame, just in front of the little wheel, and back of the rear rider, is what on first glance might readily be taken for boiler covering and smoke stack of one of our P. F. D.* water-throwing engines, on a Lilliputian scale. To the casual eye this is all that is apparent of steam attributes to the machine, but a careful examination discloses that under the seat of the front rider, and parallel with the axle, is a tubular tank for water and fuel (oil). The balance-gear is left as usual, but on one edge of the upper chain wheel is attached a toothed wheel, running in another, which in turn is geared to the fly wheel of the engine. This "fly wheel," if so it may be called, is about three inches across, is covered completely by a casing, which also covers the connecting rods to the parallel double cylinders, and the rods are caught on the quarter, so that a stoppage from a "dead centre" is impossible. And this, with a few stops, taps, tubes, and valves, with a little steam gauge directly over the balance gearing under the eye of the rear rider, is practically all there is of it. The long brake lever, common to the Invincible machines is utilized to turn on or off the steam, and when pressed down hard also puts on the brake and turns the fire low. Of course the rear rider is both engineer and fireman, and has entire control. The new gearing which is now attached will change from speed to power (for hill-climbing) simply by pushing a button. I had the pleasure of several short rides, and without any assistance whatever, from either myself or the driver, a speed of at least ten miles an hour was attained in as many seconds. Of course, in soft or sandy roads, or on bad hills, the machine would hardly run alone, and muscular assistance would be necessary. The object of the engine is not, however, to produce a tandem which will run with no assistance, but simply to add to a machine the additional power of at least one strong rider, with an additional weight of less than sixty pounds. And when two good men are on the machine, and engine is doing it's share of the work, the balance of power to be applied and divided between the riders is reduced to a non-perspirable minimum. So it seems to me, and when the price shall be reduced to the capacity of my purse I shall have a one-horse power engine as an adjunct to my tandem. PHACTOTUM.

NEW HAMPSHIRE NOTES.

THE New Hampshire Division after four successive annual Meets at its only seaport, Portsmouth, will, on July 4, try the inland city of Manchester, by invitation of the bicycle club of that city. The excellent roads along the cool beaches, which have attracted the wheelmen in such goodly numbers from all parts of the State, will be missed, but it is proposed to repeat the successful innovation of last year, when the number of miles of wheeling was greatly curtailed, and a social time, and a short run about the city and suburban residences fully enjoyed. The Manchester Bicycle Club is a live institution, having very neatly furnished club rooms and a large and active associate membership, by whom the details of the Meet are being arranged.

THE Rockingham Club, of Portsmouth, which holds the same rank in the Division, as the New Hampshire Division does in the L. A. W., that of No. 1, will attend with full ranks, taking with them Tandem and single tricycles, and probably the old '78 wheel, John Bull, will pay another visit to the city of spindles. The Great Falls Club will, as usual, lead all others in percentage of membership. The Concords have very intimate relations with the Manchesters and can be depended upon for a larger representation than in former years. Manchester is so centrally located that the attendance of the unattached League members will undoubtedly be very large, and everything promises a successful and enjoyable Meet.

THE number of new wheels in this portion of the State exceeds that of any previous year. Even a sewing machine agent, who advertises in a daily paper his opening of a bicycle department, offering Spoke Handles, Trigwheel heads, and Borous "Aevlus bearings" attracts numerous customers. Tricycling has become popular with ladies and ministers and the number of three-wheelers is increasing rapidly. One of our pastors a while ago, learned to ride a bicycle, but declined to purchase, saying he had sufficient physical, but not enough professional courage to make pastoral calls on a wheel.

THE latest and best additions to wheeling, however, are a couple of tandems, and the owners are fast reducing their weights trying to diminish the number of lady applicants for the forward seats. President Hazlett gave his Columbia tandem a practical road test on its arrival last month; accompanied by ex-President Philbrick, he rode from Newburyport to Wellesley and return, registering ninety-four miles during a two days' trip and returned perfectly satisfied with this addition to his bicycle stable and with tandem locomotion and construction.

A RECENT wheel trip to Boston revived the incidents of many previous ones by the writer, but more particularly the first successful one in 1879, during the week that Messrs. C. E. Pratt, W. S. Slocum, and E. W. Pope were making over the same route, but in an opposite direction, the first American bicycle tour, as the descriptive report was headed, but priority was claimed and established by ex-Editor W. E. Gilman for his equestro bicycle excursion to the White Mountains. The riders of to-day have little practical knowledge of the advantages the inventors and manufacturers have in eight years given them in the way of light-weight wheels, frictionless bearings, pliable, powerful brakes, easy saddles, long handles, and all the accessories in the way of luggage carriers, and many little comforts that add so greatly to the enjoyments of touring. An unsuccessful attempt had been made on an English wheel, but its solid backbone, rear wheel break, under-sized and buckled wheel, turned the disappointed wheelman homeward after a few hours of hard work.

A FEW months' trial of No. 61 Standard had given confidence in American production, and, like Karl Kron, when he received the now historic No. 234 of the same make, felt that the millennium of wheeling had arrived. Even Wanamaker's artist evidently is of same opinion, for on his 1887 circular to L. A. W. members is a fair copy of the 1879 wheel, only we did have, at that early period, a spring under the saddle. We did not even dream that every part would be improved and lightened, and yet strengthened; that instead of stuffing the extra clothing around the hub, or strapping it like a knapsack to the shoulders or waist, or carrying it on an M. I. P. on the backbone of the bicycle, Lamson would invent for us a simple wire carrier; that Burley, Durvea, Lillibridge, Kirkpatrick et al would change the ill-shapen iron plate with thin pigskin covering to the adjustable, form-yielding saddle and spring of to-day; that the 16-inch handle-bars would nearly double their length, and our laugh at Papa Weston's cow-horn handle mania would dissolve into universal approval and adoption. Then our early suits! Well, we thought ourselves fittingly clothed in home-made, cut-off knickerbocker-; but when, by advice of the captain of the Massachusetts, we placed ourselves in the hands of the club's outfitters, what full-fledged wheelmen we were judged to be, and what guys we must have been to the non-riding public. Our white flannel shirts with wide collars were encircled with mammoth black silk handkerchiefs, as per recommendation in Weston's American Bi. Journal, and our limbs encased in ladies' stockings, for long thin ones for men could not then be bought at the Hub. We wonder where the Hawthorns of Salem obtained their yellow ones. Some wore leggings, and Juvenis was noted for his top boots. Close imitations of Parson's helmet were obtained, and the beanpots are still worn on trips in hot weather when comfort and not appearance is desired Attired as we were, and some of us mounted on bright vermilion or burnished wheels, it is no wonder that horses were frightened.

On the road, during the first years, we had to dismount much more frequently than at present, and until the novelty wore off, numerous were the runaways and claims for damages, which were sometimes paid, as it was not until the decision of Judge Clark, of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire, in the student case in the neighboring town of Exeter, in April, 1881, that we felt safe to resist. Then it was that the baggage-master was in his glory. Even before jamming his fingers in the spokes, his charge was often a dollar and a liberal tip for a fifty miles ride. Frequently carriage was refused at any price. The step mount with numerous kicks, and the backbone dismount were the proper and customary ones, for did not Chas. E. Pratt, A. M. B. Bi. C., decide for us in his book, the American Bicycler, that others were dangerous! Only a Pitman could do the pedal mount, and astonish us with a few A B C's of trick riding; and even he and his pupils could not do the standstill, or ride a single wheel. Pitman's best mile record, 3.43, was published everywhere. He claimed the Maine championship for two miles in 11.45, and might have New Hampshire's, where his record was 4.57 for one mile. When the writer was introduced to Parkhurst, of the Massachusetts Bicycle Club, it was whispered that he had won a mile race in 3.50½, and Agassiz then held the championship gold medal for one mile at Chestnut Hill Reservoir, in 3.21½.

The accidental meeting of old wheeling friends, while touring, is one of the delights the pioneers enjoy that cannot be fully appreciated by a novice. To be sure, nine seasons comprise but a short period of life, but we notice how the gray is appearing from under the helmet, how skating rinks have superseded bangs, and aldermanic forms patronize the lowly trikes in preference to the lofty wheels of earlier years. We failed to recognize in the sturdy riders of full-sized wheels the little Wood brothers that it seemed but yesterday were mounted on tiny youth's bicycles, spinning into Portsmouth in advance of the excellent road horse driven by their father on a days' ride from Beverly to Wells Beach. We found the builder and rider of the pioneer bicycles, the yachtsman and man-of-all-trades, A. J. Philbrick, puzzling his brains at Beverly to prevent his steam road tricycle from running away from him. We met the genial first secretary of the L. A. W. on his trike in Cambridge, and the happy, jolly Flanders, of Elwell's tours, who rode with us up the Kennebec, when Jack Rogers and Beckers, Fuller, and other more distant wheelmen came from the far West to sample Eastern roads.

But reminiscences of hobby horses are prosy and never ending, only let me add, we then considered every wheelman a gentleman, that perfect strangers were welcomed to our homes, and all the hotels, and even private houses were open to us while touring. The one boisterous, ungentlemanly wheelman or club that ruins the reputation that numerous well-behaved ones had established had not then appeared. In that respect only is a return of the old days desirable,—in all other ways improvements have been made. Leagues and clubs organized, and by them touring has been facilitated, and road rights established, and though but a few of us will be able to enjoy the wheel at Major Evans' octogenarian age, may the pioneers for many years to come note the improvements and enjoy the pleasures of wheeling and reunions, is the wish of TELZAH.

LONG ISLAND NOTES.

LONG ISLAND roads were never in better condition than at present, and every clear Sunday morning witnesses a steadily increasing throng of wheelmen on their way out the Jericho Pike to Hempstead, and beyond. K. C. W.'s, Brooklyns, Calumets, Hderans, Mercurys, and an occasional unattached Jamaican, make up the jolly crowds at dinner at Whaley's, the Stewart Arms, or the Sherman House, while not a few try to make up the balance due on their score of reverence by attending eleven o'clock service at the cathedral.

The riding east of Hempstead improves every year, and abounding as it does in stretches of fine, shady path-riding, is unequalled in my opinion by any straight-away run of the same length in this country. Good hotels at very short intervals, and the proximity to the ocean, lend an additional attraction to those socially or sportively inclined. The registers of nearly of these houses bear the names of many a wheelman, and none oftener than that familiar, though modest "A. B. B." at the foot or head of a goodly list of Brooklyn Bi. Club members.

Last Sunday's page at the Sherman House, Babylon, contained a commentary note, as pathetic as brief, opposite the names of several supposable delinquents, viz., "hocked out." We've been there.

To those of little faith in our roads, let me say that on a recent trip, myself and friend rode one hundred and eight miles in less than thirteen hours, and at no time were pressed to make eight or nine miles per hour.

I would like to say a word in reference to a very pretty ride, not mentioned in the road books, and in fact known to but few. I speak of the route to Port Washington and Sands Point, via road turning due north from churches at top of hill east of Manhasset valley; thence direct, following shore through village to the Sands Point hotel and lighthouse. Road good, especially after rain. Distance from Manhasset three and a half miles. Brooklyn riders should take first road west of Hyde Park leading north, direct (past "Success Lake") to cross road signs, turn right down incline to the top of short, very steep hill; turn left down hill direct to Manhasset; thence up the long hill to churches.

On Saturday, June 4, on the grounds of the Flushing Athletic Club, S. E. Gage, from scratch, won silver challenge pitcher, presented by R. S. Bowne, Esq., defeating J. W. Whitson, scratch, and Frank Bowne, 30 yards; Bowne (2); distance, 1 mile.

The Brooklyn Bi. Club are expected in Flushing on Saturday, July 2, and the Mercurys are preparing to give them a good time, preparatory to a joint run down the Island on the 3d and 4th.

All our acquatic, athletic, and gastronomic resources will be taxed to give them a properly seasoned taste of Flushing hospitality. No. 7556.

RHODE ISLAND.

THE annual meeting of the Rhode Island Division was held at the rooms of the Rhode Island Wheelmen, June 4th. Howard L. Perkins was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer. The Racing Committee was given power to conduct races at Narragansett Park in September, during the State Fair.

Voted, To make a trip to "Rhodes on the Pawtuxet" early in July, and also a trip to and out of Boston in August or September.

Voted, That the Committee of Rights and Privileges, and the Chief Consul be empowered to take measures to bring a bill before the Legislature, for the improvement of the highways of the State.

The following Committees were appointed to serve the ensuing year, viz.:

Finance: Chief Consul J. A. Chase, Pawtucket; Secretary-Treasurer H. L. Perkins, Providence; Geo. C. Newell, Pawtucket. Touring: L. A. Pope, Warren; Chas. H. Howland, Providence; H. L. Spencer, Pawtucket. Racing: Geo R. McAuslan, Providence; Chas. F. Gladding, Warren; Chas. H. Howland, Providence. Rights and Privileges: E. W. Blodgett, Pawtucket; A. H. Metcalf, Pawtucket; Jos. C. Ely, Providence. Rules: O. M. Mitchell, Providence; H. L. Dyer, Newport; Charles W. Greene, Warren.

HOWARD L. PERKINS,
Sec.-Treas. R. I. Division.

TENNESSEE DIVISION.

THE annual meeting of the division was held in the rooms of the Nashville Bicycle Club, Church Street, Friday, June 3, at 8 P. M. Mr. E. H. Wilcox, consul at Memphis, was present with his quota of proxies, as was also Mr. J. W. Sparks, Jr., consul at Mufreesboro. Mr. Robert Rodes of this city was elected secretary-treasurer by acclamation. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Memphis in September, when a series of races will take place, a tour be indulged in, etc. On account of the protracted rains, the centemplated run was abandoned. After adjournment, the invitation of the newly elected secretary-treasurer was accepted to refresh the inner man with ice-cream and cake and other good things. J. C. COMBS,
Chief Consul.

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 7, 1887.

DETROIT DOINGS.

THE Detroit Bicycle Club has secured new club rooms at 248 Woodward Avenue, and is furnishing them to the ideal cycler's taste. Touring wheelmen are invited to make these their headquarters while in the city, as they will here find a hearty welcome.

NEW clubs in the city are springing up like mushrooms, the latest additions are the Detroit Cyclers and Detroit Ramblers. The former is a junior club of fifteen members and officered as follows: President and captain, Geo. Hanley Jr.; secretary-treasurer, Will Traub; first lieutenant, Harry Nicol.

Officers of latter club are as follows: President, Chas. Kidner; secretary-treasurer, J. Bresler; captain, L. D. Munger; first lieutenant, E. Colwell; second lieutenant, H. D. Brown; private, P. E. Park.

THE Board of Officers of Michigan Division have decided to hold a two days' tour Meet on July 8 and 9. First day is to be at Ann Harbor, where the business meeting will be held in morning, and hill-climbing contest in afternoon. On morning of 9th, wheel to Detroit, thirty miles gravel road, arriving in time for dinner at Brunswick Hotel. Parade will take place at 2 P. M., and races at 4 o'clock. Moonlight ride on river in evening. Following day, wheelmen who remain over will have an opportunity of taking a spin on the gravel roads of Canada.

A GOOD story is told of Secretary-Treasurer Beal, of the Michigan Division, while attending the Meet at St. Louis. He was taking a spin on the road near Clarksville, and in fording a stream that ran across the road he struck a stone and received an unmerciful header, which landed him in the middle of the stream. Beal does not tell this to every one.

THEY have at last consented to appear and head our parade — the far-famed St. John's Bicycle Band. Ask Manager Rhodes if this is not so? Many wheelmen have the impression that these musical cyclers are a myth, and exist only in the minds of enthusiastic Michiganders; but this is not so, as it will be proved conclusively here on the Ninth July. The St. John's Band will be with us and the wind power of the tenor horn will be the envy of many an ambitious track man.

THE track at Bicycle Park, Alexandrine Avenue, is being rapidly put into shape to enable the local racing talent to get in condition. The Detroit Bicycle Club put all their faith in the coming races in MrF. X. Spranger, Jr. The Star riders are speaking of having Frazier or McCurdy here to uphold the honor of the lever motion.

ENGLISH TRICYCLE RECORDS.

IN the twenty-five mile N. C. U. tricycle championship contested at Birmingham, Eng., May 30, the following new records were made: —

	H. M. S.
21 — R. J. Mecredy	1.0.57 3-5
22 — R. J. Mecredy	1.13 22 4-5
23 — R. J. Mecredy	1.16.51 2-5
24 — F. J. Osmond	1.20.16
25 — F. J. Osmond	1.23.21 1-5

18 miles, 133 yds. was ridden in first hour, G. P. Mills leading.

THE BICYCLISTS AFLOAT.

ONE hundred and eighty members of the Long Island Wheelmen, with their ladies and friends, participated last evening in a delightful nautical event, which furnished a pleasing variety to the ordinary club run. A fine steamer with capacity for six hundred was engaged to carry the enthusiastic party around the harbor and up the Hudson by moonlight. Dancing to exquisite music during the earlier hours prepared a hearty reception to refreshments which were served later.

In spite of threatening weather for several days the evening was warm and the moon gracious. The start was made at 7.45 P. M., passing close to the "statue,"—which is never so lovely as when its illuminated form and beautiful pedestal are seen across moonlit water,—then proceeding up the Hudson. A return was made in time to see the harbor lights and bay to the best advantage. The yachts gathered for the races were anchored in the bay, and passing through the picturesque forest of masts, the wheelmen slowed up and enjoyed the romantic scene. An incident of this portion of the trip was a salute of greeting to Commodore Gerry's magnificent steam yacht "Electra" lighted from rudder to bowsprit with the electric glory from which she takes her name. The line of radiance extended over the masts, appearing at a distance like a great flame-lit sail. This excursion was an enterprising novelty for the club, and was in every way successful. The social committee inaugurated a series of informal summer entertainments with a "smoker" May 27. The resources of talent among the large membership of the Long Island Wheelmen furnishes abundant means for programmes of a varied nature, and the committee in charge of this important feature of club life are planning to present each month some attractive diversion for the members and their friends. BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 9, 1887.

JERSEY.

I LEARNED last week, too late to let you know, that the committee appointed by the officers of the New Jersey Division to make arrangements with the N. J. C. and A. A. for a race tournament at the Roseville track, in connection with the division Meet at Orange on the Fourth of July, had come to an agreement, according those who have been clamoring for a chance to win medals and glory so long, an opportunity. Captain Porter, of the Orange Wanderers, is the chairman, and can be relied on to push the affair to a successful issue. He will have the hearty co-operation of all the Jersey clubs, and the patronage of our New York and Brooklyn brothers. What the arrangements for the Meet are I have not heard. I suppose the festivities will be inaugurated by the usual business pow-wow, followed by dinner and a run, and wind up with the races. The quadruple attractions offered will no doubt call forth the attendance of a large portion of the members of the division, The run will probably, by reason of the large number taking part, be more of a parade than a jaunt. No one of the officers having taken upon himself to inform me of the arrangements completed or proposed, I am talking about the Meet largely on supposition.

A PRINTED notice of the regulation enacted by the Montclair township committee, prohibiting wheelmen from riding on the sidewalks has just reached me, and increases my indignation at the hoggishness of the hog who ran into the lady and then fled like a coward The editorial views expressed in the BULLETIN express mine exactly. It is unfortunate that the action of one black sheep should so work injury to a whole flock of pure and undefiled. Let this be a lesson to us. Wheelmen have rights. Let them be maintained. Pedestrians have theirs, too. Let us see that they are respected, and perhaps some day they may be as zealous in the preservation of ours as it is our aim to be of theirs. Let us remember that the sidewalk belongs to them, and that when we are on it, we are only there by courtesy. Ask a man to let us pass. If he refuses, dismount, but say nothing, for we are asking a favor, not a right. Let us think what we please, but say nothing. Above all, never ask a lady to move one step out of her way. A man who would not rather take the small trouble to dismount than inconvenience a lady, I have my opinion of, and it is not a flattering one either. Treat those who are unfortunate enough not to know of the blessings of the wheel with courtesy, and you will reap your reward. Last year, in Elizabeth, through the wild riding of some boys, there was complaint made against riding on the sidewalk of Ninth Broad Street. Foreseeing a possible universal prohibition, which would have been no joke, considering the poor roads, the Elizabeth Wheelmen passed a resolution agreeing to keep to the road on the street where the complaint was. Since then there has been no trouble, and nowhere is there a city where the rights of cyclers are more respected. Now there is not even a murmur of complaint, when a wheelman seeks the sidewalk on that street to escape the pitfalls laid by the water-cart fiend on the Belgian blocks. A little yielding, it may thus be seen, will work wonders for the common good. Paste this in your hat.

THE Orange Wheelmen are justly indignant at the reproaches heaped on them from some directions, charging one of their number with being the guilty one, and for their failure to detect him. A newspaper statement that the fellow was supposed to have come from Orange is the only foundation for this unjust abuse. They would be only too glad to find him out, that they might show what good citizens and gentlemen they are by assisting the authorities to punish an enemy to the rights of wheelmen and pedestrians, and a coward toward a woman.

THE Elizabeth Wheelmen will open their new club-house formally to-morrow night with a reception, and there will be a flag presentation, music, and singing, and some prominent citizens will make speeches. Among those who will be present are Chief Consul Cooley and Thomas Stevens, both of whom have been notified to be ready to make a few impromptu remarks. It will, of course, be too late for me to send you an account this week. It is one of my dreams that the time may come, when the BULLETIN will give us all the cycling news plumb up to date of publication. I think we would all be willing to abandon our present pretty pamphlet and and accept the less ornate, but more readily gotten out newspaper form of issue, could this end be attained.

THE New York Morning Journal, yesterday, printed over a column about a new bicycle club-house in Brooklyn. This is a good sign. Perhaps some of the seed thus sown in the garden of Newspaper Row may take root and bear good and abundant fruit in a more indulgent consideration for the news cravings of us cyclers.

VEGETARIAN BOWMAN, of the E. W., has returned from a recuperative tour a-wheel through the Berkshire hills, after his 1.40 in the big road race. He took the boat to Hudson, thence by train to State Line. His wheel carried him the rest of the way. He made his headquarters at Great Barrington for six days, visiting Sheffield, Egremont, Monument Mt. East and Prospect rocks, Mt. Everett, and Prospect Lake. His jaunts were taken in company with Atchison and Curtis of the Waterbury Wheelmen. At the end of his week he wheeled through Stockbridge and Lenox to Pittsfield, Within a half an hour after his arrival at the hotel, he was taken in tow by Consul Emory F. Hill, who is always on the look-out for roving cyclers, and escorted to the clubhouse of the Berkshire Wheelmen. A special club run was organized, and some twenty Pittsfielders showed him the sights and roads He is very enthusiastic about the courtesies he received at their hands. Then he met two Williams College cyclers and the trio started at 11 P. M. for Williamstown, twenty-three miles away, arriving there at 2.30 A. M., after a hard ride in the dark, on bad roads most of the way. The college boys did not let the Pittsfielders outdo them in hospitality, and dined the Elizabeth boy at one of the fraternity houses. At two o'clock the next day he started homeward, arriving at Four Corners, 28 miles, at 6.30, and went on to Hudson the following morning. He says he wants plenty of Berkshire in his. The vigilant hospitality of the Pittsfield consul should find more imitators. JER. C.

ST. LOUIS.

THE Missouri Club held a rattling business meeting last Tuesday evening. The club's connection with the Meet was thoroughly talked over, and with great satisfaction. Despite their efforts to spend all the money they could, there was still $100 remaining of its private entertainment fund. An art fund was immediately started, with the $100 as a nucleus, and the proceeds of the billiard tables, amounting to a round sum each month, will probably also be used toward increasing the club's already fine assortment of pictures and bric-á-brac. The club concluded to join the Western Lawn Tennis Association, and is also figuring on a bowling alley and a third story to the building. Eight actives and several associates were admitted to membership, making the present totals ninety-six actives and one hundred and three associates. The club has $1,200 on the right side of the ledger, and its income is now about $125 per month in excess of expenditures.

While the above-mentioned meeting was in progress, some one arose and complained that "everything that occurred was sure to get into the papers." Certainly it was, and who can tell where the harm lies in such a proceeding? Such notions are relics of old-fogyism, and the club members showed plainly that they thought so by laughing heartily. Unless the facts are garbled, the press has proven itself the best vendor of good news and the best cure for bad.

Presuming the above opinion to be correct, here goes. A proposition is under way, I understand, to elect the cycling editor of the Post-Dispatch a member of the Missouri Club. Long ago, in a few cases mentioned in these letters, the gentleman referred to did work a few facts into fault-finding squibs, and for this a number of Missouri Bicycle Club members, while admiring his occasional brilliant work for St. Louis cycling, have steadily sworn that he should never become one of them. I should think the offence of long ago could be overlooked. After that, old-fogy prejudice against the press alone remains. Weed it out of your systems, boys, and don't allow the errors of a fellow-worker to ruin his own social enjoyment.

I did n't intend delivering a lecture in lieu of news, but perhaps, like the Rev. Dr. Snyder, I can throw my remarks into the form of news. A few friends were recently talking over to-day's mile race, and doing a little betting withal, when one of them, just for amusement, offered to open a book on the race for their benefit. Somehow, the Spectator man got hold of the schemelet, and this week's issue contains the item, and throws in a little sermon besides. Open pool-selling on cycle races creates a sporting interest of very questionable value. I doubt if this interest brings desirable recruits into our ranks, if it brings any at all. But there is no good reason why the Spectator should have dragged before the eyes of his own family the name of a gentleman who indulges in a private bet with friends. A funny thing about it all is that many of the very chaps who do most of the howling against cycle pool-selling are dabbling heavily on this week's horse races at the Fair grounds.

St. Louis may well feel honored and the League happy by the acquisition of A. C. Stewart, president of the Missouri Club, as a member of the Rights and Privileges Committee. Mr. Stewart's connection with cycling is hardly a year old, but from the start he has shown a liberality and push hardly to be expected from a gentleman whose own profession takes up so much of his time. He is general attorney of the St. L. A. and T. Ry., and an able parliamentarian.

A man using the name Johnson, and claiming membership in the Philadelphia Club, now languishes behind the bars at Terre Haute, Ind., for stealing bicycles. By forging H. W. Belding's name to an introductory note he obtained the rent of a wheel from the St. Louis Wheel Company for a trip to Collinsville, Ill., ten miles away. On reaching the latter point he disposed of the machine for $20, and left suddenly. Under the same name, a few days ago, he borrowed a wheel from a Terre Haute, Ind., cycler, and took a little spin into the country. Some one smelled a rat, and a party of wheelmen mounted their wheels and set out after him, bringing him back to town and placing him in jail. By a coincidence, the city marshal of Collinsville was in Terre Haute at the time, and recognized Johnson. The latter had had his photo taken at Collinsville, and the picture had been placed in the hands of the St. Louis chief of police, who at once forwarded it to Terre Haute. The St. Louis Wheel Company have regained possession of the wheel left at Collinsville, and matters will be made very torrid for the thief.

Percy Stone will shortly accept Greenwood's challenge for a round trip race on the DeSoto road. He is now getting into good form and training lightly on a Victor safety. The race, which Percy thinks ought to be run in two weeks from to-day, will be for a stake of $100, to be given in the form of a medal or cup, if Greenwood wins and wishes it so.

The Sunday law goes into effect to-day, they say. I have n't had occasion to absorb liquid refreshment yet this morning, so cannot say whether it is being enforced or not. Lemonade is better anyway, — especially if the foaming beverage is n't obtainable. And while on the matter of temperance, it does one proud to know that, with two weak-souled exceptions, the recent League banquet was marked by the absence of wine, and there was a plentiful flow of wit and fun, too. This was rather a surprise to the Meet Committee, which had arranged to furnish the speakers champagne if they desired it. Intoxicants are not necessary at a wheelmen's banquet.

"The Critic," in the last issue of the American Wheelman, got himself into decidedly bad odor, particularly among Missouri club members. One of his assertions I am in position to deny emphatically, that the Meet Committee and the Post-Dispatch co-operated for the purpose of injurying the Wheelman's road race. "The Critic" claims that the Post-Dispatch's part of the work lay in running down the race generally, and the committee's part in keeping a number of visitors in the city and away from Clarksville on Sunday following the Meet. The claim is a slur at the committee, and is untrue.

THE Fair Grounds embargo appears to be non est, as Ally Stewart tells me he rode his wheel into the grounds yesterday, and meeting President Green at the horse races, paraded his fatted calves conspicuously before the magnate, The prodigal son of cycling is free then to return to the grounds and broad track; but we will have to use care.

TOM WHITE, the popular boomer of Quincy cycling, passed through yesterday en route from New Albany, Ind., where he has been since the Meet on —— business?

AB. LEWIS, Sec'y-Treas. Mo. Division, writes from Paris that bicycles rent in the French metropolis for the small sum of ten dollars per day. He goes to Switzerland next, then back home.

AN interesting mile race at Union Grounds, to day, was won by Harry Gordon, the final heat being run in 3.0 1 4. Saunders winning second. Quite a crowd of cyclers took it in. PHOENIX.

The makers of the Kempster rowing tricycle are making arrangements for a race meeting in which the leading oarsmen of the country will compete, using the rowing tricycle. If the Springfield track can be secured, the meeting will take place there. Hosmer, Ten Eyck, Teemer, Ross, and others have signified their willingness to enter the races. Hanlan and Gaudaur will also be produced, one as referee and one as starter, but it is impossible to get them to pull against each other. The oarsman sits on a sliding seat between the large wheels of the tricycle, his feet in the steering shoes, which act directly on the small front wheel. He grasps the oar handles on either side and pulls. The action is said to be an exact pattern of a shell.

MR. STEVENS, who held the long-distance record for the Missouri Bi Club last year, had his knee hurt some time ago, and has not been riding lately in consequence. A friend, who said he had a nice quiet horse, suggested that he take a ride with him occasionally, as there would be no danger with him. They started last week, and going down Benton cut-off the horse took fright and ran west on the Manchester road. Stevens' friend could not hold the horse, and Stevens was helpless, as he could not jump. Finally, with a crash, the friend was thrown out and the buggy overturned on Stevens who was dragged for fifty feet, when he managed to get disentangled, and as he stood by the fence trying to find out where he was injured, his friend came up and greeted him with, "I guess I'll ride a bike in the future." Neither was injured, strange to relate. — Spectator.

ENGLISH law courts at Liverpool have been interested in a breach-of-promise case, in which a tandem was introduced: —

A widower courted a widow, and, among other attentions, took her out on a tricycle. The novelty of spooning on a tricycle seemed to amuse the court; but perhaps it has occurred before, and been carried to a more successful matrimonial issue than was the case with the cycling widower, who subsequently jilted the cycling widow in favor of one who did not cycle, but had the more substantial qualification of owning a public-house.

BOSTON, June 11. — The first race of the Eastern Road Club was contested over the Dorchester Club course, on Saturday afternoon last. By the terms of the race each club was to be represented by three men, but only one club, the Dorchester, came to the scratch with this number, and it was finally decided to allow only two men from each club to start. Eight men started. P. E. Pratt, of Chelsea, took a header on River Street, about a half-mile from the start, and came back to the Dorchester clubhouse, where he was treated by the emergency corps, and, though out of the race, was able to take a spin. At the Hyde Park bridge Woodman led, with Doane close after him and Gorey third, as given by P. L. Coombs, the checker at this point. Bates took a header at Hyde Park, and injured his back and legs, but pluckily remounted and took another start. At East Dedham the men were in the following order, as reported by checker Drummond: Corey first, with Doane, Woodman, Gaskell, Rothe, Henderson and Bates close to him. At Needham, Gaskell ran into Rothe and took a hard tumble, but got up and tried hard to gain a point for his side, which would have tied the race with the Dorchesters, but was unsuccessful.

Woodman and Doane rode together until one mile from the finish, when Doane fell behind Woodman, who rode in magnificent shape, and had little trouble in winning the race.

The result of the race is shown by the following summary:

	12 1-2 Miles.		Finish.		Points.
	M.	S.	H. M.	S.
F. A. Woodman	44	30	1 35	30	8
W. S. Doane	44	30	1 36	00	7
W. Kirk Corey	44	30	1 38	00	6
Theodore Rothe	48	30	1 46	00	5
Herbert W. Gaskell,	48	30	1 46	30	4
G. B. Bates	50	30	2 7	30	3
H. A. Henderson	50	30	2 21	45	2
P. E. Pratt	..	..	.. ..	..	..

The club trophy was won by Doane and Bates of the Dorchester club, they securing ten points to nine secured by Rothe and Gaskell of the Boston club, their nearest competitor.

A protest was entered against Doane on the charge that he is a professional. The judges reserved their decision. Should he be ruled out, the prize will go to the Boston club. Individual medals will be awarded to the three first men in, and the winning club receives a challenge cup which must be won three times before it can be held permanently. The next race of the association will be run in September.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., June 13. Only three men entered the road race held here to-day. They were Wm. A. Rhodes, Horace G. Crocker, and S. F. Hollingsworth. Whittaker was present, but did not enter. Neilson was expected, but did not put in an appearance The times were as follows: 50 miles,— Crocker, (1), 3.34.55; Rhodes, (2), 3.34 57; Hollingsworth, (3), 3.35.0. 100 miles,— Rhodes (1), 7.0.57; Crocker, (2); Hollingsworth (3.)

THE first of a series of road races, given by the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, was run over a two-mile course at Bath Beach, L. I., on Saturday afternoon June 11. There were two events, Novice and Championship. The Novices started at five o'clock, the entries being as follows: W. J. Kenmore, Jr., E. Skinner, W. S. Mead, W. R. Snedeker, C. S. Harrison, L. Brunn, Geo. Bancroft, B. J. Kellum, A. S. Haviland.

Haviland took the lead at the start and held it for a half-mile, when he was passed by Mead who had the race until he fell at one-mile, and dropped out. Kellum took a bad fall near the start, but he pluckily remounted, caught the field and landed a winner in 7.48, with Kenmore second and Bancroft third, the rest close at their heels.

The championship started at 5.30, with the following entries: G. E. D. Todd, E. D. Williams, F. B. Hawkins, W. H. Meeteer, W. S. Vail, and F. B. Jones. The entire field kept well together until the turn on the homestretch was reached, when Hawkins, who was leading, took a header, which threw him out, and the race was won easily by Todd in 6.53; with Meeteer second, and Jones third.

Two more races are to be held at distances of five and ten miles. The men aggregating the greatest number of points in the three races, will be awarded the trophy.

THE Lynn Cycle Track Association held a meeting Friday evening, and the committee reported the Memorial Day meeting to be a grand financial success, and that it far exceeded the anticipations of the association. There will be a meeting on the afternoon of July 4, and the following events have been arranged: One-mile novice; three-mile professional handicap; two-mile tandem tricycle, amateur; one-mile run and ride; two laps for boys, which will be especially for boys between nine and twelve years; two-mile professional handicap; three-mile amateur handicap. The above races will be run under L. A. W. rules. On Saturday afternoon, July 9, the association will hold a series of sports, such as running, walking, jumping, pole-vaulting, etc., and suitable prizes will be awarded. This will be the grand windup of Fourth of July week.

A. P. ENGLEHART broke several safety records at Coventry, May 24, making best times from 5 1-4 to 10 miles. Times as follows: 5 1-4 miles, 15. 31 2-5.; six, 17. 46 2-5.; seven, 20. 49 3-5.; eight, 23. 468.; nine, 26. 43.; ten, 29. 34 3-5. Allard, Buckingham and Oxborrow were the pace makers.

A TEN-MILE bicycle race took place at Coventry, Eng., Saturday, June 11, between Woodside, Morgan, and Howell. At the end of the fifth mile Morgan retired. Howell won the race by a yard. It was a splendid contest.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

SUGGESTIONS WANTED.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE L. A. W.: —

THE special committee appointed by the Board of Officers at the meeting at St. Louis, "to consider and report the best plan or method for the reconstruction of the League Constitution and By-Laws, looking toward the better recognition of the individual and financial rights of State divisions," desires to announce that it would be pleased to receive communications and suggestions from any member interested.

The importance of the duty with which the committee is charged, renders it necessary that the general wish of the membership should be known to those directed to formulate the re-organization.

An expression of the views, opinions, and sentiments of our members in the different sections of the country, is earnestly sought, and all communications addressed to any member of the committee or to the undersigned, will receive proper attention and appreciation.

Yours fraternally,
CHARLES H. LUSCOMB,
Chairman Special Committee on Reconstruction,
280 Broadway, New York.

ATTENTION! PENNSYLVANIA MEMBERS.

THE half mile Pennsylvania State championship will be decided at the race meeting to be held by the New Castle Bicycle Club on July 4, 1887. Twelve races, including hill climbing contest on programme. For particulars, address C. L. White, secretary, New Castle, Pa.

ILLINOIS DIVISION.

CHICAGO, June 11, 1887.

NOTICE is hereby given to Illinois Division members (those particularly who reside on the line of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway), that those attending the Division Meet at Peoria, can secure a rate of one fare for the round trip, good from July 2 to 5 inclusive. Fare from Chicago will therefore be $4.35 for round trip. Hotel expenses will be $3.00; and sleeper returning $2.00, or about $10.00 will be the total expense for parties going from Chicago.

Chicago party will leave at 12.40 P. M., arriving at Peoria at 6.30 same evening. Those who wish to go on the night train can leave at 11 P. M., arriving at Peoria Sunday, 5.35, A. M. Returning, leave 10.45, reaching Chicago 6.25 A. M.

A NUMBER of prominent wheelmen, who, if they would, could assist much in making this Meet a success, are arranging to spend their holiday riding in Indiana. To those I would like to say a word: Peoria can be reached by the cars as easily, and with no longer train ride than it will take to reach the point in Indiana you expect to go to. As good roads for touring can be had at Peoria as in Indiana, to say nothing of the scenery, of which, Mr. Ayres says: "Indiana hath good roads, but she hath no scenery." — verily, 't is so. At Peoria you will find a lot of jolly good fellows, who will lay themselves out to entertain you, and above all you will attend to about the only duty the Division expects of its members. Attend the annual Meet. To those of you, particularly Messrs. Ayres and Ingalls, I say attend the Meet.

MESSRS. ROUSE, VAIL AND TRIPP, Committee of Arrangements for Peoria Meet, announce the following as an outline of what members attending the Meet can expect. The programme will be substantially as follows, though some minor changes may be made: —

SUNDAY, JULY 3.

Leave at 9 A. M. for Chillicothe, Ill., twenty miles by river road, which is a smoothly gravelled turnpike almost the entire distance, and runs amid fine scenery. Dinner at Will House, where a first-class Sunday dinner can always be had. At 2 P.M., another party will leave for Mossville, ten miles by the same road, where it will meet the Chillicothe party, and return via the Bluff and Mount Holly Road, where some of the finest and safest coasts imaginable are to be had.

Arrangements will probably be made for a moonlight excursion on the Illinois river and Peoria Lake in the evening.

MONDAY, JULY 4.

Business meeting at 9 A. M., at the New Peoria House; parade at 10.30 A. M., through the principal streets of the city and out a finely gravelled road to Prospect Hill, where a view of the Illinois River for forty miles can be had. Free picnic dinner at Prospect Hill. After dinner return to the city, where a Fourth of July celebration will be in progress. In the evening there will be a band concert of five bands in the Court House Square across the street from the club rooms, and fireworks upon Peoria Lake.

We have secured a special rate of $1.50 per day at the New Peoria House.

An invitation has been received to participate in the celebration at Morris, on July 4. This is respectfully declined on account of previous engagements.

N. H. VAN SICKLEN,
C. C., Ill.

VIRGINIA.

THE Revere House, of Harrisburg, C. E. Lupton, Manager, is hereby appointed L. A. W. Hotel from this date. Regular rates, $2.00; to League members, $1.50.

Tourmaster Wm. Lee, of Staunton, is now engaged in collecting and arranging material for a road book of the State. The fact of our having but fifty members in this State, makes it necessary that every local consul, and in fact, every member of the League should assist in this work, by at once forwarding to Mr. Lee, at Staunton thorough and reliable information in regard to the roads, distances, hotel accommodations, and other items of interest in their respective local ties. This is a matter of the highest importance to every member who desires to see our division flourish and grow as it should do.

Having been notified that our State is now entitled to a representative, Mr. N. B. Schmidt, of Woodstock, has been so highly recommended as an earnest worker in the best interests of the L. A. W., that I take pleasure in appointing him Representative of Virginia for 1887.

I shall be glad to hear from local consuls, and the members generally, as to their preference in regard to the time and place of the second annual meet of our division.

Fraternally,
J. C. CARROLL, C. C.

June 9, 1887.

HOTEL AT STAUNTON, VA.

PLEASE announce in BULLETIN for the benefit of the numerous tourists up the famous Shenandoah Valley pike, that the Hale House is the L. A. W. hotel in Staunton, the southern terminus of the pike, and not the Virginia Hotel, as erroneously stated in the Pennsylvania-Maryland road book.

F. R. WEBB,

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

(62) No. 12638 intends wheeling from Detroit to Belleville, Ontario, via London, Ont., and Toronto. Can any one advise him as to the condition of the roads? Would like company on the way, if any League member desires making this trip with him. Start from Chicago for Detroit by boat, July 2. Are there any road books published covering this district?

(63) WILL some member send me the BULLETIN of Jan. 22, April 6, and April 30, 1886? 10592. S. A. Smith, 24 Exchange Place, Boston, Mass.

(64) How is the best way to get from Wilkes Barre, Pa., to Bethlehem, Pa.? From Delhi, N. Y., to Great Bend, Pa., either via Deposit, N. Y., or Binghamton, N. Y.? 3284.

(65) WILL any one tell me if riding the wheel has a tendency to reduce superfluous adipose tissue? Ans. In our case it has done so.

(66) IT has been stated in the press that the Committee on Revision of the Constitution and By-laws was instructed to give a larger percentage of money to the Divisions. Is this a fact? Ans. No.

(67) No. 7949 would like to have a companion on a tour from New York to San Francisco, for pleasure. Start next season. Would like company for part of the way if not the whole. Correspondence solicited. W. F. Kelley, 193 Meadow St., New Haven, Conn.

(68) ANSWER TO 53. — Learn to avoid grasping the handles, but hold them lightly in the hands as an experienced driver does the reins. Also, accustom yourself to using but one hand at a time when riding at the ordinary travelling pace, as this alternation is an immense relief. W. E. GILMAN.

(69) I THINK L. A. W. 13383 can obtain a route that has been run from Providence to Boston in five hours, by applying to Chief Consul of Rhode Island. M. —, L. A. W. Address Dr. J. A. Chase, Pawtucket, R. I.

(70) IN answer to L. A. W. 10507, would advise him to ride from Williamsburg to Huntingdon; from Huntingdon to Lewistown, see road book; Lewiston to Selins Grove, about forty-three miles, roads in good to fair condition, country roads. Keep near the Sunbury & Lewiston R. R. From Selins Grove to Wilkes Barre — see road book, — via Sunbury, Northumberland, Danville, Rupert, Bloomsburg, Berwick, Nanticoke, Plymouth, Kingston, cross cinder path to W. B. From Lock Haven to Williamsport to Bloomsburg. Write to Williamsport Club, they can tell road to Bloomsburg, as they have ridden it. Write to Burt Voorhis, Chairman of Reception Committee, when they expect to arrive in this city.

Respectfully, J. G. CARPENTER.

(71) ANSWER TO 54.—The best route from Boston to Providence is via West Roxbury, Dedham, Norwood, upper road to Walpole; then straight to N. Attleboro and Pawtucket; from Pawtucket take East Avenue into the city of Providence.

L. A. W. 3703.

JERSEY-FITTING, SELF-SUPPORTING

BICYCLE STOCKING.

The attention of the Wheelmen and the trade is kindly called to our new Self Supporter Stocking, for which we have obtained Letters Patent June 14, 1887. The enclosed cut gives a correct description of this stocking and its design, and needs no argument to show that they are the best thing that has been made for holding the stocking in position. They are Ribbed, Jersey-Fitting, and very elastic, regular made, double heel and toes. The form and proportions of the foot, heel, toe, ankle, calf and leg are perfect, as represented in the cut, and there is no better made or better fitting stocking in the market. The part above the stocking for holding it in position is made of cotton or wool, thin or heavy, as may be desired, and comes up and fastens around the waist, same as tights, and holds the stockings where they belong.

Any infringement will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Price, $2.25; without double heel and toes, $2.00; or stockings without supporters, $1.50. Send us your order for either of these, with color, size of foot, and length from bottom of foot to waist, and post-office order for amount, and we will send same by mail or express to any part of the country; and if you do not find them satisfactory, return them, and we will return amount paid for them. Every Wheelman and Sportsman will give them his approval when he examines the Shoulders, Arm Holes and Neck, as they are made to fit. These goods are PATENTED, and all infringements will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

Made same as full tights, to three inches below the knee.

TRUNKS

Are a great protection to tights, receiving all the wear from the saddle, and can easily be removed, and thus save the more expensive garments.

Buttoned in Front, same as Pantaloons, without Certain Objections.

We offer them to the trade and clubs as SOMETHING NEW, and invite all to examine them.

LADIES' JERSEY FITTING TRICYCLE PANTS.

A NEW THING.

These Pants are close fitting, come three inches below the knee, are very elastic, and the most comfortable garment a lady ever wore. Made in Cream-Colored Cotton, Drab, Red, or any colors in Worsteds. Racing Wheelmen tell us it is a loss of fifteen seconds in a mile to have some slight irritation from a non-elastic pair of cloth pants.

Would like to have every Wheelman see these

A FEW INTERROGATION POINTS, GENTLEMEN.

Why be deceived by middle-men who call themselves manufacturers and are not?

If their statements about themselves are untrue, why not their claims regarding the merits of the wheels they sell, or rather attempt to sell?

Why be deceived by statements about records acquired on wheels so frailly constructed as to be useless on the road?

Is not the effort to associate the performance of one wheel with another, because only it is sold by the same middle-men, an effort to deceive?

Is it not reasonable to suppose that the buyer can get a better value for his money from the agent of the manufacturer than from the agent of the manufacturer's agent?

Is it not logical and wise to conclude upon a mount from the arguments and testimony of road riders who hold all the more important world's road and long-distance records, obtained too on American champion roadsters, rather than from the testimony of riders using 22-pound machines on specially prepared surfaces?

If you wish to be convinced, why not send a one-cent stamp for a special catalog of testimonials, parts, etc., to

"Let Others try the Experiment."

The Columbias have been subjected to the practical tests of ten years upon road and path; there are machines upon the market of limited age and claimed to be as good or superior to the old reliable Columbias; perhaps they are; it is n't for us to say. If the wheelman can afford to try the experiment, it's good for his education, and of eventual benefit to the Columbias.

For instance, for six years hemispherical steering-centres have been used on the Expert Columbia, and on the Light Roadster for three years, a pretty fair test that such an arrangement is the most practical. The ball-bearing head has n't been proved to be better, yet it may be. "Let others try the experiment."

It has been asserted that the various forms of safety bicycles will overrun both continents. For several years safeties have been on the market, yet their increase in use has not been noticeable. Ninety-five per cent of riders seem to prefer the crank machine. We manufacture safeties; if you desire one we should be pleased to have you try the experiment.

It costs considerable to make first-class machines; Columbias are first-class machines, and are sold at respectable prices; perhaps as good machines can be sold for much less than our prices. "Let others try the experiment."

It may be a paying investment for a wheelman to purchase a so-called first-class machine for a seemingly low price, and then again it may not be. The wheelman can try the experiment.

AND now secession is threatened by the California wheelmen, for the reasons set forth in the following extract from the Chronicle: —

"The bitter feeling aroused by the neglect of California's request for one of the national bicycle championships has been intensified by the action of the board of officers at their St. Louis meeting, on the 20th of May last, in throwing out on a mere technicality, the proxies of three of California's representatives. This last is particularly annoying, for the reason that the State's proxies were sent as a special compliment to the chief consul of Louisiana, and when he arrived he found the majority of them worthless, because the absurd objection was made that the bodies of the proxies were not in the handwriting of the officers signing them. There has been for a long time a growing disgust with the methods of the national organization, and it is pretty certain that it will take shape at the Santa Cruz Meet in a strong and determined effort to have the State secede, and form the League of Pacific Coast Wheelmen, including all the Pacific States and Territories."

Another grievance is stated to be the action of the Uniform Committee, who failed to establish a place of free delivery in California.

In the matter of the award of a championship, the Racing Board had all the applications before them, and decided by vote to refer all but one to the Racing Board of 1887. The Board was about to go out of office and they thought it no more than right that the Board which should be in power when the races were run, should allot them. In one case only was a championship assigned. The Wilkes Barre Bi. Club asked for the two mile championship for July 4, and as that was a very early date it was given them. Nothing in the application of the California Division, as it came before the Board, went to show the date of the meeting for which it was wanted, and the members had good reason to believe that the new board would attend to the matter much better than they could. In the matter of the illegal proxies the Californians can certainly have no just ground of complaint. The new rule was published in the BULLETIN, was discussed and harped upon again and again, and it is certainly no fault of the League officials that its provisions were unknown. California alone was ignorant of the rule, the only other instance of a rejected proxy on this ground being the case of a man who thought a typewriter signature would pass.

It is very much to be regretted that California feels as she does. We think she has little cause for complaint, and the boy who "won't play" if he can't be "it," never gets sympathy. California will gain little and lose much by secession, and we are in hopes the better judgment of the leaders of the Pacific coast division will come in to prevent any hasty or ill-advised action.

THE Massachusetts Club is No. 1 on the list of League clubs. When it disbands, the Essex Club of Newark will head the list.

WE commend to the notice of Mr. Bassett and the Owl, the following, clipped from the Philadelphia Item, and would suggest that they take steps at once to prevent the wicked Item man from trespassing and usurping the prerogatives which have always clearly belonged, exclusively, to the two first-named scribes; this is the item: "Pike County is not a bad place for wheelmen who have piscatory habits."— World.

Why do you carp at the weaknesses of these men, Mr. World? Why not mackerel good joke yourself once in a while?

IT is very comforting to read the virtuous indignation expressed by the St. Louis papers over betting and pool selling. If there is one thing more than another that the people of St. Louis detest, it is the betting habit. They never indulge in it themselves, and when visitors practise it they are shocked and the papers come out against it. We hope that St. Louis will continue in the path of virtue.

THE American Wheelman has already announced a candidate for the next presidency of the L. A. W. Its candidate is to be sympathized with, for the early candidate seldom wins. It would be as well to wait a while before predicting.

"THE Classic City Wheelmen," of Athens, has an ancient flavor. The club is located in Georgia, and is about to run a tournament under A. C. U. rules. If the club officials gave more attention to modern history and less to ancient, other rules would be employed.

IT is very important that those who write for a change of address should send us the old address as well as the new. Failure to do this adds very much to our work, and those who make the omission must not complain if their requests are not immediately complied with.

THE President of the Philadelphia Club asks us to correct an impression that may gain ground from the statement of "Phœnix," that a bicycle thief recently arrested in that city "claimed to be a member of the Philadelphia Bicycle Club." We doubt if any reader will believe this to be a fact. The thief told this story in order to gain the confidence of the owner, and this and many other statements were found to be false. The good name of the Philadelphia Club has been sadly misused, but we cannot believe that the club will suffer.

IT is no easy matter to make the hundreds of changes in our mail list that are called for each week, and we cannot well do it for those who go away for two weeks during the summer season. We will suggest to all such that two one-cent stamps deposited with their postmasters will lead to the forwarding of the papers, and save us two changes.

WE are having a number of requests from applicants for the delivery of tickets at once. They wish to get a uniform, to go on some tour, or to enter some race, and to await the regular course of things, will seriously inconvenience them. We beg to say that this office has no discretion in this matter. We are bound to certain rules, which we must follow. If there are privileges connected with League membership they belong to League members, and until a man has fully qualified he is not entitled to them. We are willing to accommodate new members, but we submit that their delay in joining cannot be laid at our door.

NEW YORK BOARD SPRING MEETING AT GRAND UNION HOTEL, NEW YORK, JUNE 15, 1887.

MEETING called to order at 8.30 P. M. by Chief Consul Bidwell. Representatives F. A. Egan, C. H. Luscomb, I. R. Adriance, Joshua Reynolds, A. B. Barkman, H. Greenman, F. L. Bingham, F. W. Loucks, W. W. Share, E. A. Bradford, K. L. Clapp, W. H. De Graff, E. J. Shriver, and N. M. Beckwith present.

Chief Consul reported progress. Secretary-Treasurer had no report to make

Mr. Barkman, Chairman Road Book Committee, reported some eighteen hundred copies of the road book having been sent out.

Mr. Luscomb, of Rules and Regulation Committee, reported that the future work of the committee would cover some amendment to the constitution and bye-laws whereby some committee should be brought about to pass upon the elections, legality, count, etc., at future elections.

Mr. Egan asked for information regarding the proposed State camp.

Chief Consul Bidwell replied that he had run against several snags in his endeavors to get the camp in working order; that it had been his intention to have a camp pure and simple, but the only apparently feasible thing offering was a camp one mile from hotel at Cooperstown, with meals provided at the hotel. The question was, was it feasible?

This opened a lengthy informal discussion, participated in by all present, and the general conclusion reached was it was not feasible, and Mr. Egan moved for this year that the plan for a State camp be abandoned. Carried unanimously.

Mr. Egan moved that a committee of three be appointed to make all arrangements for the annual meeting, to be called at some watering place. Carried.

Messrs. Egan, Reynolds, and Greenman were appointed.

The sense of the meeting was that the Meet should be held in September.

Mr. Shriver moved that the matter of discriminating lamps and bells ordinance said to be imposed on bicycles and tricycles by the New York aldermen be referred to the Rights and Privileges Committee to take it under advisement as to its constitutionality for a test case if necessary. Carried.

Mr. Luscomb moved, after considerable informal discussion of the foregoing matter, that the Rights and Privileges Committee be instructed to bring no test case until they are further instructed by this Board. Carried.

Mr. Shriver moved that an official notice be given requesting that any case of reckless driving on the part of wheelmen be reported to the Rights and Privileges Committee for their action thereon. Seconded.

Mr. Luscomb moved that it be laid on the table. Carried.

Mr. Eagan moved that bills of such amount as have already been presented, some $235, for expenses of "Wheelmen's Right's" bill at Albany be paid from the Division treasury. Carried.

Mr. Luscombe moved that the action of the Chief Consul, in engaging Mr. Potter as Counsel in the matter be endorsed by this Board. Carried.

Moved, that it is the sense of this Meeting that the Chief Consul is authorized to direct the payment of such amounts as may be necessary to pay the incidental expenses of his office. Carried.

A considerable informal discussion was held, regarding the condition of the Division finances, and possible chances of making ends meet. Some present thought that a popular subscription of $1 a member should be called. A motion to that effect was not carried. The meeting being called to order, Mr. Shriver moved: "In view of the extraordinary expense which the publication of the Road Book, and the work done on the 'Liberty' bill," has imposed upon the Division, the Chief Consul be authorized to call upon the members for a voluntary subscription, which was carried.

Chief Consul Bidwell read his Committee appointments for the year, as follows:

Rules and Regulations — C. H. Luscomb, K. L. Clapp, Dr. C. S. Butler.

Rights and Privileges—I. B. Potter, W. W. Share, Gerry Jones.

Touring — A. B. Barkman, W. S. Bull, W. H. De Graff.

Finance and Audit. — J. C. Gulick, F. W. Loucks, I. R. Adriance.

Meeting adjourned at 11.30 P. M.

Respectfully submitted,

E. K. AUSTIN,
Secretary-Treasurer.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CONNECTICUT DIVISION.

In complying with the rules of this Division, I am pleased to report through the medium of our Official Organ, the proceedings of a business meeting, which in number present, enthusiasm, and general good fellowship, surpassed the most sanguine hopes of those officially interested.

Hartford wheelmen were permitted to meet and welcome riders from every portion of the State.

Meeting was called to order in the parlors of the Hartford Wheel Club, at 8 P. M. June 9, Chief Consul Tracy in the chair.

Minutes of last annual meeting were read and accepted.

Chief Consul Tracy read a very interesting report from which the following extracts are made:

Little Connecticut still keeps up her good record. A small territory, and half of that practically unridable, we can yet boast of being sixth in numerical strength. The increase over a year ago, though not large, is still satisfactory. The number June 1, 1886, was 518, this year, 562. A gain of forty-four, or nine per cent. The distribution of L. A. W. members in this State, according to counties, is as follows:

Hartford County, 200; Fairfield, 111; Litchfield, 19; Tolland, 9; New Haven, 168; Middlesex, 35; Windham, 14; New London, 6.

The towns containing the greatest number, are Hartford, 136; New Haven, 55; Meriden, 55; Bridgeport, 39; Middletown, 34; Stamford, 30; New Britain, 24; Waterbury, 18; Birmingham, 16; and Greenwich, 16.

The present number of consuls is 40. Very few changes have been made, it being considered the best policy to keep a good man in office after finding him capable. The new consuls recently appointed, are for Meriden, W. H. Squire; Bridgeport, A. E. Culver; Stamford, Walter D. Daskam; Norwalk, Oliver B. Jackson; Danbury, L. L. Hubbel; Thomaston, Henry H. Teames. I would suggest that consuls display little more exertion in inducing all desirable wheelmen to join the division, and to also keep me more frequently advised of wheeling affairs in their respective districts.

The road book is something that has long been promised, and I am happy to state that it will be in a definite shape for publication by September 1.

Report of Secretary-Treasurer showing balance $294.59 on hand was read, accepted, and ordered on file.

Nominations for secretary-treasurer were then declared in order.

D. J. Post was nominated by Mr. Smith, and, upon motion, nominations were closed, and the chief consul instructed to cast the vote of the division for Mr. Post.

Mr. Post was declared elected.

Upon motion of Mr. Frisbie the Secretary-Treasurer was tendered the thanks of the division for efficient services rendered in the past.

Upon call from the Chair for report of committees, Mr. Huntington, in behalf of the Road Book Committee, spoke at some length. Barring any unfortunate delays, he thought the book would be in printer's hands by September next. He could not well estimate the cost, not knowing how the division wished it bound.

Mr. Frisbie moved that the sense of the meeting be taken as to whether it be bound in flexible leather or cloth.

The above, on motion of Mr. Davis, was amended to read as follows:— It is the sense of this meeting that the road book now in course of preparation, when ready for publication, be bound in flexible leather. Carried.

Mr. Calhoun, for Rights and Privileges Committee, spoke principally of a suit now pending in the courts, wherein the plaintiff was an L. A. W. wheelman and the defendant a doctor, the owner of a horse and dog cart, and the employer of a twelve-year-old boy. This boy, while driving said horse, ran into from behind, upset and injured both the plaintiff and his bicycle. Mr. Calhoun thought that with the united assistance of local wheelmen in securing evidence or points which would bear upon the case a victory could be won.

A resolution offering the sympathy of the division to the plaintiff in this trial, provided he was in the right and the injured one, was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Frisbie, in behalf of the New Haven Bicycle Club, invited the division to hold a fall meeting in their city.

A motion to accept the invitation was amended and carried as follows: — That the matter of holding a fall meeting be left to the Board of Officers, and in the event of their concluding so to do, it is the sense of this meeting that the same be held in New Haven.

The following resolution was then unanimously adopted: —

Whereas, At the annual election of this division, held in April last, our then chief consul, Mr. C. G. Huntington, who had served us faithfully for two years, positively declined re-election, this division fully realizing the comparative weakness of our organization at the time of his initiation into office and likewise realizing his untiring efforts in our behalf throughout his entire term, which has placed our membership beyond that of any other State of like territorial jurisdiction,

Resolved, That the appreciation by this division of the efficient services rendered it by Mr. Huntington, be recorded, and that the sincere thanks of the division be tendered him.

A vote of thanks was tendered the Hartford Wheel Club for the use of its rooms.

Adjourned.

The twenty five mile road race run in the afternoon resulted in a victory for L. A. Miller, of Meriden; Harding, De Blois, and Damery, all of Hartford, finished second, third, and fourth, respectively.

DAVID J. POST, Sec.-Treas.

ST. LOUIS.

The St. Louis Cycle Club, with forty eight members present, met at the Lindell Monday night, and elected C. H. Belden, vice-president; Mockler, secretary; and Hazard, treasurer; Walter Wylie, an ex-Rambler, was chosen captain; and Snyder and Gilmore will hold down the first and second lieutenantships. The club makes a flourishing start with sixty members, and Captain Wylie, who is a scorcher from away back, starts his men on the way to road fame by a run to Kirkwood to-morrow.

To-day's Spectator contains a two-column article, headed "A Reformed Cyclist," and signed "G. S. J." It treats of the experiences of a cycling novice, and is very readable to the general public. The gentleman writing it, Geo S. Jones, was formerly a country editor, but is now dramatic critic of the Post-Dispatch, and one of the best writers in the country. I doubt if he ever mounted a bicycle, however. The Spectator is a striking example of what "Jer. C." would call a newspaper missionary, and by means of its weekly half page of "Recreation Notes," and such articles as the above mentioned, not to mention frequent mention of the wheel in its "Town Talk," which is read by the best people of the city, has done much to swell the cycling ranks. To the Post-Despatch belongs the credit of pioneer work in this direction. Hicks and the Spectator, by the way, have parted company as far as the cycling editorship is concerned.

The recent trouble had by the St. Louis Wheel Co., is only one of a series of little "bouts" they have been having with bicycle thieves, road hogs, etc. Only a short time ago, Mr. Frohmann, employed by the company, was riding a tricycle on the granite, and in turning a corner was run into by a driver, who regarded the matter very carlessly indeed. It was only one of those wheel cranks, thought he. The company estimated the damage to their machine (Frohmann escaped), and sent the driver's employer, Anderson, a bill for $30.00, with a polite request to pay. Equally polite, he replied that he "guessed not." The company coolly prepared to haul him into court, kindly advising him from time to time how matters were progressing. This had the effect of opening the latter's eyes, and the company were not greatly surprised to see him come around like a little man and pay the bill.

I believe St. Louis and the outlying roads present a good field for the sale of the Rover type of safety. Percy Stone is doing good work on his Victor safety, and numbers try its powers on the asphalt almost every night. A couple of orders have been taken, and if Stone comes out all right from his struggle with Greenwood on the DeSoto road, that section of the country is likely to be the favorite riding ground for the safety men.

Captain Brewster makes the road department of the Missouri Club's business an interesting feature. He has three lieutenants, who alternate with the captain in taking charge of club runs, and each of them is expected to note carefully the statistics of the ride, and write as interesting an account of it as possible. These accounts are then read in club meeting.

A dozen St. Louis ladies, who ride tricycles, and in some cases own them, have a unique plan for a delightful vacation. They intend renting a cottage in Clarksville, convenient to the Mississippi river and the famous belt road, and will "play bachelor" in that cyclists' paradise from a day near at hand until the re-opening of the St. Louis schools. You may gather from this that there are school girls in the party. So there are, and pretty ones, too. They will do their own cooking and housekeeping while at Clarksville, and the young ladies, who have a wide acquaintance among St. Louis wheelmen, extend a general invitation to their male friends to spend an occasional Sabbath accompanying them and their tricycles about Pike county, and dining on the viands prepared for them by dainty fingers.

Frohmann, of the St. Louis Wheel Co., took some splendid photos of the League parade, catching at least a dozen views at different points. The Hong Kong Division, President Kirkpatrick, and others loom up in great shape.

A League pin, marked "Kerr, Cincinnati," and lost during the Meet, I understand is in the hands of a Clarksville wheelman. Ed. Clifford, at that point, will gladly answer inquiries.

An event which excited attention in athletic and general circles was yesterday's ascension of the World Post-Despatch balloon, which was to have landed in New England. The air-ship didn't get farther east than Illinois.

In error, Lin Gordon and Bob Lee were credited with making a tricycle trip on the DeSoto road, mentioned in last week's Bulletin. The three-wheeler has not yet ventured into that region.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

This quiet City of Churches, or Clubs, whichever you please, Mr. Editor, has not been heard from for some time, but during the interim we have not been asleep, I can assure you. Everything pertaining to cycling is booming. Clubs are growing, riders increasing, and while the Liberty Bill has been pushed, to give our fellow-wheelmen across the river and up through the State, their rights, we have been accorded all the privileges we desire without the aid or necessity of Legislative enactment. I said the clubs were growing! well, yes. The Brooklyns have nearly doubled their membership during the year past, and have moved into a commodious and comfortable clubhouse. The Kings County and Long Island Wheelmen are both erecting new houses, and have materially increased their membership, the latter having passed the hundred mark; the Ilderans have taken in the Prospects, secured a desirable and pleasant clubhouse, and now rank as one of the strongest and important clubs of the city, and the Calumets are reported as progressing most favorably. The great body of unattached never was so great in this town as at present, which means a good field for club men to work on, but what is still more gratifying is the great increase in the number of our lady riders, whom we now meet frequently, often in parties of several together.

The wheelmen of New York and vicinity, are fast becoming aware that Long Island offers some of the most delightful tours and best riding to be found hereabouts, and any pleasant Sunday you may find scores of them spinning down the Jericho Pike, bound to some of the numerous watering places, that dot the sea-girt shores on either side. On Sunday last, the Brooklyns, accompanied by a party from the Harlem Wheelmen, made the trip to Cold Spring and return. This spot seems to be seldom visited by wheelmen, and it is strange, as the roads are good, and the place one of the most beautiful and picturesque of the many pretty places on the North Shore. The Glenada Hotel down at the harbor, furnishes a good dinner, and if the cycler be weary he can enjoy a sail back to the city, on the boat which leaves from the wharf near the hotel, at 3 P. M. each Sunday afternoon. On the same day, other of the Harlem boys, with a delegation from the Citizens, made the trip to Babylon, and had dinner at the Sherman House, where they were joined by a party of the Ilderans, who were wheeling home from Pachogue, whither they had ridden the afternoon previous, arriving at Pachogue shortly after midnight. Accompanying this party of the Ilderans was a tandem tricycle the riders of which wheeled the entire distance from Brooklyn to Patchogue and return, nearly 140 miles, and have the honor of being the first to push a tandem that far down Long Island.

Speaking of pleasant runs reminds me, about two weeks since, a party, of which I was one, wheeled across Staten Island. We found that the roads for almost the entire distance, had been greatly improved, and the riding as good as any party of tourists, not scorchers, might desire. The scenery is wonderfully pretty, and the ride most enjoyable. Crossing from Tottenville to the old city of Perth Amboy, we went to the Hotel Central, and were served with as fine a dinner as a hungry cycler could wish for. The whole trip, roads, riding and dinner, far exceeded our expectations, and we have marked the date as a red letter day, and are shortly to repeat the run.

I am informed that the "powers that be" are at last making a pretension of fixing up the Eastern Parkway from Bedford Avenue to its end, and wheelmen may expect to find it in at least tolerable riding shape in a couple of weeks. The most direct route to Jamaica is via this road, and those who do go this way in preference to the Flatbush route will, I am sure, feel grateful for even a slight improvement.

The Board of Officers of the New York State Division, held a meeting at the Grand Union Hotel last evening, the Chief Consul and fifteen members being present. The members from up the State were conspicuous by their absence. Messrs. Adriance of Poughkeepsie, and Reynolds of Stockport, being the only out-of-towners present. Considerable business of importance was transacted. Among other things, it was decided not to hold a State Encampment during the summer, but in its stead, a committee consisting of Messrs. Eagan, Reynolds, and Greenman was appointed, to arrange for a three days' meet, at some desirable watering place or summer resort. The great expense to which the Division has been put, through the issuing and free distribution of the road book, and the expenses incidental to the passage of the "Liberty Bill" has nearly exhausted the treasury, and it was decided to ask for voluntary contributions from the members of the Division, to meet coming obligations. The amount required at once is about five hundred dollars, and I am sure the members will respond heartily and promptly when the call is made. The recent action of the New York Board of Aldermen, in passing restrictive ordinances on wheelmen was discussed, and the matter referred to the Committee on Rights and Privileges, for their investigation and decision as to its constitutionality. The Chief Consul then appointed the Standing Committees for the coming year, and the meeting adjourned.

The Liberty Bill, although it passed both the Senate and Assembly without any opposition, seems to have a hard struggle before the Governor. The opposition comes entirely from the city of New York, and was instigated solely by the Park Commission. At the hearing which took place on Tuesday last, a representative body of wheelmen was present, and their appearance must have impressed the Governor or any one else most favorably, as to the manner of men we are who now ask for what legally and rightfully is ours. Messrs. Potter and Pratt made a grand fight, and the Governor conceded all points except the wisdom of allowing wheelmen the free use of all the drives in Central Park, and on this little obstruction the fate of the measure is hanging. The Governor gave no evidence of which way he would decide, and while many think he is not inclined to favor the measure, some think there is an even chance either way, and others, and among them many of the knowing ones, are of the opinion that the Governor is too good a lawyer, and also too shrewd a politician, to antagonize such an organized body of workers as the New York State Division, L. A. W., by vetoing the measure. It took less than two thousand votes in this State to elect the last President. Can we control that few? Well I guess! and if this bill is vetoed, our friend D. B. H. will find in this Division the liveliest set of wire pullers he ever came across in his political career.

NEW ORLEANS.

The appointment of Chief Consul Hodgson of this State, on one of the important committees, was a fortunate stroke on the part of President Kirkpatrick, and this slight recognition of the South will not be without its results. It will (or should) spur the boys on to renewed interest and effort in League works. Aside from this, Hodgson is a valuable man in any position; thoroughly competent, and full of energy of the proper sort.

President Kirkpatrick also started off on the right tack by his early advocacy of better highways, and if he does not (and judging from the last Bulletin he will not) allow it to end in mere talk, then indeed, he is the right man in the right place, and the sooner the rank and file learn to properly support the move, and thoroughly understand that the betterment of our public roads is one of the chief and perhaps the grandest aims of the League, the sooner will the desired end be attained. The suggestion that one man be employed, who, single-handed, is to create an agitation on the subject throughout these whole United States would hardly work, as a little thought on the subject will show. One volunteer, who is heart and soul in the work in each neighborhood, will do far more good. Let one man be employed to direct their efforts, but for one man to arouse the whole country — oh, no! As I write, the thought occurs to me, that an organization modelled somewhat on the lines of the United States Signal Service would about fill the bill, — but this is not news. News, did I say? Well, well! let me see. Ah, yes!

Hello there! Tennessee and Georgia, sorry that any scribbling of mine should rouse your ire, for there was not the slightest desire on my part to pluck even a red bug from the laurels of your century riders, — but say — hello! keep out of there, exchange — I'll tell you confidentially the difference between your rides and the one we were to take. You got there. We didn't. Sh! not a word.

Now having quieted Georgy and Tenny, perhaps it would not be amiss to show the world that because one ride failed, we are not behind in the matter of century runs. Hill, Fairchild, and Fairfax, are three New Orleans-to-Boston tourists, each scored over a hundred miles inside of a day while on their memorable ride, and on the 14th inst., Bob Abbott, a member of the New Orleans Bicycle Club, rolled up an even hundred on the roads around this city. He started early in the morning and rode until nine o'clock, then went to his office and finishing his work about 2 P. M again took to his wheel and completed the first century run in Louisiana, in a trifle over fourteen hours, actual riding time. Abbott and Fairchild leave by train on Sunday 19th inst. for Baton Rouge, and starting Monday A. M. will wheel to this place, expecting to reach here the same evening, thus accomplishing another century.

Geo. Guerry is putting in some tremendous licks for the annual races, the date of which has not yet even been fixed. The early bird catches the worm; perhaps the early scorcher will scoop the medals; perhaps not.

Chief Consul Hodgson is still in the North, and will not return until July. He has forwarded a set of L. A. W. stencils and Abbott and Fairchild will resolve themselves into a committee of two and proceed to ornament convenient trees and telegraph poles with League emblems.

I dropped in to look on the lovely features of the Wheelmen's Record's festive bird, a few days since, and found the poor creature perched on a revolving chair gazing reflectively at its claws, which looked very much as if they had been dipped in scalding water. The whys and wherefores brought out the fact that Pelican had been riding in a short-sleeved shirt and the hot sun had burned and blistered his shapely (how's that Charlie?) arms from the elbow down, and to such an extent that the wearing of a boiled shirt was out of question, so as a compromise the bird strutted around the office in his jersey with its abbreviated sleeves. Notwithstanding this, Pelican has been actively at work, and has developed into quite an adept in the drawing of road maps. He showed me one of an almost circular eight miles stretch of tough roadway, locally known as simply the Shrewsbury roads; he, however, had improved it à la Clarksville, by labelling it "Shrewsbury Belt Road."

"Belt is good, Charlie," says I, "where'd you get it from?"

"Bet'cher life it is" says he, "Don't it belt your insides out in going over it?"

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

The proposed Inter-Club team race is the absorbing topic of conversation with most of the riders of Philadelphia, and the composition of the teams is already being conjectured. Richwine, Wells, Fuller, and Hill are spoken of for Pennsylvania; Osborne, Bush, Kelly, and, if he is home in time, Lewis, for the Philadelphia; Howell, Wright, Craven and Roberts for the Germantowns; Van Deusen, Dallett, Gideon, and Wright for the Tioga; Bailey, Fleming, Schaeffer, and Brown for the Century. Kolb, the track flier, is a member both of the University and South End, and may ride with either club. Geary, Keene, and Whittaker are also university men, and good ones, too. These are the conjectured teams which have the greatest semblance of probability, but of course no definite action has yet been taken. The greatest trouble will be in the selection of a road, as it is more than probable that the Lancaster Pike Company will refuse permission for any such race.

The Press strikes the key-note in last Sunday's issue, saying: —

"The movement which is said to be making to induce the League as a body to take an active interest in politics is likely to prove of great benefit to wheelmen generally. The word 'politics' in this association, however, has a different significance to that ordinarily suggested. It is intended that it should go into the field upon the plainly understood platform of 'better roads and paving,' and in order to be effective in this regard its efforts must be confined to local affairs, particularly in the matter of the election of members of councilmanic bodies and supervisors, or inspectors of roads. Their course will be to support no candidate for supervisor, or any one having jurisdiction over the highways who is not pledged to improve their condition.

"Small as might be the vote and influence, it is, particularly in close districts, not to be despised, and upon such a platform there could be drawn to its support many to whom good roads are as much of a desideratum as they are to wheelmen.

"It is only by some such concerted action as this that the efforts of the League for the improvement of the roadways will ever receive satisfactory recognition. The politicians who control the machinery of government in all its ramifications, recognize no claim that is not strong enough to assert itself at the ballot box, and will favor any class or organization that is influential in that respect."

So, with a membership now of over ten thousand, the League is worthy of the consideration of even the boodle politicians.

The track at Millville, N. J., has again resolved itself into its native oblivion, and will no more be the scene of wheeling victory or defeat. It has been entirely abandoned, and there is now but a beat of red gravel where once the fliers from Philadelphia and other villages scraped up the track surface and carefully deposited it under their respective cuticles.

PHACTOTUM.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

HARRIET MARTINEAU in her novel "Deer brook," — a book too little read, and undervalued even by the clever writer of it, — makes her plot turn upon the persistent efforts of Mr. Philip Enderby to marry Miss Ibbotson in spite of his mother's persistent efforts to prevent him. The tactics of the elder lady are bold and original. When she hears from her gossips the rumor that her son is in love with Miss Ibbotson, she pooh-poohs the statement with the utmost assurance, though she knows it to be true. When her son comes to her, and tells her he is engaged, she laughs in his face, and assures him he is mistaken. When he announces that he is going to be married, she tells him she knows better. When he writes a letter to Miss Ibbotson assuring her of his devotion, and begging her to pay no heed to the stories his mother has set going, the strenuous old lady gets hold of the letter on its way to the postoffice and burns it up! By this bold stroke she nearly wins the day, and makes her vaunting true. However, she is finally defeated, and the lovers are happily married in spite of her.

I AM reminded of this story in reading a letter from a young lady who has given me her experiences in combatting Mrs. Grundy.

THE old lady had obtained complete control over a maiden aunt of the young lady, and the greatest opposition to the plans for riding came from this relative. The aunt was a leader in the social life of the village, and society never drew the lines of etiquette tighter than it did in this locality. That a young lady of family should ride one of these affairs on the street was a thing too shocking to be believed. Mrs. Grundy went to the aunt, and the aunt denied the report. The young lady went to the aunt and confirmed it. The aunt laughed. The machine came home. The aunt was still an unbeliever. The young lady rode upon it. The aunt insisted that it was not to be permanent. To make a long story short, the young lady persisted, and now she rides with the full approval of those who once scoffed at the idea.

HER success is to be accounted for by the fact that she rode in a very becoming and ladylike way, and there was nothing in what she did to give rise to unfavorable comment. Everything depends upon the pioneers. I have had reports from two cities, at least, where I am told that the ladies do not ride, simply because contempt has been brought upon the sport by the unbecoming dress, the poor machines or the unladylike conduct of those ladies who first took it up.

SUCH a state of things is to be very much regretted. It comes like a shower bath to cool the ardor of would-be riders, and make them pause. There is no good reason why a lady should forget her sex in this amusement. There are very many lady-riders in Massachusetts and elsewhere who bring to wheel all the natural grace and beauty that woman is endowed with, and to see whom on the wheel is a positive pleasure and a source of great temptation to those of our sex who are hesitating between to ride or not to ride.

IN the issue of the Daughters of America for May, appears a very interesting illustrated article on "Tricycling for Women" by Charles Richards Dodge. I have read this with no little pleasure. It is one of many articles on this subject, which have seen the light in the lay press during the last six months. Can it be that what the world calls a "boom" has come down upon us at last?

SEVERAL years ago, when the roller skating was at its height, a select company of ladies in a suburban place made an arrangement with a rink manager by which they were allowed to use the rink during the forenoon. They were enabled thus to enjoy their sport in privacy, and many a pleasant forenoon did they spend together. I have thought that it would pay some shrewd agent to employ some such plan as this in a rink or on a track, where ladies could take their first lessons in riding.

WORD comes across the water regarding a ladies' tour in Ireland, from Dublin to the Lakes of Killarney. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wilson (Faed) and Mr. and Mrs. George Moore, will be with the party. It is announced that the daily journeys will be short, and will be determined according to the wishes of the riders. Good luck be with the party, may the clouds withhold their moisture, and none but favoring breezes attend.

DAISIE.

THE OWL.

MANY times have I heard a certain class of wheelmen inquire, "Of what use to me is a wheel paper?" To argue or comment on the questions of such people is, of course, useless, yet the cycling journal is a necessity with all wheelmen who would keep abreast of the sport, and profit and learn by the experience of others. But what is a wheel paper? It is, or should be, the chronicle of all wheel affairs of a public nature. The news, as well as the reading matter, should be condensed. It is the business of the editor to edit everything going into the paper, so as to take out the trash, and the surplusage, leaving only the facts. It is better that the editor take time and cut down the articles, than that his readers shall each consume time reading more than is necessary to get at the facts. This is a business age, and wheelmen, as a rule, don't care about reading just to be reading. What they want is the facts, and in as few words as they can be intelligently put. This is the plan now pursued in the issues of the BULLETIN, and readers should look upon its condensation as an improvement, and not a retrogression. It becomes the old question of quality versus quantity. Every wheelman, then, who is interested in the L. A. W. or cycling, should read and support the journals devoted to the cause, and the result will be, better papers, and more enlightened and increased enjoyment of the pleasures of cycling, by those who read.

WILLIAM WOODSIDE is no porker, if he does eat corn. When he picks up a hot potato he instantly drops it without waiting to be told to let go. When he has no umbrella, he gets out of the wet; hence, when Howell has beaten him in each of three races, he has "Senator" Morgan announce that he is in the doctor's hands, under treatment for enlargement of the gall, or some other equally prominent professional complaint. It won't do, Woody! Too much gall, and a superfluity of wind, have always been two of your most prominent possessions, and if they could in any way affect your winning, you never would have won a race, my boy.

A PROMINENT wheel manufacturer, being one evening at a spiritualistic seance, embraced the opportunity to endeavor to get an endorsement of his latest production, a safety, from residents of the spirit land. Handing the medium the request, and a five dollar bill, the latter "simply as an evidence of good faith, and not for publication," as we of the press put it, the medium, under the combined influence of the spirit of a departed wheelman, and the five dollar bill, wrote the following:

My dear Sir, — I had ridden your Safety for a short time prior to my taking up my residence here; in fact, I may say that a header taken from it was the prime cause of my present elevated residence; such being the case, I feel no hesitancy in saying that I will never use any other make.

Respectfully, A. G. HOST.

Now the manufacturer is trying to discover whether this is much of an endorsement, after all.

DESPITE all of the reports to the contrary, by my well-informed brethren of the cycling press, the only reason I was not at St. Louis was owing to a severe illness on my part, an acute attack of pecuniary pneumonia, alone prevented me from enjoying the hospitality of St. Louis, which has gone into history as unequalled, as far as the L. A. W. is concerned. Since the League has been in existence, few annual Meets have found me absent, and as souvenirs of these pleasant gatherings, I possess a complete set of menus of the banquet, from the beginning of the organization, discovering I could not be present in St. Louis, I stated the case to Dr. H. H. Keith, Chairman of Banquet Committee, and to-day, finds me, through his kindness, the owner of the finest and most appropriate menu of my collection, for which my sincere thanks are tendered the Doctor.

I AM not wont to twang upon the tuneful lyre, but did my ability tend in that direction, I should consider life a dreary waste until I had mastered the tuneful measures of the Scranton Club's Bicycles waltzes, a copy of which, with the compliments of the author, Mr. George N. Rockwell, now occupies a place of honor upon the music rack in my den.

HORACE SNODDERLY, of the Capital Club, as a trick rider, is in many of his most difficult feats unequalled by any of the professional fancy riders I have ever seen. I saw him the other day allow his hands to be tied behind his back, and while in that condition, mount and ride a single wheel, with everything but the pedals removed from it. There may be more difficult feats possible, but I cannot conceive of them.

SOME cities are generous to cyclists. Knoxville Tenn., is one of them. A year ago the Knoxville Bicycle Club was organized, and to day its fifty-nine members are completing a four-lap clay track, upon land set apart for that purpose by the city. What a lesson is there here for the New York Park Commissioners!

"How that stocking does remind me of the death of Jepthah's daughter," remarked the old member as he ran his fist through a hole in one of his riding stockings. "How so?" queried the "gay member." "Because it is a sock orifice," brazenly answered the "old member."

THE American Wheelman predicts that Chief Consul George R. Bidwell will be the next president of the L. A. W. This goes to show that the A. W. knows a good thing when it sees it, but to print such a prediction as news, would only be equalled by its making the equally startling one that the sun would rise to-morrow. Both are sure.

THE petition presented by the New York delegation on Tuesday, at their hearing before Governor Hill, contained twenty-five thousand names, and was two hundred and thirty feet long. The petition was thus proportionately as long as the grievances of the wheelmen, which the petitioners asked the Governor to remedy by signing the bill, thus making it a law.

A WESTERN wheel paper has an article headed "A talk about gas wells." The title is deceptive, seeing it in a wheel paper one naturally expects it to be a chat about professional racing men, but it isn't.

THE OWL.

HEARING AT ALBANY.

TUESDAY, June 14, was the day set down for a hearing by Governor Hill of New York, to those interested for and against the Liberty Bill. Thirty minutes time was given to wheelmen in which they were required to present their case, and I. B. Potter, of Brooklyn; Chas. E. Pratt, of Boston; and Chas. H. Luscomb, of New York, were selected to do the talking.

A large party of wheelmen was in attendance: Messrs Geo. R. Bidwell, E. J. Shriver, Dr. Rasbeck, W. H. P. Veysey, C. K. Alley, Elliott Mason, and George M. Nisbett went up from New York; Joshua Reynolds went from Stockport, and many Albany wheelmen were present.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Scott opened fire on the bill by saying that while affecting all the roads, highways, and public thoroughfares in the State, its main object was to deprive the Park Commissioners of New York of power to regulate the use of bicycles and tricycles in Central Park. It would compel them to admit bicycles in the Park just as carriages are admitted, and would be a serious attack upon the power of local officials. Mr. Scott in a facetious strain spoke of the danger an inexperienced wheelman would create in a crowded Park drive. The safety of other patrons of the Park demanded, he said, that the use of bicycles be regulated, and it was wrong to take away from the Commissioners all power to do so. The bill was crudely drawn. Under it no restraint could be put upon the use of junk carts, wheelbarrows and baby carriages, even in the streets

"Can't baby carriages go in the street now?" asked the bachelor Governor in surprise.

"It is very doubtful," replied Mr. Scott, with a smile.

Park Commissioner Crimmins objected to the bill in a moderate way. He said the Board had given wheelmen extra privileges, and was willing to oblige them in every way consistent with public safety, but he did not propose that it should be made compulsory to do so without protest. Mr. Crimmins presented a petition against the bill containing the signatures of over seven thousand prominent citizens of New York. Among the signers were Chauncey M. Depew, Roscoe Conkling, August Belmont, Leonard Jerome, Lawrence Jerome, Addison Commack, D. F. Appleton, Cornelius N. Bliss, Sidney Dillon, B. H. Bristow, Jordan L. Mott, and D. B. St. John Roosa.

Mr. I. B. Potter, of New York denied that the main object of the bill was to capture Central Park. It was to protect cyclists from the insults and assaults of brutal drivers, who often force them to the gutter and strike them with their whips. Under the present law the wheelman has no redress. The bicycle has no right on a public thoroughfare, there having been passed years ago a statute forbidding the use of velocipedes on public thoroughfares. The present bill says that bicycles and tricycles shall be regarded as vehicles, and gives their riders the same rights and privileges and no more than are enjoyed by men sitting in vehicles drawn by horses. This act of justice was demanded by a hundred thousand young men. No accident has ever occurred through a bicycle in Central Park nor on Fifth Avenue, where they are used a great deal. The commissioners of many other cities did not object to their free use in the parks.

"But the Central Park Commissioners have the right to keep out grocery carts and four-in-hands," said the Governor. "The simple question is, would you deprive them of that right?"

"Yes," was the answer, "if the people through its Legislature said it should be done."

Mr. Charles E. Pratt also made an eloquent plea for the bill, and cited ancient history to show what difficulties were encountered two hundred and fifty years ago by owners of carriages in securing recognition and rights on the highway of Bonnie England. Both he and Mr. C. H. Luscomb laid great stress on the point that the park is paid for by the people and is not for the sole enjoyment of the rich or of those who can afford to ride in carriages.

Senator Parker, of Albany, presented a petition for the bill signed by thirty thousand citizens. Then Deputy Secretary of State Willers protested in the name of the patrons of husbandry of Seneca county and the hearing was closed.

THE PRESS AND HALF HOLIDAYS.

SATURDAY, from twelve o'clock noon, all the year around, is a legal half holiday within the State of New York. No other State has as yet framed a similar law, yet the majority of business houses in every large city throughout the country voluntarily close their doors Saturday afternoons during the summer months, and many of them during a part of the spring and autumn, and some throughout the entire year, and a very large proportion close an hour or so before six o'clock on the first five week days. To the progressive press of America is due in very large measure the establishment of the unquestionable benefit to business, professional and working men and women. For years back the press has continually pounded at this subject, until it became generally admitted that the granting of such a privilege does no injury to trade, but rather, by its beneficial effect upon the general business and labor health, tends to clear-headedness and renewed working vigor, which more than pays for the loss of time. To a Boston business house, as well as to the press, is undoubtedly due, in a measure, the present general adoption of a half holiday. Last autumn the Pope Manufacturing Co., of that city, foresaw the coming movement in this direction, and before the winter's frost was out of the ground, was using such opportunity as an honorable means of advertising its bicycles and tricycles by flooding the country with a beautiful lithograph for display in door, window, and office, announcing that "this store closes" Saturdays and other days at stated hours, which undoubtedly did very considerable towards agitating this popular movement. The company has announced, through the press of America, that it will send one of these cards free to any early closing store on receipt of a two-cent stamp to pay postage. This is, perhaps, the first instance of philanthropic advertising on record. — Journalist.

MICHIGAN.

EAST Saginaw Bicycle Club's neat invitation to their race meet on Fourth of July has just come to hand. A hearty welcome and glorious time awaits all those accepting.

THERE is a laudable rivalry between Ann Arbor and Detroit as to which shall do most for the wheelmen on July 8 and 9.

THE programme of the Michigan division meet is to be as follows: — At Ann Arbor, July 8: In morning, business meeting of division members. In afternoon, road race and hill-climbing contest. Banquet in evening. At Detroit, July 9: Wheel from Ann Arbor in morning, arriving at Detroit at noon. Dinner at Brunswick Hotel. Parade at 2.15 P. M. At 4 P. M., races under auspices Detroit Bicycle Club at Bicycle Park. In evening, moonlight ride on river, when lady friends of the Detroit wheelmen will assist in entertaining the visitors.

A GOOD joke is now going the rounds among Detroit wheelmen. A prominent member of the Star Club offered a medal for a road race from Grand Circus Park to Grosse Pointe, a distance of eight miles, two miles of which is over rough cedar block pavement. "We will beat them (referring to ordinary riders) over the pavement, and have a good start ahead on the gravel," remarked one of the intending Star racers. The route was thought to be particularly suited to the Star wheel, and that the medal was a sure prize for a Star club member. A challenge also appeared in one of the cycling papers that no member of the Detroit Bicycle Club could make the time over this route that the Star riders had, and that no "ordinary" rider had ever done so. The defeat now turns out to be threefold. First. The ordinary riders reached the gravel stretch first. Second. Mr. George Lane on a Rudge made the run in thirty-four minutes, beating all Star competitors. Third. Mr. Lane is a member of Detroit Bicycle Club.

MASSACHUSETTS ROAD BOOK.

EDITOR BULLETIN: May I suggest, through the columns of the BULLETIN, to the division officers that the publication of the division road book be postponed until next spring, so as to include all the necessary changes, that the book may not only be complete, but also published in time for the touring season.

The riding season is now so far advanced that the book will not be much missed by those who have been riding for several months, and who have already made preparations for touring without its aid.

THE BOOK "ON APPROVAL" TO LEAGUE MEN.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — The statement of my indebtedness for the manufacture of "X. M. Miles," which was this day handed to me by the treasurer of the Springfield Printing Company so much exceeded the estimate I hoped for, that it raised the total of my advance cash outlay for the book to $6,138. Thus, even with the usually large edition of 6,200 to "reduce the average," the actual first cost to me of the volume will equal the subscription price, — and the cost of delivering the copies at that price will put me out of pocket for every volume delivered!

Hence, as shown by my statement in your advertising columns, I ask any one who wants his pledged-for copy sent to a town where I have no distributing agency, to add twenty cents for postage and packing when he remits me the promised dollar. Preferably to this, however, I should be glad to send with each sub. copy an extra one for possible sale at the full rate of $2, since I can forward two books nearly as cheaply as one. In non-depository towns reached by the Adams and American expresses, I will send two books "on approval" to any two League members who wish to examine. If they fail to purchase, the cost of a week's use of the book will only be fifteen cents.

I now expect to get my Boston and Philadelphia boxes delivered in those cities on the morning of June 25, — a month from the day the last page of book was printed. During the present week, I've sent out 966 volumes, making a total of 2,414 now distributed. I hope to start back for New York by wheel on Saturday next, and really begin work.

LEAGUE FARMS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I wish to bring to the notice of all members of the L. A. W. that I am now prepared to furnish all League members with a genuine Minnesota farm. These farms are all of the celebrated deep black soil, of the Minnesota prairies, all arable land, free from stones and hills, all bearing the symbol of the L. A. W. raised in the earth in the centre of each farm.

This will be the chance of a lifetime for all poor cyclers to secure a spot of ground they can call their own, and which they can settle down upon at any time they choose to leave the toil and care of city life, and give themselves up to the quiet contentments of a life of husbandry.

These farms will be sold to League members only at the extremely low price of $1.50, and sent to any part of the country securely packed in a tin box suitable for carrying in the pocket.

I have also on hand a few Minneapolis corner lots, securely put up in air-tight cans, and also bearing the L. A. W. symbol. This gives League members a chance to speculate in real estate at no risk, and without leaving their homes. Sent to any part of the world by mail or express at $2 per lot.

In addition to the above, I expect, in the near future, to start the manufacture of an L. A. W. dish towel, which all female cyclers should immediately possess. We are also endeavoring to arrange for the manufacture of an L. A. W. liver pad, and several other articles equally indispensable to all League members, and we trust that the army of wheelmen who enrol under the banner of the League will nobly come to the rescue, and allow us to reap the benefit from their noble devotion to the cause; and hope that this endeavor to use the League as a means of individual profit will not be misconstrued, but will be set down to our interest in League affairs, and an earnest wish on our part to help the members of this organization to permanent benefits.

AN important suit has been brought in the New Jersey Court of Chancery by Benjamin B. Peale, a Camden lawyer, on behalf of George W. Pressy of Hammonton, Atlantic county, against Senator H. B. Smith of Smithville, Burlington county. Mr. Pressy, who claims to be the inventor and patentee of the American Star bicycle, sues for a royalty on every machine now in use. Senator Smith is the manufacturer of the Star bicycle, and his extensive works at Smithville furnish employment to several hundred hands. The result of the suit is of interest to every owner of a Star bicycle. — Ex.

JERSEY.

THE house-warming reception and pow-wow of the Elizabeth Wheelmen, on last Tuesday night, was a success of the biggest kind. The little house was tastefully decorated, and was filled to over-flowing with the beauty and élite of the city, and all that sort of thing, of course. The Amphion Instrumental Society scraped beautiful melody out of their fiddles and banged it out of the piano, while the Schubert Vocal Quartette warbled its sweetest notes in honor of the occasion.

THE speeches, however, were the features of the programme. Rev. C. E. Cunningham, one of the Clerical Wheelmen tourists, pictured appetizingly the delights of the wheel, and argued for it as an agent for good, both moral and physical.

TOM STEVENS, the around-the-world man, was the honored guest and lion of the evening. His impromptu chat bristled with telling points both humorous and sarcastic, that convulsed the audience, while the unaffected modesty of his demeanor won the hearts of all. His greeting both before and after his talk was most cordial.

CHIEF CONSUL J. H. COOLEY had something to say about the extent of the League, and its work in the State for wheelmen, also some few St. Louis incidents that were decidedly personal, and made Ex-Chief Consul Brown wince not a little.

DR. BROWN, after he had been soothed by music, recovered his composure sufficiently to defend himself gracefully and humorously and at the expense of the Chief Consul.

AFTER the speeches, the guests were corporeally refreshed, and lingered for an hour or more admiring the pretty pictures and fittings, while the boys sowed the good seed on much ground that may not prove barren. Later in the evening President Clapp entertained Tom Stevens and a number of the boys at his residence. The whole affair reflected great credit on the club, and accomplished some good missionary work.

REPRESENTATIVE WRIGHT, of the Committee on the Fourth of July State Division Meet at Orange, and races at Roseville, sends me some information as to what is being done. The committee consists of A. J. Wright, Montclair Wheelmen; L. H. Porter, Orange Wanderers; and F. A. Kinch, Union County Wheelmen. Captain Porter, on behalf of his club and the executive committee, has charge of the arrangements for the Meet, run, dinner, etc., in the morning. Have not heard from him of his plans yet, though he writes me that clubs desiring to secure seats together at the races, can do so by addressing him, care of Henry Holt & Co., publishers, New York Chief Consul, J. H. Cooley, will be referee; and ex-Chief Consuls E. W. Johnson and G. C. Brown, and Representative Sanger, the judges. In addition to the programme published, the races will include a one-mile championship of the Plainfield Bicycle Club. It is expected that the entry list will be a very big one, as the racing enthusiasm hereabouts has been so long bottled up that it is seeking a vent. As to the attendance at the Meet, it should be large, as there is the dual advantage of the races, and the day being a holiday.

THE Plainfield Bicycle Club expect to have a big turnout of members at Orange, as a club run has been called. The club is to be no longer unknown in road racing, as it will have a sixteen-mile contest of this class over the New Brunswick road on July 25.

THE new club house of the Union County Wheelmen, is completed, and the work of interior decorating and furnishing is being pushed forward rapidly. The formal house warming will not occur until fall.

THE lantern parade of the Passaic County Wheelmen was, artistically, a great success, and was witnessed by a large crowd of enthusiastic spectators. Forty wheels were in line, embracing representatives from the Orange, Newark, Brooklyn, Rutherford, and New York Clubs. Representative W. B. Banker won admiring plaudits by displaying an illuminated star (the heavenly body, not the machine this time), while Captain Pugh led the line with a skeleton umbrella above his head, from the ribs of which hung lanterns.

THE Elizabeth Wheelmen now have eleven lady members, with another candidate to be voted on at the next meeting. There are fully twenty tricyclinennes in the city, and the boys have hopes of, before long, bringing them all within the fold, and by "fold" I, of course, mean "flock," and not the active runs, much as the gallant and affectionate boys might desire it. A DOGGED RIDE.

A PARTY of bicyclists, consisting of Messrs. Alex. Lewis, Klipstein, "Shark" Andrews, Hawkins, and a Post-Dispatch reporter, had an unusual experience Sunday. They started in the hot sun about ten o'clock for Florissant, seventeen miles away. As they swung into the Olive street road, just west of Grand Avenue, a large, muscular greyhound, belonging to S. Plant of 3,647 Washington Avenue, came in from a side street. The wheelmen were moving along slowly and the dog eyed them a moment, as if thinking, "Now, I wonder if those fellows can make the trip interesting for me. If they can I guess I'll join 'em." The observation evidently satisfied him, for he came tearing along, caught the leader and loped along ahead. Several of the boys spurted with him, but the long legs ate up the road, and at the top of the first long hill the greyhound stopped and looked back as if to ridicule the speed of the wheels. Klipstein, after a vicious dash, in which he hung close to the dog, puffed out the belief that he could beat him to Kirkwood — twelve miles distant — but he was laughed at by the rest of the party. The events of the day proved Klip was right. When Rinkle's, eight miles out, was reached, the dog had quit running ahead and was content to trail the front wheel. When the halt was made at Normandy, half way, the canine had fallen to the rear and was panting hard. He was dosed with water and sponged off there, and the pace was moderated the rest of the way to give him a show, but about two miles from Florissant he gave up and sank down in the shade of a tree. He was so exhausted he could not stand up, and it was some time before he could get up straight enough to walk to the well, fifty feet away. Considerable back pedaling allowed him to keep with the party till the arrival at Florissant. A good dinner and a two hours' rest restored him, and, as the wheelmen had settled the fact that neither horse nor dog can stay with the wheel, he was led back at a slow pace which, however, fagged him ont before he reached home. — Post-Dispatch.

MUSCULAR INJURIES.

Sprains are the violent stretching of a muscle which occurs when some unexpected or violent action is required.

Symptoms. — Pains, stiffness, and loss of power are felt in the muscle. These pass off in a few days, but sometimes they remain for a long time, and the muscle may waste, causing permanent loss of power.

Treatment. — Rest, rubbing with some irritating liniment, and the hot and cold douche used two or three times a day.

Rupture. — This takes place when a greater degree of violence is present.

Symptoms. — Pain, loss of power to move the part upon which the muscle acts, and a depression can be felt between the retracted ends. The part soon swells and becomes discolored. These symptoms gradually pass off, the ruptured muscle unites, and if by position the torn ends have been brought as near together as possible, no loss of power results.

Treatment. — Place the injured limb in such a position as to relax the injured muscle, and thus bring its ends near to each other. This we do by splints and bandages.

When the tendon achilles in the heel is ruptured, place a collar around the leg above the knee, fasten a string from this to the heel of the shoe, and tighten until the patient walks on his toes.

If the muscles of the pivot of the thigh are torn from the knee cap, place the patient on his back, and raise the heel by placing a long splint under the back of the limb.

JOINT INJURIES.

Contusions. — These accidents are usually unimportant, but even when slight they may be followed by serious consequences.

Symptoms. — The joint becomes swollen, discolored, and painful. These usually pass off in a few days; but pain and stiffness may remain for weeks, and sometimes it is followed by chronic inflammation.

Treatment. — Complete rest in a splint, and the application of cold for the first few days, followed by rubbing with some stimulating liniment, the hot and cold douche, and passive motion.

Sprains. — A sprain consists in the stretching and partial rupture of the ligaments, and occurs when the movements of a joint are forced beyond their normal range.

Symptoms. — Pain on motion occurs at once upon receipt of the injury; this is followed by swelling, and often by discoloration. These pass off in a few days, leaving the joint stiff and painful on motion for some time; but in some cases the joint remains swollen, stiff, and painful, and becomes the seat of a chronic inflammation.

Treatment. — Perfect rest in a splint for the first few days, joined with cold applications, is the most important part of the treatment. Lately the placing the injured joint in hot water for some time has come much into use. This, by relaxing the tissues, relieves the pain, and subdues the inflammation which follows the injury more quickly than cold. After the acute symptoms have subsided, we may employ the hot and cold douche, rubbing with stimulating liniment and passive motion.

Sprains of the wrist and ankle are always tedious accidents, on account of the complicated nature of these joints.

CYCLETS.

BY CHANCE.

They met by chance: a wayward Fate
Till then had kept them wide apart.
He had no thought of love or hate;
She hardly knew she had a heart.

They met by chance: the sinking sun
Cast lengthening shadows on the ground.
The long June day was nearly done —
The twilight dim was gathering 'round.

They met by chance: a fateful chance,
That brought them nearer — nearer still;
Each gave the other a startled glance —
Each felt a momentary thrill.

They met by chance: a swift, sharp pain
Unnerves them when they think of that:
They trust they'll never meet again —
The 'cyclist and the brindle cat.

JOHN S. ROGERS, of St. Louis, has been in Boston the past week, and on Saturday last he was dined at Young's by the Boston boys who went to the Meet. There are more dinners for St. Louis if the boys who entertained Boston will but come and eat them.

G. P. MILLS, the English racing crack, never pulls at his handles. Whether on path or road, uphill and on the level, he works entirely with his legs; and on the machines he at present rides, his handle bar is of excessively thin tube, and yet he never bends it.

GREAT interest is felt in St. Louis over the coming road race to De Soto and back, between Hal Greenwood and Percy Stone. Greenwood will ride his Star, and Stone will ride a Rover type Safety. There will be no fear of headers, and the hills can be coasted at speed.

CONSUL E. W. REYNOLDS and Geo. A. Slater will sail on the Anchor Line steamer, "City of Rome," Capt. Monroe, on July 20, for a tour a-wheel, through England, France and Belgium, returning in September. They are representatives of the Greenwich Wheel Club, Connecticut.

A SHORT time since F. W. Burditt made a circuit of a mile and an eighth course around Chestnut Hill reservoir in three minutes and one second. His pacemakers were George B. Graves at the start, and Walter East on the home stretch. Burditt ran away from his pacemakers fifty yards from the finish.

NASHVILLE bicyclists will start on a tour to Niagara Falls, July 4, going via Louisville, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, and Buffalo, stopping a day or two in each of those cities. They will return through Canada to Detroit, where they will take the cars for home.

WHILE it it true that there is proportionally a smaller number of nickelled wheels in use to-day than a few years ago, nickel-plate has by no means lost its grip among experienced wheelmen. The Pope Manufacturing Company reports that during the month of May, it sold as many full-nickelled 52-inch Experts as of enamel finish.

PREVIOUS to the game of ball at the Glenmere grounds, Lynn, Friday forenoon, W. A. Rowe took a spin on the bicycle track, doing one mile in 2.45; two miles, 5.40; and five miles in 14.24, and with a strong northerly breeze blowing down the back stretch. Before the game of ball opened in the afternoon, he made two miles in 5.30, ten seconds faster than his two miles in the morning.

JACK KEEN, the veteran English rider won a twenty-mile race against three horses, which were ridden by Mr. Bellew, who had to negotiate thirty hurdles at the Crystal Palace, near London, May 30. About 25,000 persons witnessed the contest, which was won by Jack by fifteen yards in 1.5.43 2-5.

THE Rover's Cycling Club, of Charlestown, kept open house June 17 at the club rooms in Hancock Square. Upwards of a hundred wheelmen visited them and registered their names. In the evening the ladies were received and entertained with a view of the fireworks, light refreshment and music.

THE New England Telephone Company has equipped its force of some eighteen linemen with bicycles, and they use them in travelling from place to place repairing wires. The company was led to the use of bicycles from motives of economy, as the travelling expenses of the linemen before they mounted the cycles was from two to three dollars a day each, so that the saving is considerable.

THE Boston Club members will on Sunday enjoy a picnic at Riverside. Both active and associate members will participate, the former riding on their wheels and the latter going by train. At Riverside boats will be taken for a row about a mile down the river to the picnic grounds, where a few hours will be passed, and justice done a lunch prepared by the club's steward,

GEO. H. HILL, of Boston, entered the Crawfordsville race on an Apollo safety. He rode to get a record merely, and he succeeded in establishing one for fifty miles His time was 4.1.40. He was tended by Plumb of the Wheelmen's Record, who sustained a singular accident. He took a bottle of ginger ale out to meet Hill, and tied it on his handle-bars. The jolting started the acids working and away went the cork, covering Plumb with ginger ale, and knocking him off his wheel.

At Grimbsby, Eng., June 4, Lees at scratch rode a dead heat with R. Temple, of Chicago, 130 yards, in a 5-mile handicap. Time, 16.21 1-5. Woodside, scratch, third and English fourth. In a mile handicap Temple had 30 yards, had a clear lead on the homestretch over Battensby, 15 yards, but was beaten by six inches Time, 3.1-5. In a ten-mile scratch race Lees won in 33 59 1-5, English second, Woodside fourth, Morgan sixth.

R. Howell won a five-mile bicycle championship at the Molineux grounds, Wolverhampton, in the tournament of May 31, June 1, defeating Lees by five in 15.41 4-5. He also won a mile championship by three-quarters of a length from Lees in 2.54 2-5.

At Paignton, Eng., June 7, Fenlon attempted to cover 21 miles within the hour on a wheel, and after covering 15 miles in 45.46, had to stop, as his tire came off. W. F. Ball acted as pacemaker, and kept on, covering 20 miles in 59.59 2-5. He made 10 miles in 29.54, 15 miles in 45.11.

ON the night of the 20th there will be a Fancy-Costume Lantern Parade. For this event, under an iron-clad contract, Luna has positively agreed to don her brightest raiment, and, appearing in the character of the American Eagle, so diffuse her wondrous light that it will give a silvery tinge to the whole dome above, which, further heightened by the appropriate grouping of Heaven's stars, will make all the more realistic the effort to imitate the American standard dollar. — Maryland Programme.

THE Somerville Cycle Club members enjoyed their second annual "Tally-ho" run on June 17. The route was from their club rooms in Winter Hill, through Somerville, Cambridge, Brighton, and the Newtons, to the Woodland Park Hotel in Auburndale, where an excellent dinner was served. There were fifty-one at the table, including lady friends of the club members. During the day the party enjoyed themselves with various games and dancing. The run out and return was without anything to mar the pleasure of the party, with the exception of one header by Mr. Billings. Captain W. R. Maxwell was in command.

ALTHOUGH this maiden (Maryland Division) has but attained the tender age of three years, we have no uneasiness regarding her ability to acquit herself to the satisfaction of all her guests; for, though her existence has been so limited, yet in that short time, she, — incredible as it may seem — has quintupled her growth, and this year holds the proud position of Banner Division — in point of loyalty to the parental organization, through renewing a greater percentage of members than any in the League. — Maryland Programme. They might add that they went ahead of all the Divisions in the percentage of votes cast at the annual election.

GEORGE NASH, the fancy rider, has been riding down the steps at City Hall, Providence, on a single wheel. There were eighteen steps taken, leading from under the arch to the sidewalk, and the feat was witnessed by a wondering crowd. The big wheel was stripped of everything but the pedals, handle-bars and forks being discarded, so that, except the revolving pedals and cranks, the wheel had nothing more to it than a carriage wheel. The fearless rider came down with arms outstretched in the air. It did not take long to reach the bottom of the lofty flight, and the unicycle bounded across the sidewalk, jumped over the curb-stone, and spun handsomely across Exchange Place.

A LOCAL cycler has come into possession of a bicycle chain and lock. In relating its use to his wife, who is interested in the wheel and is bidding for a tricycle, the wheelman remarked that a bit of cloth about the chain would prevent it from scratching the enamel of the wheel. What was his surprise, not to say horror, a few days later, to find the chain nicely interwined and completely covered with silk of the daintiest lavender color; and now the cycler don't dare to use the chain when the boys are around. — Providence Journal.

IN the war in the cycling journals on the "tough" in cycling, another equally obnoxious genus has been overlooked. The "freshy" on the wheel is as obnoxious and more dangerous. He it is who, to show off, rides as close to you as possible, rides behind, slaps you on the back, and gives you a bad fall. All these things are immensely entertaining to a "freshy," who always selects a time and place when the public is looking on. There is very little hope, too. A "tough" can be pounded into an intelligent condition, but no sledge hammer ever made can hammer any sense into a "freshy." — Post-Dispatch.

BEDDO, of Louisville, at the Meet, suggested a good plan for keeping cool, and riding more easily on long, hot jaunts. He advises that pants be unbuttoned at the knee and rolled up, leaving the knee free in its play, giving access for the wind to cool the leg, and doing away with the galled feeling that is sometimes experienced about the knees, especially if the pants fit tight. — Post Dispatch.

EASTERN wheelmen no longer carry the pants below the knees. Vice-President Hayes wore the correct thing at the Meet.

TRYON & Co., of Philadelphia have written to the secretary of each of the principal clubs in Philadelphia conveying the following information: They propose to offer for competition a valuable silver cup, to be raced for some time between the 1st and 20th of September next, race to be open to all organized clubs within a radius of thirty miles of Philadelphia. Teams of four men each on bicycles only, entrance fee fifty cents per man. Distance to be about twenty miles, from Bryn Mawr to new toll gate, back to foot of Devon Hill, and return to Bryn Mawr. The money taken for entrance fees to be expended for one or more medals, to be given to the men making best time for whole distance. All questions of timing, starting, actual date of race, etc., is to be left to a committee composed of one member each from the following clubs: University, Century, Philadelphia, Germantown, Pennsylvania, and South End.

DR. H. I. BOWDITCH said at a late meeting of the Massachusetts Medical Society: "Massachusetts stands in a ridiculous and improper position in regard to physical exercises. Hardly a day passes that some young woman or young man does not come to me who has a mind overstimulated and is dying of consumption. Schoolmasters are constantly stimulating the minds of these young people and neglecting their bodies. It is arrant nonsense — gross stupidity — to go on in this way. How can you have a sound mind if there is no sound body to keep it in? We ought to have some physical exercises in our schools. The children and young people ought to be exercised physically every morning and afternoon, and the exercise ought to be practical gymnastic training such as would prevent this degeneration of their bodies."

MEMBERS of clubs often wonder why the "great unattached" do not give more attention to their wheel costumes. For a conglomeration of hues in wheelmen's attire attend a meeting and notice the "symphony of colors." Wheel clubs are usually well uniformed, but the League wheelmen I am writing of. They belong to an organization that has a beautiful uniform, yet a large proportion do not avail themselves of the privilege of being nicely dressed on their wheels. At meetings you will see no two wheelmen dressed alike. The different portions of their dress do not harmonize in color. This year's League uniform is a beauty, and all wheelmen unprovided for should order a uniform and discard the outlandish and ungraceful garments they usually appear in. Nothing adds more to the appearance of a wheelman than a neat fitting uniform. — Kansas City Journal.

A CLERGYMAN who lives in a Boston suburb, is a very enthusiastic tricycle rider. Going over the Milldam the other day he rode close up to a street sprinkler that was not at that moment engaged in squirting. He got there too quick, for just at that moment the boy pulled the string, and our friend got wet. He was not sprinkled. He was immersed. Our friend was mad, but he kept his temper, and scorched home for dry clothes and afterwards interviewed the police. We are sorry that the baptism came upon one whose calling would not allow a little bit of rough and tumble play with the presiding genius of the watering cart. We wish it had been Stall, for then the fellow would have gotten a thrashing. The moral of this is: Put not your trust in the inactivity of a watering cart.

SEVEN tandems, seven ladies, and seven gentlemen went to Newport yesterday and enjoyed a ride over the good roads of the city by the sea. The party was engineered by Dr. Bogman and wife, out of compliment to some Boston friends who are visiting them, and who are "tandem fiends"; Providence cyclers made up the rest of the party. The ten-mile drive was taken, a run to the beaches made, and dinner, al fresco, was enjoyed on the rocks of Bateman's beach. Altogether, the day was a highly enjoyable one, quite a model of a day's pleasure a-wheel; and it was the opinion of the party that the only cycle worth riding was a tandem. The machines, by the way, are said to have been the first ever seen in Newport city. — Providence Journal.

CHIEF CONSUL HAYES has been sending out reminders of the Guide Board Bill to town and city authorities. Here is one response that he got:

"Your circular of June 6 at hand. Would say that our guide boards are up, except, I think, in two cases, and as no one wishes to travel on the two roads we have never put up the boards; but, as your League of Wheelmen have seen fit to insist on the law being enforced, we will have them put up, although I do not think they will be of any use, as they lead to what is called Satan's Kingdom and Hell's Kitchen, not very pretty names to have on a guideboard. But we will have them up to accommodate you."

ALBERT FRANKE, a St. Louis rider, is a well-built young fellow, but the muscular development of his legs did not prevent him from being made the object of a strange attack a few nights ago. He had ridden his wheel from St. Louis down to the Carondelet car stables on a collecting tour, and finishing his business inside pushed his machine into the street to mount. He was just going to put his foot on the step when a trampish-looking fellow accosted him and asked for a nickel. Al refused him, whereupon the villain grabbed him by the throat, and struck at him with a knife. Franke tore himself loose, and, assistance coming, the tramp took to his heels. Franke then found his jacket and vest had been cut through by a knife thrust, but the flesh had not been touched. The police were given a description of the murderous beggar.

THE wheelmen have for years had the use of a part of the West Side Drive in the Park, and Riverside Drive along the Hudson, and no accidents have occurred. The same is true as regards their use in the parks of other cities in this country and in Europe. Nor can this theory be made consistent with the fact that no accidents have ever occurred on any of the streets and avenues above 110th Street, where teams are speeded, reckless driving indulged in, and where the horses daily encounter hundreds of bicycles and their riders. There does not seem to be any basis for real opposition to the approval of the law outside of a sort of semi-sentimentalism which should not be allowed to stand in the face of the rights of the wheelmen of the State, and if Central Park had been exempted from the provisions of the bill recently passed at Albany, it would have been a most unjust discrimination against the wheelmen of the city. — Graphic.

THE cardinal virtue of most bar-steered cycles is that they put the rider in a better position for economizing his power. Years ago, we persistently advocated the placing of tricycle handles more forward than was always the case when spade handles and rack-and-pinion steering were used. In our own vile body we experimented with handles in various positions, and invariably found that the more forward the handles were placed, the better and more comfortable we could go. The success of the "Humble" tricycle was not due to its steering without rack and pinion so much as its having its handles placed well forward of the rider; and on one of the first forms of tandem ever successfully ridden we found it advantageous to put the spade handles more and more forward. Then the "Cripper" tricycle gave an impetus to bar steering, and the improvement was erroneously set down to the abolition of the spade handle with rack and pinion, whereas the real reason lay mainly in the position of the handles. For two years past we have been riding a tricycle with rack-and-pinion steering and spade handles placed exactly where the handle grips of a bar-steered tricycle would be, with the most gratifying results. — Cycling Journal.

A BICYCLE tournament is advertised to come off at Ottawa, Ohio, on July 4, and the prizes are cash. Wheelmen who have a regard for their status should be careful how they touch this thing.

THE News thus describes R. E. Phillips's electric timing apparatus: — "The watch — which in Mr. Phillips's case, consists of a split seconds and minute chronograph, which obtained the A certificate at Kew with 73-7 marks — is placed in a soft iron case, thus to protect it from the influence of the magnetic field, fixed on the top of a small box containing two electro-magnets operating levers acting on the buttons or push pieces of the watch. These magnets are connected by suitable switches with a battery, and come into operation when the circuit is closed, either by firing the pistol or by pressure on the winning tape, both the pistol and the winning tape being coupled up in circuit by suitable lead wires. In the stock of the pistol is a 'circuit maker and breaker,' which closes the circuit automatically when the hammer falls on firing the pistol. This starts the chronograph hands, one or both of which are stopped by pressure on the winning tape, which closes the circuit, and thus operates the button or buttons of the watch, as we before described.

"One of the most remarkable features about Mr. Phillips's apparatus is its proof against fraud, even on the part of the person using it, for, although the second and split-second hand of the watch can be started by firing the pistol, and stopped by pressure on the winning tape, yet, after this has once been done, the respective parts are automatically cut out of circuit, so that no further manipulation of the trigger of the pistol or of the winning tape will affect the watch. In case of bicycle and tricycle races this serves a double purpose so far as relates to the winning tape, as it prevents the trailing wheel or wheels of a machine from operating the watch, which would obviously send the hand or hands back to zero before the time could be read off.

"Furthermore, in a certain part of the circuit there is an electric bell, which automatically rings when any part of the apparatus is not in working order or is being tampered with, and also when the operator manipulates the mechanism to bring the hands back to zero after taking a time. The apparatus we saw in use has been specially designed for portability and adaptation to any track, and it is all contained in two small boxes of a convenient size to be easily carried by one person. We understand from Mr. Phillips that he does not think anything more perfect is required for races of over a minute duration, but if finer fractions of seconds are required for sprint races, they can be obtained by the use of a short time chronograph beating, say, twentieths of a second, instead of fifths."

PERCY FURNIVALL is lecturing on "Training."

WISCONSIN DIVISION MEET.

THE Wisconsin Division of the League of American Wheelmen held their first annual Meet at Oshkosh, June 7 and 8. Among those in attendance were W. E. Lindquist, Marinette; Phil. Pfiffer, Neenah; W. J. Geer, Menasha; W. F. Lamb and A. H. Adams, Fond du Lac; E. H. Keller and J. H. Bloedel, Sheboygan; C. H. Sieg, Chicago; H. Molton and F. Bissel, Neenah; C. H. Bean, Waukau; F. R. Bloodgood, Jr., A. A. Hathaway, Frank A. Hall, F. Mayer, Jr., W. L. Simonds, B. Kloptack, Leo Dorsch, W. C. Wegner, F. J. Morawetz, H. R. Miller, H. B. Andrae, and F. J. Schroeder, Milwaukee, and the clubs of Oshkosh and Fond du Lac. At Fond du Lac the wheelmen were met at the depot by the local club, and escorted around the principal streets of the city, headed by the Fond du Lac Band. In the evening there was a grand ball, given by the club to the visitors, at the armory, at which the fair daughters of Fond du Lac entertained the cyclists until late in the morning. Tuesday morning the wheelmen took the train for Oshkosh, and were met at the depot by the Oshkosh Club and Arion Band and escorted around town, and finally to the Revere House, which was the headquarters of the wheelmen during the stay. At the business meeting, held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Mr. Bloodgood presided. Jay A. Hinman, of Oshkosh was elected secretary and treasurer of the Division, and Messrs. J. H. Bloedel, Sheboygan, H. P. Andrae, Milwaukee, and J. M. Hurn, of Oshkosh, were elected as nominating committee for the year. The banquet and ball were held at the Revere House, Tuesday evening. Mayor Dale, of Oshkosh, welcomed the visitors to the city. Speeches were made by Mr. Richardson, of the Y. M. C. A., C. C. Chase, F. Bloodgood, Jr., A. A. Hathaway, and J. A. Hinman. At the ball the young ladies of Oshkosh entertained the wheelmen splendidly. Every visitor was full of praise of the hospitality of Oshkosh.

On the following day a tour along the Lake Shore road to Neenah was enjoyed by as many as could stay.

VIRGINIA MEMBERS, L. A. W.

MR. P. S. THOMAS, of Harrisonburg, is hereby appointed Local Consul from this date.

The Agricultural Society, of Woodstock, holds its summer meeting July 4th. The townspeople are very anxious for a bicycle race, and offer two medals, well worth having. L. A. W. members will obtain all necessary information by addressing Representative N. B. Schmidt, and those who do attend are assured of a cordial welcome, and a jolly good time.

I would urge upon the members of our Division the importance of attending such gatherings whenever possible; it helps the cause wonderfully, and enables many of the country folk to see what a bicycle really is.

There must be many places in the State where we should now have local Consuls and L. A. W. Hotels, and I shall be glad to be advised by any member of the Division in regard to this matter immediately.

Fraternally, etc.,

June 16, 1887. J. C. CARROLL, C. C.

TO IOWA WHEELMEN.

ALL Iowa wheelmen who desire to take part in a State tour this fall will please notify me at once; so that should a sufficient number decide to go, we can commence arrangements at once; and if a sufficient number is not heard from inside of three weeks there will no State tour this year; but Fall Meet will be in Ottumwa. Fraternally yours,

FRED A. SPIELMAN,
Chairman Tour Board.

FAIRFIELD, IOWA, June 18, 1887.

HEADQUARTERS NEW JERSEY WHEELMEN.

AT a special meeting of this club, held last evening, it was decided that the New Jersey Clubs be notified through the medium of the cycling press that committees will be in waiting at the various depots or other points, to receive and escort them to whatever place they may designate as their headquarters during their attendance at the State Meet, July 4.

Members of the club will be at the service of visiting wheelmen, on Sunday, 3d inst., to escort them through the Oranges and introduce them to the points of interest in and around Newark. The dinner will be served in the upper Music Hall by Davis, and ample preparation made for all Division members who may attend. It will, therefore, not be necessary for any clubs to notify Davis to prepare for them. The committee, however, would like to have clubs notify their secretary about how many they will probably send.

Club secretaries are requested to address the Secretary of the N. J. W., C. Dennison, 880 Broad Street, as regards the route and time when they will arrive in Newark.

ORATION HALL, NEWARK, N. J., June 21, 1887.

TO NEW JERSEY MEMBERS.

Editor L. A. W. BULLETIN:

PLEASE permit the reception committee appointed by the Orange Wanderers to prepare for the reception of the State Division on July 4, to say a few words.

The Wanderers extend a cordial invitation to all members of the Division to take this opportunity to visit Orange, in order to join in the Meet, to try our roads, and to have a pleasant day generally.

The headquarters of the Meet will be the Wanderers club rooms, directly opposite the Brick Church station of the D. L. and W. R. R., and in the centre of good roads. The undersigned committee will be at the rooms on July 4, after 7.30 A. M., to receive visiting wheelmen.

Those wheelmen who come either on Saturday or Sunday should notify in advance the hotel at which they wish to stop. They will find the Mansion House, Orange; the Mansion House of Montclair; the American Hotel of Bloomfield, or the Continental Hotel of Newark, within pleasant riding distance. Any further information can be had by addressing the secretary of this committee. The programme for the day is: —

8.30 A. M., run to Short Hills.
9.00 A. M., run through the Oranges.
9.15 A. M., run to Eagle Rock.
10.45 A. M., business meeting.
12.00 M., dinner.
1.30 P. M., parade.
3.30 P. M., races.

MISSOURI APPOINTMENT.

COMPLYING with the wishes of the Kansas City Wheelmen as expressed at a general meeting of wheelmen, held in that city, June 15, I have appointed Mr. H. G. Stuart, representative of the Missouri division. W. M. BREWSTER, C. C.

ST. LOUIS, MO., June 18, 1887.

INDIANA.

I AM informed that one Wall Welliver, of Lafayette, has been and still is wearing an L. A. W. pin, and has been obtaining reduced rates at hotels, and other privileges, by exhibiting said pin. He is not an L. A. W. member, and not entitled to said privileges, which prompts me to ask the local consuls to call on the hotel men of their respective places, and notify them that they are not expected by the L. A. W. to grant reduced rates, except on presentation of an L. A. W. ticket, in the name of the party claiming the reduction. A. B. IRVIN, C. C.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

JERSEY-FITTING, SELF-SUPPORTING

BICYCLE STOCKING.

The attention of the Wheelmen and the trade is kindly called to our new Self Supporter Stocking, for which we have obtained Letters Patent June 14, 1887. The enclosed cut gives a correct description of this stocking and its design, and needs no argument to show that they are the best thing that has been made for holding the stocking in position. They are Ribbed, Jersey-Fitting, and very elastic, regular made, double heel and toes. The form and proportions of the foot, heel, toe, ankle, calf and leg are perfect, as represented in the cut, and there is no better made or better fitting stocking in the market. The part above the stocking for holding it in position is made Cotton or wool, thin or heavy, as may be desired, and comes up and fastens around the waist, same as tights, and holds the stockings where they belong.

Any infringement will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Price, $2.25; without double heel and toes, $2.00; or stockings without supporters, $1.50. Send us your order for either of these, with color, size of foot, and length from bottom of foot to waist, and post office order for amount, and we will send same by mail or express to any part of the country; and if you do not find them satisfactory, return them, and we will return amount paid for them. Address,

For Sale, Cheap!

BICYCLES and TRICYCLES. Send for list before you buy, to WM. M. FRISBIE & CO., New Haven, Ct. P. O. Drawer 64.

"It is a most entertaining book. We admire the pluck and manliness of the author, his intelligence and resources. His descriptions of people and places are fresh and vivid. The world as seen from a bicycle is a different world from that which the traveller sees from a railway train, or from the ordinary conveyances of the road. The "wheel" draws to itself a crowd in every village. It introduces its owner to men and women whom another tourist would never meet, and it makes him welcome and at home in the greatest variety of company. It has its own peculiar accidents and adventures, and demands from its rider special qualities of mind and disposition. But Mr. Stevens is more than a "wheelman." He has given us in this book instructive and useful information in geography, bits of history aptly introduced, and lively descriptions of manners, customs and habits of many peoples of the globe which he girdled," says the New York Observer of Every Wheelman and Sportsman will give them his approval when he examines the Shoulders, Arm Holes and Neck, as they are made to fit. These goods are PATENTED, and all infringements will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

Made same as full tights, to three inches below the knee.

TRUNKS

Are a great protection to tights, receiving all the wear from the saddle, and can easily be removed, and thus save the more expensive garments.

WRITE VERY PLAINLY.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training, or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.

What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

WM READ & SONS, Manufacturers - - 107 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

A FEW INTERROGATION POINTS, GENTLEMEN.

Why be deceived by middle-men who call themselves manufacturers and are not?

If their statements about themselves are untrue, why not their claims regarding the merits of the wheels they sell, or rather attempt to sell?

Why be deceived by statements about records acquired on wheels so frailly constructed as to be useless on the road?

Is not the effort to associate the performance of one wheel with another, because only it is sold by the same middle-men, an effort to deceive?

Is it not reasonable to suppose that the buyer can get a better value for his money from the agent of the manufacturer than from the agent of the manufacturer's agent?

Is it not logical and wise to conclude upon a mount from the arguments and testimony of road riders who hold all the more important world's road and long-distance records, obtained too on American champion roadsters, rather than from the testimony of riders using 22-pound machines on specially prepared surfaces?

If you wish to be convinced, why not send a one-cent stamp for a special catalog of testimonials, parts, etc., to

"Let Others try the Experiment."

The Columbias have been subjected to the practical tests of ten years upon road and path; there are machines upon the market of limited age and claimed to be as good or superior to the old reliable Columbias; perhaps they are; it is n't for us to say. If the wheelman can afford to try the experiment, it's good for his education, and of eventual benefit to the Columbias.

For instance, for six years hemispherical steering-centres have been used on the Expert Columbia, and on the Light Roadster for three years, a pretty fair test that such an arrangement is the most practical. The ball-bearing head has n't been proved to be better, yet it may be. "Let others try the experiment."

It has been asserted that the various forms of safety bicycles will overrun both continents. For several years safeties have been on the market, yet their increase in use has not been noticeable. Ninety-five per cent of riders seem to prefer the crank machine. We manufacture safeties; if you desire one we should be pleased to have you try the experiment.

It costs considerable to make first-class machines; Columbias are first-class machines, and are sold at respectable prices; perhaps as good machines can be sold for much less than our prices. "Let others try the experiment."

It may be a paying investment for a wheelman to purchase a so-called first-class machine for a seemingly low price, and then again it may not be. The wheelman can try the experiment.

BEATS the record, and lands the League ahead of the enrollment of any previous year. With the victory in New York before them, wheelmen should come forward and join the League, if only to show their appreciation of effective work.

THE Governor of New York has signed the Liberty Bill, and now the incubus that has been upon wheeling interests in New York has been removed. New York wheelmen have won a grand victory, and they deserve the congratulations of all their wheel kindred. Keep the wheel a "moverin'." We can now celebrate July 4 with a double interest.

THE World publishes a letter from a man who wants to ride on the sidewalk. There are some ideas put forth by people who have aspirations in this direction which are their own best answer. To attempt to controvert what is put forth by these individuals is a waste of good paper and ink. The World should not have answered its correspondent.

WE have always believed that the League should hold its Meet and pay its own bills. We are grateful to those cities where we have been entertained, and we do not doubt the boys enjoyed treating us, but we have a deal of sympathy with the sentiments expressed in this paragraph from the Baltimore Argus: —

"A committee was appointed to interview the merchants relative to raising funds for the national meet, in case it is to be held in this city next May, it depending on the result of the committee's labors if the division invites it. If it requires $5,000 to entertain them, we don't believe it can be raised, though we could not have a better committee to try it. As to individually taxing cyclers fifty dollars each, that is simply out of the question If the national organization is becoming a please-entertain-us-dead beat association, the membership will rapidly decline. If the local clubs are expected to pay the fiddler, then it's about time to abolish meets. If the national organization cannot defray its own expenses every year, and individual members will not, then let us let up on meets, and have them every five or ten years, during which the League Treasurer may save up enough to pay for it."

Maryland wants to entertain the League, and will do so if $5,000 can be raised. Such a sum is not needed. No city has spent as much as that, and there is no call for such an expenditure. There is a lot of work about a League Meet, but there is no necessity for large expenditures; $2,000 will do it up brown, Mrs. Maryland.

THE English army officers have become convinced by recent experiments that the cycle can be used to advantage by the army, for scouting, carrying despatches, etc., and they are taking active measures to secure cyclists among the volunteers. If the establishment of permanent cycling scouts attached to the volunteer corps proves thoroughly satisfactory, the Government will doubtless be encouraged to adopt the same in connection with the regular army, and in that case would naturally have to provide the men with machines for the purpose. If this were so the cycling trade would receive a wonderful impetus, not only through the actual orders received from the Government for military cycles, but also by the fact that the official recognition would materially help to improve the standing of cyclists in general.

THE "Big Five" are making large figures. They number in League memberships as follows: New York, 2,025; Pennsylvania, 1,532; Massachusetts, 1,201; New Jersey, 798; Ohio, 752.

WHAT shall be the policy of the League regarding road racing? This is a question of no little importance, in view of the growth of this feature of our sport, and it is well that it should be carefully considered. Last year by vote of the Racing Board all jurisdiction over road racing was disavowed, and since then the League, through its officers, has had nothing to do with it.

AT a meeting of the Executive Committee, held at St. Louis, the position of the Racing Board was indorsed, and that committee placed itself on record in favor of the policy which has heretofore been pursued. That a more decided position may be taken on this much-vexed question the President has sent a circular letter to members of the "Cabinet" asking for an expression of views upon the attitude which the League should assume regarding racing upon the highway. We do not doubt the verdict. We believe the officers will continue the policy of old, and let road racing severely alone.

AS a result of the League's position on the road-racing question, the official eyes are closed to anything and everything that occurs in contests of this kind. Amateurs and professionals may race together and amateurs may race for money prizes if they are so disposed. It is curious to note that the papers which advocate the repeal of the amateur law are just the ones that condemn the policy of the League in this matter, although it gives them on the road just the condition of things they would like to see on the racing path.

THE World is out with an editorial in which it deprecates races against time, and calls upon the associations to accept no record not made in open competition. The World should know that the L. A. W. has accepted no other for more than a year.

RACING interests are at a standstill just now. We mean the larger interests, those in which the "flyers" are engaged. Amateur race meetings are flourishing in different parts of the country, but there is no "boom" in the professional circles. Some man or some association must come forward and take up this sport for what it is worth, and run it on business principles. Till this is done we need not expect to see such race meetings as Springfield used to give us. A tournament calls for a very large amount of work, and wheelmen have become weary of doing this for the fun of the thing. We must have paid service and organized workers before we can have the best kind of race meetings by professionals. Meantime, amateur racing has its adherents, who are content to have no other kind.

THE undergoing of present hardship for the sake of future gain, is one of the most encouraging features connected with athletic sports and games, asserts Dr. Sargent in the July Scribner. That the participants may be in the best physical condition at the day of the contest, they are obliged to undergo a long and arduous course of training, denying themselves luxuries, foregoing pleasures, and holding themselves down to a rigid system of mechanical exercises for an ultimate object — the winning of a foot race, boat race, or a ball game. If one man in a hundred will practice self-denial, and undergo hardship, in order to win a prize in a fleeting pastime, is it not an insult to the remaining ninety-nine to assume that they have not sufficient morale to make a similar effort in preparing to win the higher prize of life?

JERSEY.

ALL the preparations for the annual Meet of the New Jersey State Division at Orange on the Fourth are now complete, and with good weather a programme of day's fun, such as is seldom offered to the wheelmen of this vicinity, will be carried out. The division committees, ably assisted by those of the Orange Wanderers, have done their work well, and left no stone unturned to make the affair a success.

THOSE who intend to come on Saturday or Sunday, so as to be on hand bright and early for the runs in the morning, should engage rooms ahead at the Mansion House, Orange; Mansion House, Montclair; American Hotel, Bloomfield; or Continental Hotel, Newark, all of which are within fifteen minutes' ride of the Orange Wanderers' clubhouse, at Brick Church station, on the D. L. & W. R. R., which is the headquarters of the Meet. Those who wish to take a more extending outing by coming Saturday should notify W. A. Belcher, of the Orange Wanderers, who will show them the sights, and make himself generally entertaining.

THERE are three runs appointed, all of which will return in time for the business meeting. At 8.30 o'clock, to Short Hills, at 9 o'clock, through the Oranges, and at 9.15 to Eagle Rock, where those who wish to show the local cyclers how to climb will have an opportunity. It may be well to state, for the benefit of those who "want the earth," that it will be impossible to take in more than one of the runs

THE business meeting will take place at the Harrison Street rink at 10.45, and at noon there will be a chance for recuperation at Music Hall, where Davis, the famous caterer, has made arrangements to feed two hundred and fifty wheelmen at one dollar each. Those who were present at the dinner furnished by him two years ago on the occasion of the great Decoration Day run of the New Jersey wheelmen and their guests need to be told nothing of the quantity, quality, and service.

At 1.30 o'clock, immediately after the gastronomic labors, chances for a rest will be afforded by the grand parade. It is expected that fully five hundred cyclers will be in line, as the clubs of New York and Brooklyn will vie with those of Jersey in a contest as to which shall turn out the largest number. The parade will move through the principal streets, and will end at the Roseville track.

The races, a long and inviting programme of which has been prepared, will begin at three o'clock. The racers have seized the opportunity for a spin over the magnificent track, and all the flyers and novices in this vicinity have entered, thus insuring large fields and exciting sport. The trains on the Morris and Essex Division of the D. L. & W. R. R., from New York and Newark, will stop at the entrance to the track.

An enormous attendance is expected, as the day is a holiday, and the tickets have been placed at a very low figure, — general admission, 25 cents, and including reserved seats, 60 cents. For the convenience of New Yorkers and Brooklynites, admission tickets and some choice reserved seats in the front row have been placed on sale at the Manhattan Wheel Exchange, 49 Cortlandt Street, at the regular rates.

If Brother Bassett can take copy as late as Wednesday morning, I will give the Bulletin a full story of the events of the day without the delay of a week.

There is great rejoicing in New York, Brooklyn, and hereabouts at the news of Governor Hill's having signed the Liberty Bill, a sort of New York cycling Magna Charter, and, as usual, His Excellency is being praised for doing nothing more than he ought to have done. In no case in its history has the L. A. W. so demonstrated its power, and shown what it could accomplish when it once set in motion its mighty machinery, as it most effectively did in this. To Chief Consul Bidwell and his earnest co workers and exhorters, the greatest credit is due, and the blessings and thanks of all wheeldom should be showered on their heads. There is no telling the extent of the boom cycling will receive in New York from this simple act of justice, and with an augmented army of cyclers no legislature will dare take away that which has been given. It behooves all wheelmen, now that their rights have been given, to scrupulously respect the rights of the horsemen, and see that no hoggish violation of them shall go without punishment. He who does anything to make the legislature or the governor repent their acts is the enemy of all of us. I understand that the New York clubs have appointed committees to confer with the Park Commissioners, and draw up a code of regulations just to both horsemen and wheelmen. Jer. C.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

There is some little talk going the rounds of having the next L. A. W. Annual Meet in Philadelphia. There is no reason apparent for not having it, as all the other big towns have been indulged, and Philadelphia is proverbial for getting all things last. The main question is the desirability of the matter to "we uns." We have nothing to gain by parading around the streets — on which no one but a native could ever keep a bicycle erect — and would have to limit the Meet to the confines of the Park and the Lancaster Pike. Even the Park drives are nothing extra in the way of good riding, and Bostonians never did seem to go into ecstacies over the Pike surface. However, we have plenty of room, and the entire League might come here and get lost, and no one would no where to look for it, so if the National organization elects to favor us with their presence next year, we can try to make the visitors happy.

The Chester races, set down for July 4, have been indefinitely postponed on account of the Division Meet and races at Wilkes Barre occurring on the same day. The Century and Pennsylvania Clubs each have delegations preparing for the occasion. The Century has already twenty odd men down for the trip, and if they scratch around a little, may perhaps take the prize for numbers, for visiting clubs in line. The Pennsylvania will have a number present, but it is doubtful if so many of them as usual will turn out to this year's meeting. The Tiogas will have one or two men, and also probably, the South End, but the old Germantown will not have a solitary representative present. The Philadelphia, of course, will have her quiet contingent. This is very different from the old days, when Philadelphia and Germantown, in healthy, vigorous competition, vied with each other in getting the biggest turn out for a trip to Washington or Baltimore, or a local Meet in the Park. Germantown is evidently falling off and needs some pruning.

Why cannot Americans — more particularly Philadelphians - turn out to a race meeting the way they do in England? At Preston Park, Brighton, on Whit Monday, the grounds were packed full, exceeded by one-hundred per cent that attracted by a cricket match on the other side of the town. And while on the subject, why do not some of the more energetic of the Pennsylvania boys, take hold of Chris Wheeler's project, to get up monthly race meetings at the West Philadelphia track, in order to popularize the sport? Plenty of sport would be forthcoming at an asking, and while no great amount of glory might be looked for, certainly the fun to be had would be ample recompense for the work. In time, even the population of Philadelphia, might perhaps be educated up to an appreciation of bicycle and tricycle racing. Phactotum.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

The touring season is at its height, and various excursions are being organized in the clubs, lasting from two or three days to as many weeks. Perhaps the most extensive is that of the Ilderan Bicycle Club through Canada, which starts from this city on the 9th of July. Up to June 20, fifteen names had been enrolled as participants, and this number will doubtless be increased to twenty or more before the start is made. Should it not be so, the managers will have no cause for regret, as experience will show them that the fewer they have over a dozen or so, the more will be the individual enjoyment and comfort of each person present, especially in the matter of hotel accommodations.

The Brooklyns have two parties on the road; one wheeling to Buffalo via Albany and the northern route, and the other going up the beautiful Ramapo Valley to Middletown, crossing the Shawangunk Mountains to Port Jervis, and down the Delaware to the Water Gap, whence train will be taken to Binghamton, and the saddle resumed up the valley to Watkins Glen, thence striking south to Hornellsville, and west to Buffalo and Cleveland, — the entire trip consuming about three weeks.

The abandonment of the State camp idea, and the rather late announcement of a three days' meet at some prominent summer resort will, it is feared, make the attendance much smaller than was anticipated. The large majority of wheelmen have, at this late date, perfected their plans for their summer outing, and, much as they would like to, will find it impossible to avail themselves of the gala time promised by the Division. This is much to be regretted, as the one grand idea of the meet was to get together as large an assemblage as possible for the mutual interchange of ideas, and the more firmly cementing together the bonds of fraternal feeling among the League members of this State. The meet will be a success, and all who are present will have a good time. There is no question about that; but I fear, in point of numbers, it will not be such as the Banner Division should look forward to or hope for.

The lantern parade of the Kings County Wheelmen, which was to have occurred on Thursday evening last, was indefinitely postponed on account of the rain. The annual races will occur on Saturday afternoon, at the grounds of the Brooklyn Athletic Association, and promise to eclipse their former efforts in this direction. Many of the noted flyers will be present, and much interest has been manifested in some of the events, particularly in those in which Rich and Crist and Hall and Valentine come together. It seems remarkable that this is the first and only race meet that has been held anywhere around these parts this year. Interest in good cycle racing is on the increase, and from the expressions heard everywhere, it would seem that a cycling tournament on a large scale, at Roseville, would not only draw a big crowd, but would prove to be a money-making undertaking. It only remains for some one to take the initiative, and the support will be hearty and general.

The eighth anniversary of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club was duly celebrated on the 21st inst. in the usual manner, by having a dinner at the Clarendon. At the conclusion of the feast, speeches were made by the officers and others, and a programme of entertainment, arranged by the committee, was enjoyed by the guests. The affair was voted a grand success, and after resolutions of regret at the absence of the president and secretary from sickness had been passed, the party adjourned.

One of the events in cycledom during the past week, was the marriage of Mr Howard Greenman, president of the Ilderan Club, to Miss Elizabeth Collins, on Wednesday afternoon, June 22. Greenman is a sterling fellow, a true gentleman, and a good friend; popular among his fellow clubmen, and respected by all others. We therefore extend to him our sincere congratulations and best wishes.

The Ilderans certainly should be proud of the performance of their man Bradley in the Inter State road race. This young man, unbeknown to his club mates, quietly went into training in his own way, and worked hard to prepare himself for the great struggle. How he succeeded is well known. Dogging Valentine's wheel from post to finish he landed fourth man in that great field of flyers, beating Greeman, much to the surprise of his club men and every one else. There is an opinion abroad that Bradley is inclined to be a little snobbish and feel his oats too much since his recent achievement. This I think is a mistake. He is slightly deaf, and this infirmity would perhaps make him appear diffident, on account of his inability to hear all that is said. He has always appeared to me to be unassuming, quiet, and gentlemanly: and this, I think, you will find him.

The finish of the novice races of the Brooklyn Club was quite as much a surprise. Nobody looked upon Kellum as a winner, even with everything favorable. Considering his fall, and the great lead thus gained by the field, his riding was very plucky and deserving of much praise. Mead was the favorite. He is certainly the best man, and would undoubtedly have "got there" had he kept his head and ridden his race properly. But it is the old, old story of the untrained novice; he must learn by experience to use his head more and his legs less, allowing others to make pace for him, and not making pace for the crowd in such a race. Kenmore deserves a word of praise, and will make a dangerous man with a little more practice, and Snedcker and Bancroft, who had had no practice, were so close up at the finish that the five-mile event which is soon to take place may be said to be anybody's race, and it is looked forward to with considerable interest.

Hewlett's Hotel at Hempstead has changed hands, and is being renovated and improved. In the mean time there are no League headquarters at that place. A few wheelmen have been patronizing Whaley again, and say he is inclined to do better by us than formerly in the matter of food. As to sleeping accommodations I am uninformed, but when I recall the nights of sleepless agony spent at this establishment, I feel that he will be compelled to improve everything vastly before he can expect to regain his old-time patronage. The road book says Long Island is noted for the quality of its side paths. It ought to say that it is also noted for the poorness of its dinners, for unless you know where to go you can get as poor a meal on Long Island, for the money, as any place I have found in all my touring experience. Pettit's, at Jamaica; the Sherman House, at Babylon; Stillingwerf's, at Islip; and Roe's, at Patchogue, are noted exceptions. It is a hard rule that has no exceptions, but this has very few.

The Mercury Wheel Club, of Flushing, have invited the Brooklyn Club to visit their town on the evening of July 2, partake of a clam bake, and have a good time generally. It is needless to say that the Brooklyn boys have accepted the invitation, and will do their best to help the Flushing boys out. On the following day a run will be taken to Babylon for dinner, and the afternoon spent sailing on the Great South Bay. On Monday, the Fourth, the party will return to Jamaica for dinner, visiting the races at Queens in the afternoon.

Potter has returned from Albany, and the Liberty Bill is still languishing before the Governor. To-day must decide its fate, and whatever that fate may be, wheelmen should remember it at the next election, and act accordingly. We must stand up for our rights, and it is time we began to show our teeth.

June 25, 1887. Bon.

CHICAGO.

W. A. Davis and Frank Riggs started from Chicago early Sunday morning for Elgin, arriving there a few minutes after nine o'clock, and proceeded to Aurora for dinner. After enjoying a good meal at Hotel Evans they returned home, making the total distance of one hundred and five miles in fifteen and a half hours. We were all at the club-room to congratulate them on their return, for the Illinois Club has the honor of being the first to make the trip within a day. Notwithstanding the fact that this club was only organized on the 10th of August of last year, it now boasts of seventy-three active members, twenty-two being admitted within the past month.

George Mason is anxious to arrange a trip to Mammoth Cave, to start about July 16 Several have signified their intention of going. If there are any wheelmen along the road who would like to join the party I can assure them that they will be entirely welcome. I believe the idea is to take the train to Louisville, wheel from there to the Cave, and return via Frankfort, Cincinnati, and Indianapolis.

A few more days and we are off for Peoria to attend the Illinois Division Meet to be held there on the glorious Fourth. The Owls will go as a club, and, doubtless, the Illinois will do the same.

Who will be the next secretary-treasurer? That is the question that is being talked over at the present time.

The Peoria Bicycle Club is going to reform the Illinois Division — at least, that seems to be their intention. You will see from their programme that they have made arrangements for a tour on Sunday, and will wind up by attending a special wheelmen's service at the First Congregational Church in the evening. Doubtless, this will be the maiden effort of many of the boys to attend church in knee breeches; but if you will allow me to speak for Chicago, I will guarantee that they "will all be there."

The Illinois Club is making arrangements for a series of club races to be contested on the road. The first prize will be a handsome silver cup, and any member winning it three times in one season claims it as his own property. The race will occur about once every four weeks, and continue until the winner has been decided.

Rumor has it that the L. A. W. Pointer, of Oshkosh, Wisconsin, will soon be published in Chicago. I hope it is true, for Chicago has been without a cycling paper for some time. And then, perhaps some arrangement could be made to have an official organ published inside the State. The Illinois Division has been in sore need of a paper ever since the Sporting Journal gave us the go by.

Magill, of the Owl Club, and Wilbur, of the Illinois, have been looking at a Columbia tandem. The former is to be married soon; but, if I am correctly informed, the latter will not need one until late in the fall. Perhaps by that time another road race will be arranged, and Wilbur will then be able to trade his prize (if he wins one) for a tandem.

THE OWL.

The New Castle Bicycle Club offers some very handsome art pieces for prizes in their forthcoming race Meet, but I think they made a serious error in offering for a half-mile, hands off, a prize with so suggestive a title as "Slaying of Innocents." Undoubtedly, the event will prove more or less this way before it is terminated, but what's the good of scaring the "innocent" off with such a prize before you get the chance to slay him?

Bystander, to the club surgeon, who has just dismounted to examine the victim of a runaway accident: "Doctor, what do you think of his injuries?" Doctor: "Humph! Two of them are undoubtedly fatal, but, as for the rest of them, time alone can tell." Mounts his wheel, and leaves the bystander much impressed with the medical usefulness and skill of the club surgeon.

The races of the King's County Wheelmen on Saturday, brought forth a combination of fair weather, fair women, and fair racing, a combination superlatively the property of the K. C. W.'s, who seem to have the knack of always getting these desirable adjuncts to any out door affair they attempt.

What an imposing result would be attained, should a cycling military corps obey literally, the order to "brake ranks," just at the time they were riding at about a four-minute gait?

"How much individuality in dress Mr. Chappie shows," remarked Miss Cripper to Smart Aleck, as Chappie wobbled up the Riverside drive, dressed in black racing tights and an abreviated coat. "Yes, indeed," replied her escort, "very much individual, and very little dress."

Now Henry Ducker has become a citizen of Buffalo, I shall be much surprised if it is not shortly discovered that that city is an exceptionally good one for the purpose of holding a mammoth race meet; and, joking aside, I think its central location between east and west, could, with a tournament run by Mr. Ducker, secure a larger gate than even Springfield has.

The New York Bicycle Club start early on the morning of July 2, for a four day's tour, Albany being their objective point, following the banks of the Hudson for the entire journey.

Governor Hill's vetoes have become historical, and I am afraid that the Liberty Bill will be but another example of his ability in this direction. About the only bill he is safe not to veto is a ten dollar bill, but unfortunately for us, ours is not of that kind.

An English paper speaks of a tricycle rider dying at the green old age of 78 years. A man who is green at the age of 78 years ought to die, tricycle or no tricycle.

Sound travels at the rate of 1,145 feet in a second of time, and yet I know club buglers who blow as though it took a week for it to reach only ten feet away. Buglers will please note this.

An old gentleman while travelling on the D. L. & W. road committed suicide by cutting his throat There was a couple of wheelmen in the next seat arguing on the question of the merits of Star v. Crank wheels. No other cause for the old man's act is known. The coroner's jury think that this was sufficient, though.

The Capital Club, of Washington, intends to take its summer outing in a six weeks' trip through Europe. Some way or another those Capital boys always manage to set the mark very high in anything in the cycling line that they attempt.

Frank White, of Spaulding's, is looking into the tournament business, and may shortly burst upon the wheel world with a race meet scheme at Roseville of great magnitude. If there is any man who can take Ducker's place in this direction, White is undoubtedly the one.

Fame awards her laurels in unexpected places in cycling. The latest in this direction, are the items going the rounds of the wheeling press, about Mr. Growler, and the number and titles of the beginners he has taught to ride this season. I can see no reason for this extraordinary waste of space and printers' ink. Cycling journalism is already weak enough, without any further dilution by the means of such trash as this.

That our English brethren may not be without some Bill to worry about, we have kindly sent them our Buffalo Bill, while we retain for home amusement the Bicycle one now before Governor Hill. If the home one prove only half as successful as the one now in England has, we will be more than satisfied, but I am afraid it won't.

The boom in cycling in New York, is showing itself in every possible way. The roads are filled with new riders, and new clubs are forming, or about to be formed, to the number of a score or more, if rumor is to be believed, while the list of applicants to all the established clubs, daily grows larger, until very soon most of them will have to cry with McDuff, "hold! enough."

Mr. W. C. Herring has written his friends letters graphically describing his touring exploits in Europe. It is rumored that he is not an unlikely starter in a matrimonial race, the prize to be won in which is a bride. The rumor is not, however, credited here by his many friends.

An inter-club race between the Citizens, Harlems, and New Yorks, if properly managed, would be a close and exciting contest, and it is not altogether an impossibility before the close of the season.

ST. LOUIS.

Quincy is the first to respond to my news call, The Quincy Club last week took a little excursion into Missouri, going to Palmyra over one of the most variable and prettiest roads to be found — corduroy swamp, sand, gravel, hills, and shady coasts successively. The club, which is growing steadily, has been requested to participate in a general parade on July 4, and will do so for the wheel's sake.

They say that deaf mutes have peculiar ways of expressing themselves. The following laughable copy of a postal card proves it. The card, which is one of many congratulations received, was sent to a St. Louis wheelman by the mute Star fancy rider who attracted attention here during the Meet: —

Ripley, Ill., June 20, '87.

——— ———, Esq.

Dear Sir, — I never receive my pants from St. Louis with you. Where is it? Please send me it by express to Mt. Sterling via Ripley. I have great deal of nice time last May 20 and 21, and enjoy myself, and shall remember them in future. St. Louis L. A. W. are very first class, and fun time.

Yours truly, wheelmen,

———.

(Thanks, St. Louis L. A. W., many times).

Our new L. A. W. treasurer, W. M. Brewster, tells me that he has gotten well into the harness and intricacies of his work, and highly compliments the system of his predecessor, Sanford Lawton. Brewster was born for hard work, and will make a well-liked officer. Anent the treasurership, it was pleasing to note the manner in which Chief Consul Irvin, who came to St. Louis fully expecting to be elected to the position, received the surprise and accepted the result. He showed no chagrin, and became well liked for it.

If there is one thing a cycler likes better than another, it is a combination of refinement and informality. This delicious article was discovered last Tuesday evening at the home of Chief Consul Brewster, by the officers of the division, who came at his call to a board meeting. Representatives Stewart, Pratt and Sells, and a bird were there. Some tall work was gotten under way. Missouri was divided into five representative districts, and each officer will at once set to work, with the aid of a circular of appeals, and endeavor to advance the interests of the L. A. W., the division and road-book. A report from the touring committee revealed enough material for a good description of through routes, and if Brewster's idea prevails, minor reports will be blended into county descriptions, and the book issued by September. His idea is to renew the hand-book, which was found of more general use than a road book exclusively. The book is to be generous in size, and a probable donation to the division treasury indicates that the style will be generous also.

Brewster, as every wheelman in town knows spends what most wives would consider an unfair proportion of his time away from home, in the interest of cycling. Why Mrs. B. doesn't object was discovered Tuesday evening. The man of many titles had scarcely left the supper table, and settled down to work, when the inner man gave vigorous voice to his wants, and in less time than it takes to tell it, a fine large map of Missouri was doing service as a table-cloth. Missouri division representatives, if their districts seem distorted in shape, must charge it to the tortuous windings of a pencil between sundry bottles, decanters and cake holders.

THE City Fathers of Carthage, a flourishing manufacturing town in Jasper County, are up in arms and are about to introduce in council an ordinance prohibiting our form of cycling on the streets. There are but a few L. A. W. members in the place, but these few appealed to President Kirkpatrick, who has placed the matter in the hands of A. C. Stewart, at this point. St. Joseph, Kansas City, and Boonville wheelmen succeeded in bursting these bubbles, and the Hannibal Pike rule was not enforced. It remains to be seen how interesting the Carthage case will be. It is in able hands.

PRESIDENT KIRKPATRICK, by the way, is following the law of the land by establishing a cabinet. This cabinet consists of the chairman of the national committees, and our president's intention, as expressed in a recent communication, is to submit for suggestion and assistance all matters of importance to the League.

THE constitution of the Missouri Division, provides that the Chief Consul shall call the annual meeting when it seems expedient to him; and that office-holders shall hold over until their successors are elected. Missouri men, then, may expect a long term, as C. C. Brewster believes that by delaying the annual meeting until September, a larger attendance and pleasanter times will result than by having the meeting follow on the heels of the national event.

"KARL KRON" has expressed to me sixty-five copies of "X M Miles," and I have consented to dispose of them. I don't know whether I have undertaken an easy task or not, but hope every wheelman, who is a tourist at heart, won't hesitate to pay to "Karl Kron" the small tribute his four years' of hard labor so richly deserves. There are difficulties in the way of minutely describing ten thousand miles of road which can only be appreciated by those who have tried the experiment themselves. 1,991 Oregon Avenue, St. Louis, is my address. St. Louis wheelmen can secure the book at the "Bakery," 11th and Olive Streets. State wheelmen should apply to the Springfield Printing Co, Springfield, Mass.

PERCY STONE has placed his deposit of $50 on his race against Greenwood over the De Soto road, and has set July 2 as the date. Greenwood is at present afflicted with a cold, but says he will race. The event has created a lively interest, especially as Stone has decided to abandon the safety machine and trust to his own wheel in the race. Greenwood, with two others, started from the city at 4 A. M. last Sunday, and returned at 8 P. M., Belden with him. Jordan was knocked out by a header on the down trip. PHŒNIX.

ARIEL A-WHEEL.

THE THIRD ANNUAL MEET OF THE MARYLAND DIVISION.

THE Ariel Wheel Club, of Reading, Penn., started on its annual tour on Saturday morning, June 18, and in response to "Miss Maryland's" very cordial invitation, bent their steps to the city of the yellow and black. We determined to take the opportunity of visiting Washington at the same time, and so we took the Saturday afternoon steamer of the Ericsson line, which leaves Philadelphia at 4 P. M. daily, reaching Baltimore at about seven the next morning. Right here let me recommend to all wheelmen who are touring between Baltimore or Washington and Philadelphia, to take this water route. The relief from a hot, dusty railway journey is most grateful, while the trip is most delightful on the steamer, to say nothing of its cheapness. Two dollars for a round trip ticket, with bicycles carried free, and the most uniform courtesy from the officials of the boats. At the Baltimore wharf, on Sunday morning, three members of the reception committee, Messrs. Boyd, Mitchell, and Bailey, were on hand to meet us, and only those who have reached a strange place as strangers, entirely ignorant of trains and all else, can appreciate the pleasure with which we hailed the sight of wheelmen waiting to pilot us to our railroad station. They met us with open hands, and after seeing that we had breakfast, started us off on the proper train for Washington, where we were met by Captain Crampton of the Capital Bicycle Club, and conducted to the club house. This club house is one of the finest in the country, and its location is unsurpassed, fronting directly on the Mall. We were tendered the hospitality of the Capital Club House, and, after ablutions, were taken out to the Soldiers' Home by the members. And how shall that run be described? Language fails, utterly and entirely fails. The concrete streets, the stop at Helphenstine's Pharmacy for soda, where the array of legs reflected in the mirrors caused the office cat a fit; the long, smooth coasts on the asphalt, under bordering lines of shade trees — all were so many realizations of the fact that we were at last in the wheelmen's paradise, and that, alas! we were to leave it on the morrow. Fellow wheelmen, whoever and wherever you may be, pack up your traps, and quietly but steadfastly resolve to make a trip to Washington ere another year has wheeled its flight. For, believe me, you do not know what the perfection of cycling is until your wheel has rolled its flight over Washington's streets. And yet they tell me they tire of them.

Washington was done that afternoon and Monday morning pretty thoroughly, and we trained to Baltimore for the Meet. The indefatigable Boyd and Mitchell met us at the B. & O. depot, and escorted us to the Maryland Club, where the freedom of the club house was tendered us. After a wash, the run to the Shell Road was made with a decidedly small contingent, only four Baltimore wheelmen showing up, Messrs. W. A. Eisenbrandt (who was in charge), Leonard, Schaeffer, and Stallings. The Shell road, after it is once reached, is very fine, and the view along the Bay superb, but it is necessary to do some tough riding to reach it from the West End of town. We lunched at Baldwin's, a noted resort, and returned to the club house under a sweltering sun. In fact, the weather all through the Meet was very hot, the thermometer ranging up in the nineties with a persistence worthy a better cause. The run to the Arlington races on Tuesday was simply dreadful, the Baltimoreans themselves acknowledging that they had never struck such weather for years.

The illuminated parade on Monday evening scored a great and instantaneous success. It was a pleasing combination of picturesque effects and brilliant colors, and the novelty of the affair drew thousands upon thousands of spectators. The parade formed in Druid Hill Park on the east and south sides of Druid Lake, and the park drives were crowded with spectators in carriages and afoot, while all along Eutaw Place, at the Monument, and on Charles Street the people were massed in solid ranks so deep in some places that it was with difficulty that a passage way was kept open for the single file of cycles. There was a very general illumination of the residences along the route, many houses being decorated with lanterns and burning Greek fire, etc., while all along the line came frequent applause betokening the appreciation of the people.

From the park gate the procession moved down Eutaw Place, and then countermarched on the east side, the spinning wheels forming a continuous trail of flashing lights and colors all around the squares. It was at this point that the parade showed to the best advantage, for not long afterwards the jolting caused by the cobblestones of some short stretches, which it was necessary to cross to reach the Belgian blocks, extinguished a number of the lanterns, and some tumbles were taken, in which, fortunately, no one was hurt. After leaving Eutaw Place the route lay to Madison Avenue, to Madison, to Charles, to Monument, around the Washington Monument, out Charles Street, to North Avenue, thence to the Mt. Royal entrance to the park, and disband.

Some of the costumes were novel and brilliant; but it is a question whether the plain club uniforms would not have given a more business-like appearance to the affair in contrast to the fanciful aspect it assumed. However, this is altogether a matter of taste, and it is certain that the spectators would not have enjoyed it as much.

Chief Consul J. Kemp Bartlett, Jr., was the Grand Marshal, and he was ably assisted by aids selected from each of the various clubs of the Maryland Division present. The clubs in line were the Maryland Bicycle Club, Baltimore Cycle Club, Rambler Cycle Club, Centaur Club, Alert Club, Hagerstown Bicycle Club, Ariel Wheel Club, of Reading, Pa., Capital Bicycle Club, and Washington Cycle Club of Washington, and delegates from several others. Between two and three hundred wheels were in line.

Tuesday morning, several runs were taken prior to the annual meeting of the Division, which was held at Halstead's Hotel, Arlington, Baltimore Co. One of the principal things done was the appointment of an official organ for the division. Mr. R. M. Lockwood was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and his official report of the minutes, which appears elsewhere, gives the business transacted in detail.

The races at Arlington in the afternoon attracted a large number of people. The grand stand was crowded, and the in-field was filled with drags and turn outs. The track, which is a half mile one, was in fine condition, perfectly level, and rolled hard and smooth. Crist's time of 2.45 1-2 would have been reduced had he had any one to push him, and the absence of Schwartz, of Reading, was much regretted. The grand procession was a pleasing spectacle from the grand stand The cycles came in single file on the first round, then by twos, and afterwards shifting to columns of fours and eights. The various evolutions were made without a fault, and drew much applause from fair hands.

The half-mile dash for resident Maryland riders was won by Warrington as he pleased in 1.27 3-4; Hoover second, and Boyd, third.

One Mile Open.— Ward, Baltimore; and Crist, Brown, and McKenzie, of Washington, were the starters. They got off well together, but Crist took the lead, followed by Brown. At the quarter, MacKenzie made a strong effort, and caught Brown. He then drew away, coming in second. Crist won in 2.45 1-2.

Three-mile Lap Race.—Hall, Kingsland, and Pope. The latter led at the start, but Kingsland pulled up at the three-quarters, and he won easily in 9.25. Hall dropped out at two and a half miles, and Pope took second prize.

One-mile Tricycle.— Brown and Crist took it easy until they turned into the stretch, when Crist took the lead and won by a length in 3.4 1 1-5.

One-mile Dash — Won by Mackenzie, of Washington, in 2.59, with Warrington second.

Three-mile Handicap, Open.— This was a pretty exhibition of plucky riding on Crist's part. He was scratch, with Ward, Brown, Church, Mackenzie and Clotworthy, strung out at from fifteen to seventy-five seconds. Crist caught all with more or less ease except Mackenzie, whose fifty seconds were too much to be overcome. He won in 9.49 1-2, Crist second, having made up forty-four of the fifty seconds. Mr. Harry Park, of Washington, gave a very pretty exhibition of fancy riding at the conclusion of this race.

Two-mile Safety. Bicycle, Handicap.— This was the prettiest race of the day. Crist, scratch. Brown, ten seconds. Eisenbbrandt, fifty seconds. Just as Crist got the word, something snapped, and he almost stopped, but as it seemed to work he put on steam and laid himself down to hard work. He had a long lead to overcome, however, and it was not until the head of the stretch was reached that he passed Eisenbrandt. Then came a magnificent struggle down the home-stretch with Brown. At the distance pole, nearly a length separated them, but Crist here made his final effort, and with a tremenous burst of speed drew up even, and ten yards from the finish forged ahead, winning by a quarter of a length amid a scene of excitement that beggars description. Time, 6.44.

One and a half-mile Team Race.— The Baltimore Cycle Club won after a pretty struggle, although Kingsland, of the Ramblers, came in an easy first.

One-mile Consolation.— Church won in 3.06 2-5, with Wood second.

This ended a very successful race-meet, and the Management are to be congratulated not only on the large and enthusiastic attendance, but also on the very commendable promptness with which the races were run off.

Baltimore hospitality showed itself again in the evening, by the presentation to each visitor of a reserved seat at the Academy of music, to witness McCaull's Opera Company in the "Black Hussar." The principal new feature in this particular performance, was the question by Digby Bell as "Tifkow" of "What's the matter with Kemp Bartlett?" The answer, "He's all right!" fairly shook the house, and no one looked more astonished than the witty Digby who was far from expecting such an explosion, a note having been sent around merely requesting him to bring in the simple question some way. Then a naughty wheelman in the Circle yelled "What's the matter with Digby Bell?" Again the shout, "He's all right!" and for a few minutes that performance was suspended.

Farewell, Baltimore! and lingering regrets go with you, oh fellow wheelmen of Maryland and the Capital City! For truest, warmest hospitality and kindness ye never were surpassed; and some day, perchance, our merry wheels may again roll south of Mason and Dixon's line.

Let Baltimore have the League Meet next year, now that she has made a bid for it, and give her a chance to show what she is made of.

Where all were so kind, any distinction seems unfair, and yet we cannot help acknowledging, particularly, the kindness of Captain Crompton, of the Capitals, and Messrs. Boyd, Mitchell, Eisenbrandt, (W. A.), Lockwood, Canfield, Lord, Stran, and last, but not least, the C. C. himself, Mr. Bartlett. We are much indebted to him for courtesies and information furnished, while the Chairman of the Reception Committee, Mr. S. R. Boyd, devoted himself to our welfare and comfort in the most disinterested manner. He was with us day and night, even taking up his sleeping quarters at the clubhouse, where, with kind forethought, comfortable cots had been provided to avoid the necessity of our going to the hotels.

Once more, Baltimore and Washington friends farewell until we meet again! ARIEL.

MARYLAND DIVISION, L. A. W.

THE Third Annual Meeting of the Maryland Division L. A. W. was held at "Halstead's" Hotel Arlington, Baltimore County, on Tuesday June 21, at 10 A. M. Chief Consul Bartlett occupied the chair, and about one hundred members were present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read, and approved. Chief Consul Bartlett read a very interesting report; among other things it stated that the division had increased in membership since the last annual meeting over 150 per cent.

The number June 21, last, was 99, while this year it is 232. He predicted an increase to 500 before the next annual meeting. The report of the Secretary-treasurer showing balance on hand $42.50 was read and accepted.

The question of appointing an official organ for the Maryland Division coming up for consideration. Mr. S. T. Clark moved that "Whereas, the Every Saturday has been printing two columns of cycling news every week, and promises to publish all official notices sent them, and will furnish the paper to the League members for half price ($1.00) per annum: That the Every Saturday be appointed the Official Organ of the Maryland Division L. A. W." The motion was put and carried.

The election of a Secretary-Treasurer being next in order, Mr. R. M. Lockwood (the present incumbent) was re-elected by acclamation.

On motion of W. H. Barrington, a committee of three (3) was appointed to revise the Constitution. The Chair named the following as the committee:

Messrs. R. M. Lockwood, of Baltimore, Chairman; W. L. Seabrook, of Westminster, and A. E. Mealy, of Baltimore.

Mr. R. M. Lockwood moved that a committee of five be appointed to post signs of warning along the roads throughout the State. Carried.

The Chair appointed the following gentlemen to act on the committee:

Messrs Scott Bomberger, of Hagerstown, Chairman; Edward Loane, of Baltimore, Chas. E. Fink, of Westminster, Geo. F. Updegraff, of Hagerstown, and Ira C. Canfield, of Baltimore.

Upon motion of Mr. S. T. Clark, a committee of five was appointed to consider the advisability of inviting the National League to hold its annual meeting in Baltimore, in May, 1888. Messrs. J. K Bartlett, Jr., Chief Consul S. T. Clark, Jas. Thompson, J. Frank Baetjer, and W. H. Barrington were appointed on the committee. The committee to report at a special meeting called for that purpose.

Mr. S. T. Clark offered the following resolution that: Whereas, the Maryland Division is fully able to publish its own official organ and send its official notices out by the postal laws of the United States. Nevertheless, it deeply deplores the fact that the L. A. W. BULLETIN has omitted to publish many official notices that have been sent to the Secretary-Editor.

The resolution was put and carried.

The meeting then, at 12 M., adjourned.

Respectfully,

R. M. LOCKWOOD,
Secretary-Treasurer.

VERMONT DIVISION.

THE annual meeting of the Vermont Division L. A. W., was held at Montpelier Friday, June 17. The business meeting was held at the Pavilion at 11 o'clock. The reports showed that the division was in excellent condition.

It was voted to publish a State road book, and $50 was appropriated for that purpose. S. W. Kirkland, of Brattleboro, was elected on the committee in place of W. J. Drown, who had left the State.

The improvement of the roads was made the subject of extended discussion, and H. G. Webster, the leading dry goods merchant of Montpelier, took the ground that the convict labor of the State should be employed in making permanent improvements on the principal roads. The following resolution on this subject was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the division that the convict labor of the State can be better employed in making permanent improvements on the highways, than as at present, in competition with free labor, in the manufacture of shoes, etc., and that the members of the division use their best endeavors to secure the passage of an act so providing by the next legislature.

Voted, To make The Bicycle the official organ of the division.

The following report from the Secretary treasurer was read:

Gentlemen of the Vermont Division L. A. W. The following is my report as Secretary-treasurer of the division.

Cash on hand July 9, 1886				$11.05
July 10, received E. M. Aaron				35.50
July 12,	"	"	"	9.38
Nov. 3,	"	"	"	1.00
July 12, '87,	"	"	"	.38
April 3,	"	"	"	39.00
Total receipts for the year				$97.21
Have paid out as follows:
Aug. 21, E. M. Aaron				.25
Sept. 22, 125 circulars				1.50
March 14, George Rolfe for frames				2.25
May 19, postage on notices of meet				.85
Total,				4.85

Leaving cash on hand June 17, $92.36.

We have now 83 members against some over 100 last year. Only 71 renewed this year and nine new members have joined. It seems to me that by a little missionary work by each member, we could have a much larger division.

Respectfully submitted,

F. E. DUBOIS, Secretary-treasurer.

The bicycle races advertised were held on Berlin Street at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and were witnessed by over 1,000 people. The following is the summary:

Three-Mile Race Championship of Vermont.— Won by S. W. Kirkland (1), 11.55 1-2; C. C. Fletcher of St. Johnsbury (2); Fred M. Scott of Barre (3).

Novice Race, One-Mile.— Wilbur Lowe, Montpelier (1), .35; F. E. DuBois, Victor Safety (2).

Hill-Climbing Contest.— On Wheelock Hill which had never been ridden, H. B. Chapman, Woodstock (1); G. H. Frost, St. Johnsbury (2).

One-Mile Championship of the State.— C. C. Fletcher, St. Johnsbury (1); A. D. Gould, Bellows Falls (2).

A street parade followed, and the exercises of the day closed with a fine supper at the Pavilion.

MR. DUCKER'S FAREWELL.

MR. HENRY E. DUCKER left Springfield for his new field of labor in Buffalo, on Sunday last. The Springfield Bicycle Club gave him a good send off, and the employees of the Printing Company presented him with a handsome gold chain and seal worth $100. The following letter was sent to him by the club through its secretary:—

Dear Sir,—At a regular meeting of the Springfield Bicycle Club, held June 7, on motion of A. O. McGarrett, you were unanimously made a life member of the club. It is with feelings of sincerest pleasure that I inform you of this action by the club, of which you have been so long a faithful and worthy member. The club, in thus honoring you, honors itself. It thus evinces its acknowledgment and appreciation of the long and disinterested service which you have rendered, without which I have no hesitation in saying it would not to-day occupy its present proud and honorable position. The Springfield Bicycle Club has a world-wide reputation; its fame has gone throughout the length and breadth of the land, and is recognized throughout the world as the bicycle club par excellence. It owes its proud and honorable position, I repeat, to one man, and that man is Henry E. Ducker. Rest assured that, wherever your future lot may be cast, the good wishes of the Springfield Bicycle Club, collectively and individually, will attend you. As the Springfield Bicycle Club is, to-day, the synonym of success, so may the name of its founder, godfather, and ever-watchful protector be a synonym of unbounded prosperity. Believe me, I have thus testified but faintly the esteem and respect in which you are held by the Springfield Bicycle Club, and again permit me to express the pleasure which I experience in thus making known to you the acknowledgment of its indebtedness to you.

A farewell reception was held at the rooms of the club on Friday evening. The rooms were modestly and tastefully decorated. In the reception room, Mr. Ducker, assisted by President W. H. Selvey and Vice-President D. E. Miller, received about seventy-five of his friends, all members of the club. No visitors were present, for the reception was a strictly "family" gathering. After everybody had shaken hands with Mr. Ducker and given him their best wishes for future success, the party adjourned to the main rooms, where President Selvey, in behalf of the club, presented Mr. Ducker with an elegant tea set, an umbrella, and a travelling bag. He prefaced the presentation with an appropriate speech, in which he referred to the invaluable work done by Mr. Ducker for the club in its darkest hour; how he saw and grasped the opportunity to retrieve the club's misfortunes and made it what it is to-day. "Feeling that what is Springfield's loss is Buffalo's gain," concluded Mr. Selvey, "and regretting that we must part with you, rest assured that our best wishes will follow you wherever you go." He then uncovered the presents, which was the signal for much applause. Mr. Ducker said he hardly knew how to thank his associates for their appreciation and kindness and good-will. "But I assure you I do"—he could go no further, for tears came to his eyes and a great lump stuck in his throat: he was "downed," the hero of many bike battles and tournaments, and by his friends. Singing and general hand-shaking were indulged in till a late hour, when everybody went home conscious that they had partly paid a great debt.

TRANS-ATLANTIC NOTES.

THE English Inter-Varsity contests resulted in favor of Oxford this year despite the possession of Gatehouse by Cambridge.

MR. G. P. MILLS has brought the English fifty miles tricycle road record down to 3.7.24, riding an "Anfield Ivel" tricycle.

CYCLISTS seem to have hitherto labored under great disabilities in the German capital, for we learn that permission has only just been granted by the president of the police for tricycles to be driven in the streets of Berlin.

AT London, June 25, a five-mile bicycle race took place at Alexandria Park. Fred Lees won by five yards. Woodside was fourth, fifty yards behind the winner.

ON the 10th of June, at Coventry, Howell clipped the professional bicycle records for three-quarters of a mile and a mile, the new figures being 1.56 1-5, and 2.35 1-5

GERMAN cyclists are watching with great interest the doings of Woodside in England, as they fully expect the American champion over in that country to measure wheels and speed with Duncan about September. They very naturally hope Woodside will see his way clear to accept Duncan's terms and conditions, and bring off their matches on German soil.

AT Coventry, on June 11, Ralph Temple made a quarter of a mile, with flying start, in 32 1-5.

FROM the Standard of the 9th we learn that the Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief has instructed Major-General Fremantle, Deputy Adjutant-General for Auxiliary Forces, to issue a memorandum to general officers commanding military districts to the effect that, in consequence of the very satisfactory results which attended the operations of the Provisional Cyclists' column in connection with the Dover marching column at Easter, His Royal Highness has, with the concurrence of the Secretary of War, approved of some further extension being given to the experiment. The Commander-in-Chief wishes that the commanding officers of volunteer corps should be encouraged to enrol in their corps experienced cyclists, to be practised specially in scouting, carrying despatches and other kindred duties. The existing establishment must not be exceeded by this enrolment, there must be no additional expense to the public, and cyclists will have to render themselves efficient in drill and musketry the same way as other volunteers.— Cyclist.

AN attempt to do 300 miles in 24 hours on the Crystal Palace track, by Mr. T. R. Marriott, was commenced on Wednesday, June 8. Mr. Marriott did just under 15 miles for the first hour, and the 20 miles were ridden in 1.20.38. 25 miles were knocked off in 1.42.19 4-5. Marriott covered 29 miles 200 yards in the first two hours, and 30 miles in 2.3.23 2-5. 40 miles were done in 2.46.1 4-5, and 50 miles were completed in 3.28.34 3-5. The start having taken place at eight o'clock P. M., Marriott at midnight, four hours later, called a halt for refreshment, 57 miles having been covered. Fifteen minutes were employed eating and drinking, and then Marriott again appeared on the track, and touched 60 miles in 4.26.25 1-5. The century was covered in 7.51.37 3-5, and then Marriott began wiping off all records up to 150 miles, which distance he reached in 11.58.4 2-5, and then decided to stop, being insufficiently trained for a full 24-hour struggle. He rode an "Olympia" made by his own firm, and Pem. Coleman is responsible for the times, which were as follows, all those given now standing as record: —

CYCLETS.

JULY 4.

THE eagle will scream.

AND the cycler will speed.

THE fire-cracker will snap and the rocket will gleam.

THE bicycler will perspire and the tricycler will puff.

LET the small boy have his cacophonous enjoyment. We stick to the silent steed.

THOMAS STEVENS is writing a series of cycling stories for Harper's Young People.

CHRIS WHEELER tells an amusing story of his initiation to the bicycle in Outing for July.

THE Kentucky road book will be issued this week.

THE next presidency will come high. Rumor says that New York will Bid well.

THE best cycling track in the world has sunk into innocuous desuetude. Ducker has made tracks for Buffalo.

EASTERN Ohio Wheelmen will ride to the Meet at Mansfield, Marion, and Springfield, July 26, 27, 28, leaving Canton July 24.

ST. LOUIS used to think that Stone was a hard rider, but Boston can outdo St. Louis. Emery is harder than Stone.

A POPULAR conundrum just now, — Y is the Fourth of July. Those who can't see this should not ring a bell.

ROWE is willing to race McCurdy three miles, the latter to have three hundred yards start, under the same conditions as on May 30, for fun or money.

WALTER RICHARDSON has been elected lieutenant of the Rovers Cycle Club of Charlestown to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Joseph Smith.

THE fifth annual meet of the New Hampshire Division of the League of American Wheelmen is to be held at Manchester on July 4.

ELWELL'S Quebec tourists now number twenty-eight. The limit is thirty. Let the last two send in their names as quickly as possible.

D. ROGERS Company have resigned the agency of the Cunard cycles and taken Gormully & Jeffery's goods.

AND now comes the owner of the Safety, on which Corey climbed Crank Hill, and says the pedals were Bown's. That settles it, They were Bown to win.

B. DRINKENBERG was fined fifty dollars and costs last week for running down A. M. Watcher on the Lexington (Ky.,) turnpike. A civil suit for the value of the wheel will be entered at once.

GEORGE W. NELLIS, Jr., on his arrival at Newton, Ia., the first of the week, had ridden his Expert bicycle 1,145 miles. Mr. Nellis is talking of returning upon his bicycle, riding as far east as Boston.

THE Lynn Track Association promises to have a very successful bicycle meeting July 4. Some of the best men in the country, both amateurs and professionals have entered.

AT Alexandria Park, London, June 27, Ralph Temple, racing against time, beat the bicycle record for a quarter of a mile, standing start, covering the distance in 37 1-5 seconds. Woodside failed to cut down the five-mile record.

ON the 4th of July the Rover's Cycle Club and friends will have a basket picnic at Waltham. The associate members and ladies will go by train, while the active members wheel to Waltham, where boats will be taken and a trip made up the river.

THERE is no truth in the report that Berger is going to furnish the cycling press with a "patent inside." He can write for the lot and tell a new story each time. There is also no truth in the report that his first name is "Lim." We wanted to pay him back in some way, and there it is.

THAT record around the Reservoir will not stand. It seems that the boys who timed Burditt wanted to make him feel good, and so they gave him the time as 3.01 instead of 4.01, as it really was. The boys have had their joke, and Burditt has got a little fame. Truth is not stranger than fiction.

E. L. McBURNEY, George H. Short, and Elgin McBurney, three members of the H. C. W., of Jersey City, N. J., are going to start on a tour to Niagara Falls by way of Poughkeepsie, Albany, Binghamton, Elmira, Hornellsville, and Buffalo, leaving Jersey City on the morning of July 6, 1887. They will kindly appreciate any and all favors shown to them while on this trip.

THE Cyclists Corps of the Victoria Rifles turned out with the regiment in the parade at Montreal on Jubilee Day. The Herald says: "The Victoria Rifles and the 65th marched on to the Champ de Mars simultaneously, the former looking very smart and soldier-like. The ambulance corps, and the bicycle corps, under the command of Sergeants Birks and Ross, came in for a deal of favorable criticism."

AN English paper describes a new dismount for the Rover type safety. It is only feasible in machines which have the neck of the machine low down. As you are riding along, put the brake on, throw the right leg in between the handles and the saddle as though you were going to ride side saddle, and step on to the ground with the right foot. This dismount looks very neat, is perfectly safe, and with a little practice can be done when a machine is going fairly fast.

IT was a bad-tempered, cross-grained sort of C. T. C. dog that lay basking in the sunshine, waiting for the unwary wheelman. Seeing a man coming along the street on a bicycle, the dog licked his lips, picked himself up, and went for the cyclist. That dog reckoned he'd struck chain lightning when he found himself being kicked down the street at a 2.30 gait by the front wheel, and the next time he goes for a cyclist he'll take good care that it is not an American trick rider on a "Star" machine, he picks out to sharpen his teeth on. — Wheeling.

H. C. GALLAGHER, of Milton, writes regarding a dangerous stone slab in the roadway of the bridge over the Neponset river, at the foot of Dorchester and Milton Hills. He writes that the slab is directly in the middle of the street, and will tumble a rider every time he happens to strike it. A great many wheelmen coast these hills, and it would be well for them to heed this warning. Neither side of the road is particularly good, and if the middle of the road be taken a bad fall is pretty sure to result

SUMMER has come, and come to stay. The thermometer is making a big record among the large figures. The ice-cream man is happy, and the soda fountain is coining money. The hammock and Japanese fan are now in form, and the water-cooler is perspiring from its work. In the ponds and creeks the frog sings its dirge, and the deadly mosquito is filling up with gore. The dusty roads, no less than the hot sun, make riding a burden, and the cool of the evening is alone fit for wheeling. Let us take courage, however, for at the beaches are cooling breezes, and the festive steamed clams are ripe.

THE Massachusetts Bicycle Club wound up its affairs as a "club," last Tuesday evening, when the members met at the quarters, 152 Newbury Street. About thirty-five members were present and the special business embraced the hearing of the report of the special committee, consisting of Messrs. Slocum, Miller, and Parsons. Mr. Dodge occupied the chair, and Mr. Slocum, for the committee, reported all the property of the club as formally transferred to the corporation, which assumes all the liabilities, in amount about equal to that of the assets of the old club. The report was accepted, and the club voted therewith to disband. Persons having wheels at the clubhouse are requested to call and take them away at the earliest opportunity, and thereby avoid any expense incident to cost of storage.

THE Dorchester Bicycle Club claims the first Century run of the season. On June 28, Doane, Gould, and Benson, rode from the clubhouse in Dorchester by an indirect route to Worcester, Mass. After dinner, and a visit to the Worcester Club, the party went to see Lake Quinsigamond and admire its beauties along the shore. From here the direct road (via Shrewsbury Hill) was taken for home, one stop being made to capture a bakeshop in South Framingham. Only ninety-four miles was scored at the clubhouse, so they started out to finish the remainder, one of the party keeping on for one hundred and ten miles. The roads were in better condition than expected, but hills were plenty, likewise long and steep. To the credit of the riders let it be noticed that two of them climbed them all in good shape.

THE Brookline Cycle Club will keep open house on the Fourth of July. Members of the different clubs in the vicinity are cordially invited to call at the rooms on Station Street, near the depot. It is expected that a large delegation of wheelmen from the various clubs will join the Brookline Club in the parade in the morning at six o'clock. The division of riders will be under the charge of Captain W. K. Corey, of the Brooklien Club, and those who expect to take part are requested to wear either some burlesque suit or their club uniform. Those taking part in the parade will be considered the guests of the club during the day. The boys are anticipating great fun, as an interesting programme of sports, etc., has been arranged by the committee in charge. Clubs expecting to visit the Brookline Club will oblige by sending word to the secretary of the club, Mr. F. M. Seamans.

A WEEK ago E. L. and A. W. Whitney registered as from New York at the Leland Hotel of Chicago. The former, desiring to take a run over the Boulevard, rented a wheel at the rooms of the Pope Manufacturing Company for that purpose. During the afternoon he again called, and got a machine to ride over, as he said, to see the base-ball game. Since then neither Whitney nor the wheel has been seen or heard from. If the names of these young men are genuine, and there is no reason to suppose that they are not, this paragraph may meet the eye of some wheelman who is acquainted with them, and he can give some information which may be useful in hunting up their whereabouts and getting possession of the machine, which is a 52-inch Expert, enamel finish, numbered 10,502. Information sent to R. D. Garden, Manager, 291 Wabsash Avenue, Chicago, will be thankfully received.

THE Nashua Telegraph has the following in regard to a performance over what all bicyclists will agree is a beastly road, to say the least: "Frank McMaster and Frank Thompson, in company with a number of other Nashua wheelmen, rode to Lowell recently in one hour and fifteen minutes, including all unavoidable delays consequent upon a party riding together. Here the party broke up, and McMaster and Thompson continued on to Boston, where they arrived after a four hours' ride from Nashua. After visiting Corey Hill, Chestnut Hill reservoir, and other wheeling resorts they started on their wheels for the return trip at 2.30 P. M., McMaster reaching home at 6.30. He completed a 100-mile run on the trotting track. Thompson rode eighty-nine miles during the day, and made but two dismounts from Boston to Lowell. McMaster made but one, and only one from Lowell to Nashua. His time from Pawtucket bridge to Nashua, over very sandy roads, after having already ridden almost continuously seventy-five miles, was one hour and twenty minutes. Last autumn Edward Bailey, of Malden, a comparative stranger to the road, made the run from the Worcester railroad track here to the Middlesex Street depot in Lowell in one hour and five minutes."

CAPTAIN A. D. PECK, Jr., and Lieutenant J. M. Burr, of the Massachusetts Club, have completed all arrangements for their proposed wheeling trip to Washington The tour will occupy eighteen days, and during that time about three hundred and fifty miles will be covered by them on their wheels. Most of the riding will be done between 4 and 9 o'clock A. M., and 5 to 7 P. M., so that they will not suffer overmuch from the heat.

The start will be made on Thursday evening at 6 o'clock from Captain Peck's residence. They will ride to Canary Cottage, Milton, where they will be entertained by members of the Massachusetts Club, who have taken the cottage for the summer. Leaving early the next morning, they will ride to Walpole for breakfast. Here they will be joined by William Bunting, who will accompany them to New York. Dinner will be taken at Providence, and from there they will go by train to New London, arriving in time to witness the college boat race. The next morning they will take the steamer to Greenport, L. I., and there wheel twenty-one miles to Riverhead for dinner. In the afternoon twenty-seven more miles will be wheeled to Bellport, where the night will be passed. The next day they will wheel thirty miles to Amityville for dinner. Here they will join the Brooklyn Club. That afternoon twenty-eight miles will be covered, and the night passed at Jamaica. L. A. W. Consul Waters will entertain the tourists here. The next evening they will ride to Brooklyn, where they will be met by W. H. De Graff, of the Harlem wheelmen. During the day they will also be entertained by members of the Citizens' Club. The next day will be spent about New York City, and the following at Coney Island. From there they go to Newark, passing the night there, and the next morning riding to Orange, where they will be taken care of by Captain Porter, of the Orange Wanderers. After sampling the beautiful roads of the Oranges they will ride to Plainfield, and continue on to Somerville, where the night will be spent. The next morning they will wheel eighteen miles to Hopewell for dinner, and then fifteen more to Trenton. Here they will pass the night, and receive the hospitality of the Trenton Club. A ride of twenty-one miles the next morning will bring them to Philadelphia, where a day and a half will be passed. Then they will wheel to Wilmington, Del., distant forty-eight miles. The train will be taken from there to Washington, where two days will be spent under the care of Captain Seeley, of the Capital Club, who will show them all the sights. Returning by train, a day and a half will be passed in Baltimore, and then the steamer will be taken for Boston, stopping one day at Norfolk. — Globe.

THE "LIBERTY BILL."

HURRAH for the "Bicycle Bill":
Hurrah for Potter, who drew it,
For Bidwell, who got him to do it,
And stirred up the State with a will;
For Cantor, who moved it admitted
For the Speaker, who had it committed;
For petitioners, twenty-five thousand;
For the honorable Senate and House; and
Hurrah for Governor Hill!

Hurrah for the "Bicycle Bill":
All praise to the New York Division,
To the League and its men of decision,
Who keep up its usefulness still;
To the workers for right, when they see it;
To the press and the people, — albeit,
For Senators Pitts and Parker, —
We make our especial remark, or
Hurrah for Governor Hill!

Hurrah for the "Bicycle Bill":
Good day to you, Senator Daly:
Your speech it was shot off quite gayly,
But was n't loaded to kill;
Good day to his Honor the Mayor,
To each driving club millionaire;
When wealth wants a way it may Hewitt,
But justice will win and we knew it;
Hurrah for Governor Hill!

Hurrah for the "Bicycle Bill":
We wish those patrons, good shockings;
And Scott, with his "spangled stockings,"
And "nursery maids," no ill.
But we say to the road hogs divers,
To the swells and the reckless drivers,
Look out for rights decided
By statute made and provided!
Hurrah for Governor Hill!

Hurrah for the "Bicycle Bill":
The nabobs have made their commotion,
But now, from the lakes to the ocean,
The wheelman may ride at his will.
No veto! — Ah, we'll forgive Crummus,
Whose reasons were weaker than women's.
From the Park Board to powers that made it,
We've appealed, — and they cannot evade it! —
Hurrah for Governor Hill!

L. A. W., No. 1.

THE LIBERTY BILL.

IT gives me pleasure to inform you that Governor Hill has signed the Liberty Bill. By the passage of this measure, the bicycle and tricycle are recognized as vehicles on the highways and park driveways of New York State by statute law.

"The commissioners, trustees, or other authorities, having charge or control of the highways or park driveways, shall have no power or authority to pass, enforce, or maintain any ordinance, rule, or regulation, by which any person using a bicycle or tricycle shall be excluded or prohibited from the free use of any of the park highways or driveways at any time when the same is open to the free use of persons using other pleasure carriages."

I also enclose a letter in relation to the subject, which was sent to the Park Board to-day. By this conference with the Board, we hope to secure such rules and regulations, and so regulate the cycling traffic in the Park, that no serious results will follow. I also enclose copy of the telegram sent by the wheelmen of this State to Governor Hill, immediately on receipt of the news that he had given the bill his approval.

NEW YORK, June 28, 1887.

To the Honorable Commissioners of Public Parks of the City of New York.

GENTLEMEN: —

By a semi-official announcement, the wheelmen of New York have just learned of Governor Hill's approval of the act, "In relation to the use of bicycles and tricycles," which seems to have excited a special local interest in this section of the State. Before the wheelmen make use of the extended rights recognized by this law, we desire, as the authorized representative of the great body of wheelmen in this State, to establish between the Park Commissioners and the wheelmen of New York city, an understanding which will serve to dissipate all apprehension as to the practical operation of the law referred to.

The wheelmen of this city are as a class, conservative, dignified, and intelligent citizens, who feel an interest in the affairs of the city government, and in the orderly administration of its several departments. They recognize the fact that the bicycle and tricycle are little understood, and only to a limited degree appreciated by the general public, as useful and practical vehicles, and that the prejudice against their use has been encouraged by many honest and well-meaning citizens. That this prejudice will be dissipated by time and experience has been demonstrated in other countries, and we are confident that the same result must follow the practical operation of the law in question.

In order, however, that the wheelmen of this city may show in a substantial way their desire to concur, and as well as may be to assist with the safe, orderly and consistent use of this parkways of this city, a meeting of the officers of the several clubs in this city will be held during this week, and a committee will be appointed with power to confer with your Honorable Board, to the end that suitable arrangements and regulations may be made for the use of bicycles and tricyles on the parkways within your jurisdiction, and for such other conference, if any, as may be desired by your Board. Trusting that this communication will be regarded in the spirit of a suggestion, and as an assurance of the allegiance of the cyclists of New York to the good government of this city, we remain,

Most respectfully yours,
GEO. R. BIDWELL,
Chief Consul.
C. H. LUSCOMB,
Chairman of the Rights and Privileges Committee.

[Copy of the Telegram.]

NEW YORK, June 27, 1887.

To the Honorable DAVID B. HILL, Albany, N. Y.

On behalf of the wheelmen of New York State I desire to thank you for signing the bill which affords them recognition and protection on the highways of this State.

(Signed). GEO. R. BIDWELL,
Chief Consul.

Fraternally yours,
GEO. R. BIDWELL.

FOREIGN MACHINES.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — It is with regret, that we notice an advertisement going the rounds of the cycling papers, casting a slur upon foreign machines and ideas, and while we believe every fair-minded cyclist can see something good in every make of machine, whether Foreign or American, we think it is not courteous to try to build up one's business at the expense of another. In this case, there seems to be an opportunity for the application of the Golden Rule. We believe in living and letting others live.

THE PATH.

THE K. C. W. RACE MEET.

"You know!!! that the King's County wheelmen will hold their sixth annual race meeting, June 25, 1887, at the grounds of the B. A. A."

So said the ads. for several weeks. Forthwith cycledom within twenty-five miles of New York City Hall burnished up its metal buttons, dusted up its road-stained jackets, and prepared to "flock." Five years had taught that this annual announcement meant a dozen well filled and well run races, a peek at a thousand or so of Brooklyn's prettiest girls, a good time all around, and above all a regular K. C. W. clear day. Accordingly, all local cycledom on Saturday "flocked," as per announced intention. It went, it saw, and was not disappointed. The grand stand bloomed like a parterre of beauteous living buds, relieved here and there by dark patches of sturdier plants, and all that sort of thing. You know!!! then why continue? Handsome George Bidwell struck a graceful pose in the space allotted to the referee; Starter Price adjusted his popper; Herald Burns, the man of mighty lungs, cleared the pipes of his vocal organs, and the races began sharp on time, and continued likewise, only a little more so.

One-mile Novice.—First heat: W. H. Caldwell, E. W., 1; Wm. Schumacher, L. I. W., 2; J. W. Bate, N. W., 3; J. H. Mellor, N. W. Caldwell took the lead on the last lap, and won, after a good fight, by three yards in 3.20 1-5. Schumacher beat Bate twenty yards. It may as well be stated here that the track was cinder, and one-fifth of a mile, so that the riders labored under great disadvantages.

K. C. W.—One-mile Novice: L. W. Beasley, jr., 1; J. H. Knox, 2; R. W. Steves, G. L. Courtney. A good race all through, and won by one yard, the other pair being beaten thirty yards. Time, 3.23.

Two-mile Handicap.—J. W. Powers, jr, H. W., 40 yds., 1; H. L. Powers, N. Y., 125 yds., 2; T. W. Roberts, A. W. C., 100 yds., 3; W. H. Caldwell, E. W., 150 yds., 4; C. H. Stenken, H. C. W., 60 yds., 5; E. C. Parker, H. W., 200 yds. This race proved to be one of the best of the day, and brought out a new wonder and coming man in the person of H. L. Powers, a brother of Jesse, aged 15. Big stories have been afloat all the spring about the prowess of this youngster, and the result of the three races in which he took part amply verified them. It was a scorcher from start to finish, and at the end of the mile the field was bunched. Despite spurting at times, it held together until the homestretch, when Jesse caught the tape, with his little brother second, Roberts and Caldwell being at his heels. The fourth man was within five hards of the winner. Caldwell did well, considering that he was the only one in the race mounted on a roadster.

Calumet Cycling Club, two-mile Championship.—R. L. Jones, 1; F.W. Montgomery, 2; W. G. Hoag, 3; Robert Mabie, 9; Jones coasted in an easy winner in 7.07.

One-mile Novice.—Second heat: H. L. Bradley, I. B. C., 1; W. L. Richardson, I. B. C., 2; Frederick St. John, A. W. C., 3; W. H. Wells, I. B. C., Wm. Heyny, jr., N. Y. Bradley won by three yards, Richardson beating St. John one yard. Time, 3.14 2-5.

Team Relay Race, one and four-fifth miles, each man riding three laps.—K. C. W.: A. B. Rich, J. H. Knox, L. W. Beasley (1). H. W.: J. W. Powers, jr., E. J. Halsted, A. T. Steiner. Steiner and Beasley were the first pair to start. The former took a header, thus leaving his team no chance to win, and the K. C. W. trio romped over the line winners as they pleased in 5.58 1-5.

Half Mile Boys' Race.—H. L. Powers, 1; H. A. Keelum, 2; Paul Cavanagh, Willie Rider, Victor Candidus. Keelum rode gamely, but it was fruitless, as little Powers won as he pleased in 1.37 2-5.

One Mile Ilderan Championship.—H. L. Bradley, 1; H Hornbustle, 2; Ed. Hornbustle, 3; W. L. Richardson. This was a rattling good race, and the Hornbustle aggregation made Bradley hustle to win in 3.11 4-5.

One Mile Handicap.—H. L. Powers, N. Y., 75 yds., 1; L. W. Beasley, K. C. W., 90 yds., 2; T. W. Roberts, A. W. C., 60 yds., 3; A. B. Rich, K. C. W., 5catch, 4; J. H. Knox, K. C. W., 60 yds.; W. H. Wells, I. B. C., 90 yds.; E. C. Parker, H. W., 120 yds.; J. W. Powers, jr., H. W., 25 yds. With such field, and with Rich and Jesse Powers both in, a big contest was anticipated and realized. Rich started with a terrific rush, and passed Powers in two hundred yards. In three laps he was up with little Powers, but the youngster hung to him, and the pair chased the limit men like mad. On the home stretch young Powers rushed by the field as though they were anchored, and as Rich was exhausted by his opening spurt, he either could not respond or was caught napping. The kid won in 3.02 1-5, with Beasley, Roberts, and Rich close up in the order named. The boy is a wonder, and no mistake; but if his friends encourage him too much at present in racing they will surely kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

One Mile Novice.—First heat: Caldwell and Bradley were the only ones to face the starter. Caldwell clung to Bradley's little wheel throughout, but could get no nearer, the Brooklyn man winning by one-fifth of a second in 3.19.

Five Miles N. Y. L. A. W. Championship.—A. B. Rich, K. C. W., 1; J. W. Powers, Jr, H. W., 2; T. W. Parker, A. W. C., 3; E. C. Parker, H. W. It was a loafing race until the last lap, when Rich surprised Powers by a premature spurt, and won in slow time.

One Mile Ride and Run.—E. I. Halsted, H. W., 1; J. W. Bate, N. W., 2; F. W. Montgomery, C. C. C. The Harlem man won by thirty yards in 4.13 1-5.

Consolation Race, one mile.—This brought out a field of eight starters, but was soon reduced to a match between the Hornbustle brothers. Ed. was beaten by one foot, 3.12 4-5.

After the races the K. C. W. entertained their friends in their accustomed hospitable manner at their club rooms, where the prizes were presented.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MEET.

TO THE MEMBERS OF N. H. DIV., L. A. W.:—

Gents,—Arrangements for the Fifth Annual Meet of our Division have been perfected, and if the clerk of the weather will only smile on us, it promises to be a successful one. Wheelmen from all parts of the State are expected to be present, also representatives from Maine and Massachusetts. Through the kindness of Mr. F. E. Brown, G. T. A. of the Concord railroad, I have secured a reduction of rates for those coming on the Concord & Portsmouth railroad, from Portsmouth and Newmarket Junction; also free transportation of all wheels on all railroads under the control of the Concord railroad, so those calling for wheelmen's tickets at Portsmouth and Newmarket Junction, will receive them at the reduction of one cent per mile.

As will be seen by the programme, a run is to be started at eight o'clock from the club rooms for Fletcher's Island, a distance of eight miles all round, returning in ample season for the parade, which is called at ten o'clock. The parade will be about eight or nine miles in and about the city, which will be on good streets and roads. At two o'clock dinner will be served at the Manchester House at one dollar per plate, after which the annual meeting of the Division will be called, followed by a run at which time group photographs will be taken.

Those coming Saturday evening and Sunday, will be entertained Sunday by a run to Mill Dam House, a distance of four miles, where dinner will be served at fifty cents per plate, or a steamboat ride up the Merrimac river to Riverside Park.

The L. A. W. House is the Manchester House, rates two dollars per day to League members.

The reception committee will be at the club rooms, Opera Block, and at the Manchester House, also at the depot on arrival of trains on July 4.

Let all remember that the wheels are to be carried free on the Concord railroad and all its branches, also that the reduction is good for the 4th and 5th.

Hoping to meet all the wheelmen in the State on this occasion; also hope this will be the most successful of all Meets.

I am yours truly,

H. M. BENNETT,
C. C., N. H. Div.

MANCHESTER, N. H., June 27, 1887.

TO TOURISTS AND OTHERS.

YOUR attention is called to the regulations recently promulgated by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, so far as relates to wheelmen:—

No person shall draw or drive upon any footway or sidewalk any vehicle except children's carriages, and except as now permitted by law.

* * * * * * *

All vehicles travelling between sunset and sunrise shall display lighted lamps on both sides thereof, so placed as to be visible from the front, sides, and rear.

* * * * * * *

And all bicycles and tricycles in motion after sundown shall display a suitable light and also have a light gong or bell so attached thereto as to be sounded by the revolution of a wheel or wheels.

* * * * * * *

And bicycles and tricycles shall sound a light bell or gong when in motion after sundown, and at all times when necessary to warn persons of their approach.

* * * * * * *

Every person as aforesaid violating any of the provisions of this article shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each offence.

* * * * * * *

From and after the twenty-seventh day of July, A. D. 1887, the same shall be enforced as provided by the act of the Congress of the United States, approved Jan. 26, A. D. 1887.

We trust our fellow League members will bear this in mind in visiting our city and thus save themselves any annoyance.

Fraternally,

E. T. PETTENGILL, C. C.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:—

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

(72) WILL some one inform me through this column of the easiest and quickest way to remove old enamel from bicycles, so as to have a perfectly smooth surface for re-enamelling? 11115.

(73) WILL some one advise me as to the condition of the roads from Mammoth Cave to Louisville, Ky., also from Madison to Indianapolis, Ind.? Would like company for a ten days' tour beginning July 16, from Chicago to Cave by rail, returning via Indianapolis by wheel.

GEO. A. MASON,
85 State Street, Chicago, Ill.

(74) WILL you kindly inform me, through your "Notes and Queries," of the best road to Exeter, N. H; also quality of same? Any wheelman having ridden it will confer a great favor by describing it as fully as possible. 14850.

(75) I INTEND to ride from Portland, Me., to the Rangeley Lakes; will some Maine member tell me the best route by way of Auburn and Bryant's Pond? also, intend to ride from Gorham, N. H., down through the White Mountains to Concord. Will some New Hampshire member let me know if it can be ridden, and the best route to take? 10941.

(76) IN answer to No. 58, "Notes and Queries," the best route from Lock Haven to Wilksbarre, go according to route in road book (C. 22) to within three miles of Berwick; there take tow path to Shickshinny; then cross the river, take road via Nanticoke. I would suggest taking cars from Shickshinny to Nanticoke as there is a few hard hills; distance between, eight miles. 11469.

(77) Ans. to (53). CRAMPING of of the hands is generally caused by too firmly gripping the handles. Learn to use the feet more and the hands less. The sensation of cramp will gradually diminish as the rider becomes hardened and used to his work. There is no positive remedy.

(78) Ans. to (54). PROVIDENCE to Boston. The best route is that described in the New York road book as route (23 D).

A. B. B.

(79) Ans. to (58). LOCK HAVEN to Wilkesbarre. See Pennsylvania and New Jersey road book route (22 C.) from Lock Haven to Berwick, and thence via route (24) from Berwick to Wilkesbarre. Lewiston to Wilkesbarre. See Pennsylvania and New Jersey road book, R route (31 B) fron Lewiston to Clarke's Ferry, thence via route (31) to Northumberland, thence direct along the river to Bloomsburg where route joins that given above from Berwick to Wilkesbarre.

(80) Ans. to (74). DELHI, N. Y., to Binghamton. Delhi to Croton, ten miles, hilly, fair to poor; to Franklin, eight miles, hilly, fair; Unadilla, ten miles, rolling good; Bainbridge, ten miles, hilly, fair to good; West Coventry, nine miles, very hilly, poor; to Greene, seven miles, hilly, fair; from Greene, follow river straight down to Binghamton, roads moderately hilly, and from fair to good. See routes (34) and (31) New York road book. Wilkesbarre to Bethlehem, Pa.: Wilkesbarre to Berwick, Catawissa, New Media, Kington, Tamanend, Tamaqua, Mauch Chunk, Lehighton, Treichlersville, Allentown, Bethlehem. 19 PEARL STREET - - - - - BOSTON.

The only absolutely safe wheel against "Headers" made. It is the best, and it is also the cheapest. Do not buy a wheel before you see the Springfield Roadster. Coasting without danger. Hill-climbing to perfection. Invented by riders of experience.

PRICE, COMPLETE, $75.00.

JOHN P. LOVELL'S SONS, 147 Washington Street, Boston, Sole Agents for New England.

"It is a most entertaining book. We admire the pluck and manliness of the author, his intelligence and resources. His descriptions of people and places are fresh and vivid. The world as seen from a bicycle is a different world from that which the traveller sees from a railway train, or from the ordinary conveyances of the road. The "wheel" draws to itself a crowd in every village. It introduces its owner to men and women whom another tourist would never meet, and it makes him welcome and at home in the greatest variety of company. It has its own peculiar accidents and adventures, and demands from its rider special qualities of mind and disposition. But Mr. Stevens is more than a "wheelman." He has given us in this book instructive and useful information in geography, bits of history aptly introduced, and lively descriptions of manners, customs and habits of many peoples of the globe which he girdled," says the New York Observer of

JERSEY-FITTING, SELF-SUPPORTING

BICYCLE STOCKING.

The attention of the Wheelmen and the trade is kind'y called to our new Self Supporter Stocking, for which we have obtained Letters Patent June 14, 1887. The enclosed cut gives a correct description of this stocking and its design, and needs no argument to show that they are the best thing that has been made for holding the stocking in position. They are Ribbed, Jersey Fitting, and very elastic, regular made, double heel and toes. The form and proportions of the foot, heel, toe, ankle, calf and leg are perfect, as represented in the cut, and there is no better made or better fitting stocking in the market. The part above the stocking for holding it in position is made of cotton or wool, thin or heavy, as may be desired, and comes up and fastens around the waist, same as tights, and holds the stockings where they belong.

Any infringement will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Price, $2.25; without double heel and toes, $2.00; or stockings without supporters, $1.50. Send us your order for either of these, with color, size of foot, and length from bottom of foot to waist, and post-office order for amount, and we will send same by mail or express to any part of the country; and if you do not find them satisfactory, return them, and we will return amount paid for them. IMPORTANT NOTICE.

To some it will be patent, to others a surprise, to learn that D. ROGERS & CO. propose relinquishing the sole agency for the CUNARD CYCLES as soon as the orders in hand are delivered, in consequence of numerous complaints. Whilst the design and general features of these wheels have made themselves so manifest to the public, THE WORKMANSHIP has unfortunately called for much comment from patrons, tending to proclaim that for scrupulous riders, THE CUNARD CYCLES ARE USELESS, which statement is endorsed by prominent wheelmen. D. ROGERS & CO. are very sorry to advertise their resignation of this agency, but the overwhelming complaints make them desirous of handling wheels calculated to give greater satisfaction.

Such influential men as T. J. Kirkpatrick, who has discovered the errors since he gave the testimonial, W. H. De Graaf, Pres. Harlem Wheelmen, N. Y., D. C. Ball, Missouri Wheelmen, W. W. Chester, Elizabeth Wheelmen, among others, have been caused much annoyance, and goods ordered months ago are not yet to hand. The Pope Mfg. Co., Overman Wheel Co. and Stoddard & Co. threaten proceedings for infringement of patents, and all these circumstances combined compel D. ROGERS & CO. to take steps to supply the public with SOUND DOMESTIC and IMPORTED MACHINES.

The Cunard Cycle Co. in England utterly ignore the American trade; therefore, D. ROGERS & CO. have pleasure in stating that they have made arrangements to carry a full line of AMERICAN CYCLES, which, for convenience in getting the parts, and prompt delivery, as well as their advantageous construction, make them most desirable mounts.

Full particulars next issue.

WRITE VERY PLAINLY.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling' nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

The Sensation of 1887!

ABSOLUTE PERFECTION!!

The Latest American High Grade Wheel,

THE NEW MAIL.

A Perfectly Made Light Roadster.

OUR SPECIALTY,

Perfection Strengthened Backbone and Forks.

BACKBONE. — Warwick's pattern, new this year. It is well known that in all machines, backbones are liable to and do break, causing bad accidents.

The place of breakage is usually if not wholly at the upper end, under the saddle, where is the greatest strain.

We have adopted Warwick's new pattern backbone which has greater thickness of metal at the large, or neck end, and tapers thinner to the small end; thus obtaining a stouter and stronger backbone, with no danger of breakage, while there is no increase in weight.

Also we preserve the oval shape, which is handsomer and stiffer than the round.

FORKS. — Warwick's "Perfection," having the same construction as the backbone, viz., thicker at the large end and tapering or decreasing in thickness at the small end.

This gives a very strong rigid fork.

A SUPERB LIGHT ROADSTER.

At least, Examine one before purchasing your mount, or get a Circular!

With Our Specialty, Trigwell's Ball Head.

Extract from a London letter to the L. A. W. Bulletin January 8, 1887.

Speaking of manufacturers with "big stock" crying down improvements, a firm introduced a ball-bearing head, put it on their own machines, and induced one or two other firms to adopt it.

What a howl went up from the big stock people! They pooh-poohed it right and left; they wrote and talked it down, and tried in every way to smother it, — but it would not down. It grew steadily in public favor, until this year it is recognized as a sine qua non to a strictly first grade bicycle, and those who do not have ball heads will not rank among the highest grade mounts.

Of course the extra cost of construction will preclude its being used on second grade machines, but that is a vast improvement over the Stanley head, with cone or hemispherical centres, however true and well hardened, is a fact that the experience of 1886 has settled beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

"Let Others try the Experiment."

The Columbias have been subjected to the practical tests of ten years upon road and path; there are machines upon the market of limited age and claimed to be as good or superior to the old reliable Columbias; perhaps they are; it is n't for us to say. If the wheelman can afford to try the experiment, it's good for his education, and of eventual benefit to the Columbias.

For instance, for six years hemispherical steering-centres have been used on the Expert Columbia, and on the Light Roadster for three years, a pretty fair test that such an arrangement is the most practical. The ball-bearing head has n't been proved to be better, yet it may be. "Let others try the experiment."

It has been asserted that the various forms of safety bicycles will overrun both continents. For several years safeties have been on the market, yet their increase in use has not been noticeable. Ninety-five per cent of riders seem to prefer the crank machine. We manufacture safeties; if you desire one we should be pleased to have you try the experiment.

It costs considerable to make first-class machines; Columbias are first-class machines, and are sold at respectable prices; perhaps as good machines can be sold for much less than our prices. "Let others try the experiment."

It may be a paying investment for a wheelman to purchase a so-called first-class machine for a seemingly low price, and then again it may not be. The wheelman can try the experiment.

Subscribers should be careful to notify the EDITOR promptly of any change in their address. Great care is taken with the mailing list. Failure to receive THE BULLETIN may usually be traced to carelessness on the part of the subscriber.

All matter for publication, whether reading or advertising matter, should be addressed to the EDITOR. All checks should be made payable to his order.

Reading matter, to insure publication in the following issue, must be in the EDITOR'S hands not later than Saturday afternoon; advertisements not later than Monday morning.

The EDITOR must in all cases have the full name and address of the authors of contributed articles, as a guarantee of good faith. As the Executive Committee has decided that it is best to discourage the use of assumed names by writers for THE BULLETIN, the EDITOR will publish the author's name unless particularly requested not to do so.

For List of League Officers, Statistics of Touring Department, and directions "How to join the L. A. W." see special page in Advertising Department.

Now that the "Liberty Bill" has passed, the New York papers are finding out that it is a good thing, and with great unanimity they commend Gov. Hill for signing it.

THE question that dealers are now trying to answer is not "How shall we sell our goods?" but rather "How shall we get goods as fast as we can sell them?" This is especially the case with tricycles and tandems. Of these two, the supply is not nearly equal to the demand, and very many people are forced to walk when they would gladly ride.

THE Racing Board has reinstated Thomas Stevens. The action will be endorsed by all League members, for it must be recognized that Thomas Stevens to-day is not the Stevens who was disqualified. He has earned his reinstatement.

OREGON wheelmen are going to law to secure their rights. In 1885, the Legislature passed a law to "regulate the passage of bicycles, tricycles, velocipedes, tractions, and portable engines on the public highways and streets of this State." By its provisions, persons in charge of any machine are required to bring said machine to a stop within one hundred yards of any person going in the opposite direction with a team, and remain stationary until the said team has passed by. The penalty for violation of this law is a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50. Of all absurd laws against the wheel, this certainly stands at the head. The wheelmen of the State are now contributing to a fund to fight this law in the courts, and they have already engaged the services of a prominent attorney. The following from a Portland paper is suggested by the absurd law:—

"Were a Portland bicyclist to start from First and Columbia Streets at 10 A. M., with instructions to reach Ladd & Tilton's bank before the close of banking hours at 3 P. M., and obey the law in regard to dismounting, he would arrive at his destination a gray-haired man, provided he did not die from old age."

CORRESPONDENTS are reminded that the editor is no longer chairman of the Racing Board. All matters relating to the racing interests should go to Dr. Cooley, the present chairman.

IN another column, Mr. Shriver presents his views regarding reorganization. He approaches the committee through the BULLETIN, and invites criticism of his views. No better way could be employed. If the general membership do not favor the views put forward by Mr. Shriver they can be heard in opposition, and if a public discussion is had the committee can feel the pulse of their constituents and can furnish the condition of things most desired. We hope to have other suggestions.

THE NEW JERSEY DIVISION MEET.

THE Fourth was a very warm day, but while warm enough to affect very perceptibly the attendance at the annual meet of the New Jersey Division at Orange, the heat was not sufficiently intense to mar the enjoyment of the day's pleasure or prevent the carrying out of the elaborate programme prepared. Runs, business meeting, banquet, parade, and races were gone through with promptly and without a hitch, and the whole affair was eminently successful.

THE BUSINESS MEETING.

This was held in the Harrison Street Rink at half past eleven, Chief Consul Cooley presiding. After reading the minutes, the chief consul made an address. He said that no papers had been given into his hands by his predecessor, and so no full report for the past year could be presented. The division was to be congratulated on its prosperity. The financial condition was good, and though the membership was not quite so large, owing, perhaps, to no road book having been offered as an inducement, there was no division and no friction anywhere. The present edition of the road book had been exhausted, and he suggested that some action be taken with reference to a new one. The Pennsylvania Division was about to get up one, and he suggested that the New Jersey Division join with it, and offer it free to those joining this year and renewing next. He was preparing a circular to send to all desirable riders in the State who were not at present members of the League, with a view to inducing them to become such. He urged that the members send the names of desirable riders to him. His reference to the Liberty Bill evoked loud applause. He also touched on the Moore and Rowbach cases, which the division was fighting in the courts, and assured his hearers that the rights of all should be maintained.

Secretary Robinson Pound then read a report showing that there had been 686 renewals, and, including those published in the BULLETIN of July 1, 111 applications, making a total of 797. There was a balance of $372.25 on hand, with $102 due from the Secretary-Treasurer for the first quarter, and $36.50 for the second, making an available balance of $600.75.

Ex-Chief Consul Brown then nominated Robinson Pound for secretary-treasurer of the division, and he was elected by acclamation, the chief consul casting the ballot.

The matter of the new road book and the maps was then discussed. After Mr. Bergen, of Elizabeth, had had his inquiry as to the book satisfied, as he confessed that all he knew of it was that it was a "long book with streaks on it," and was advised by a wag "to read beneath the lines," the matter was referred to the Board of Officers with power.

Dr. Kinch, of Westfield, had something to say about the proposed cinder path from New York to Philadelphia, and the matter was left to a committee of five to inquire into the feasability of the project.

Mr. Wetmore offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:—

Resolved, That the New Jersey Division of the League American Wheelmen in convention assembled at Orange, July 4, 1887, do hereby thank His Excellency Governor Hill, of New York, for his act of justice in signing the bill giving statutory recognition to the rights of cycles and vehicles.

Resolved, That the secretary notify Governor Hill of the action of this meeting.

A member from South Jersey wished to have added a vote of thanks to Henry George for his influence exerted in behalf of the signature, but Mr. Wetmore strenuously opposed an introduction of politics into the League, or any official thanks being given for any mere political influence exerted, as distinguished from actual official acts. The motion was laid on the table.

After passing a vote of thanks to the Orange Wanderers for their hospitality and exertions on behalf of the success of the Meet, the meeting adjourned.

THE BANQUET.

The orators were much in need of refreshments after their exertions, and the beautiful tables spread by Caterer Davis in Music Hall were a welcome sight. About one hundred sat down to the feast prepared, and for over an hour did cyclers' justice to it. When the coffee was brought in, Chief Consul Cooley introduced a distinguished guest in the person of Tom Stevens. In replying, Tom said that he had found out by sad experience that one of the penalties of a trip to Jersey was a speech. He congratulated the foreigners on the way in which they were celebrating the Independence Day of the United States. One hundred and eleven years ago Washington and Cornwallis had had a race. It was for Independence. It was a case of professionals v. amateurs, and the amateurs had won.

THE PARADE.

Immediately after the dinner, the cyclers wheeled to the Harrison Street Rink, where the line of parade was formed. Almost all clubs in the State were represented, the Plainfield Bicycle Club having out twenty-three, the largest number. There were some one hundred and fifty wheels in line, and the route was some five miles long, through the principal streets, ending at the Roseville track, where, at three o'clock, began

THE RACES

The track was in fine condition, the only obstacle to fast time being quite a strong wind, which blew against the racers on the homestretch. There was a large attendance of enthusiastic spectators, so that the division's treasury was enriched by some two hundred dollars net by the day's sport. Chief Consul Cooley was referee.

One-mile Novice on Roadsters.—First heat: Wm. Lamb, Smithville, 1; S. B. Bowman, E. W., 2; F. L. C. Martin, Plainfield, 3; J. H. Bickley, Dover; J. A. Bowman, N. C. W.; H. E. Shaw, Newberg; B. McClurg, Newberg. Lamb won easily by ten yards, Bowman beating third man two yards. Time, 3.03.

One-Mile Novice.—Second heat: E. P. Baggot, H. C. W. (1); H. W. Peck, Plainfield (2); J. T. Decker, E. W. (3); H. M. Martin, P. B. C; H. Tearnes, Thomaston, Ct; G. Whittaker, Jersey City. Baggot won easily by ten yards, while Peck passed Decker on the last lap and beat him two yards. Time, 3.11 3-5.

Three-Mile Lap Race—J. W. Powers, Jr., H. W. (1). T. W. Roberts, Poughkeepsie (2); H. L. Powers, Harlem; J. Van Wagoner, Burlington. The elder Powers led every lap, and Harry gave Roberts a close rub for half the distance. Time, 9.24 4-5.

Two-Mile State Championship.—C. A. Stenken, H. C. W. (1); Wm. Lamb, Smithville (2) J. Van Wagoner, Burlington (3); C. S. Stevens, Millville. Lamb pressed Stenken pretty hard, but was at no time very dangerous. Time, 6.13 1-5.

One-Mile Tricycle State Championship.—L. H. Johnson of the O. W. walked over on a Humber Cripper in 3.12 3-5.

One-Mile Novice.—Final heat. Lamb won in 3.1 3-5; Bowman second in 3.3. The latter beat Baggot five yards, who was some ways ahead of Peck.

Five-Mile Bicycle, L. A. W. Championship.—There was blood on the moon when Rich and Powers faced the starter. The former had had a bad fall at Staten Island on Saturday, but made no complaint about being out of trim. The pair started at rather a slow pace, but soon began to warm, leading alternate laps. At the last the Harlem man rushed to the front, and try as he might, Rich could not pass him, and was beaten two lengths, in 16.25.4-5. The last lap was run at a 2.30 clip.

Union County Wheelmen, One-Mile Championship.—A. N. Pierson (1); T. H. Burnet (2); C. B. Moore (3); W. B. Rhett; J. A. Brunner. It was a pretty race for two laps, and one could have covered the field with a blanket. At the last Burnet and Pierson drove away, but the latter was a little too much for Tommy, and won by a wheel in 3.09 3-5.

One-Mile Bicycle, State Championship.—C. A. Stenken, H. C. W. (1); Wm. Lamb, Smithville (2); J. Van Wagoner, Burlington (3); C. S. Stephens, Millville. This was a good race between Stenken and Lamb, the former winning in the excellent time of 2.46 4-5; Lamb, 2.47 1-4; the rest beaten off.

Two-Mile Bicycle Handicap.—L. A. Howell, M. B. C., 120 yards (1); J. Van Wagoner, Burlington, 150 yards (2); F. W. Roberts, Poughkeepsie, 90 yards; W. H. Caldwell, E. W., 120 yards; S. B. Bowman, E. W., 175 yards; E. P. Baggot, H. C. W., 200 yards; E. C. Parker, H. W., 200 yards. This promised to be a splendid struggle, as the field became bunched, after half a mile. In the last half mile Roberts tried to get through the neck on the inside, and fouled Caldwell both going down. Bowman had to put on his brakes to save himself, and lost all chances. Howell and Wagoner rushed on ahead, and made a dead heat of it in 5.47. On the run off, Howell won.

One Mile Team Race.—Harlem Wheelmen: J. W. Powers, Jr., H. L. Powers, E. C. Parker. Union County Wheelmen: A. N. Pierson, W. B. Rhett, T. H. Burnet. Millville Bicycle Club: J. B. Pearson, C. S. Stephens, L. A. Howell. The Harlem wheelmen won, J. W. Powers, Jr., finishing first in 2.56, two of the Millville boys following him.

One Mile Consolation Race.—In this there were five starters. Young Powers was given the race by a loafing pace being made by the men on the roadsters, allowing him with his racer to come away and win, though he barely beat Caldwell a wheel in 3.46

ST. LOUIS.

TO-NIGHT St. Louisans will scatter far and wide, after a frolic for the glorious Fourth. Ohio will catch the lovers of fine roads, and suburban towns will attract aspiring racers. Harry Stuart writes that the Kansas City boys will entertain one hundred visitors, taking them to the Fair Grounds for "delicacies and liquids." "The latter feature," says Harry, "will be an innovation to the innocents from Kansas."

THE Quincy Club's invite to "drop up street and have a good time," will be generally accepted. The St. Louis Cycle Club makes an official run of it, going up by boat this afternoon, and train to-night, and a number of Missouri men will go. Several good things are on the list, among them a little run into Missouri, including a beautiful five-mile stretch of corduroy, upon which impromptu obstacle races will be held en route.

LADISH has severed all connection with the American Wheelman, and Rogers succeeds him as editor, running the paper with the assistance of Lindell Gordon. The reason given by Ladish for this sudden move, is that other interests call him away, and he claims the paper has been a profitable enterprise the past few months. He cried quits on Monday, going to Kansas City Wednesday night. Ladish will be personally missed, but I think the fact that he was "tied down," chafed him. Lad. has always been a rolling stone. He was born in England, and before the age of sixteen had left college and entered practical life as a "riding boss," or supervisor of construction, on an Australian railway. He has travelled extensively, and but a few days since was about determined to tour through Missouri, the Lake region, etc., intending to describe his experiences in the Wheelman, with sketches. Financially, he is said to be "well fixed."

IT may not be amiss to say that the A. W.'s future popularity here will depend upon its policy. Ladish blamed the "Critic" for unnecessarily strong words used anent the meet, and the "Critic" seeks to shift the burden on the shoulders of the ex-editor. The unfairness was there, however whether the editors felt forced into the position or not

THOSE bothersome proxies! What trouble have they not been the innocent cause of? The "red hot Missouri division meeting," the "New York unpleasantness," and other instances are examples. In regard to California's trouble, however, a simple rule is alone to blame. No one who saw the credentials committee, Messrs. Share, of New York, Cooley, of New Jersey, and Stewart, of Missouri, enter the little room off the Exposition stage, expected that when they again emerged trouble would come with them. I called on Mr. Stewart, yesterday. Said he: "When all the proxies were handed up, we entered the room, and after the rules had been read, we carefully examined and counted the proxies. In order to follow the law of the L. A. W., we were obliged to show no partiality and to throw out certain proxies. That was all."

THE Spectator isn't a bit pleased by my statement, that the P. D. was the pioneer in the matter of cycling news at this point, and tells how in 1883, it used to stand up for the wheel in "town talk," eliciting for its pains, only the scoffs and jeers of the skeptical dailies. 'Cept my 'pologies, dear Spec.

KARL KRON'S book will catch St. Louis, at least as far as that part is concerned, which describes his descent of a Virginia mountain side, whilst beset by difficulties in the way of lightning, rain, broken branches and festive mule teams.

ONE of the most unique athletic organizations in the country, is the Little Nicols Base Ball Club, of St. Louis, named after the diminutive professional of that name. It has eleven members, and of these, eight are also cyclists, and members of the Missouri Club. They are unique, because all the members are young men, who spend their time at college and in business, coming together only for a short season each summer, where they arrange to spend vacation together in a base-ball tour, Little Nicol paying half of their traveling expenses. Illinois and Indiana is their regular field, and though they have tackled fine clubs and poor, indiscrimately, they have never yet been beaten. Nicols has presented each member with a testimonial of this fact, in the shape of a pretty gold medal.

THE famous little club leaves to-night for Indiana, and when it has completed a tour of the State will repair to its own club house on Lake Maxinkuckee, near a little town just eighty-five miles from Chicago. The clubhouse was established for their sole use by Mr. Culver, a retired merchant, and there they will spend a pleant two week's outing, having servants, kitchen, music, sailing and fishing, at their own disposal. The house is kept closed during their absence.

THE money stakes in the Greenwood-Stone race have been supplanted by another scheme—the presenting to the winner of a $25 gold medal by the backer of the loser. A strong antipathy to cold cash is given as the reason of the change. The date, too, is postponed, but the race is set certainly for next Sunday. The event is the one topic in cycling circles, and both men promise faithfully to do up the other fellow. I have a strong idea that much spurting over the DeSoto road will result in each doing himself up thoroughly.

BY the way, last week's BULLETIN innocently remarked that as safety wheels will be used, "there will be no fear of headers, and the hills can be taken at speed." Mr. Editor, allow me to laugh in my sleeve, ha ha! Of course you meant slow speed. Stone has changed his mind and will ride an ordinary. PHŒNIX.

THE World stepped down from its lofty pedestal last week, and tried to make a joke. It was a very fishy joke, and the editor floundered about in a very distressing way.

MR. CHARLES SULZNER comes forward with a novel business for which there seems to be a place. The advice of an expert is always valuable to one who knows nothing about wheels, and this advice Mr. Sulzner is ready with for a fair compensation.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

NINETY in the shade! How much of misery is comprehended in that little sentence. The weary citizen, in the midst of his drudgery on one of these hot and sultry days, is apt to feel that in this climate of ours summer was intended by nature as a long vacation from labor, during which we should take life easy and enjoy the rest which would fit us for vigorous labor when the enervating season is past. And yet the unhappy state of man will hardly permit a realization of this pleasing notion. That man should

Early toil and late
Is a hard sentence of an ancient date.

No castle of indolence is at our disposal, where

The soft delights, that witchingly
Instill a wanton sweetness through the breast,
And the calm pleasures, always hover nigh;
But whate'er smacks of 'noyance or unrest,
Is far, far off expelled from that delicious nest.

No, we are forced, most of us, to "grunt and sweat under a weary life" during the summer weeks, and attend, as best we can, to a round of daily duties

THERE! that will do for the weather. Poor old weather! how it is abused, complimented, discussed, and speculated upon in our conversation We are prone to speak of that which is uppermost in our minds, and it cannot be wondered at that journalists now and then fly to this theme, especially when the thermometer is ninety in the shade.

I WANT to tell you about a little run we had the other day. It was a very merry party, and our destination was the seashore,

"Where the broad ocean leans against the land."

What programme could be more attractive? To escape from the dust and the heat of the city, and bask in the cooling breezes of the voiceful sea, is an experience not easily embraced by those whose fortunes are cast in places remote from the sea coast, who know only the peaceful river god, and to whom only the active and petulant Neptune is a stranger. Inlanders, we commiserate you.

MAUD was the captain of the party, and she made the most elaborate plans for an entertainment in connivance with the cottage keeper. I was about to say "hotel keeper," but my imaginative faculties though very well developed, will not allow of my converting a shed erected upon the crest of a beach into a hotel, nor, would shed-keeper fall pleasantly upon the ear; and so I will say cottage keeper, for that is a graceful title, to say the least.

JUST at ten o'clock Maud blew three times upon her whistle, and told us that was the signal to mount. We mounted. That signal was arbitrary, the others she borrowed from the horse cars. Two to go ahead, and one to stop.

THE roll was called with due formality, Maud is a stickler for system. Rose was mounted on a two-track Columbia, which she has decorated with a red, white and blue streamer, claiming those to be Columbia's colors. Hyacinth was riding a Royal Mail, which she avows to be the ideal machine. She remarked to Rose that the next time she went on a run she should wear a costume made from the cloth worn by letter carriers, and have it trimmed with brass buttons. This was suggested by the joke on colors, and it evidences that girls are capable of practical jokes once in a while. Violet suggested an alliteration on a Victor, and Anemone struggled with a Coventry Rotary. Buttercup rode double with me, and Clover cast her fortunes with a Columbia. Crocus would have gone, but alas! her mount was of the "must-have-a-man" kind of tandem, and this was a ladies' run. The young ladies who went, will not fail to recognize the riders behind the names I have given them, and it is not necessary to the purposes of this article that their real names be disclosed.

WE wheeled over dusty roads till the open country was reached, and then we found hard macadam. The hills were successfully subjugated and those whom we met on the road were dumbfounded. Wheelmen are used to the stare of pedestrians and drivers, but I do not believe they get this in the aggravated form it takes on, when a feminine party is out for a ride.

ARRIVED at the sea of our destiny we pushed our wheels through the crowd of eagerly curious pleasure-seekers that one always finds at the seaside, and soon had them—the machines—under lock and key.

WHAT shall I say of our day at the shore? We strolled upon the beach, we dug a few clams, we threw many stones at Neptune's damp domicile; we ate many fish, much fried lobster and more clams for dinner; we went in bathing, and battled with the surf; we threw away dull care, and romped and played like children.

THEY tell us that nothing draws a man out like a good dinner, and that no better conversation inspirer can be found. Reader, did you ever sit down with a company that was eating steamed clams? If you have, you will believe me when I say that they are facile princeps as fun promoters. To eat them one has to go a great way backwards towards barbarism, and to remember that "fingers were made before forks." Nine persons in ten have to be told how to eat clams from the shell, and it is as good as a play to see the novitiate, under the tutelage of a veteran, remove the clam from its shell, remove the sandy cap, wash off the animal (?)—or is it an insect?—in water, dip it into melted butter, and convey it to the mouth. There is very little to inspire poetry in the process of eating clams, but there is a great deal of satisfaction to the stomach.

MAUD said we must end the feast with "vocifero," and no one knew what she meant. She whispered her order to the waiter, and he brought—ice cream. Then Maud explained her joke by telling us that the Harvard boys told her on class-day that "Vocifero" was proper, since it means "I scream."

HAPPY Maud! How well I remember the bright presence that burst in upon me the other day to let me see how she looked in her class-day dress. She was invited to one of the "swell spreads," and her dress was the fruit of much study and many hours of labor. I really believe she would have gotten up a tricycle dress for the occasion and gone out a-wheel, had I not dissuaded her. She went, she saw, and I know she must have conquered, for few girls that I know or see have the beauty of person, the rugged health, or the sparkling wit of my pretty Maud.

WE rode home as we came, and in a no less merry mood. There was no spurting nor trying to ride away from the company. We accommodated our speed to that of the slower riders, and rode along in company. We heard one or two muttered anathemas from drivers about "taking the whole road"; but they did n't disturb us. In one instance we all laughed so heartily at the ire of one man that his anger was dissipated at once, and he drove away with a broad grin on his features.

IT was a day to be long remembered. It's experiences have found a place with many more of its kind in "My Cycling Log-Book," and in days to come I expect to read them with a never-failing pleasure.

WORD comes to me that the ladies' tour projected across the water for a run to Ireland was not altogether a success, and that only "Faed" and Mrs. "Faed" engaged in it. We do better than that in America. DAISIE.

As instances of the growing popularity of tricycling among the ladies, it may be noted that the lady membership list of the Philadelphia Club is almost full, and that twelve young ladies in one bevy dropped in one afternoon last week on the astonished instructor at the Columbia Riding School in West Philadelphia, and intimated that they proposed to learn to ride the bicycle. Of course they meant the tricycle, but poor George Hart was so flustered for a while that he could barely summon strength to get out the practice machines. They learned rapidly, and some of the dozen have expressed a determination to own machines of their own before the close of the season. —Phila. Times.

THE OWL.

THE extremely classical explanation of the "Attic Bee" as to the true meaning of his title, causes me to think it would answer equally as well for an explanation of the term prima donna, since both are upper-attic titles.

IN Boston papers the vulgar term of thief is no longer used. A young man rented a bicycle there the other day, and did not return it, and the papers spoke of it next day as a "Kathleen-Mavourneen rental," or in plain English, sort of a "may-be-for-years-or-it-may-be-forever" borrow.

IT turns out now that the unfortunate death of Mr. Warner upon Jerome Avenue, Sunday, from injuries received by being thrown from his buggy by his horse running away, was not caused by wheelmen frightening the animal as the daily papers alleged, but through a milk wagon loaded with empty cans passing near the horse. I don't blame the horse, though, for mistaking the sound for that of his arch enemy, the bicycle. Many of the wheels ridden on our roads creak, groan, and rattle in a way that would put to blush any milk-can combination in the world.

MR. JOSEPH H. TAFT will probably be the architect of the new clubhouse to be erected by the New York Bicycle Club, his plans apparently meeting all requirements. Mr. Taft is himself a wheelman, and is in consequence thereof more likely to recognize the requirements of a wheel club. The plans presented, while not yet accepted, show a four-story castellated building, built of rough stone, red brick, and terra cotta reliefs. It will be twenty-five foot front and seventy feet deep, four stories in height, and will accommodate about one hundred and fifty wheels.

THE bids for the entries of racing men on the Fourth has never been equalled here, there being chances for pot-gathering at no less than six different games within twenty miles of New York. In consequence of this, the heart of the pot-hunter was glad, and upon his breast glitters the illusive trophy of his prowess.

MY physicians have advised me that if I want to retain the excessive "freshness" of mine, that my friends all say is my principal possession in life, that nothing will do but a sojourn at the seaside, with a liberal external application of salt saline seawater. In accordance with this fact, I have packed my "grip," and will hie me away to Long Branch for two months, during which time I will present in this column, as a result of my seaside vacation, a gastronomical and literary novelty in the shape of "salted Owl."

THE most peculiar thing about the Bicycle Bill recently signed by Governor Hill, has been the opposition it developed among people themselves not interested, or informed about its purpose. An example of this was afforded me the other evening in an elevated train, by two seemingly intelligent citizens of New York, who occupied the opposite seat to me. One of them turning from his paper to his companion said, "I see Hill has signed that bicycle bill! What do you think of that?" On the face of the friend interrogated appeared a splendid sufficiency of horror to suit even the most rabid road-hog, and he replied: "Well, now I suppose these bicyclers will actually be riding down Broadway." "Yes, or 5th avenue," replied his friend, and both returned to their papers, conscious of their superior wisdom, and thorough knowledge of the affair they were discussing. The ignorance of these gentlemen of the spirit and intention of the bill is but a fair example of that prevailing throughout New York City. Owing to the vileness of the street pavements, wheelmen cannot ride, and hence are rarely seen below 59th Street, or in the crowded and business portion of the city, wherefore the average citizen forms his opinions of wheelmen from the juvenile velocipede riders upon the sidewalks in his vicinity, and forthwith becomes a rabid anti-cyclist. It is by playing upon such ignorance as the foregoing, that the horsemen got the few signatures to the petition that they used against the passage of the bill. Mr. Jno. D. Crimmins, the hero of the tirade against wheelmen, wherein appeared that magnificent specimen of Celtic denunciation, entitling wheelmen as "them bicycle fellows," has from the passage of the bill, been taught that "them fellows" are able to cope quite successfully even with so august a personage as a Park Commissioner and a contractor, even when both are combined in as scholarly a personage as this same "fellow" Crimmins.

CHIEF CONSUL GEORGE R. BIDWELL has received a couple of hundred or more telegrams and letters from all over the country, congratulating him and his division on their victories in the signing of the "Liberty Bill." While this is of course gratifying, Bidwell does not intend to stop here. "The price of liberty is eternal vigilance" and Bidwell recognizes this full well. Copies of the bill will be printed and distributed throughout the State, where the local consuls will have them conspicuously displayed in cross-road taverns, bar-rooms, hotels, and other such places of resort affected by the "road hog," so that his class may have no trouble in reading "the handwriting on the wall."

THE League, as well as its numerous State divisions, has a committee on Rights and Privileges, which is an able one, and has certainly secured many reforms where the rights of wheelmen have been threatened; what is needed now, is a supplementary committee on Abuse of Rights and Privileges. No sooner does the first committee secure a concession or justice, than the need of the second one becomes evident. Many wheelmen seem to have the Monte Christo idea of "The World is Mine," and while continually clamoring for the rights of cyclists, continuously violate those of pedestrian, equestrian, and driver, resulting in the passage of prohibitory and obnoxious regulations against wheelmen. It is not the lack of rights or privileges that causes us the majority of our troubles, but the abuse of those we already have.

THE OWL.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THE Governor has signed the Bicycle Bill, and the wheelmen of this State, and especially those of New York City, are, or ought to be, exceedingly happy. On Saturday and Sunday the papers were anxiously scanned by expectant wheelmen hoping to obtain some indication of the Governor's action, but none appeared. At about noon on Monday telegrams were received from Albany which simply said, "Bicycle Bill signed.—Rice, private secretary." Short and sweet, but it contained all the anxious ones wanted to know, and caused such a flutter among the wheelmen of Gotham as will not be forgotten for many a day, if ever. Bidwell went into ecstacies, and Potter was not less happy. Both were the recipients of many congratulatory telegrams and messages from those who appreciate their untiring efforts in behalf of the measure. A meeting was immediately held to determine upon a suitable course of action as regards the opening of Central Park, and as a result of that meeting a letter was sent to the Park Commission and to the press, a copy of which was in the BULLETIN last week. The policy of this action has already been shown, for although the commissioners have as yet given it no official recognition, the press has published it widely, and commented upon it in most favorable and flattering terms, which will undoubtedly create a more favorable consideration in the minds of those who are more or less prejudiced through ignorance or bigotry.

THE retaliatory regulations recently adopted by that intellectual body, the New York Board of Alderman, has received the approval of His Honor the Mayor, noted for his letters on "What I know about dogs." In the mind of this great "letter-writer" I have no doubt but that dogs and cyclers are classed in the same category. The press, however, differ with the honorable gentleman and his colleagues, and have lost no opportunity to ridicule their action. The amount of editorial comment on the same has been surprising and gratifying, as we had no idea that the press was so favorably disposed towards us.

THE recent Race Meet of the K. C. W. was quite a success, although, barring Rich and Powers, the elder, the field of entries was an ordinary one. The interest of the meet seemed to centre on these two favorites, who were heartily received each time they appeared. Powers is riding in rather improved form, but Rich does not seem to be up to his usual excellence. In the handicap he caught and quickly passed Powers, but was pocketed, and the race went to young Powers, Rich coming in fourth, much to the surprise of everybody. The five-mile State championship was a grand struggle between the two. Rich rode strong from post to finish, but he seemed to tire, and his old-time spurt was lacking, Powers gaining materially on the last lap, and almost catching him on the home stretch.

THE riding of young Powers was remarkable, and with care he will make a flyer when he gets a little older. Like most boys, he seems inclined to overdo it, and unless he is checked he may injure his chances for a grand future on the path. Bradley of the Ilderans showed up well, and would, with proper training, make a smart man. The final of the novice between him and Caldwell, of Elizabeth, was a hard fought and pretty race, reflecting equal credit upon victor and vanquished.

THE K. C. W. new clubhouse is well under way, and they expect to be able to move in by the latter part of October. The framework of the front of the Long Island house is nearly completed, and the covering of copper will be on in a couple of weeks. The latter club had a smoker in their temporary quarters on Tuesday evening, which was well attended and enjoyed by all present. The Brooklyn Club have planned a three days' tour for the Fourth. Starting Saturday afternoon, they wheel to Jamaica, where they will be met by the Mercury wheelmen of Flushing, to which place the entire party will go and remain over night, wheeling next day to Babylon, Islip, etc., and returning on Monday to Queens in time for the bicycle races which are to be held on the grounds of the Queen's County Athletic Association in the afternoon.

C. W. A. ANNUAL MEET.

THE annual meet of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association was held at Brantford, July 1. Secretary H. B. Donly read his report, which showed the affairs of the association to be in a most satisfactory condition. On April 1, this year, the membership was 612. It is now 849, a larger number than ever before. Six small clubs have been suspended for non-payment of dues. The new guide book is in great demand, and is a success. The Canadian Wheelman, the organ of the association, under the able management of Mr. Brierly, has cost the association nothing this year, and has a balance to its credit of $126.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $250.

Messrs. J. D. Miller, of Montreal, and W. P. May, of Belleville, were unanimously elected president and vice-president, respectively. Votes of thanks were passed to the retiring officers, and the meeting adjourned at 12.30.

At 1.30 the parade was formed and started, headed by the Home-Dale Band. The parade was the largest yet held by the association, there being three hundred wheelmen in line.

Races were held at 2.30 P. M. and resulted as follows: —

Two-mile green. — Robertson (1), 6.34; Nasmith (2).

Three-mile lap. — Davies (1); Johnston (2).

One-mile club championship. — Fitch (1), 3.07; Duncan (2).

Half-mile. — Davies (1), 1.47½; Johnston (2).

One-mile safety. — Fane (1), 3.19.

Five-mile championship. — Fred Foster (1), 32.32; Davies (2).

One-mile tricycle. — Nasmith (1), 4.05; A. T. Lane (2).

One-mile championship. — Davies (1), 3.03; Fred Foster (2).

Ten-mile championship. — Fred Foster (1), 33.50; E. P. Baird (2).

Half-mile, hands off. — Johnston (1), 1.35; Fitch (2).

One mile. — Davies (1), 3.01; Johnston (2); Fitch (3).

After the races were concluded, the visiting wheelmen were entertained by the Brantford Club at a lunch in the Agricultural Hall, a large number of the young ladies of the city kindly acting as waitresses.

THE LONG ISLAND WHEELMEN CELEBRATE THE SIGNING OF THE BICYCLE BILL.

LAST night the club rooms of the Long Island Wheelmen echoed with applause, in honor of the victory of the Liberty Bill. The event was celebrated by a typical "Smoker."

It was naturally a very enthusiastic gathering, and a programme of song, speech-making, and various diversions, interspersed with refreshments, ice cream and the cheering pipe, occupied the time till a late hour. Ordinary means of jubilee being inadequate, the club had offered a prize to the member who should contribute the greatest entertainment. The display of talent was accordingly remarkable. The high merit of each rendition made choice difficult, but the prize was ultimately bestowed with impartial justice, and Captain C. H. Luscomb made a graceful presentation address.

The orator who had argued so earnestly for the rights of wheelmen before Governor Hill, was fittingly selected to decorate with appropriate eloquence the brilliant wind up of the evening. Long will the pleasant memory remain with all who shared the hospitality and bonhomme of this Long Island Wheelmen Jubilee. The rooms were tastefully ornamented with ensigns and illuminations. This club now enjoys great prosperity. Part of the programme for the evening was as follows:

Instrumental, Magner's "Walkure," C. W. Walker.
Tenor solo, "Daddy," Harry Hilliard.
Violin, with piano, F. C. Camp.
Tenor solo, "The song for me," Harry Hilliard.
Violin, with piano, T. C. Camp.
Baritone solo, "Marguerite," D. H. Smith.
Recitation, "The Uncle," W. B. Vernam.
Basso solo, "Waiting," Dr. Hudnut.
Reading, "The Burdock and Boblink-War," C. H. Luscomb.
Ballet divertisement, with harmonica, T. M. Lamberson.
Basso solo, "Bell Ringer," H. F. Donaldson.
Reading, "Altruism," A. L. Brown.
Baritone solo, "There She Blows," J. R. Davies.
Vocophone quartette, "Medley," Messrs. Brown, Donaldson, Starrett, Alden.

Brooklyn, June 30.

THE RULE OF THE ROAD ASHORE.

MAYOR HEWITT has signed a city ordinance for which bicycle, tricycle, and velocipede men will be dutifully thankful. It provides for the carrying of lights after sundown and before sunrise. It is scarcely practical, however, and we venture to suggest the following as a more thoroughly efficient "rule of the road": —

All bicycles, tricycles, and velocipedes shall carry the following lights from before sundown until sunrise next morning: —

First. On the starboard side a green light, visible from right ahead to one point abaft the beam, and discernibl at the distance of a quarter of a mile.

Second. On the port side a red light, so constructed as to be visible under the same conditions as the green light.

Third. All bicycles, tricycles, and velocipedes running in a fog shall blow either a fog horn or a steam whistle (whichever may be the more convenient) at intervals of one minute.

Fourth. All bicycles, tricycles, and velocipedes not in motion during foggy weather shall ring a bell at intervals of half a minute.

Fifth. The ordinance to go into effect immediately, and all offenders against it to be decapitated or burned at the stake, as his Honor may direct.

We respectfully submit this revised "rule of the road" to the Mayor in the hope that it may check the horrible loss of life caused annually by the fiery, untamed bicycle and its congeners, the velocipede and the tricycle. — N. Y. Herald.

OHIO MEET.

The Ohio State Division, as has been announced, heretofore, will hold its annual meet this year at Mansfield, July 26; Marion, 27th; Springfield, 28th. You will notice by this that it is to be a touring meet, and the route selected is, for beauty of scenery and magnificent sandpapered roads, not to be excelled in Ohio, and I am doubtful if any State in the Union can place before the lovers of touring sixty-eight miles of better road for cycling. The Richland Ramblers of Mansfield are working hard to have everything in "apple pie order. The following committees have been appointed: Reception, W. E. Sawin, Jr., chairman; Programme, etc., B. J. Balliett, chairman; Contests, etc., A. P. Seiler, chairman; Parade, B. J. Balliett, chairman; Transportation, C. B. Bushnell, chairman; Entertainment Roy Antibus, chairman; Storage, Chas. J. Harris, chairman; Badges, D. L. Tracy, chairman. The programme has been delayed on account of difficulties in securing all the information necessary, from points outside of Mansfield, but it will be in the hands of wheelmen in ample time for the Meet.

The first day at Mansfield, July 26. Business meeting, 9 A. M.; dinner, parade, hill climbing, coasting, lunch, team road race. In evening, grand promenade concert, supper, etc. Second day, leave Mansfield by special train for "Marion." Entertained at Marion by Marion Bicycle Club. Depart at 3 P. M. for Magnetic Springs, via Prospect, ten miles, and Richwood, twelve miles by wheel, over elegant pike roads. Tourists remain over night at the springs, where there are ample first-class hotel accommodations for four hundred wheelmen, at the reduced rate of $1.25 per day. Morning of 28th, early start. Ten miles run to Marysville: to Mutual, twenty-four miles; to Springfield, twelve miles, where we surrender to the Springfield wheelmen, who will make things lively for the visitors. Total distance by wheel from Marion to Springfield, sixty-eight miles.

We invite all wheelmen to participate in this meet. We have arranged affairs so that it will not be any more expensive than staying at home, and we "throw in" all the fun. Come and see. The St. James hotel has reduced rates for this occasion to $1.75 per day, and the Sherman House, a hotel that we cheerfully recommend, has reduced rates to $1 25 per day for the occasion. Other good hotels in same proportion

CHICAGO.

I SUPPOSE the bicycle will be more popular among the married men hereafter, as I heard one remark the other day, that it was the only thing he could ride without his wife wanting one also. Doubtless she has been after him for a horse and buggy, or a tandem — more likely, the latter.

THE tandem fever has struck the boys and girls in this neck of the woods. I know of a young gentleman and a young lady who had it bad enough to ride until one o'clock at night, and would not have stopped then, but the machine needed oil very bad, and they were compelled to run in — only to make a second start at four oclock in the morning. This is what I would call enthusiasm for the wheel.

VAN SICKLEN won the one-mile race at Cheltenham Beach on Tuesday last, doing the mile in 2.55 with Ehlert second by ten feet, Joe Crennan third. Crennan claimed a foul on Ehlert, but the judges did not see fit to allow same.

IN the five miles professional race the starters were Wells, Crocker and Hollingsworth. Crocker won easily in 15.30. Wells dropped out at two miles, but made a second mount to finish the five miles in order to obtain third money. He had only gone a few laps at a slow speed, when he was overtaken by Hollingsworth, who was making his final spurt. The wheels locked, and both riders were thrown headlong to the board track.

ATTEMPTS were made to have Hollingsworth walk his wheel across the line, but it was useless. The poor fellow was knocked senseless, and even Whittaker with his brotherly advice gave the crowd to understand that Sam would not cross the line that afternoon. Wells's injuries were all on the face, while it is feared that Hollingsworth was hurt internally. He was carried to the residence of N. H. Van Sicklen, who resides near the beach, and it is hoped that the fall will not interfere with his riding, for we are banking on him for a twenty-four hour record some time this fall.

S. B. WRIGHT, the present secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Division, is now contending with a strained hip, resulting from a header which occurred on one of his usual scorches. It will be remembered that this is the same gentleman that attempted to coast a strange hill while on the Big Four Tour. The coast was made very successfully, but the rider found himself tangled up with a bridge at the foot of the hill, which ended Big Four Tour for him.

What are Chicago cyclers coming to? There is never a club run or a social ride that does not end with a scorch and the usual run of accidents. Sunday afternoon there was quite a crowd of the Illinois boys riding down Washington Boulevard, and the nearer to the Park the faster the pace was getting. Suddenly, Palmer shot to the front. The temptation to follow was too great to be resisted. Bowbur was riding Munger's quadrant trike, and it was quite evident that he wished to maintain its reputation. The steering being altogether different from that of a bicycle, he was unable to control it, and in an attempt to pass a carriage, the machine got the best of him and carried him directly into the curbstone, thence against a lamp post, which made a total wreck of the quadrant. The rider was not injured.

There may be times when a scorch would be in order, but I, for one, object to them on a club run, and especially on a crowded boulevard. At the present time we enjoy every privilege of the parks and boulevards, but if something is not done to prevent these "would-be scorchers" from racing down the boulevards five or six abreast, we will find ourselves in the same fix as the New York wheelmen, — shut out altogether. SPECTATOR.

LONG ISLAND NOTES.

I WAS pleased yesterday to hear that a number of Brooklyn wheelmen had been over the route to Sands Point, as described in my last notes, last Sunday, and were enthusiastic about the road and scenery.

This trip is destined to become a favorite one with Metropolitan wheelmen because of its beauty and accessibility. At the Point there is a good hotel with splendid bathing facilities. Steamers leave foot of East 31st Street at 9.45 A. M., 3.15 and 4 P. M., except Saturdays (2.30 and 3 P. M.,) and Sundays (9.15 and 9.30 A. M. and 2.30 P. M.) Leave Peck's Slip fifteen minutes earlier. Boats leave the Point for New York at 7.40 A. M., 12.45 and 8 P. M., except Saturdays (7.05 P. M.,) and Sundays (12.30, 4.20, and 8 P. M.)

Fare, 35 cents; round trip, 50 cents.

ALL routes to the East through Flushing, are now covered by the L. A. W. signs, as far East as Great Neck and Queens. Apropos of League signs, why is not this important branch of the League's work more thoroughly attended to? Probably no work could be undertaken by the general membership which would better accrue to the advantage of the League in public notice and favor, and yet in all my riding in the Hudson valley, New Jersey, and Long Island, I have seen but two small League signs, and they were of no use to me, as they pointed in the opposite direction from my route.

THERE was great rejoicing among Brooklyn, and New York City Wheelmen over the news of the Governor signing the "Bicycle Bill," and great honor is due all concerned in pushing the matter, especially Messrs. Potter, Luscomb, and Bidwell. It is said that this bill is the first legal recognition of the bicycle on record.

CONSIDERABLE damage from sinking was done during the late rains to the Flushing Athletic Club's new track, but it is now being put in shape again, and will undoubtedly be very fast.

It is of peculiar shape, being essentially square, with round corners, but is almost a continuous curve, five laps to the mile. We also have eight tennis courts, base ball, etc., ladies' clubhouse, gymnasium, shower baths, and locker rooms. No. 7,556.

REORGANIZATION.

C. H. LUSCOMB, ESQ., Chairman Special Committee on Revising L. A. W. Constitution.

DEAR SIR: — In response to your request for suggestions to aid your Committee, I beg to submit the following as my views.

First. That the League should be reorganized, with the central idea that it is not a club, but a National Association, whose functions are to govern and regulate only such interests connected with cycling as necessarily require co-operative action of all wheelmen.

Second. That the cardinal principles of an organization should be:

(a) All rights, powers, and duties, exist in the individual.

(b) In order to make our exertions more effective in certain lines, and for convenience of administration, we delegate a portion of our power to elective officers, but reserve to the membership at large all powers not distinctly so delegated, as defined by the Constitution.

(c) That for further convenience we district this work according to State Divisions, and assign to such divisions a portion of both authority and duty.

To carry out these principles, it seems to me, First, that we should admit to our ranks as a matter of right and without a pro forma examination into personal character, any wheelman residing within our jurisdiction; or, if the farcical amateur distinction is inevitable, that we should make this the sole requirement of membership. Second, that we should reserve the right of expulsion for such ungentlemanly behavior as would directly concern the whole League, or for transgression of its laws (just as the nation disfranchises for crime) or for non-payment of dues, — which correspond to taxes in the political organism; and in accordance with this conception of membership, should abolish the Membership Committee and substitute a sort of Judiciary.

Third. That the mode of electing officers, the general definition of their duties, and the power of State Divisions should be embodied in the Constitution; and that the powers of the executive should also be distinctly defined therein, and no appeal allowed from his decision.

Fourth. That the duties of Division officers belong in the Division laws, and that the legislative body of each Division should not necessarily be identical with its portion of the League's legislature; as good men could sometimes be obtained to serve on one and not the other, if only on account of traveling expenses.

Fifth. That, since the majority are evidently unwilling to give real power to the General Meeting, that meeting should be abolished, and all legislative power for the whole League be deposited by definite law with the Board of Officers, who would more properly be termed a Legislative Board.

Sixth. That each Division should be allowed to hold its own election, but that the alternative modes of doing so should be prescribed by the Constitution; as either by mail vote of the entire Division, by mail vote in districts, or by personal ballot at stated polls; these polls to be kept open for not less than ten days, and to be distant not more than fifty miles from the residence of any member entitled to vote thereat. And that in all cases there shall be direct popular election, that the whole membership of each Division shall vote directly for Chief Consul, and the whole membership of the League for the National Executive Officers.

Concerning matters of detail, I should do away with the mail vote of the Legislative Board and with the requirement as to filling out proxies, but take from executive officers the right to use proxies. There should be fixed times for the Legislative Board to meet, say quarterly, which times should be stated in the Constitution, and the place of meeting in the By-Laws not left subject to call.

I would also recommend that the clause relating to membership (Article III, present Constitution), read about as follows:

"Any wheelman resident in the United States, eighteen years or over, shall be eligible to membership upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws."

And that the amendatory article should read: "This Constitution shall not be altered or amended unless such amendment has been adopted by the Legislative Board, and ratified by two-thirds of the State Divisions through a mail vote of the membership in each Division."

It might be well to add a clause stating how the Legislative Board should adopt or amend the By-Laws. These are really the enactment, for comparatively temporary purposes, of the Board; and as they are only the servants of the general membership, it is proper that their action should, in all cases, be in accordance with rules laid down by an instrument which could only be changed by the membership.

Respectfully yours,

EDWARD J. SHRIVER,
Representative for New York.

NEW YORK, June 23, 1887.

BEATRICE HAS AN ORDINANCE.

THERE has for some time been in force an ordinance which prohibits the use of First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Court Streets, for bicycle riding, thus cutting off our wheelmen from the privilege of riding through the pleasantest part of our city, and confining them to the rough back streets where riding is difficult, and the surroundings unpleasant. A similar ordinance has been passed in several cities, and the question is not merely a local one.

MR. Frank Robertson thought he would take a run through Court Street the other day, and was arrested and brought before Judge Callison and fined one dollar and costs, which he refused to pay and was remanded to the custody of the marshal until the same was paid. We are informed that a writ of habeas corpus has been sued out and made returnable next Saturday at 3 P. M., when Judge Broady will pass on the legality of the ordinance. The boys we understand, have raised a purse and employed Mr. Murray as attorney to represent Mr. Robertson, and will make a test case of this to settle the question of their righis.

At the last meeting of the city council, the city attorney was ordered to appear and prosecute the case on behalf of the city. The case will doubtless be followed with much interest. — Beatrice Express.

CYCLETS.

MIDSUMMER.

JULY emulates the wheelman.

IT is a scorcher of the scorchiest kind.

IT is not a month for doing what Julyk to.

THE heat drives you to the surf or shade, and commands inactivity.

HOTELS where good roads abound catch the touring cyclist's trade.

THE Wyoming Division, just formed, is the thirtieth on the list of divisions.

LIKE the racing men, we are all waiting for the final heat; then will come the cool breezes

THE Kansas City Journal has a very good cycling department. We hope the boys appreciate it.

THE Capital Club won the team race at Hagerstown, and not the Washington Club, as reported.

WOODSIDE and the other members of the American team of racing cyclists will go to Germany next month.

RHODES has publicly challenged Whittaker to a hundred mile road race, and desires to meet him at Clarksville.

A WESTERN paper announces that Wm. A. Rowe and W. F. Knapp will ride a race for the championship of the world on or before August 15.

MEMBERS of the old Massachusetts Club have been furnished with tickets giving them the freedom of the Boston club house until next September.

AN English house has made a speed indicator with which one can ascertain the speed he is going at without dismounting. No explanation of its working is given.

TEMPLE has proved a "dark horse" on the American team, and has showed his little wheel to Howell. His name suggests the old time record breaker (Flora) Temple.

THISTLE be a great year in yachting circles. Columbia will once more show England how she can sail a boat, and if Howell will come over we'll show him how to Rowe.

THE Ilderans have issued an illustrated route slip of their tour which begins at New York on Saturday, extends to Niagara Falls and Canada, and ends at New York on the 19th.

LADISH has sold his interest in the American Wheelman to Rogers and Gordon. And now the two monthlies present a conundrum for wheelmen to consider regarding their future.

CHELSEA wheelmen were not a little excited over the race for the local championship. The Chelsea Club, which has held it since it was established, had to hand it over to the Ramblers.

BASE-ball players and runners are troubled with what they call "Charley Horse." It is a contraction of the muscles of the leg, caused by these forms of exercises. Wheelmen do not have Charley Horse.

THEY are going to have a "comic bicycle race" in a programme of sports at Boston, England. It is a condition of the race that the competitors shall never have been on a bicycle. Some people are easily amused.

A NEAT pamphlet containing valuable road information, list of Ohio League hotels, consuls, and officers, revised to date, has been issued under direction of the Ohio Division by Messrs Casselberry and Meyer, of Canton.

WE saw Colonel Pope on an imported quadricycle the other day, and it had wooden wheels, too. It It was not the new wooden wheeled cycle; it was a "tally-ho" which the Boston Cab Company has brought over from France.

"WHERE is that wooden-wheeled tricycle?" we are often asked. We saw the manufacturer the other day, and he told us it was coming out soon. The company is not talking much, but they are not idle, and they mean business in the future.

SEVEN members of the East Cambridge Cycle Club will start on August 1, for a two-weeks' trip among the White Mountains. They will use for conveyance a large barge. This makes their second trip through that region, and the members expect to enjoy no end of sport.

THE hill-climbing contest of the Manchester (N. H.) Club took place on Hanover Street last Saturday afternoon. The distance, one-quarter of a mile, was covered by the winner, President F. C. Moulton of the bicycle club in 1.17 7-8; C. H. Fish second, 1.25; C. E. Temple third, 1.35.

JOHN ALBAN RANDOLPH, of England, has sent us a pamphlet containing a complete list of cycle championships run in the British Isles and in Europe during 1886. The statistics are carefully compiled, and the book is valuable for reference. He proposes to include the American championships in his list for 1887.

CLUB captains who are planning runs should not forget to include Allen's Pond in the list. A run to this delightful bathing place after a hot day, or on a warm Sunday, makes one of the most delightful meetings that this neighborhood can favor us with. The bather is provided with towels, and everything necessary to the bath.

THE Michigan Division, L. A. W., will meet at Ann Arbor July 8, and at Detroit July 9. On Saturday evening, July 9, the Detroit Club will entertain the division members with their ladies on board the steamer Fortune. In the afternoon races will be run at Bicycle Park. The three-mile national championship will be contested.

A FATAL runaway accident in New York, caused by the animal taking fright at a bicycle rider, illustrates, according to the New York Times, "the danger of allowing bicycles on the driving road." But it was not the bicycle that ran away. The accident illustrates more clearly the danger of allowing nervous and fractious horses on the driving roads.—N. Y. Herald.

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "I want to tell you about a game of base-ball we had the other day. The bases were run by men mounted on bicycles. A stood at the bat and knocked the ball, and B was mounted on his bicycle, close at hand, ready to run the bases. A knocked the ball and B started. It was not a very scientific game, but we had hogsheads of fun, and we didn't get many runs either. If any of your clubs want an afternoon's fun let them try this."

THE National Racing Board of the League of American Wheelmen offered to locate the ten-mile national championship for 1887 in California, but it was declined, for the reason that it was not either of the distances originally asked for, and besides, could not be used at the meet of July 4, because there was not sufficient time to announce it thirty days previous to the date of contest, as required by the rules of the League. — Chronicle.

"IF you wish to see what a blazing jewel consistency is," remarked a wheelman a day or two since, "you should take your wheel and go road-riding a few times." It is a painful fact," he continued, "which is perhaps most striking to the cycler, that a horse may scare and shy at a locomotive, a dog, an obstruction, or even a harmless piece of paper in the road, and ninety-nine times in a hundred the owner will call the animal a blanked fool, but let the same horse shy at a bicycle and ninety-nine times in the hundred the owner will blame the wheel, and swear at its rider. This is the sort of consistency we have to put up with for the sake of peace." — N. O. Times Democrat.

SOME talk there is of having the next meeting of the League in this city. Before inviting the League to come here, however, it is just as well to know what the popular feeling is in the matter. Philadelphia riders have nothing to be gained by a street parade and no streets to parade over. The Park is a good enough place, but the pent-up Utica of Park and pike would not begin to hold a real live, active League Meet, even were the Park Commissioners willing. Few of this city's riders would or could take the time requisite to give the visitors proper entertainment; but if such there be, and enough of them, and the needful is at hand for the entertainment of the League, then let the meet come. All the other large cities have been visited by the League, and certainly Philadelphia is no worse off in the way of accommodation than was New York, and a good time was had there.—Phila. Times.

PUBLIC thoroughfares are the people's highways. One man has the same right to use them for wheels propelled by himself as another has to use them for wheels spun by horse power; one has the same right to ride a bicycle that another has to ride a horse on them. But it is objected that bicycles frighten horses in the park, and are therefore dangerous. Well, accidents are deplorable, and danger is to be averted whenever possible; But the principle has never been adopted that whatever scares horses must be banished. A horse will sometimes take fright at a four-in-hand drag, a bright colored sunshade, a baby carriage, a peacock, or some other of the numerous objects to be seen in the Park. But such things are not for that reason excluded from the Park. Horses must be got used to bicycles, as they must be to elevated roads, and other things that may frighten them. And until this is attained they must be driven with care.— N. Y. Herald.

A LOCAL paper the other day drew attention to a quiet act of heroism in a small way which its reporter had witnessed, viz., the action of a bicyc'ist in turning his wheel at right angles into the curbstone, and suffering a very painful and severe fall, rather than run the risk of attempting to get past two ladies who had incautiously, and without an instant's warning, stepped into the road before him. We hope there are plenty of us who would do the same, and we allude to the incident more particularly, because an old friend of ours, unknown to the cycling world, once did a very similar action, which we have never forgotten. Turning a corner at a high rate of speed on a 52-inch Humber one dark night, he had just time to discern the figures of three or four women in front of him, and with no time to stop he crammed on the brake hard, and went over the handles hard, too. The women were terrified, but not hurt; "Jack" was hurt, but not terrified; and the machine — as Humbers will — came out of it scatheless. It was a brave action, and oh! supercilious clubmen, its author wore trousers, and stuffed the ends in his socks when a-wheel. — Wheeling.

IT was generally understood last September among the wheelmen of Kansas that they would return to Junction City at the time of the Second Annual Meet of the Kansas Division, L. A. W., in July, 1887. In its efforts to make the Inter-State Commerce law as odious as possible in the eyes of the people, the Union Pacific Railway Company made a ruling which required wheelmen to transport their bicycles by express instead of in baggage car at owner's risk as formerly, alleging that the law compelled this unjust discrimination against wheelmen. Other roads, however, among them notably the Missouri Pacific, continued former practice in regard to carrying wheels free when accompanied by owners. Owing to this ruling by the U. P. company it became necessary for the wheelmen of Kansas to select some other point than Junction City for the holding of the meet for 1887; and, naturally, preference was given to a town easily accessible by other lines than the Union Pacific. Paola was selected, and the meet will be held there July 16, 17, 17, 1887. This case furnishes an illustration wherein a grasping monopoly overreached itself. When it was too late to do any good, the U. P. rescinded its ruling, effectually exposing the falsity of the claim that it was required under the law.

MEMBERS of the old Massachusetts Club met last Tuesday evening and reorganized the club. The following officers were elected: President, Winfield S. Slocum; secretary, W. M. Farrington; treasurer, William H. Minot; executive committee, President Slocum, J. E. Tippett, A. Douglass Salkeld; membership committee, E. Herbert Whitney, chairman; Robert G. Amory, Alonzo D. Peck, Jr., H. W. Cumner, Fred W. Hill.

It was voted to incorporate the club, and the executive committee was instructed to obtain a charter. The club begins life again with about one hundred and ten members.

AN ODE TO YE UBIQUITOUS SPRINKLERS.

SPRINKLE, sprinkle water cart,
When I wonder where thou art;
If the roads are nice and dry,
Always let the water fly.

"When the blazing sun is set,
And the grass with dew is wet";
Then the roads your sole delight,
For they're sloppy all the night.

Then, when I am in the dark
And the mongrels round me bark,
I hardly know "which way to go,"
On the road you 've sprinkled so.

Then, the mud that fills the holes
Through which my spattered cycle rolls,
Makes me hope with all my heart,
That from this world you'll soon depart.

THE DETROIT RACE.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Referring to a communication signed "Mich.," and appearing in your issue of June 24, I desire to say that I am the "prominent member of the Star Club" referred to, who offered the medal in the late Grosse Pointe road race. My object was not to bring about any issue between Star and ordinary riders, but simply to try and stir up some little interest in cycling matters in Detroit, which the Detroit Bicycle Club fails to do. When I offered the medal, I remarked, in the presence of several wheelmen, that Mr. Lane would, in my opinion, win the first place, as the Star riders upon whom we would "pin our faith" are new riders (new to the Star at least). I never claimed, nor do I believe that any member of the Star Club claimed, other than third place for the Star. It has never been claimed that the Star has made the run to Grosse Point in less time than the ordinary, as such statement would not be true. The ordinary riders did not reach the gravel first, as the first man to reach said gravel was William K. Bradish, riding a 45 inch Star. Mr. Lane won the race in 34 minutes; W. E. Metzger, on a 45-inch Star, coming in second, just two seconds later. Mr. Metzger has ridden the Star bicycle, all told, less than five hundred miles. Furthermore, he had been ill, and had done no training; at the hour of the race he was more fit for his bed than his wheel. Mr Lane won the race on the final spurt. Mr. Metzger, being unaccustomed to the Star and not having learned the Star spurt, this being his first race on that machine, was beaten by two seconds at the tape, though much fresher than his antagonists. Mark what followed: Lane, who, it is generally conceded, had gone to the last point of his endurance, was helped into the house completely "done up," and there rubbed and worked over by a half dozen of his enthusiastic admirers, while Metzger, as fresh as a daisy, sat a few feet away coolly fanning himself. Willing hands of our Star Club were ready to minister to him, but one of our members waved them away, saying: "He does n't need us, and the contrast is too amusing. It would be a pity to spoil the picture." Mr. Lane rode the race in fine form, won it honestly, and has behaved like a gentleman in all that concerns the matter. FRANK C. BLODGETT.

AT the recent races of the San Francisco Bicycle Club, first prizes were credited to the Rudge Racers and in fact every rider of the Rudge got a medal.

THE reputation for square dealing of the Plymouth Rock Pants Company, of Boston, whose advertisement appears in another column, is too well known to need any indorsement. Their invariable custom of cheerfully refunding money at buyer's request, has won for them a good name from Maine to California. Their famous custom-made Plymouth Rock $3 pants, however, are so uniformly satisfactory, that their offer to refund is rarely accepted, the buyer usually regretting but one thing — that he did not begin to save money by becoming one of their customers sooner. Any one sending them six cents receives a dozen or more attractive samples and a good linen tape measure.

THE PATH.

LYNN, July 1. — On Decoration day, McCurdy beat Rowe from the three hundred yard mark in a three-mile handicap. Rowe was not satisfied with the result and a private match was arranged to bring the men together on the same terms. The race was run this day at 7 P. M., and for a purse of $500. Three-mile handicap, — A. A. McCurdy, 300 yards (1) by 20 yards; W. A. Rowe, scratch (2), 8.15. Rowe's best record for three miles is 7.48 4-5.

LYNN, MASS., July 4. — Races under the auspices of the Lynn Cycle Track Association.

One-mile novice, — E. Bergholtz (1), 3.09; J. F. Lang (2).

Three-mile handicap, — H. C. Getchell (scratch) (1), 8.51 2-5: E. Bergholtz (350 yards) (2).

Three-mile professional handicap, — H Crocker (200 yards) (1), 8.44 4-5; A. A. McCurdy (300 yards) (2).

One-mile boys' handicap, — W. H. Senter (scratch) (1), 3.04 3-5; H. O'Neil (50 yards) (2).

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

JERSEY-FITTING, SELF-SUPPORTING

BICYCLE STOCKING.

The attention of the Wheelmen and the trade is kindly called to our new Self Supporter Stocking, for which we have obtained Letters Patent June 14, 1887. The enclosed cut gives a correct description of this stocking and its design, and needs no argument to show that they are the best thing that has been made for holding the stocking in position. They are Ribbed, Jersey-Fitting, and very elastic, regular made, double heel and toes. The form and proportions of the foot, heel, toe, ankle, calf and leg are perfect, as represented in the cut, and there is no better made or better fitting stocking in the market. The part above the stocking for holding it in position is made of cotton or wool, thin or heavy, as may be desired, and comes up and fastens around the waist, same as tights, and holds the stockings where they belong. Price, $2.25; or stockings without supporter, $1.50.

Any infringement will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Send us your order for either of these, with color, size of foot, and length from bottom of foot to waist, and post-office order for amount, and we will send same by mail or express to any part of the country; and if you do not find them satisfactory, return them, and we will return amount paid for them. OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

Made same as full tights, to three inches below the knee.

TRUNKS

Are a great protection to tights, receiving all the wear from the saddle, and can easily be removed, and thus save the more expensive garments.

AN AMERICAN MADE WHEEL, WITH ALL PARTS INTERCHANGEABLE

WITH

Trigwell's ball-bearing head, and perfection backbone and forks. The ball head has been PROVED by two years' use a great success, and the best criticisers are not competing dealers, but the users and riders, and we refer to the latter's testimonials in our catalogue. Did any rider ever see too rigid and strong backbone and forks? Are not the Strengthened Perfection Pattern Backbones and Forks common sense improvements? Notice the advantages. Perfectly rigid forks and backbones which do not break nor spring out. Especially fitted for rough road work. And look at our rim with the thickened base; no such thing as buckling.

RHODE ISLAND WHEELMEN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 26.—The R. I. Division, L. A. W., held a 25-mile road race yesterday for three medals. There were five starters, and M. Turner, of Warren, came in first, Time, 1 hour, 42 minutes, 5 seconds. L. A. Dawson, of Pawtucket, second; C. M. Morse, of Pawtucket, third. Turner rode a Columbia, Dawes a Star, and Morse a Rudge.

THE TWENTY-FIVE MILE ROAD RACE AT HARTFORD, CONN.

The race held at Hartford, June 9th, was one of the hardest ridden in this country; it was a genuine scorcher's race over the worst, heaviest, and muddiest roads, in a pelting rain storm. . . . The men mounted at 4.10 and were pushed off a minute later in the presence of a large crowd of wheelmen and spectators. . . . Considering the conditions, the time was creditable in the extreme. The race was a great one, and all the contestants showed elements of pluck and endurance that only those who knew the condition of the roads can realize.—Bicycling World, June 17, 1887.

L. A. Miller, 54-inch Columbia Light Roadster, first; Wm. Harding, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, second; E. A. DeBlois, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, third; F. L. Damery, 51-inch Columbia Light Roadster, fourth; Ludwig Forster, 54-inch Victor, fifth; S. J. Mills, 48-inch Expert Columbia, did not finish.
